"We would likewise mention our father the Minister who resides among the Mohawks, and was sent them by the King. He does not meddle in civil affairs, but instructs them in the way to heaven. He absolutely refuses to attend to any political matters, and says they do not belong to him. They beg he may continue in peace among them. The Mohawks are frequently alarmed with reports that their Minister is to be torn away from them. It would occasion great disturbance, was he to be taken away. The King sent him to them, and they would look upon it as taking away one of their own body. Therefore, they again request that he may continue to live in peace among them.

"Brothers: After having informed us of the situation of affairs, and having finished your business, you advise us to shut our ears against false reports, and that we should not attend to flying stories, but to what wise and good men should say. For which reason, you had kindled up a council fire at this place, that we might always converse together, and know the truth of things.

"Brothers: The Six Nations say, let it be so; it shall be as you desire. They thank you for this advice, and desire you would use the same precautions; that you would shut your ears to flying reports, but keep your eye upon the chief council, such as you see now convened. The Six Nations desire you would always inform them fully of what respects them. We have for this purpose opened our ears, and purified our minds, that we may always hear and receive what you have to say with good and clear minds. And whenever we receive any important intelligence, we shall always bring it to this council fire.

"Brothers: You delivered us this pipe. On one side the tree of peace, on the other a council fire; we Indians sitting on one side of the fire, and the representatives of the Twelve United Colonies upon the other. You have desired that this pipe may be left at our central council house, and that the tree of peace may be planted, and that the branches may be so high as to be visible to our allies.

"Brothers: We thank you, and shall take care to deposit this where you desire; and when we meet to deliberate upon business, shall always use this our council pipe.

"Brothers, attend: In the course of your speech you observed that we of the Six Nations were a wise people, and say a great way before us; and you asked us, if you upon this island were conquered, what would become of the Indians. You say you are uncertain of holding your present possessions, and that you do not know who may enjoy the product of your labour. Now, therefore, brothers, attend; you, particularly, our brothers of Albany; we address ourselves particularly to you. You, our brothers of Albany, have taken two pieces of land from us, without any reward, not so much as a single pipe. We therefore desire you will restore them, and put us into peaceable possession again. If you refuse to do this, we shall look upon the prospect to be bad; for if you conquer you will take us by the arm and pull us all off.

"Now, therefore, as the Twelve United Colonies have renewed their covenant of peace, we beg that there may be no obstruction upon your parts, but that you would restore our land to us, for which, as we said before, you never paid us even a single pipe.

"Brothers: You have now finished your business, and we have made short replies. You have kindled up a council fire of peace, and have planted a tree of peace according to ancient custom. We find that you have omitted one thing, which is this: According to our ancient custom, whenever a council fire was kindled up, and a tree of peace was planted, there was some person appointed to watch it. Now, as there is no person appointed to watch this tree, we of the Six Nations take upon us to appoint one. Let it be the descendant of our ancient friend Queder. He has to consider whether he will take the charge of it. He that watches this council fire is to be provided with a wing, that he may brush off all insects that come near it, and keep it clean. That is the custom at our central council house; we have one appointed for that purpose.

"Brothers: As you have this day renewed the ancient covenant of friendship, and have again brightened the ancient chain, renew likewise another ancient custom respecting the regulation of trade. Let us have a trade at this place, and likewise at Schenectady, as it was in former times, when we had hold of the old covenant. For then, brothers, if our people came down with only a few musquash skins, they went home with glad hearts.

"Brothers: Let it be so again; let the Twelve United Colonies take this into consideration."—(A belt of ten rows of wampum.)

Tiahogwando, an Onondaga Sachem, then spake:

"Brothers: This is all the Six Nations have to say at present; they would just mention one thing more before they break up. The Six Nations look upon this as a very good time to speak their minds, as here are the representatives of the Twelve Colonies.

"The dispute between the people of New-England and Penn seems to us likely to become a serious affair, and therefore the Six Nations take upon themselves to speak their minds freely, as they address the inhabitants of the whole Continent. Many years ago, at a council held in Penn- sylvania, when Amassateego, that has been before mentioned, was present, Penn desired the Six Nations would sell him that piece of land known by the name of Scanandanani or Susquehannah. The Indians of the Six Nations refused to sell it, saying, the great God would not permit them. Therefore they made him a present of that land known by the name of Scanandanani. Penn received it, and made them valuable presents. After this, Colonel Lydius, a gentleman employed by the people of Boston, treated with some of the Indians, to get that land from them, but he never kindled up a council fire upon the occasion. He spoke to them whenever he met them, never with more than ten. From those he pretended to make a purchase of that tract. Governour Penn also, at the great treaty at Fort Stanwix, in the year 1768, desired that this land might be his, and distributed among the Six Nations, Shawanese, and Caughnawagas, ten thousand dollars, for which they gave him a writing. This is an affair with which all the Six Nations are acquainted, and any one would lie who said they knew nothing about it.

"We have taken an opportunity to speak of this matter now, as the minds of the whole Continent are now here."

Friday, September 1, 1775.

At a treaty held this day with the Indians of the Six Nations, at the City of Albany, present: Colonel Francis, Colonel Wolcott, Mr. Douw, Commissioners.

The Commissioners gave the following Answer to the Speech delivered by the Indians yesterday:

"Brothers of the SIX NATIONS:

"We yesterday heard with pleasure your answer to the speech of the Twelve United Colonies, and we return thanks to the great Governour of the Universe, that he has inclined your hearts to approve and accept of the brotherly love offered to you by them. It makes us happy to hear so wise and brave a people as our brothers of the Six Nations publicly declare their unalterable resolution to maintain and support peace and friendship with the Twelve United Colonies. This, brothers, you have said, and we most sincerely believe you.

"Brothers: We requested you, Indians of the Six Nations, not to interfere in our quarrel. We are not in the least doubtful of success, as our cause is good and just. We will live or die like men. We can raise an army of three hundred thousand fighting men, who are brave, and determined not to part with their civil and religious privileges. Therefore, we now repeat to you, brothers of the Six Nations, take care of the strong friendship you have now made with the Twelve United Colonies. Let that be your care, for peace we wish to establish.

"Brothers: You yesterday told us, that as the roads in your country were opened for you and your brethren of the Twelve United Colonies to pass and repass in safety, you begged we would not soon defile them with blood.

"Brothers: Be assured we have no intention at present to spill blood in your country; and it never can happen, unless those wicked men, who have come so far from home to disturb the peace of the Twelve United Colonies, appear there. For, as we are men determined to be free or die, we must pursue them until we drive them off this island, or until they confirm our ancient privileges. Therefore, brothers, rest assured, that whatever may happen between us and our enemies, we will never injure or disturb the peace of the Six Nations, but preserve invariably, even unto death, the friendship that is established.

"Brothers: You desired yesterday that some of your friends of our blood should remain unmolested, particularly the Missionary at Fort Hunter, who, you say, does not concern himself with the affairs of this world, but is earnestly engaged in instructing you in the reverence due to the Great God who governs the universe. Brothers, such a man we love, and we are also desirous of his remaining quiet and happy with you. We are also desirous that all the other Missionaries may continue safely among you, and instruct you in the gospel, which will be the means of your happiness in this world and in the world to come.

"Brothers: We always looked upon you, our brothers of the Six Nations, to be a wise and capable people in conducting business of every kind. We were, therefore, a little surprised to hear you say, that no one was appointed by the Twelve United Colonies to attend and watch the fire that they had kindled up at this place, when we have repeatedly told you that they had appointed five persons, whose business it is to attend and preserve it bright and clear; and that two of those five lived in this Town, who would take particular care of it, and who had full authority from the Twelve United Colonies to keep the flame pure and bright. For fear you should not have understood us fully, we again acquaint you that the Twelve United Colonies have appointed General Schuyler and Mr. Douw, both of this Town, to keep the fire burning, that it may illuminate the whole country of the Six Nations, who may always see the way down to it, and may sit in peace around it.

"Brothers: You yesterday desired that the trade might be again opened at this place and Schenectady. We also wish it, and it will be done; so that you may trade as you formerly did, and be able to return home with your goods, to your satisfaction.

"Brothers: You yesterday mentioned some matters concerning land claimed by the people of Albany, and also land in dispute between Connecticut and Governour Penn. We now inform you that we are not authorized to transact any business of that kind at present, but will represent the matter to the Grand Congress at Philadelphia.

"Brothers: We have now finished, and let you know that the presents that we have brought you from the Twelve United Colonies are preparing for you, and when ready to be delivered we will acquaint you. Wagons shall be provided when you are ready to set off for Schenectady."
—(Six strings of wampum.)

After which, each of the different Nations gave the yoe-haas.

Captain Solomon, the Chief of the Stockbridge Indians, then addressed the Commissioners as follows:

"Brothers, appointed by the Twelve United Colonies:

"We thank you for taking care of us and supplying us with provisions since we have been at Albany. Depend upon it, we are true to you, and mean to join you. Wherever you go, we will be by your sides. Our bones shall lie with yours. We are determined never to be at peace with the red coats, while they are at variance with you. We have one favour to beg. We should be glad if you would help us to establish a Minister among us, that when our men are gone to war, our women and children may have the advantage of being instructed by him. If we are conquered, our lands go with yours; but if we are victorious, we hope you will help us to recover our just rights."—(A belt.)

To which the Commissioners replied:

"Brothers of Stockbridge: We have heard what you have said, and thank you. It is not in our power to answer the two questions you have put to us—the first respecting a Minister, the second concerning your lands. We say it is not in our power to give you an answer just now; but we will represent your case to the Continental Congress, and we dare say they will re-establish you in all your just rights."

Albany, September 1, 1775.

We, the subscribers, appointed by the honourable the Continental Congress as Commissioners for Indian Affairs for the Northern Department, do certify that the foregoing is a true copy of all matters and proceedings relative to a Treaty began with the Indians of the Six Nations and their allies, at the German Flats, on Tuesday, the fifteenth day of August, 1775, and finished at the City of Albany, on Friday, this first day of September, 1775.

TURBUTT FRANCIS,
OLIVER WOLCOTT,
VOLKERT P. DOUW.

TENCH TILGHMAN,
Sec'y to Commissioners for Northern Dep't.

Albany, Friday, September 1, 1775.

This day finished our Treaty with the Indians of the Six Nations, and informed them that to-morrow morning the Presents from the Twelve United Colonies would be ready to be delivered to them, and that Wagons should be prepared to carry them to Schenectady, whenever they pleased to move homewards.

Resolved, That we recommend to the honourable the Continental Congress the Rev. Samuel Kirkland and Mr. Dean, for their service in this present Treaty.

Resolved, That whereas it has been customary to keep two Smiths in the Indian country, for the purpose of mending their Arms and Utensils, that we recommend it to the Continental Congress to appoint two proper persons, with adequate salaries.

TURBUTT FRANCIS,
OLIVER WOLCOTT,
VOLKERT P. DOUW.

TENCH TILGHMAN,
Sec'y to Commissioners for Northern Dep't.

Albany Committee Chamber, September 2, 1775.

"Resolved, That an invitation be immediately sent to the Commissioners of Indian Affairs, desiring their attendance at the Presbyterian Meeting-House this morning, at eleven o'clock, as this Board will then answer the Speech of the Indians."

The Committee, at the time appointed, repaired to the Meeting-House, and there delivered, in the presence and with the consent and approbation of the Commissioners, the following Answer:

"Brothers of the SIX NATIONS: We beg you will acquaint us when you are complete.

"Brothers: We suppose it will not be insisted upon to repeat the whole of your speech, as we conceive it unnecessary, and therefore shall only take notice of the material parts.

"Brothers: You said that you were glad to see us at this place on the 25th August, in consequence of our invitation, and that you were glad to see some sparks of the old council fire yet remained, and that you rejoiced even to excess to find it so.

"Brothers: We thank you for your kind congratulations and salutations at meeting us here, and rejoice in the opportunity you have given us at this time of meeting one another in friendship and peace, to talk of old times and renew our ancient treaty.

"Brothers: We are happy to find that you so readily accepted our request to come and see us, and that you have had so much patience and behaved so orderly during your short stay among us.

"Brothers: At the conference of our Deputies with you at the German Flats, they showed you some old belts of wampum which you expressed a desire to see. Here are those belts, and we hope even time will not wear them out. This is the belt given by the Oneida Nation, and is the old covenant between the whole Oneida Nation and Gorah Queder. This is the belt that was given by the Indian called Kayiguaraghtoh, in behalf of the Six Nations.

"Brothers, attend: In your speech you further observed that you had long since taken a resolution to take no active part in the present contest for liberty. We do not offer to censure you for your conduct, but admire your wisdom, praise your pacifick disposition, and hope you will have fortitude to maintain and persevere in it."—(A belt.)

"Brothers: You further said that the road to the westward you heard by the bird was to be stopped up. This matter is beyond our limits. The Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies having spoken to you at large about the roads, that they shall be left open; we entirely agree with them in this, and therefore shall add nothing on this point, and return the belt.

"Brothers: You said, further, and delivered us this belt, that you were anxious about and concerned for your Minister, Mr. Kirkland, and asked our advice about his remaining among you, who we do not see that you should be deprived of without your consent, any more than the Mohawk Tribe should be deprived of their Missionary. We highly approve of your concern for the Ministers of the gospel, and your attachment for the pure precepts and doctrine of Christianity. But if your Minister is removed, we should fear the consequence, it would certainly give occasion of jealousy to your brethren, the white people, that you Indians were not well disposed. Therefore it is our ardent wish that they may all remain among you, as your teachers and instructors in virtue, piety, and true religion; and we hope you may benefit and profit by their instruction.—(A belt.)

"Brothers: Before any Commissioners were appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, from the disagreeable condition of our country and the ancient friendship and alliance subsisting between us, commenced in the days of your ancestors and our forefathers, we took upon us, as the representatives of the people of the City and County of Albany, to give you an invitation to pay us a friendly visit, that we might have an opportunity of seeing you here, at the place where the first fire was kindled, that we might rake up the old ashes, and not suffer it to extinguish, but renew the old covenant chain, and make it shine with brighter lustre.

"Brothers: We are happy to find from your speech that you still retain that affection for us which a well-founded friendship will naturally produce, and which we hope, from our conduct towards you, is not unmerited; and we rejoice to find that you feel for our distresses, and lament the unnatural quarrel of brethren, which you express so warmly by a desire of an amicable settlement.

"Brothers: Time will not permit us at present to mention to you how and on what occasion the first covenant was made between your and our forefathers. They have never deserted you, but kept their covenants and agreements with you; nor do we mean to act otherwise on our part.

"Brothers: This covenant, afterwards improved upon, was confirmed between you and us in the year 1665, one year after this Country went over to the Crown of England. Since this you have, from time to time, admitted into your chain the Tuscaroras, and most, if not all, the Twelve United Colonies.

"Brothers: There are five gentlemen, Commissioners, appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, at the Grand Council at Philadelphia; the management of the publick business in the Indian Department now belongs to them. These gentlemen have informed you of the nature of the dispute between Great Britain and this Country, and testified their desire of keeping up the council fire between us.

"Brothers: We know it is customary, at the renewal of any covenants between us, that a present should follow. We now make it known to you that the goods you will receive of the Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies are partly ours. We pay our proportionable part towards them; so that what you receive from them is from us also. We are the same; there is no distinction.

"Brothers: If our memory does not fail, we think that when we invited two or three of each of our brethren, the Six Nations, to come down here, we also desired that you would acquaint us what had passed in the Congress held at Oswego, which as yet we know nothing of. You say, indeed, that you are glad we are peaceably inclined, as well as Colonel Johnson; but you have told us nothing else that was transacted there, which we had expected, and do wish that our brothers conceal nothing from us, especially as you called God to witness for the truth of what you said.

"Brothers of the SIX NATIONS, and you the MOHAWKS in particular: We apprehend the bird Tskleleli has been busy again; he seems to be a mischievous bird, and ought not to be nourished or entertained. In your answers to the Commissioners you addressed yourselves to the inhabitants of Albany, complaining that they had taken from you two pieces of land, without giving the value of a pipe of tobacco for them, and that you desired they would restore you to the peaceable possession of them; and that the Commissioners would look into this matter, and afford you relief. The land you speak of we suppose to be Ticonderoga.

"Brothers: This is a matter foreign to the business we met upon, and we are not authorized or qualified to enter upon the subject; it is a business that belongs to the Corporation of Albany; yet, as we may be considered the representatives of the people at large, our entire silence may be construed into guilt of the heavy charge fixed upon us. For your satisfaction, as well as of the audience, we will endeavour to show that the accusation is groundless, by a few remarks. The lands alluded to are granted by the Charter of Albany; we never heard that any of your nation have been dispossessed or driven off those lands, but you hitherto have and still enjoy those lands, without the least interruption.

"Brothers: As we observed before, the matter cannot properly come before us, but belongs to another body, and therefore the application to us is improper. However, give us leave to say, that instead of complaining, we think the Mohawks, if they considered their own interest and that of their posterity, and would be candid, must acknowledge the truth of the fact, and rejoice at this day that they have had such faithful guardians and trustees; for if it had not been so, who would have enjoyed these lands now? There have been complaints concerning this matter before, and inquiries into it before proper tribunals; and for your information, and that of the curious, we refer to the proceedings of the House of Assembly of this Colony, and also to the minutes taken on a conference between the Corporation of this City and yourselves, at which Sir William Johnson was present; and therefore return you the belt."

To which they returned the following Answer, by Abraham, Chief of the Mohawks, speaker:

"Brothers of ALBANY: We return you thanks for your speech, and that you have informed us that the Twelve United Colonies, by their Commissioners, have opened all the roads; and we now take for granted that the communication at Fort Stanwix is not to be shut up, and that the New-England people never will do it. This, brethren, has been the occasion of some anxiety in the minds of the Six Nations.

"Brothers of the SIX NATIONS, attend; you, also, the People of ALBANY; and you, the Twelve United Colonies, by your Commissioners:

"Last spring Colonel Johnson informed us that the New-England people were near him, to take him prisoner; upon which, we, like people intoxicated, took up our guns and ran to assist him, as he was our Superintendent. But, brethren, as it happened in the manner beforementioned, we hope you will look upon it in that light. We, the Six Nations, have now made and renewed our ancient covenants. The proceedings just now mentioned have brought me down. I have made a proper acknowledgment to the Six Nations, and now do the same to you; and I hope you will raise me up again. The news I was just speaking of came not from a bird, but from your own people.

"Brothers of ALBANY, further attend: I shall only make a short reply to your speech relating to the lands; many agreeable things are therein. You further say, that you never heard that any of us were drove off those lands. There is one thing which was not so agreeable; it is the Tskleleli. You, brothers, know how that matter is; and in case I was to answer that part of your speech, it might, perhaps, draw us into an argument; and as you are not, as you say, the proper body to which we ought to have applied, and as you have referred us to former proceedings, we shall close.

"Brothers of ALBANY: We, the Six Nations, now tell you that it is at your pleasure to call on us, and we will inform you of what passed in the Congress at Oswego."

Abraham Yates, Jun., Chairman of the Committee, replied:

"Brothers of the SIX NATIONS: We are now ready to hear it, and should be glad you would inform us."

Abraham, the Mohawk Chief, then proceeded:

"Brothers of ALBANY: You sent for us to inform you of what passed at Oswego, but you have not, since we have been down, desired it; we have always been ready; and as you have not asked us, we will now tell you, and think it our duty, as we look upon it that God will punish us, if we conceal any thing from you.

"Brothers: The transactions of that treaty were very publick; the Shawanese were there, and some from Detroit. Mr. Johnson told us that the fire kindled there was a fire of peace; that all the white people were the King's subjects; and that it seemed they were intoxicated. Mr.

Johnson also told us, that the white people were all got drunk, and that God's judgment hung over them; but did not know on which side it would fall. Mr. Johnson further told us that the council fire was kindled, on account of the present dispute, and desired us not to interfere, as we were brothers, and begged of us to sit still and maintain peace; this is what Colonel Johnson told us at that council fire. He also said he had his eye on Mr. Kirkland; that he was gone to Philadelphia, and along the sea-coast; that he was become a great soldier and a leader. Is this a Minister? says he; do you think your Minister minds your soul? No. By the time he comes to Philadelphia he will be a great warrior, and when he returns he will be the Chief of all the Five Nations.

"Brothers: There were present five people of Detroit, five from Caughnawaga, and two of the Shawanese. Colonel Johnson told them that by the time he returned from Canada they should have all their men there, and he would then kindle a council fire; and desired them also not to take any part in this dispute, as it was a quarrel between brothers. Mr. Johnson also told them that this council fire was kindled upon peace; and that it seemed, by reason of the white people's intoxication, that God's judgment hung over them. He also told us that he was going to the Governour of Canada, who was of a different opinion from him, but would talk with him; and further said that he would tell the Caughnawaga Indians the same he told us; and for that purpose desired that two of each nation might go along and hear it. He likewise desired us to consider which way we would have our trade—whether up this river, or from Canada. He at the same time assured us that we should not suffer for want of goods, as we were not concerned nor had any hand in the present dispute. He also mentioned something about the council fires—he said there are two fires which you will keep your eyes upon; and if they call you down to Albany, don't you go; for they will deceive you, and tell you a great many fine stories. We are very glad that your language and Colonel Johnson's so well agree."

ABRAHAM YATES, JUN., Chairman.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE COMMISSIONERS FOR INDIAN AFFAIRS.

[Read before Congress, September 13, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, August 31, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Baker, of the unenlisted Green Mountain Boys, having been heretofore employed by me on a scout to Canada, with the view only to gain intelligence, and with express orders not to molest the Canadians or Indians, lately went into that country, without my leave, with a party of five men, and discovering a boat manned by an equal number of Indians, (by authentick intelligence sent me from Canada I learn they were of the Caughnawaga Tribe,) attempted to fire on them; but his gun missing, and he putting his head from behind the tree where he stood, in order to hammer his flint, received a shot in his forehead, of which he immediately expired. Upon which his party fired, and unfortunately killed two of the Indians. This event, my Canadian correspondent informs me, has induced some of the Indians of that tribe to join the regular forces at St. John's. What the consequence of Baker's imprudence will be is hard to foresee. It behooves us, however, to attempt to eradicate from the minds of the Indians any evil impressions they may have imbibed from this mortifying circumstance. But what measures to take to gain so desirable an end, I am utterly at a loss to determine. Perhaps a few Indians of the Six Nations might be willing to join the Army under my command, or a peaceable message to those of Canada. And as this account will most certainly reach the Six Nations, I believe it may be most prudent to prepare them for it, in such a manner as you, who can be assisted with the best advice at Albany, shall determine. You will be pleased to forward a copy of this letter, by express, to Congress, to whom I would have wrote, was not my time so wholly engrossed in the necessary preparations for moving the remainder of the Army, which I have ordered to embark this afternoon and to-morrow morning, and with which I propose to take possession of the Isle-au-Noix, till more artillery can be sent to me, I having sent down only four twelve-pounders, the others not being in readiness.

I am, Gentlemen, yours, &c., PHILIP SCHUYLER.

P. S. Please to communicate no more of this letter than is absolutely necessary to any body.

Pawlus Hook, opposite New-York, September 6, 1775.

SIR: I received this letter on Saturday last, just as I was leaving Albany, after completing the business with the Six Nations. As I must go on slowly, I think it proper to send it by the post; but I hope to be in Philadelphia by Sunday next, at farthest, and on Tuesday to be able to present to the Congress an account of our proceedings.

I have the honour to be, with respect, your obedient servant,

TURBUTT FRANCIS.

To Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

VOLKERT P. DOUW TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read, September 25, 1775.]

Albany, September 6, 1775.

SIR: After the Commissioners had finished their treaty with the Six Nations, they received a letter from General Schuyler, of which they sent you a copy by Colonel Francis, who, when it came to hand, was just ready to leave this place. Colonel Wolcott and self thought proper to communicate part of the contents of General Schuyler's letter to the Indians. Enclosed you have a copy of our speech to them, in consequence of it, and their answer, and also their intended speech to the Caughnawaga Indians. They have also deputed four of their warriors to wait on General Schuyler immediately, and by his direction they are to proceed to Caughnawaga. I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

VOLKERT P. DOUW.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

A Speech to the Chiefs and Warriors of the SIX NATIONS, from the Commissioners, in consequence of General SCHUYLER's Letter from TICONDEROGA, by express, dated AUGUST 31, 1775.

"Brothers: We are now assembled to smoke a pipe, and the subject of our meeting at this time is important and affecting.

"Brothers: You remember when we rekindled the ancient council fire at this place, and settled all matters, we agreed that whatever intelligence should be received from any quarter, and might be depended upon, was to be disclosed at this council fire; and whenever any thing disagreeable should fall out between us, the Twelve United Provinces, and the Six Nations, with their allies, we were immediately to seek measures for reconciliation. Agreeable to this settlement, we now inform you of the sad news received from General Schuyler, who is one of our body, and went from us the other day; the news is distressing to us. The letter from General Schuyler is this: That a party of five men went from Ticonderoga, of their own motion, without any orders, towards St. John's, and in their travels along the lake discovered a canoe of five men, and discerned some of the party to be Indians. The Captain of the party, who went off without orders, attempted to fire at the party in the canoe; but his gun missing fire, he hammers his flint, and then looks from behind the tree where he stood, and was instantly shot in the forehead by some one in the canoe, and expired in a moment; his four men then returned the fire, and killed two Indians who were in this canoe; it is said they were of the Caughnawaga Tribe. This, brothers, is the melancholy news; it is what we never designed, or expected. General Schuyler, being of the Commissioners, judged it proper and expedient, for the preservation of our covenant chain, that the Six Nations should be immediately acquainted with this unhappy news; he hopes you will compose your minds, and consider well the circumstances of what has now happened. The party had no orders even to go out, and much less any directions for what they have perpetrated. It is far from General Schuyler's intention to pluck one hair from an Indian's head, or to spill one drop of Indian blood. He therefore desires the Six Nations to turn out one or two from each tribe, to go immediately to Ticonderoga and Caughnawaga, and assist him in settling this matter with the Caughnawagas, that peace may be preserved between the English and Indians, agreeable to the desire and direction of the Twelve United Provinces, whom we now represent."

Answer of the INDIANS:

"Brothers, Commissioners appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, attend: We take the liberty now to instruct you here to settle this unhappy affair. You are first to pull the hatchet out of the head of the deceased, dig up a pine tree, and then throw the hatchet into the hole; this is to be done with a white belt. By a second belt you must say 'you cover the dead bodies and the hatchet in the same grave, never to be found again.' The second belt must be large.

"Brothers, the Commissioners appointed by the Twelve United Provinces, attend: As we had already got through our publick business, and so happily, every thing to our mutual satisfaction, we did not expect to be called together again. But, brothers, an affair has happened which again calls for our publick attention. Accidents will happen; it is not in our power to prevent them. The occasion of this meeting is truly melancholy; yet we thank you that you have called us together, and given us the earliest intelligence of this sorrowful affair. We are certainly satisfied as to our brother Mr. Schuyler's disposition towards us; we cannot but think it is entirely foreign from his intention that one drop of Indian blood should be spilt in the present quarrel."

Their intended Speech to the CAUGHNAWAGAS:

"Brothers of CAUGHNAWAGA, attend: We have been upon a treaty with our brethren, the Commissioners appointed by the Twelve United Provinces, who have spoke with us altogether of peace. Just as we had finished our publick business, news of your misfortune reached our ears.

Brothers: We beg you to compose yourselves, and possess your minds in peace. We are assured nothing is designed against you; what has been done was entirely without the orders or even the knowledge of the great Warriours, i. e. the commanders at Ticonderoga or Crown Point. Therefore, brothers, we hope you will not lay it too much to heart, but for the present sit still until the unhappy affair may be settled. In the mean time, brothers, we do by this belt invite you down to our central council house, where we will communicate to you the transactions of this Congress, and confer together on other affairs. And for the greater despatch, brothers, we desire you will rise directly, and send a few only of your people to our central council fire as soon as possible."

September 3, 1775.

By a request of the Six Nations, this day made to us, we appoint Mr. Dean to go to Onondaga, to recapitulate what has been said to the Indians by the Commissioners at the council fire at Albany, when they shall have their great meeting, in which the whole Six Nations shall be made acquainted with the proceedings of the Commissioners appointed by the Continental Congress.

PENNSYLVANIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

That Owen Biddle, Samuel Morris, and George Gray, be a Committee to prove the Powder made by Mr. Lush and Mr. Oswell Eve; and that Robert Towers, Commissary, attend them.

Saturday, August 12, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—
Benjamin Franklin, Owen Biddle, R. Morris, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Samuel Morris, Jun., George Gray, George Ross, Robert White, Daniel Roberdeau.

At a second meeting of the Committee, in consequence of the arrival of three Ministerial Officers in the Ship Hope, George Curwin Master, from Cork, Present: Benjamin Franklin, Owen Biddle, Dan'l Roberdeau, George Gray, Samuel Morris, Jun., Andrew Allen, Robert Morris, Thomas Wharton, Jun., George Ross, Robert White:

An Order was issued from this Board to Captain William Bradford, of the Second Battalion, for him to take into his custody Major Christopher French, Ensign John Rotton, Ministerial Officers, and Terence McDermott, Cadet in the Ministerial Army, with their attendants, and bring them before this Board.

Resolved, That the meeting of this Committee be adjourned to three o'clock, then to meet at Smith's Tavern, where Captain Bradford is desired to conduct the above-mentioned Officers.

Agreeable to the adjournment of this day, the Members then present met at Smith's Tavern.

In consequence of the order issued to Captain Bradford this day, the Officers therein mentioned were taken into custody, and brought to this Board, from Gloucester; and, upon mature deliberation, finding that the said Christopher French, Major in His Majesty's Twenty-Second Regiment of Foot, John Rotton, Ensign in His Majesty's Forty-Seventh Regiment of Foot, and Terence McDermott, a Volunteer in His Majesty's Army, having designedly come hither with an intention of joining the Ministerial Army at Boston, under the command of General Gage, who is now acting in a hostile and cruel manner against His Majesty's American subjects,

It is Resolved, To prevent the said Officers and Volunteer becoming additional instruments of oppression, that they shall respectively sign the following instrument of writing, viz:

I, Christopher French, Major of His Majesty's Twenty-Second Regiment of Foot, a prisoner in the power of the Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania, and being kindly treated and protected by them, and enlarged on parole, do hereby solemnly promise and engage, on the honour of a soldier and a gentleman, that I will not bear arms against the American United Colonies, in any manner whatever, for the space of twelve months, or until I may be exchanged; nor will I, during that time, take any measures to give intelligence to General Gage or the British Ministry, or to any person or persons whatever, relative to American affairs, but will proceed, with all convenient expedition, to the camp of General Washington, and submit myself to his further directions; and that I will not, directly or indirectly, attempt to procure any person or persons whatever to rescue me, and that I will not go on board any British ship of war during the continuance of my engagement not to bear arms.

Philadelphia, August 12, 1775.

The above engagements being drawn up, were presented to the said Officers and Cadet, and were approved of and signed by them, respectively; they requesting a certified copy of the same, it was agreed to, and delivered them.

Major Christopher French having, among other engagements, given his parole to render himself with all convenient speed at the Camp of General Washington, and there to submit himself to the disposition of the said General, but requesting, as a favour, that it may be certified in his behalf that he previously claimed the being considered as no prisoner at war, he having come hither without any knowledge of the hostilities between the Army and the people of America, and not being taken in arms: We, in compliance with his request, do certify that he did make the said claim, but after his being informed that hostilities had been commenced in America, he declaring that if he joined his corps he should act as his superiour officers directed, his claim was overruled, and thereupon gave his parole as aforesaid.

Dated August 12, 1775, and signed by the President.

There being imported in said Ship Hope, Capt. Curwin, the following packages of Goods, viz: Six Bales for the 40th Regiment; two Bales for do.; one Box for do., James Morrison; one Box for 45th Regiment, Captain Moore; two Boxes for do., Ensign Percy; one Valise for 44th Regiment; six Bales for 22d Regiment; one Chest and one Trunk for do., Wm. Stapleton; one Chest, one Trunk, and one Portmanteau, for do., George Clighorn; one Box without mark or number; Baggage for Lieutenant Archibald French. Officers' Baggage: Two Trunks and one Valise for Major French; one Trunk, two Canteens, one Bed-Box, and one Hat-Case, for Ensign Rotton; two Trunks, one Bed-Box, one small Box, and one Valise, for Cadet McDermott; which Goods being for the use of the Army under the command of General Gage, and Baggage belonging to the Officers who came in said Ship,

It is Resolved, That the said Goods, brought from said Ship in one of the armed boats of this Province, shall be stored till this Committee shall receive directions from the Continental Congress for the disposal of the same, unless it may be thought necessary by this Committee, before the meeting of the said Congress, to remove or otherwise dispose of them; and that this Committee write to General Washington, informing him of the transactions of this Board relative to the said Officers and Goods.

Resolved, That Colonel Roberdeau desire Captain William Bradford to deliver the Baggage belonging to Major French, Ensign Rotton, and Mr. McDermott, a Volunteer, when required.

Upon application of the Officers and Volunteer, now on their parole, that they should be furnished with a copy of the instruments of writing they signed, it was agreed to, and they were accordingly furnished with them.

Monday, August 14, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—
Benjamin Franklin, Daniel Roberdeau, George Ross, Owen Biddle, Robert White, George Gray, Robert Morris, Samuel Morris, Jun., Thomas Wharton, Jun., and Andrew Allen:

Resolved, That Robert Towers go to Germantown, and see if the Powder there is in a secure place; if it is, he is to let it continue there, and report the quantity to this Board.

Colonel Roberdeau, agreeably to request, inquired into the character of Mr. Thompson, and finds that he bears the character of an honest man.

Major French made application that he might take with him the packages that came in Captain Curwin, for the use of the Twenty-Second and Fortieth Regiments, as well as those directed to the different Officers in Boston; which was refused him, the same being included in the Resolves respecting the Clothing, &c., intended for the Army at Boston.

Resolved, That the list of Medicines recommended by the Physicians of the Hospital, that may be had in this place, be approved of, and that Mr. Bass furnish them for the use of the six hundred men to be employed on board the armed boats; and that Mr. Bass put up said Medicines in convenient boxes, and keep them in his possession till further orders.

Tuesday, August 15, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—
Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Robert Morris, Andrew Allen, Anthony Wayne, George Gray, Robert White, Daniel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle:

Upon application of Messrs. Mead & Co., who produced a Letter from the Purser of the Nautilus for the supplying him with Soap, Candles, and Port Wine, for the use of said Ship, it was allowed that they might supply them with the following quantities, viz: one hogshead Port Wine, four hundred weight Candles, and one hundred weight Soap.

Mr. Owen Biddle produced an Order from the City Committee, signed by George Clymer, for the Lead and Flints they have in their possession; which Order was delivered to the Commissary, with directions to make a Return to this Board of the quantity of each article he should receive.

Captain Willing and Captain Wharton offered their services to this Board, to attend Major French, Ensign Rotton, and Volunteer McDermott, to the Camp of General Washington, on condition of their expenses being paid; which offer was accepted of.

Wednesday, August 16, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Benjamin Franklin, Daniel Roberdeau, Anthony Wayne, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Owen Biddle, George Gray, Robert White, Robert Morris, Benjamin Bartholomew, Andrew Allen, Samuel Morris, Jun., George Ross:

Major French was furnished with a copy of the instrument of writing signed by him the 12th inst., with the copy of his request, and this Board's Resolve in consequence thereof, of this day.

As it is thought necessary that this Board should have a security for the two Soldiers that are with Major French, he was desired to sign the following engagement, viz:

August 16, 1775.

The Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania having permitted Wm. Goldthorp, a Private in the Twenty-Second Regiment, and Alexander Allen, a Private in the Forty-Fifth Regiment, to accompany me to General Washington's camp, I pledge my honour that I will use my best endeavours to surrender them to the said General; that I will take all the care in my power to prevent their misbehaving themselves, or giving any intelligence injurious to the American cause. Signed, CHRIS. FRENCH, Major British Army.

Major French was furnished with a copy of the above.

Mr. Robert Towers made a Return of the Powder received and stored, as follows, viz: From Oswell Eve, five hundred and seventy-five pounds, stored in New Jail; from the Committee of the City and Liberties, fifty pounds, stored in New Jail; from do., eight hundred pounds, stored in Powder House; from do., eleven hundred pounds, stored in Germantown—twenty-five hundred and twenty-five pounds of Powder.

A Letter of Instructions was wrote and signed by Doctor Franklin, for Captain Richard Willing and Captain John Wharton, who go with the Officers, taken prisoners, by stage on Tuesday morning next.

Thursday, August 17, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Benjamin Franklin, Anthony Wayne, Daniel Roberdeau, Benjamin Bartholomew, Owen Biddle, Samuel Morris, Jun., Robert Morris, George Gray, George Ross, Robert White, Andrew Allen:

The Committee appointed by the second Resolve of the 3d inst., for drawing up Rules and Regulations for the Associators, produced the same, and, after several amendments, were agreed to, and ordered to be transcribed.

Friday, August 18, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Benjamin Franklin, Benjamin Bartholomew, Daniel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle, Anthony Wayne, Robert Morris, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Samuel Morris, Jun., George Gray, George Ross, Robert White:

The Articles of Regulations, &c., for the Associators, were this day taken into further consideration, and, after some amendments, were again ordered to be transcribed.

Joseph Fox, one of the Commissioners for this County, waited on this Board, acquainting them that it was found impossible to get completed, in any reasonable time, the Fire-Locks in this County, unless it be permitted that they make use of such Locks as they can procure.

Resolved, That this Board take the same into their consideration.

Saturday, August 19, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Benjamin Franklin, Robert Morris, Andrew Allen, Samuel Morris, Jun., Thomas Wharton, Jun., Daniel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle, George Gray, Robert White, John Dickinson:

Robert Towers, Commissary, reports his having received the following articles, which he has stored: Five half-barrels of Gunpowder, two hundred and fifty pounds; five quarter barrels do., one hundred and twenty-five pounds—three hundred and seventy-five pounds; received from George Lush, and stored in the New Jail. Twelve thousand Flints and five hundred weight of Lead, received from the Committee of the City and Liberties, and stored in the State House.

Delivered an Order to Mr. Towers, to Major Samuel Mifflin, for the Powder that came this day in Captain Ferris, which is to be put into the Powder House.

Mr. Towers is desired to remove the Powder that is now in the Jail into the Powder House, and see that proper guards are fixed.

The Articles for regulating the Associators were transcribed, and this day read and approved of, and are as follows:

ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION IN PENNSYLVANIA.

We, the Officers and Soldiers engaged in the present Association for the defence of American liberty, being fully sensible that the strength and security of any body of men, acting together, consists in just regularity, due subordination, and exact obedience to command, without which no individual can have that confidence, in the support of those about him, that is so necessary to give firmness and resolution to the whole, do voluntarily and freely, after consideration of the following Articles, adopt the same as the Rules by which we agree and resolve to be governed, in all our military concerns and operations, until the same, or any of them, shall be changed or dissolved by the Assembly or Provincial Convention, or in their recess by the Committee of Safety, or a happy reconciliation shall take place between Great Britain and the Colonies:

ARTICLE I. If any Officer make use of any profane oath or execration, when on duty, he shall forfeit and pay, for each and every such offence, the sum of five Shillings; and if a Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier be thus guilty of cursing or swearing, he shall forfeit and pay, for each and every such offence, the sum of one Shilling.

ART. II. Any Officer or Soldier who shall refuse to obey the lawful orders of his superiour Officer, may be suspended from doing duty on that day, and shall, upon being convicted thereof before a Regimental Court-Martial, make such concessions as said Court-Martial shall direct.

ART. III. Any Officer or Soldier who shall begin, excite, cause, join in, or promote, any disturbance in the Battalion, Troop, or Company, shall be censured, according to the nature of the offence, by the judgment of a Regimental Court-Martial.

ART. IV. Any Officer or Soldier who shall strike his superiour Officer, or draw, or offer to draw, or shall lift up any weapon, or offer any violence against him, being in the execution of his office, shall, upon conviction before a Regimental Court-Martial, be dismissed, and shall be deemed to be thereby disgraced, as unworthy the company of freemen.

ART. V. Any Commanding or other Officer who shall strike any person when on duty, shall, upon conviction before a General Court-Martial, be in like manner dismissed and disgraced.

ART. VI. Any Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer, or Soldier, who shall make use of insolent, provoking, or indecent language, while on duty, shall suffer such censure or fine as shall be inflicted by a Regimental Court-Martial, according to the nature of the offence.

ART. VII. If any Officer or Soldier should think himself injured by his Colonel, or the Commanding Officer of the Battalion, and shall, upon due application made to him, be refused redress, he may complain to the General of the Pennsylvania Associators, or to the Colonel of any other Battalion, who is to summon a General Court-Martial, and see that justice be done.

ART. VIII. If any inferiour Officer or Soldier shall think himself injured by his Captain, or other superiour Officer in the Battalion, Troop, or Company to which he belongs, he may complain to the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, who is to summon a Regimental Court-Martial, for the doing justice according to the nature of the case.

ART. IX. No Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer, or Soldier, shall fail of repairing, with their Arms, Ammunition, and Accoutrements, upon any regular alarm, or at the time fixed, to the place of parade, or other rendezvous appointed by the Commanding Officer, if not prevented by sickness or some other evident necessity, or shall go from the place of parade, without leave from the Commanding Officer, before he shall be regularly dismissed, on penalty of being fined or censured, according to the nature of the offence, by the sentence of a Regimental Court-Martial. But no Officer or Soldier shall be obliged to attend, to learn the military exercise, more than once in a week.

ART. x. Any Officer or Soldier found drunk, when under arms, shall be suspended from doing duty in the Battalion, Company, or Troop, on that day, and be fined or censured, at the discretion of a Regimental Court-Martial.

ART. xi. Whatever Sentinel shall be found sleeping upon his post, or shall leave it before he is regularly relieved, shall suffer such penalty or disgrace as shall be ordered by a Regimental Court-Martial.

ART. xii. Whatever Commissioned Officer shall be convicted, before a General Court-Martial, of behaving in a scandalous or infamous manner, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, shall be dismissed from the Association with disgrace.

ART. xiii. Every Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier who shall be convicted, at a Regimental Court-Martial, of having sold, carelessly lost, wilfully spoiled or wasted, or of having offered for sale, any Ammunition, Arms, or Accoutrements, belonging to this Province, shall be dismissed such Battalion, Troop, or Company, as an unworthy member, and be prosecuted as the law directs.

ART. xiv. All disorders and neglects which Officers and Soldiers may be guilty of, to the prejudice of the good order and military discipline of the Association of this Colony, are to be taken cognizance of by a General or Regimental Court-Martial, according to the nature and degree of the offence, and be censured at their discretion.

ART. xv. That on the first meeting of every Battalion after subscribing these Articles of Association, and from thence forward, on the first meeting of every Battalion after the third Monday in September annually, there be chosen two persons, such as are entitled to vote for Members of Assembly, out of each Company in the respective Battalions, by the Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates, whose duty and office shall be, for the year following, to sit and join with the Officers in Court-Martial, which persons so chosen shall be styled Court-Martial Men.

ART. xvi. Every General Court-Martial shall consist of thirteen Members, six of whom shall be Commissioned Officers, under the rank of a Field-Officer, and six Court-Martial Men, who shall be drawn by lot out of the whole number; and these twelve are to choose a President, who shall be a Field-Officer, and have a casting voice.

ART. xvii. Every Regimental Court-Martial shall be composed of seven Members—three Officers, three Court-Martial Men, and a President, who is to be a Captain, and to be chosen by the six, and also to have a casting voice.

ART. xviii. In all Courts-Martial, not less than two-thirds of the Members must agree in every sentence for inflicting penalties, or for disgracing any Associator; otherwise he shall be acquitted.

ART. xix. The President of each and every Court-Martial, whether Regimental or General, shall require all witnesses, in order to trial of offenders, to declare, on their honour, that what they give in as evidence is the truth; and the Members of all Courts-Martial shall make a declaration to the President, and the President to the next in rank, upon their honour, that they will give judgment with impartiality.

ART. xx. All Non-Commissioned Officers, Drummers, Fifers, or others, that shall be employed and receive pay in any of the Battalions, Companies, or Troops, shall subscribe these Rules and Regulations, and be subject to such fines, to be deducted from their pay, and to such penalties as a Regimental Court-Martial shall think proper, upon being convicted of having transgressed any of these Regulations.

ART. xxi. All Associators called as witnesses in any case before a Court-Martial, who shall refuse to attend and give evidence, shall be censured or fined, at the discretion of the Court-Martial.

ART. xxii. No Officer or Soldier, being charged with transgressing these Rules, shall be suffered to do duty in the Regiment, Company, or Troop to which he belongs, until he has had his trial by a Court-Martial; and every person so charged shall be tried as soon as a Court-Martial can be conveniently assembled.

ART. xxiii. The Officers and Soldiers of every Company of Artillery, or other Company, Troop, or party, that is or shall be annexed to any Battalion, shall be subject to the command of the Colonel or Commanding Officer of said Battalion; and the Officers shall sit as Members of Courts-Martial, in the same manner as the Officers of any other Company.

ART. xxiv. No penalty shall be inflicted, at the discretion of a Court-Martial, other than degrading, cashiering, or fining; the fines of the Officers not to exceed three Pounds, and the fine for a Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier not to exceed twelve Shillings for one fault.

ART. xxv. The Field-Officers of each and every Battalion shall appoint a person to receive such fines as may arise within the same, for breach of any of these Articles, and shall direct those fines to be carefully and properly applied to the relief of the sick, wounded, or necessitous Soldiers belonging to that Battalion; and such person shall account with the Field-Officers for all fines received, and the application thereof.

ART. xxvi. The General or Commander-in-Chief of this Association for the time being shall have full power of pardoning or mitigating any censures or penalties ordered to be inflicted, for the breach of any of these Articles, by any General Court-Martial; and every offender convicted as aforesaid, by any Regimental Court-Martial, may be pardoned or have his penalties mitigated by the Colonel or Commanding Officer of the Battalion, excepting only where such censures or penalties are directed as satisfaction for injuries received by one Officer or Soldier from another.

ART. xxvii. Any Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer, or other person, who, having subscribed these Articles, shall refuse to make such concessions, pay such fines, or in any other matter refuse to comply with the judgment of any Court-Martial, shall be dismissed the service, and held up to the publick as unfriendly to the liberties of America.

ART. xxviii. Upon the determination of any point by a Regimental Court-Martial, if the Officer or Soldier concerned on either side thinks himself still aggrieved, he may appeal to a General Court-Martial; but if, upon a second hearing, the appeal appears groundless and vexatious, the person so appealing shall be censured, at the discretion of the General Court-Martial.

ART. xxix. Upon the death, resignation, promotion, or other removal of an Officer from any Battalion, Troop, or Company, (except Field-Officers,) or any Court-Martial Men, such vacancy is to be filled by the person or persons such Troop or Company shall elect.

ART. xxx. No Officer or Soldier shall be tried a second time for the same offence, except in case of appeal.

ART. xxxi. All Officers and Soldiers, of every Battalion, Troop, Company, or party of Associators, who shall be called by the Assembly, or Committee of Safety in recess of Assembly, into actual service, and be on pay, shall, when acting by themselves or in conjunction with the Continental Forces, be subject to all the Rules and Articles made by the honourable Congress for the government of the Continental Troops.

ART. xxxii. No Commissioned, Non-Commissioned Officer, or Private, shall withdraw himself from the Company to which he belongs without a discharge from the Commanding Officer of the Battalion, nor shall such person be received into any other Company without such discharge.

In testimony of our approbation and consent to be governed by the above Regulations, which have been deliberately read to, or carefully perused by us, we have hereunto set our hands.

The Articles of Recommendation to the Associators were this day gone through and ordered to be transcribed.

— Saturday, August 26, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Benjamin Franklin, Owen Biddle, George Gray, Daniel Roberdeau, John Dickinson, Andrew Allen, Robert White, John Cadwallader, Thomas Wharton, Jun.:

Upon application of the Provincial Congress of New-York for a quantity of Gunpowder,

Resolved, That this Board send immediately, on account of said Congress, twenty hundred pounds of Gunpowder, in tight casks, and that Robert Erwin procure a Wagon to transport the same to Newark, in New-Jersey; and that Mr. Owen Biddle see this done.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the First Battalion to receive Captain Masters's Company as their youngest Company, until a new Battalion can be formed.

That it be recommended to the Second Battalion to receive Captain Semple's Company as their youngest Company, until a new Battalion can be formed.

That it be recommended to the Light-Infantry Company, late of the Third Battalion, to join the said Battalion; and to the Battalion to receive the said Company.

And as Captain Morgan has not yet had a chance by lot for determining his rank, it is recommended that nine papers, numbered from one to nine, be rolled up, and that Captain Morgan drawing one of them, the Captain whose number he so draws, and all below him, rank below Captain Morgan.

That it be also recommended to the Third Battalion to receive Captain Henderson's Company as their youngest Company, until a new Battalion can be formed.

A copy of these Resolves were delivered to the different City and Liberties Battalions.

The Articles of Recommendation to the Associators being taken several times into consideration, were, after some amendments, this day transcribed, approved of, and are as follows:

Rules for establishing Rank or Precedence amongst the PENNSYLVANIA ASSOCIATORS.

The Committee of Safety appointed by the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania, being desirous of performing the important duties of their station in the most satisfactory manner to the publick, beg leave to lay before them certain Resolves of the honourable Continental Congress, dated the 18th July, which have already been published, but, it is apprehended, have not come to the knowledge of many able-bodied effective men, aged from sixteen to fifty years, that may be very desirous of serving their Country in the present glorious struggle for liberty, in the mode pointed out by said Resolves, which are in the following words:

“ Resolved, That it be recommended to the inhabitants of the United English Colonies in North-America, that all able-bodied effective men, between sixteen and fifty years of age, in each Colony, immediately form themselves into regular Companies of Militia, to consist of one Captain, two Lieutenants, one Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Clerk, one Drummer, one Fifer, and about sixty-eight Privates.

"That the Officers of each Company be chosen by the respective Companies.

"That each Soldier be furnished with a good Musket, that will carry an ounce ball, with a Bayonet, Steel Ramrod, Worm, Priming Wire, and Brush, fitted thereto, a cutting Sword or Tomahawk, a Cartridge-Box that will contain twenty-three rounds of Cartridges, twelve Flints, and a Knapsack.

"That the Companies be formed into Regiments or Battalions, officered with a Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, two Majors, an Adjutant or Quartermaster.

"That all Officers above the rank of a Captain be appointed by their respective Provincial Assemblies or Conventions, or, in their recess, by the Committees of Safety appointed by said Assemblies or Conventions.

"That all Officers be commissioned by the Provincial Assemblies or Conventions, or, in their recess, by the Committees of Safety appointed by said Assemblies or Conventions.

"That all the Militia take proper care to acquire military skill, and be well prepared for defence, by being each man provided with one pound of good Gunpowder, and four pounds of Ball, fitted to his Gun.

"That one-fourth part of the Militia in every Colony be selected for Minute-Men, of such persons as are willing to enter into this necessary service, formed into Companies and Battalions, and their Officers chosen and commissioned as aforesaid, to be ready at the shortest notice to march to any place where their assistance may be required for the defence of their own or a neighbouring Colony; and as these Minute-Men may eventually be called to action before the whole body of the Militia are sufficiently trained, it is recommended, that a more particular and diligent attention be paid to their instruction in military discipline.

"That such of the Minute-Men as desire it be relieved by new draughts, as aforesaid, from the whole body of the Militia, once in four months.

"As there are some people who, from religious principles, cannot bear arms in any case, this Congress intend no violence to their consciences, but earnestly recommend it to them to contribute liberally to the relief of their distressed brethren in the several Colonies; and to do all other services to their oppressed Country which they can consistently with their religious principles.

"That it be recommended to the Assemblies or Conventions of the respective Colonies to provide, as soon as possible, sufficient stores of Ammunition for their Colonies. Also, that they devise proper means for furnishing with Arms such effective men as are poor and unable to furnish themselves.

"That it be recommended to each Colony to appoint a Committee of Safety to superintend and direct all matters necessary for the security and defence of their respective Colonies, in the recess of their Assemblies and Conventions.

"That each Colony, at their own expense, make such provision, by Armed Vessels or otherwise, as their respective Assemblies, Conventions, or Committees of Safety, shall judge expedient and suitable to their circumstances and situations, for the protection of their Harbours and Navigation on their Sea-Coasts against all unlawful invasions, attacks, and depredations, from Cutters and Ships of War.

"That it be recommended to the makers of Arms for the use of the Militia, that they make good substantial Muskets, with barrels three feet and a half in length, that will carry an ounce ball, and fitted with a good Bayonet and Steel Ramrod; and that the making such Arms be encouraged in these United Colonies.

"Where any Colony Militia is already formed, under regulations approved of by the Convention of such Colony, or by such Assemblies as are annually elective, we refer to the direction of such Convention or Assembly, either to adopt the foregoing Regulations, in whole or in part, or to continue their former, as they, on consideration of all circumstances, shall think best.

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

And in order that all persons, in every rank, degree, and station, may be truly informed of the premises, and none hereafter plead ignorance, this Board do earnestly recommend to all Committees of Inspection and Observation in this Province, to cause this publication to be dispersed, read, and explained, within their respective Districts, in such manner that every person, capable of associating for mutual defence, may be made sensible it is the duty they owe to themselves and Country to do it without further loss of time.

And as it is necessary that this Board be speedily informed of the number of Associators in the several Counties or Districts, the said Committees are requested to make Returns, as soon as possible—first, of the several Battalions already formed; secondly, of the several new Associators not yet formed into Battalions; thirdly, of all such persons, from sixteen to fifty, their names and places of abode, as may refuse to associate, not having any conscientious objections, if any such there be; and lastly, of the number of men, in their respective Districts, who conscientiously decline bearing arms, with their names and places of abode.

The several Committees of Inspection and Observation having been desired to make Returns to this Board, as soon as conveniently could be, of the several Battalions of Associators already formed in their Districts, are now informed, that it will be necessary to mention in said Returns the rank of every Battalion of a County in regard to others in the same County. And to prevent uncertainty among the Officers of the General Association, respecting rank or command, and to ascertain the same with precision, this Committee, in forming the following Plan, (which they purpose to observe strictly in granting Commissions, and which they recommend to the general acquiescence of all the Associators,) have had a regard to the seniority or priority of establishment of the several Counties, viz:

1. All Officers already chosen or appointed in the City and District of Philadelphia to take rank or precedence of all other Officers of equal dignity chosen or appointed in any other part of the Province.

2. All Officers chosen or appointed in Philadelphia County to take rank of all Officers of equal dignity chosen or appointed in any other County.

3. All Officers already chosen and appointed in Bucks County to take rank of all Officers of equal dignity chosen or appointed in any other than the City and District and County of Philadelphia.

4. All Officers already chosen and appointed in Chester County to take rank of all Officers of equal dignity chosen or appointed in any other than Bucks, Philadelphia County, and Philadelphia City and Districts.

5. All Officers already chosen and appointed in Lancaster to take rank of all Officers of equal dignity chosen or appointed in any other than Chester, Bucks, and Philadelphia County, and Philadelphia City and Districts.

6. All Officers already chosen and appointed in York County to take rank before Officers of equal dignity in any other than Lancaster, Chester, Bucks, and Philadelphia Counties, and Philadelphia City and Districts.

7. All Officers already chosen and appointed in Cumberland County to rank before Officers of equal dignity in the junior Counties of Berks, Northampton, Bedford, Northumberland, and Westmoreland.

8. All Officers already chosen or appointed in Berks County to rank before Officers of equal dignity in the Counties of Northampton, Bedford, Northumberland, and Westmoreland.

9. All Officers already chosen or appointed in Northampton County to rank before Officers of equal dignity in Bedford, Northumberland, and Westmoreland Counties.

10. All Officers already chosen or appointed in Bedford County to rank before Officers of equal dignity in Northumberland and Westmoreland Counties.

11. All Officers already chosen or appointed in Northumberland County to rank before Officers of equal dignity in Westmoreland County.

12. All Officers already chosen or appointed in Westmoreland, the youngest or last made County in this Province, yield up rank or precedence to all Officers of equal dignity already chosen or appointed in every other County in this Province.

13. Where Commissions of equal dignity in different Counties bear the same date, precedence to be determined by seniority of Counties; but where they are in the same County, by the rank of the Battalion.

14. The Colonels already chosen or appointed in the City and Districts having determined their ranks with respect to each other by lot, their and the other Field-Officers' Commissions will be dated according to the lot so drawn.

15. The Colonels already chosen or appointed in every County are to determine their rank with respect to each other by lot, and Commissions for them and their respective Field-Officers will be dated accordingly.

16. The Captains in every Battalion to determine their rank in Battalion by lot, and their Commissions, with those of their Lieutenants and Ensigns, will be dated accordingly.

17. All Officers hereafter chosen or appointed to have their Commissions dated at the time of such choice or appointment, and to take rank according to said dates.

18. All Battalions now raised to be completed as soon as possible, and to consist of eight Companies, of about sixty-eight Privates each; and one Company of Light-Infantry; and to have for Officers, a Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, two Majors, a Standard-Bearer, Adjutant, Sergeant-Major, Drum and Fife-Major; and the Officers of each Company to consist of a Captain, two Lieutenants, one or two Ensigns, four Sergeants, four Corporals, a Drummer and Fifer, except the Light-Infantry Companies, which, instead of two Lieutenants and two Ensigns, are to have four Lieutenants, the two youngest of which are to rank as Ensigns.

19. The Standard-Bearer of each Battalion to rank as eldest Lieutenant of the Battalion.

20. All national distinctions in names or dress to be avoided, it being proper that we should now be united in this General Association, for defending our liberties and properties, under the sole denomination of Americans.

21. Companies to take post in their Battalions according to the date of their Captains' Commissions, if the Captains be present; but if absent, such Companies to take post as youngest in the Battalion.

22. No Field-Officers to have Companies.

23. For the better order and government of Companies which may be raised after the completion of the several Battalions already formed in the City and Counties, such Companies are not to be admitted as independent, but are to be annexed to the most convenient Battalion, until nine Companies are raised to form a new Battalion, and no number of Associators are to be considered as a Company, unless they consist of at least forty men; but it is recommended, till that number be completed, the Associators join the most convenient Battalion, and exercise and do duty with such Battalion.

24. All Battalions now formed, as well as those hereafter to be formed, are desired to make the necessary returns of their numbers and Officers, with their respective ranks, to the Committee of their County; and the Committees are desired to certify such returns, with the respective rank of each Battalion in their County, to this Board, that commissions may be issued immediately for their Officers, in conformity with these rules.

25. And as there may happen occasions wherein it may be necessary to call out a part of the Associators to actual though temporary service, and not the whole body, and it would be extremely inconvenient and burdensome if upon every alarm, where the assistance of part only may be wanted, the whole should come together, or any much greater number than the occasion required, and it would be therefore necessary to have such divisions made of the Associators as that parts, smaller or greater, may be distinctly called for, and the service as equally and fairly allotted and divided as the nature thereof will admit, it is recommended not only the Battalions of each County, but also that the Companies of each Battalion, be by lot numbered one, two, three, four, &c., so that orders may issue from the Commander-in-Chief to the Colonels, either to march their whole Battalions, or to send to an appointed rendezvous the first or second, or any number of Companies that shall be wanted; each Company serving on such calls in its turn, and for such proportion of time as shall make the burden nearly equal; and if the Associators who are called forth are not all yet provided with good arms, it is recommended that those who have such, and are not called out, lend the same for that occasion, at the risk of the publick.

Lastly. This Board having drawn up thirty-two Articles of Agreement, for the due regulation and government of all the Associators in the Province, which are published herewith, they do recommend the same to be adopted, signed, and agreed to by all the said Associators, in order that one general system may prevail in Pennsylvania.

Resolved, That the Rules and Regulations for, and the Recommendations to the Associators, be published by William Bradford; and that he print two thousand of each, on good paper, for the use of the Association; and Mr. Andrew Allen is desired to give orders for the same being done; and Colonel Roberdeau is desired to get five hundred of each printed in the German language, for the use as aforesaid.

A Letter was this day received by Captain George Ord, of the Lady Catharine, from Henry Tucker, Chairman of the Deputies of the several Parishes of Bermuda, enclosing an account for eleven hundred and eighty-two pounds of Gunpowder, shipped by him on board said vessel, amounting to one hundred and sixty-one Pounds, fourteen Shillings, and eight Pence, that currency, with an account of eight half-barrels of Powder on board said vessel, the property of John Cowper, of North-Carolina, for which last Powder Mr. Tucker has engaged that this Board or Mr. Robert Morris will be accountable.

The Articles for the good government of the Officers and Men to be employed on board the Boats belonging to this Province this day came under consideration, and, after some amendments, were read and approved of.

The Draught for the Officers' Commissions, to be employed on board the Armed Boats, was this day read and approved of, and is as follows:

"To . . . . . "In Committee of Safety.

"We, reposing especial trust and confidence in your patriotism, valour, conduct, and fidelity, do by these presents constitute and appoint you to be . . . . . of the Provincial Armed Boat called the . . . . ., fitted out for the protection of the Province of Pennsylvania and the commerce of the River Delaware against all hostile enterprises, and for the defence of American liberty. You are therefore to take the said boat into your charge, and carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of . . . . ., by doing and performing all manner of things thereunto belonging. And we do strictly charge and require all Officers, Soldiers, and Mariners, under your command, to be obedient to your orders as . . . . .; and you are to observe and follow such orders and directions, from time to time, as you shall receive from the Assembly or Provincial Convention, during their sessions, or from this or a future Committee of Safety for this Province, or from your superior officer, according to the rules and discipline of war, pursuant to the trust reposed in you; this commission to continue in force until revoked by the Assembly or Provincial Convention, or by this or any succeeding Committee of Safety.

"By order of the Committee."

Ordered, That Mr. Bradford print, on good paper, one hundred of the Commissions for the Officers to be employed on board the Armed Boats.

A recommendation to the Associators to make use of Pikes was this day read and approved of, which is in the following words:

It has been regretted by some great soldiers, particularly by Marshal Saxe, that the use of pikes was ever laid aside; and many experienced officers at the present time agree with him in opinion, that it would be very advantageous in our modern wars to resume that weapon; its length reaching beyond the bayonet, and the compound force of the files (every man laying hold of the presented pike) rendering a charge made with them unsupportable by any Battalion armed only in the common manner. At this time, therefore, when the spirit of our people supplies more men than we can furnish with fire-arms, a deficiency which all the industry of our ingenious gunsmiths cannot suddenly supply, and our enemies having at the same time they were about sending regular Armies against undisciplined and half-armed farmers and tradesmen, with the most dastardly malice endeavoured to prevail on the other Powers of Europe not to sell us any arms and ammunition, the use of pikes in one or two rear ranks is recommended to the attention and consideration of our Battalions. Every smith can make these, and therefore the Country may soon be supplied with plenty of them. Marshal Save's direction is, that the staff be fourteen feet in length, and the spear eighteen inches, thin and light; the staff to be made of pine, hollowed for the sake of lightness, and yet to retain a degree of stiffness; the whole not to weigh more than seven or eight pounds. When an army is to encamp, they may, he observes, be used as tent poles, and save the trouble of carrying them. The Committee of Safety will supply samples to those Battalions who are disposed to use them. Each pikeman to have a cutting sword, and, where it can be procured, a pistol.

Ordered, That a copy of the above be delivered to the Colonels of the different Battalions in this City and Districts; which was accordingly done.

Monday, August 28, 1775.

At a Meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present only six Members—Robert Morris, George Gray, Daniel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle, Thomas Wharton, and Robert White.

Mr. Robert Towers reports that he has received from Mr. Robert Morris, four thousand six hundred and fifty pounds of Gunpowder, which is put in the Powder House. Mr. Towers reports that he delivered two thousand and twelve pounds of Gunpowder to Robert Erwin; and Mr. Owen Biddle, that the said Powder went yesterday for Newark, for account of the Provincial Congress of New-York, agreeable to a Resolve of the 26th inst.

Tuesday, August 29, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—Robert Morris, President pro tem., Daniel Roberdeau, Robert White, Owen Biddle, George Ross, George Gray, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Anthony Wayne, John Cadwalader:

This Board thought proper to reconsider the Articles for the government of the Officers and Men to be employed on board the Provincial Armed Boats, and after some amendments, were ordered to be transcribed for the press; which was accordingly done, and are as follows:

In Committee of Safety for Pennsylvania.

Whereas the arbitrary and tyrannical proceedings of the British Ministry, in attempting to reduce the good people of America into a state of abject slavery and vassalage, has met with a righteous and spirited opposition from the Twelve United Colonies, by their Delegates in Congress; who, by their Resolves of the 18th of July, recommended to the Assemblies or Conventions, or, in their recess, to the Committees of Safety, to devise and provide such means for defending the lives, liberties, and properties, of their respective inhabitants, as may to them seem best; in compliance with this recommendation, and in consequence of the powers vested in this Committee by Resolves of the Assembly of this Province, they have caused sundry Boats to be built and armed for the defence of the same and the protection of its commerce; which boats being now ready for service, it remains that they be immediately manned and equipped: Therefore, to encourage good and brave men to engage freely in this glorious service, the following Rules and Regulations are offered by the said Committee:

1. All Officers and Privates, in or belonging to the Provincial Armed Boats, being guilty of profane oaths, cursing, drunkenness, or other scandalous actions, shall incur such punishment as the nature and degree of the offence shall deserve, at the discretion of a Court-Martial.

2. Any Officer or Private who shall strike the Commander-in-Chief, or other his superiour Officer, or draw or offer to draw or lift up any weapon or use any violence against him, or shall behave himself with contempt or disrespect to him, them, or either of them, being in the execution of their office, shall be punished according to the nature of his offence, at the discretion of a Court-Martial.

3. If any person in or belonging to the Provincial Armed Boats shall raise, or endeavour to raise, a mutiny, on any pretence whatever, or shall disobey any lawful commands of his superiour Officer, he shall, on conviction thereof, suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by a Court-Martial.

4. Any Officer or Private who shall, without leave of his commanding Officer, absent himself from the Boat or other Vessel to which he belongs, or from any detachment of the same, or shall advise or persuade any other Officer or Private so to do, shall be punished at the discretion of a Court-Martial.

5. Every person in the Fleet who shall mutiny in the time of action, or who, through cowardice, disaffection, or negligence, shall at such time withdraw or keep back, or not come into the fight or engagement, or shall not do his utmost to take or destroy any Ship, Boat, or other Vessel, which it shall be his duty to engage, or shall endeavour to persuade or deter others from doing their duty at such time, shall suffer death.

6. Every person who shall desert to the enemy, or shall entice others so to do, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as the circumstances of the offence shall deserve, and a Court-Martial think fit.

7. Any Officer or Private who shall be convicted of holding any correspondence with, or giving intelligence to the enemy, either directly or indirectly, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as shall be ordered by a Court-Martial.

8. Every Officer or Private who shall be convicted of having designedly or carelessly wasted or embezzled the Ammunition, Arms, Stores, or Provisions, belonging to any of the Boats, shall suffer such punishment as a Court-Martial shall think proper for the offence.

9. Whatever Officer shall be found drunk on guard or under arms, shall be cashiered; and any Private so offending shall be punished, at the discretion of a Court-Martial.

10. No person in or belonging to the Provincial Armed Boats shall sleep upon his watch or forsake his post, on pain of such punishment as a Court-Martial shall think fit to impose.

11. Any Officer or Private who shall, by discharging Fire-Arms, beating of Drums, or by any other means, occasion false alarms, shall suffer such punishment as shall be inflicted by a Court-Martial.

12. All Officers, of what condition soever, shall have power to part and quell all quarrels, affrays, and disorders, though the persons concerned should belong to another Boat, and order Officers to be arrested, and Non-Commissioned Officers or Privates to be confined, till their proper superiour Officers shall be acquainted therewith; and whoever shall refuse to obey such Officer, though of an inferior rank, or shall draw his sword, or lift any weapon against him, shall be punished at the discretion of a Court-Martial.

13. If any inferior Officer or Private shall think himself wronged by the Commander of the Boat to which he belongs, he may apply to the Commander-in-Chief, who is to redress his grievance.

14. All Officers shall take rank from the date of their commissions.

15. All Ships and other Vessels, and their Cargoes, Ammunition, Artillery, Clothing, or other articles, taken from the enemy, shall be disposed of or distributed as the Provincial Assembly shall hereafter think proper.

16. If any Officer or Private shall commit any crime deserving punishment, he shall, by his commanding Officer, be put under arrest, if an Officer, or if a Non-Commissioned Officer or Private, be put in confinement, till he shall be tried by a Court-Martial, or discharged by proper authority.

17. If any Officer under arrest shall leave his confinement before he is set at liberty by the Officer who confined him, or by proper authority, he shall be cashiered.

18. Any Officer who shall presume to discharge any prisoner committed to his charge, without proper authority for so doing, or shall suffer any prisoner to escape, shall be punished at the discretion of a Court-Martial.

19. If any Commissioned Officer shall be convicted before a Court-Martial of behaving in a scandalous, infamous, cruel, oppressive, or fraudulent manner, unbecoming the character of an officer, he shall be dismissed from service.

20. All crimes not capital, and all disorders and neglect which Officers and Privates may be guilty of, to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, though not mentioned in these Articles, shall be taken notice of by a Court-Martial, and punished according to the nature of the offence.

21. No person to be sentenced by a Court-Martial to suffer death, except in the cases expressly mentioned in the foregoing Articles; nor shall any other punishment be inflicted, at the discretion of a Court-Martial, other than degrading, cashiering, drumming out of the Fleet, whipping not exceeding thirty-nine lashes, fine not exceeding two months' pay, and imprisonment not exceeding one month.

22. The Commanding Officer of each Boat shall appoint some suitable person to receive all such fines as may arise within the same, for breach of any of these Articles; which fines shall be accounted for to the Assembly or Committee of Safety, and by them be appropriated for the relief of the maimed and disabled in the service, and the support of the widows and families of such as may be killed.

23. No Court-Martial, for the trial of offences under the degree of capital, shall consist of less than five Officers, except in cases where that number cannot conveniently be assembled, when three may be sufficient, who are to determine on the sentence by a majority of voices; and in all trials for capital offences the Court-Martial shall be composed of thirteen Members, and the sentence be determined by at least two-thirds.

24. All persons, belonging to the Boats, called as witnesses in any case before a Court-Martial, who shall refuse to attend and give evidence, shall be punished at the discretion of a Court-Martial.

25. All Members of a Court-Martial are to behave with calmness, decency, and impartiality, and in giving their votes are to begin with the youngest or lowest in commission; and all Officers of different Boats are to rank in Court-Martial according to their commissions.

26. All Members sitting in a Court-Martial shall be sworn or affirmed by the President of said Court, which President shall himself be sworn or affirmed by the Officer next in rank in said Court; the Oath or Affirmation to be administered previous to their proceeding to the trial of any offender, in form following, viz: "You, A B, swear (or affirm) that you will well and truly try, and impartially determine, the cause of the prisoner now to be tried, according to the Rules framed for the regulation of the Pennsylvania Fleet." If an Oath, add "So help you God."

27. The President of the Court-Martial shall administer the following Oath or Affirmation to all persons called to give evidence: "You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give, in the cause now trying, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." If an Oath, add "So help you God."

28. No person shall suffer death, agreeable to the sentence of a Court-Martial, (except in the cases mentioned in the fifth Article,) till the sentence is confirmed by the Assembly, or, in their recess, by the Committee of Safety.

29. The Commander of each Boat shall, in the beginning of every month, make a faithful Return to the Committee of Safety of the men employed in his Boat, to be signed by himself, and upon being convicted of having made a false Return, shall be discharged from the service; and if he neglect to make a Return within the month, shall be fined at the discretion of said Committee.

30. No Officer or Private shall be tried a second time for the same offence.

We, the underwritten, having seen and distinctly heard the foregoing Articles read, and fully understanding the contents thereof, do freely and voluntarily subject ourselves to all and every of the rules, regulations, and restrictions therein contained. In witness whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our names.

The Officers and Privates to enter into the service for two months, and until they shall be discharged by the Assembly or Committee of Safety.

Resolved, That William Bradford print, on good paper, one hundred of the Articles for the government of the Officers and Men to be employed on board the Armed Boats.

Ordered, That Mr. Towers provide twenty rounds of Cartridges for each of the following Field Pieces, to wit: two Twelve Pounders and four Six Pounders, and forty rounds of Cartridges for the Great Guns of the Armed Boats, consisting of one Thirty-Two Pounder, four Twenty-Four Pounders, and eight Eighteen Pounders. And that he procure a Mould for the Fire-Locks, for the use of the Boats, and cast twelve hundred Balls, and fill the Cartridges for the same.

Resolved, That Robert Pomeroy be appointed a Lieutenant on board one of the Armed Boats.

Resolved, That Mr. Nathan Boyce be appointed Lieutenant on board the Armed Boat Washington, commanded by Captain Dougherty.

Resolved, That William Bradford print three thousand of the Commissions for the Officers of the Association.

Robert Morris, President pro tempore, Owen Biddle, Anthony Wayne, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Robert White, George Gray, Daniel Roberdeau, George Ross:

A Letter was this day received from Abraham Yates, Chairman of the Committee of Albany, dated 21st instant, acknowledging the receipt of twenty-four hundred pounds of Gunpowder sent by this Board, for the use of General Schuyler, the 10th instant, under the care of Mr. Thomas Aply.

Colonel Roberdeau and Captain White, at the request of the Artillery Officers, have examined the Carriages of the Field-Pieces, and are of opinion they should be altered in the same manner as the one that has been done by direction of Capt. Moulder. Major Samuel Mifflin is requested to see that the said alterations be made in the Field-Carriages.

Ordered, That Colonel Ross and Captain White be a Committee to draw up Instructions for the Commander-in-Chief and the Captains of the Boats, a list of Warrant Officers, and pay of Officers and Men.

Ordered, That Mr. Gray and Mr. Biddle draw up a plan for supplying and regulating the Provisions for Boats' crews.

Resolved, That the Boat built by Mr. Marsh be called the Warren.

Resolved, That Captain Allen Moore be removed from the Armed Boat called the Experiment, to the command of the Boat called the Effingham.

Resolved, That Colonel Roberdeau provide forty Pikes for the use of the Associators.

— Thursday, August 31, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Robert Morris, President pro tempore, Daniel Roberdeau, John Cadwallader, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Owen Biddle, George Ross, Robert White, George Gray:

Mr. Morris produced a Letter from Doctor Franklin, dated Brunswick, 29th inst., informing that in consequence of four wagon loads of Powder being gone to New-York from another quarter, he had ordered the wagon load sent from this Board the 27th inst., for the Provincial Congress of New-York, to return back; and Mr. Morris has given directions to the Commissary to receive and store the same.

Resolved, That James Montgomery be appointed to the command of one of the Armed Boats.

Resolved, That the Members of this Board who go down to Gloucester on Friday or Saturday next, be a Committee to inform Mr. Joseph Hugg that this Board will supply him with a Boat, and Cannon for the same, and commission him as commander of her, provided the Province of New-Jersey will man, pay, and victual said Boat.

Resolved, That Mr. Owen Biddle procure for this Board a Seal, about the size of a dollar, with a cap of Liberty and a motto, "This is my right, and I will defend it," inscribed with "Pennsylvania Committee of Safety, 1775."

Resolved, That each of the Armed Boats be provided with two Brass Patereroes, and that Captain White procure the same.

Robert Towers, Commissary, reports his having received and stored from the City Committee, per the hands of Thos. Barclay, ninety-four hundred weight, three quarters, and twenty pounds of Lead; and that he has received from Robert Erwin the Powder that was intended for the Provincial Congress of New-York, which was sent back from Brunswick by Dr. Franklin, amounting to two thousand and twelve pounds.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Tuesday, August 22, 1775.

The Congress met according to adjournment.

Voted and Resolved, That whereas this Congress, on the fifth day of July last, ordered the Receiver-General to issue his Notes of Hand for Eight Thousand Pounds, to be paid, with six per cent. interest, at certain times therein limited: And whereas the Continental Congress, and several of the General Courts and Congresses of the United Colonies, have issued their Bills, payable at certain periods, without interest; and it now appearing that said Bills or Notes will answer all the intentions of their being issued as well without interest as with: Therefore,

Voted, That the Receiver-General immediately issue his Notes, as aforesaid, in the same manner as directed in said Vote, excepting their carrying interest, which is to be omitted; and that the Committee appointed by the aforesaid Vote, to get said Notes struck off, conform themselves to this determination.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, eight o'clock.

Wednesday, August 23, 1775.

Met according to adjournment.

Voted, To send only one Delegate more, for this Colony, to the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, to attend the same with Captain John Langdon, our other Delegate, in the name and behalf of this Colony.

Voted, That Josiah Bartlett, Esq., be our Delegate at the said Continental Congress.

Voted, That the Hon. Meshech Weare, Josiah Bartlett, Matthew Thornton, Ebenezer Thompson, and William Whipple, Esquires, be a Committee to draw up instructions for our Delegates to the Continental Congress.

The Petition of Hugh Tallant, being read and considered, was referred to the Committees of Safety of Salem, Pelham, and Nottingham-West.

Voted, That all Men in this Colony, from sixteen to fifty years of age, be formed into Regiments and Companies, according to the recommendation of the Continental Congress.

Voted, That the Regiments or Battalions of Militia in this Colony consist of the same limits as when last commissioned, until further orders of this Congress.

Voted, That the Delegates of the several and respective Towns and places within the limits of each Regiment consult together and recommend to this Congress three persons, as suitable, in their opinion, either of them, to be Colonel of their respective Regiments, if elected by the Congress; and in like manner for their Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors.

Whereas the Regiment lately commanded by Colonel Josiah Willard appears to be large, and sufficient to be divided in two, and the people of that Regiment being desirous thereof: Therefore it is

Voted, That the said Regiment be divided into two, and commissioned accordingly; and that the first contain the Towns of Winchester, Hinsdale, Westmoreland, Chesterfield, Richmond, Swansey, Keene, Surry, and Gilsum; and that the other contain the Towns of Charlestown, Walpole, Claremont, Newport, Unity, Acworth, Savile, Alstead, Lempster, and Marlow.

Voted, That this Congress shall determine what Wages each Member shall receive of his constituents, for his service in Congress.

Voted, That the Wages shall be six Shillings per day.

Voted, That Mr. Secretary Thompson be paid, out of the Publick Treasury, six Shillings per day, for his services to this Congress, as Secretary.

Voted, That all the Members of the present Congress be paid for their service in attending the same, from the time of the commencement thereof until their dissolution, by their several and respective constituents; and that each Member be paid, out of the Publick Treasury, by the Receiver-General, two Pence per mile for travelling to and from this Congress to their several places of abode, and for every time of their adjournment for a longer time than from Saturday to Monday—their travel to be certified by the Secretary.

The Petition of James Gilmore being read and considered,

It is ordered by this Congress, That the said James Gilmore be liberated from his confinement, and that he appear, to be heard and tried before this Congress, on the second day of their sitting after the twenty-sixth day of this instant; and that Aaron Huges, named in said Petition, be notified to appear on said day, and prosecute his complaint against said Gilmore. And Captains Stephen Evans and Shadrach Hodgdon recognise to this Congress, in the sum of twenty Pounds, for the appearance of the said Gilmore on said day.

Voted, That all such persons as were heretofore excused, by the law of this Province, from training on publick training days, be excused from training, according to said law.

Voted, That there be paid, by the Receiver-General, to Josiah Bartlett, Esq., one of our Delegates appointed to represent us at the Continental Congress, the sum of one hundred and forty Pounds, lawful money, out of the Publick Treasury, to be by him accounted for.

Voted, That Nathaniel Folsom, Esq., be the General Officer over the Militia in this Colony.

Voted, That Captain William Whipple be appointed Colonel of the First Regiment of Militia in this Colony, and Joshua Wentworth, Esq., his Lieutenant-Colonel, Benjamin Parker his First Major, and Ephraim Pickering his Second Major.

Voted, That Captain Stephen Evans be appointed Colonel of the Second Regiment in this Colony, and Samuel Chesely his Lieutenant-Colonel, Joshua Wingate his First Major, and Paul Wentworth his Second Major.

Voted, That Colonel Jonathan Moulton be Colonel of the Third Regiment of Militia in this Colony, and Christopher Toppan, Esq., his Lieutenant-Colonel, and John Lane, Esq., his First Major.

Voted, That Colonel Nicholas Gilman be appointed Colonel of the Fourth Regiment of Militia in this Colony, and Capt. Jeremiah Folsom his Lieutenant-Colonel, Lieutenant Thomas Bartlett his First Major, and Captain Stephen Clark his Second Major.

Voted, That Col. Jos. Bartlett be appointed Colonel of the Regiment late commanded by Colonel Jonathan Greely, and Jacob Gale, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel, Joseph Welch, Esq., his First Major, and Lieutenant John Webster his Second Major.

Voted, That Col. Joseph Badger be appointed Colonel of the Regiment of Militia lately commanded by himself, and Ebenezer Smith, Esq., his Lieutenant-Colonel, Captain David Copp his First Major, and Captain Bradbury Richardson his Second Major.

Voted, That Capt. Daniel Moore be appointed Colonel of the Regiment of Militia lately commanded by Colonel John Goffe, and David Gilman his Lieutenant-Colonel, Moses Kelly his First Major, and Samuel Page his Second Major.

Voted, That Thomas Stickney, Esq., be appointed Colonel of the Regiment of Militia lately commanded by Colonel McMillan, Captain Henry Gerrish his Lieutenant-Colonel, Nathan Batchelder, Esq., his First Major, and Isaac Chandler his Second Major.

Voted, That Samuel Ashley, Esq., be appointed Colonel of the first part of the Regiment lately commanded by Colonel Josiah Willard, and Captain Joseph Hammond his Lieutenant-Colonel, Isaac Butterfield his First Major, and Timothy Ellis his Second Major.

Voted, That Benjamin Bellows be appointed Colonel of the second part of the Regiment lately commanded by Colonel Willard, and Samuel Hunt, Esq., his Lieutenant-Colonel, William Haywood his First Major, and John Bellows his Second Major.

Voted, That Colonel David Hobart be appointed Colonel of the Regiment lately commanded by Colonel John Fenton, and David Webster, Esq., his Lieutenant-Colonel.

Voted, That Israel Morey, Esq., be appointed Colonel of the Regiment lately commanded by Colonel John Hurd, and Charles Johnson, Esq., his Lieutenant-Colonel, Jonathan Child his First Major, and Jonathan Hull his Second Major.

Voted, That the Committee of Safety immediately give such directions as they judge necessary, for fortifying and supplying materials, raising Matrosses, &c., for defending Piscataqua Harbour.

Upon the complaint of Dennis Pendergast against Owen Orke, for stealing from him a number of Dollars and Crowns, a warrant issued from this Congress to apprehend the said Owen Orke; who being apprehended and brought before this Congress, the matter of said complaint is referred to a Committee, viz: Samuel Chase, James Betton, David Lawrence, Benjamin Giles, John Dudley, Ebenezer Smith, Enoch Hale, and Ichabod Rawlings, Esq., the Reverend Messrs. Abiel Foster and Stephen Farrar, and Deacon Samuel Brooks, and Deacon James Knowles, who are to hear, try, and determine the same.

Friday, August 25, 1775.

Voted, That the balance of General Folsom's Account for his services as a Delegate for this Colony, as settled by a former Congress, be paid by the Receiver-General out of the Publick Treasury, by an order from the Committee of Safety.

Voted, That George Jaffrey, Esq., late Treasurer of this Colony, be and hereby is directed to lay his Treasury Accounts before this Congress (in order that the same may be settled) on Tuesday next, if the Congress be then sitting, or on the second day of the sitting of the Congress after that time.

Voted, That the Members of the late Houses of Representatives of this Colony be paid by the Receiver-General, out of the Publick Treasury, for their travel to and from the General Assembly, at the same rate as usual; and the Clerk six Shillings per day for his services as Clerk, upon a certificate from the Clerk of the said Houses of Representatives, and that their constituents pay them for their attendance six Shillings per day.

This vote passed the 23d, and was reconsidered the 25th.

Voted, That the vote of the 23d inst., relating to the Pay of the Members of this Congress, be reconsidered.

Voted, That the vote respecting the Pay of the two late Houses of Representatives and their Clerk, be reconsidered.

Voted, That the Members of this Congress have five Shillings per day for their attendance at this Congress.

Voted, That the Members of this Congress receive their Pay for their attendance of the Receiver-General, out of the Publick Treasury, by a certificate from the Secretary, and that the several and respective sums so paid shall be added to the other publick Tax, to be laid on their several and respective constituents by a precept, to be issued by the Receiver-General, for assessing the next Colony Tax, and that said Pay be made to the said Members at the end of the sitting of this Congress.

Voted, That the Members of this Congress be paid by the Receiver-General, out of the Publick Treasury, two Pence per mile for their travel to and from their respective places of abode, to this Congress, by a certificate from the Secretary, for every time they travel to this Congress, if it be adjourned for a longer time than from Saturday to Monday.

Whereas, by order of this Congress, under certain conditions then expressed, a barrel of Gunpowder was put into the hands of Colonel David Webster, of Plymouth; it is now Voted, That said Webster, for the present, have custody thereof, and not part with it to any person, unless by order of the Congress or Committee of Safety, or in case of an attack from the enemy.

Voted, That Captain Ezekiel Worthen proceed immediately to Portsmouth, as an Engineer, and there take care and have, in conjunction with the Committee of Safety at Portsmouth, the oversight and direction of laying out and erecting Batteries for the defence of Piscataqua Harbour, and get the Guns fixed and mounted therein, and all other necessities for completing the Batteries.

Voted, That Captain Shadrach Hodgdon proceed immediately to procure Fascines for building Batteries for the defence of Piscataqua Harbour, and convey the same to Capt. Ezekiel Worthen, or the Committee of Portsmouth, as soon as may be.

Voted, That the Committee of Safety at Portsmouth be presented with the Thanks of this Congress for their care in forwarding a Plan for the security of Piscataqua Harbour, and their early intelligence of those matters, to this Congress; and that they be informed that this Congress have given a number of directions to several persons for providing Fascines and other implements for erecting Batteries, appointed an Engineer immediately to attend there, and ordered a number of barrels of Powder down, with many other directions, and shall proceed to do every thing that they possibly can for securing the Harbour; and that they be desired to procure persons immediately to remove the Platform, and every other useful implement, from Fort William and Mary, and forbid any person or persons from destroying the buildings there; and further inform the Committee that it is the opinion of this Congress that no Fish ought to be exported out of this Colony.

Saturday, August 26, 1775.

The Petition of Richard Champney, for leave to export Fish out of this Colony, being read and considered,

Voted, That the prayer thereof should not be granted.

Voted, That the establishing the Officers of the Sixth Regiment be postponed until the second day of the sitting of this Congress after the 15th day of September next.

Voted, That the appointment of the Majors of Colonel David Hobart's Regiment be postponed to the next sitting of this Congress.

Adjourned to Monday next, three o'clock, afternoon.

Monday, August 28, 1775.

It having been represented to this Congress that there is a quantity of Fish shipping off from Gosport, in this Colony, contrary to the repeated Votes of this Congress; and as it is supposed that no Committee of Inspection has been chosen there; therefore, to prevent the shipping of Fish from thence, it is hereby earnestly recommended to the Committee of Safety at Portsmouth, to use all prudent methods to hinder any Fish from being exported from said Gosport.

Voted, That the Officers and Soldiers of the Company of Artillery to be raised by Captain Titus Salter be allowed and paid the following Wages per month, viz: Captain, six Pounds, lawful money; First Lieutenant, four Pounds; Second Lieutenant, three Pounds ten Shillings; each Sergeant, two Pounds eight Shillings; each Corporal, two Pounds four Shillings; a Fifer, two Pounds four Shillings; a Drummer, two Pounds four Shillings; and each Private, two Pounds. And each Non-Commissioned Officer and Soldier to be paid one Dollar for the use of a Blanket, to be found by himself; and that they be enlisted to serve until the last day of December next, unless dismissed sooner by order of Congress or the Committee of Safety, under whose direction they are to be; and each man to provide himself a good Fire-Lock.

Tuesday, August 29, 1775.

Voted, That Major Hubbard, Benjamin Giles, Esq., and Thomas Sparhawk, Esq., be a Committee to settle the rank of Timothy Bedel, Esq., as commander of the Companies of Rangers raised in this Colony, one of which he now commands as Captain, and also fill up his Commission, and make report to this Congress as soon as may be.

Voted, That in case General Schuyler shall make requisition of more Troops from this Colony, that if the Congress should not be then sitting, the Committee of Safety be and hereby are empowered to raise and equip such Forces, and give orders for marching them in the recess of the Congress.

Voted, That Colonel William Whipple, Colonel David Gilman, Major Joseph Welch, Major Samuel Hobart, and Thomas Sparhawk, Esq., be a Committee to form and bring in a Vote for perfecting the regulation of the Militia in this Colony.

Voted, That the Ranging Companies be allowed billeting at the rate of nine Pence per day, for the time they shall be on duty in marching to Coos, when they are embodied there; and each Officer and Soldier, who have not received a month's pay, to be paid it there; and that Israel Morey, Esq., be appointed Paymaster, who is directed to return a proper Roll of such payments to the Committee of Safety.

Voted, That Colonel Bedel's Company of Rangers be made up to the number of sixty-six men, including Officers, and that he forthwith enlist and enrol them.

Voted, That the Blanks for Commissions for the Military Officers of this Colony be forthwith printed.

Voted, That the Field-Officers of each Regiment in this Colony recommend to the Committee of Safety a proper person to be Adjutant or Quartermaster for their respective Regiments, to be commissioned by said Committee of Safety.

Voted, That there be a Surgeon appointed to Colonel Bedel's Company of Rangers.

Voted, That the return of the Committee chosen to prepare a Vote to perfect the regulation of the Militia in this Colony, be received and established; which regulation is as follows, viz:

1. That the Commanding Officer of the Regiment in this Colony give notice to each Town in his Regiment, for all the training Soldiers to meet at the most publick and convenient place at said Town, in order to make choice of their Officers, agreeable to the directions of the Continental Congress, giving them eight days' notice; and that one or more of the Field-Officers attend said meeting, and see the matter fairly conducted, and then give out the Commissions to the several Officers that shall be fairly elected by said Soldiers; and that each Commission, so given out, be published by said Field-Officer or Officers so attending, as soon as may be, and attest the choice as aforesaid.

2. That each Town in this Colony, containing a sufficient number of training Soldiers to make two or more Companies, agreeable to the recommendation of the Continental Congress, be accordingly divided by a division line, to be drawn between them by the Selectmen and Committees of such Towns, or the major part of them.

3. That the Officers and Soldiers in the Militia be governed by a law of this Colony, formerly made for the regulation of the Militia, (excepting that clause that relates to calling the Companies together,) and that the Captains of the respective Companies of Militia of this Colony call their respective Companies together at least once a month, when the season will admit of it, in order to acquaint themselves with the use and exercise of Fire-Arms, according to the exercise published and printed in the year 1764.

4. That Regimental Musters shall be made once in every year, at such time or times as the General Officer shall appoint.

Voted, That the Colonel of each Regiment in this Colony have a copy of the above Vote, in order to settle their respective Regiments as soon as may be.

— Wednesday, August 30, 1775.

Voted, That Colonel Jonathan Chase be appointed Colonel of the Regiment lately commanded by Colonel Gilbert; Elisha Paine, Esq., be his Lieutenant-Colonel, Israel Curtis, Esq., his First Major, and Francis Smith, Esq., his Second Major.

Voted, That William Whipple, John Dudley, Nicholas Gilman, Ebenezer Thompson, Stephen Evans, Samuel Hobart, Wiseman Clagget, Benjamin Giles, and Jonathan Childs, Esquires, be a Committee to proportion the representation of the several Towns and places in this Colony, in any future Congress or Convention, and lay a plan thereof before this Congress as soon as may be.

Voted, That the Secretary of this Congress be paid seven Shillings per day for his services as Secretary, out of the Publick Treasury, by the Receiver-General.

Voted, That there be paid by the Receiver-General, out of the Publick Treasury, to Captain John Langdon, one of our Delegates to the Continental Congress, the sum of one hundred Pounds, lawful money, to be by him accounted for.

Voted, That the Company of Militia in Conway remain independent until further orders of the Congress.

Voted, That the several Members of the two last Houses of Representatives of the Colony be paid, for each day's attendance in General Court before this time, five Shillings per day, out of the Publick Treasury, by the Receiver-General, (the number of days to be certified by their respective Clerks,) and that the same be added to the tax of their respective constituents in the next Tax Bill; and that they be paid for travel, as usual, out of the Treasury, to be certified as aforesaid; and that the respective Clerks have five Shillings per day, out of the Publick Treasury, for their respective services, to be certified as aforesaid.

Voted, That Ichabod Rawlings, Esq., and Mr. Timothy Walker, Jun., be a Committee, fully empowered to repair to the Army, and there strictly examine into the losses sustained by every Officer and Soldier of the Troops raised by this Colony for the united service, in Clothing, Fire-Arms, &c., that was their own property, or that they were accountable for, at the battle at Charlestown, and estimate what they think is the true loss sustained by each individual; and that they then acquaint themselves with what value each individual has received towards his loss, and then to pay each and every person, in money, what they find due to make up his loss; and that they apply to the Committee of Safety for orders on the Receiver-General for that purpose; and that they apply to the Captain-General, Commissary-General, or such other person as they think can inform them, to know if our engagement to give each Soldier a Coat will be performed by order of the United Colonies; and also to provide a Blanket for each Soldier who has not received one, and to pay for those already procured; and to notify the Officers to transmit by them all accounts they have against the Colony; and that they also pay a month's wages to each Soldier enlisted in the Continental service who was returned by our Paymaster not paid.

Whereas it is evident that many ill consequences have followed upon so large a use of Spirituous Liquors as has been commonly practised, upon the publication of Commissions and other military occasions, some persons drinking to excess, which leads to confusion and disturbance, and greatly tends to frustrate the proper end and design of such military regulations and movements, viz: the improvement of the Soldiers in the use of arms. It being the duty and interest of a people to avoid extravagance and dissipation at all times, and especially at such a day as this, when we are under the awful rebukes of Providence, and the burden of publick charges must necessarily be very great, this Congress have thought themselves in duty bound earnestly to recommend it to the Soldiers that they will not expect nor desire such large and extravagant treats as have been (we cannot but say too much) used heretofore; nothing doubting that all that are friends to virtue and frugality, and have a generous regard to the welfare of their Country, will be pleased and gratified with a retrenchment of all extravagance in this way; and therefore we earnestly recommend it to all Officers in the Militia, whether of higher or lower rank, to forbear all extravagance, and practise a laudable moderation and economy in this way; and particularly we recommend that at the meetings of the Soldiers to choose their respective Officers, there by no means be any treats given or received, if offered antecedent to such choice; all which we think is agreeable to the advice of the honourable Continental Congress.

— Thursday, August 31, 1775.

Voted, That the Towns of Cardigan, Grafton, Procteworth, and Savile, be and hereby are annexed to and made a part of the Regiment under the command of Colonel Jonathan Chase.

Voted, That Mr. Sparhawk and Major Hubbard be added to the Committee for drawing up Instructions for our Delegates to the Continental Congress.

Upon a motion of Col. March, Voted, That the Vote of the 24th inst., appointing William Whipple, Esq., Colonel of the First Regiment of Militia of this Colony, be reconsidered.

Voted, That Captain William Whipple be and hereby is appointed Colonel of the First Regiment of Militia in this Colony.

Voted, That Benjamin Barker be appointed First Major of the First Regiment of Militia in this Colony, and Ephraim Pickering Second Major.

Voted, That John Giddinge, Esq., the late Treasurer of the Congress, have the loan of twenty-nine Pounds, eighteen Shillings, and ten Pence, lawful money, to be delivered him by the Receiver-General, out of the Publick Treasury, to be accounted for by said Giddinge.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Plan for the future Representation of this Colony, made report as on file

Voted, That it lie for consideration.

— Friday, September 1, 1775.

Whereas there is great complaint made of the gross violation of the Association formed by the honourable Continental Congress, by merchants and traders (both in town and country) selling English Goods at a much higher price than has been usual in the year last past, and that even Tea is sold by some one person at least; and that the Committees of Inspection, being some of them traders in such Goods themselves, or in connection with those that are, have not, in every case and upon every occasion, taken due care and pains to prevent and remedy such an unreasonable practice:

Therefore, Resolved by this Congress, That any person or persons selling, or offering for sale, any English Goods at an extravagant price, or any Tea, contrary to the express tenour of the Continental Association, and not dealt with by the Committee of such Town or place where he or they belong, (such Committee being notified thereof, and refusing,) may be cited before the Committee of any neighbouring Town, within ten miles, to answer any complaints of this kind properly exhibited before such Committee; and upon refusal to appear, or sufficient proof made of the complaint so exhibited, and no sufficient satisfaction given that such extravagant sale of such Goods, as aforesaid, shall be discontinued, such person or persons to be published to the world as inimical to their Country, that all persons may note them, and avoid all commercial intercourse with them, according to the advice of the Continental Congress.

Whereas this Congress, on the 25th of August last, by their vote, directed George Jaffrey, Esq., late Treasurer of this Colony, to lay his Treasury Accounts before this Congress, in order for settlement, on Tuesday then next, which time is now past, and the said late Treasurer's not appearing, nor writing to this Congress to give any reason for his not appearing, is very unsatisfactory, and some things offered by Noah Emery, Esq., in excuse for his non-appearance, not having sufficient weight in the opinion of this body:

Therefore, it is now once more Voted and Resolved, That said George Jaffrey, Esq., be directed to lay his said Accounts before this Congress, for their inspection and settlement, on the second day of their sitting next after the first day of October next.

Upon considering the representation of the Committee of Safety of Portsmouth, relating to sundry persons committing an outrage or assault on the property of one Mr. Woodward,

Voted, That the Committee of Safety of Portsmouth be desired to require of the delinquents bonds, with sureties in a sufficient sum, for their appearance to answer to said Woodward's complaint, at some future time, before said Committee, and upon their refusal, to commit them to Jail; and that said Committee be desired to take particular care to hinder gaming, agreeable to the recommendation of the Continental Congress.

Voted, That four Regiments of Minute-Men be raised, to be enlisted out of the several Regiments of Militia in this Colony, viz: the first to be enlisted out of the four Regiments commanded by Colonel Whipple, Colonel Evans, Colonel Moulton, and Colonel Gilman; the second to be enlisted out of the several Regiments of Colonel Bartlett, that lately Colonel Thornton's, that lately Colonel Lutwyche's, and that lately Colonel Kidder's; the third to be enlisted out of the several Regiments commanded by Colonel Moore, Colonel Stickney, Colonel Badger, and Colonel Hobart; and the fourth to be enlisted out of the several Regiments commanded by Colonel Ashley, Colonel Bellows, Colonel Chase, and Colonel Morey.

Voted, Joshua Wingate to be First Colonel of the First Regiment of Minute-Men, Jonathan Burnam to be Lieutenant-Colonel, James Hacket to be First Major, and George Gains to be Second Major.

Voted, Samuel Hobart, Esq., to be First Colonel of the Second Regiment of Minute-Men, Robert Moore to be Lieutenant-Colonel, Samuel Philbrick to be First Major, and Timothy Farrar to be Second Major.

Voted, Timothy Walker, Jun., to be First Colonel of the Third Regiment of Minute-Men, Samuel Conner to be Lieutenant-Colonel, Daniel Sanborn, Esq., First Major, and Benjamin Gould Second Major.

Voted, Samuel Stevens, Esq., to be First Colonel of the Fourth Regiment of Minute-Men, Thomas Gilbert to be First Lieutenant-Colonel, Jonathan Griswald to be First Major, and Elisha Whitcomb Second Major.

Voted, That Colonel Samuel Hobart, John Dudley, Esq., Mr. Moses Dow, Thomas Sparhawk, Esq., Jonathan Lovewell, Esq., Benjamin Giles, Esq., and Colonel Timothy Walker, be a Committee to bring in a Vote for settling and regulating the Minute-Men, as to their enlistment, equipment, and encouragement, and as to commissioning them and giving other orders concerning them.

— Saturday, September 2, 1775.

Voted, That the Report of the aforesaid Committee be received and accepted, as follows, viz:

That the Field-Officers of each Regiment of Minute-Men give out Enlisting Orders to as many men as are necessary for Officers in their respective Regiments, (endeavouring to proportion them among the several Regiments as near as may be,) and that they have liberty to enlist one-fourth or quarter part out of each Company of Militia; that great care be taken that said Orders be given out to good men, well disposed in the cause of this Country.

That each Soldier enlisted as aforesaid furnish himself with Arms, &c., agreeable to the recommendation of the Continental Congress.

That every Soldier enlisted as aforesaid shall meet at some convenient place in their own Town, according to the order of the Commanding Officer, one half day in every fortnight, to acquaint themselves with the art military. And every person so enlisted, when called to actual duty, (excepting the aforesaid half days,) shall be allowed the same wages per month as are allowed for those already in service in the Continental Army; said Soldiers to continue in the service till further orders of the Congress.

Voted, That Ezekiel Gummer, the Doorkeeper to the two late Houses of Assembly, be paid by the Receiver-General, out of the Publick Treasury, three Shillings per day for his attendance on the said Assemblies, by certificate from the Clerk of said Assemblies.

Voted, That there be raised, levied, and paid by the inhabitants of this Colony, in the same proportion as was last used in proportioning the Tax of this Colony, the sum of four thousand Pounds, lawful money, (instead of the three thousand voted by this Congress in May last,) and paid unto Nicholas Gilman, Esq., of Exeter, as Treasurer of this Colony, and to the Treasurer or Receiver-General of this Colony for the time being, by the first day of February next; and that the said Treasurer issue his Warrants for assessing the same to the Selectmen of each Town in this Colony; and where there are no Selectmen, that the inhabitants of such Town or place receive the said Warrant, and immediately assemble and choose Selectmen and other necessary officers for the purpose aforesaid.

Voted, That the Committee of Safety assist the Receiver-General in forming Warrants for assessing and levying the Colony Taxes for this year.

Voted, That the Committee of Safety be empowered to give a form of Enlistment of the Minute-Men to the several Colonels of the Regiments of Minute-Men.

Voted, That the Company of Matrosses or Artillery-Men, under the command of Captain Titus Salter, be forthwith mustered by Colonel Hobart, and that they be allowed to draw their allowance of Provisions, according to the allowance of the Continental Army; and that Samuel Cutts, Esq., be desired to provide for them, until further orders of the Congress, or of the Committee of Safety.

Voted, That it be recommended to the several Taverners and Retailers in this Colony to render a true account of, and pay their excise for the current year to the Selectmen of their respective Towns and places, and that the said Selectmen pay the same to the Receiver-General, Nicholas Gilman, Esq., at Exeter, or to the Receiver-General for the time being, for the use of this Colony.

Voted, That this Congress be adjourned to Tuesday,

NEW-YORK PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Die Lunæ, 9 ho. A. M., August 7, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

A draught of a Letter to General Wooster was read and approved, before a sufficient number of Members appeared to constitute a Congress. Soon after, a sufficient number of Members appeared in the Congress Chamber, and the said draught being again read, and a postscript added thereto, the said Letter and postscript are in the words following, to wit:

SIR: The Congress are not now sitting. We are under a necessity of applying to you for the loan of two hundred pounds of Gunpowder.

Please, Sir, to deliver to the order of Ezra L'Hommedieu and John Foster, Esqrs., two hundred weight of Powder, on account of this Colony, for which the Congress here will send you an order, and see it replaced as soon as possible.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

P. V. B. LIVINGSTON, President.

August 7, 1775.

N. B. The Congress are since met, and request you immediately to send off four Companies of your Troops, to march to the east end of Long-Island, to assist the inhabitants there in preventing the stock from being taken off by the King's Troops, for the use of the Army at Boston. They are there to be under the command of Colonel Phineas Fanning.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and sent to General Wooster.

A draught of a Letter to Colonel Phineas Fanning was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: You are requested immediately to repair to the east end of Long-Island, and take the command of the Militia to be raised there, and the Troops that will be sent from General Wooster's camp, and also the Forces raised by this Colony now on the island, and use your best endeavours to prevent the cattle from being taken off the island by the Ministerial Army, and protect the inhabitants from insult.

We depend on your activity and courage, and hope you will be able to give a good account of General Gage's detachment.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants. By order of Congress.

To Colonel Phineas Fanning, at Southold.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and sent by the Messenger from Suffolk County.

A draught of a Letter to Mr. John Chatfield, Chairman of the Committee of Easthampton, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: We have received your express, and request you would use your best endeavours to prevent the Ministerial Army from taking off the cattle from your island. As Colonel Fanning is near the spot, we desire that he take the command of the Troops that may be raised for this service. Powder, &c., will be sent you immediately, with four Companies from General Wooster's camp. These Troops are also to act under Colonel Fanning.

Orders have been sent to Captain Grennell to march to your assistance immediately. We depend on your activity, and are your humble servants.

By order of the Congress.

John Chatfield, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence, Easthampton.

P. S. It is requested that the Officers that you may employ in this service be under Colonel Fanning's command, and that you would provide the Troops with all necessaries.

the last day of October next, at three of the o'clock, afternoon, to meet at this place; and that if any thing should happen in the mean time that the Committee of Safety shall think of sufficient importance, that they have power to convene this Congress sooner.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and sent by the Messenger from Suffolk County.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., August 8, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment, and opened with prayers by the Rev. Dr. Auchmuty. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

A Letter from the Committee of Tryon County, dated the 15th ultimo, was read and filed, whereby they inform the Congress that John Fry, Anthony Van Vechten, and Matthew Warmood, the officers appointed to a Company in that County, have declined the service; and that the said Committee have appointed Christopher P. Yates Captain, Andrew Fink, Jun., and John Keyser, Jun., Lieutenants.

A Letter from Christopher P. Yates, of the 25th ult., was read, whereby it appears that he had raised fifty-one Soldiers for his Company, and expected to have the Company full in ten days.

Ordered, That Warrants be made out to those gentlemen in Tryon County, to wit: Christopher P. Yates, Captain; Andrew Fink, Jun., First Lieutenant, and John Keyser, Jun., Second Lieutenant; and that the said Warrants be dated on the 15th ultimo.

Resolved, That the several Committees and Sub-Committees of the different Counties within this Colony be directed immediately to purchase or hire all the Arms, with or without Bayonets, that are fit for present service, (upon the credit of the Colony,) and to deliver them to the respective Colonels in this Colony employed in the Continental service, or their order, for the use of the Continental Army.

Resolved, That the said Colonels execute the above Resolution in those Districts where the Committee shall neglect or be unable to comply with the above Resolution.

Resolved, That Messrs. Joseph Hallett and Egbert Dumond proceed forthwith to Philadelphia, with the Warrant from the Continental Congress for One Hundred and Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars, to receive and remit the same in parcels to this Congress, by safe conveyances.

And Ordered, That the said Warrant be delivered to those gentlemen, or one of them, by Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., the President of this Congress; and it is requested that the Continental Treasurers discharge the said Warrant with all possible despatch, as the publick creditors are very pressing for their demands.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., pay to Thomas Pettit, as Doorkeeper of this Congress, twenty Pounds, on account, and take his receipt for the same.

Ordered, That Colonel Lispenard, Mr. Brasher, Mr. Journey, Colonel Ten Broeck, Colonel James Van Cortlandt, Colonel Hoffman, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Herring, Mr. Williams, Captain Hornbeck, Colonel Blackwell, Mr. Marlatt, and Mr. Watkins, be a Committee to form and report a proper arrangement of the Militia of this Colony, and that they report with all convenient speed.

A Memorial of Philip Van Rensselaer, of Albany, appointed by Robert Livingston, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General, to purchase barrelled Pork for the use of the Continental Army, was read. The said Memorial sets forth that Pork cannot be purchased in this Colony, and requests that this Congress would write to Governour Trumbull for leave to purchase four hundred and fifty barrels of good merchantable Pork in Connecticut, and have the same shipped to Messrs. Dennis & Dawson, in New-York.

Ordered, That Governour Trumbull be requested, and he is hereby requested by this Congress, to permit the quantity of four hundred and fifty barrels of good merchantable Pork to be sent to New-York, to the care of Messrs. Dennis &

Dawson, to be forwarded for the use of the Continental Army in the northern part of this Colony.

A draught of a Letter to Major-General Schuyler was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: We have received your several letters of the 16th, 21st, 22d, 26th, and 27th of July, the first of which was received on the 31st of July, and others all on the 1st of August. Although we have deferred answering them till now, yet be assured that we have paid the most unremitted attention to the subject-matter of them, and have been doing every thing in our power to comply with the requisitions contained in them. We are sensible of the necessity you urge of strengthening the garrisons at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, and have been indefatigable in preparing our Regiments to embark for that purpose, but find ourselves much embarrassed in procuring arms. This day four Companies of Colonel McDougall's Regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Ritzema, are embarked for Albany, completely equipped; and rest assured, Sir, that no time shall be lost in forwarding the remainder of them as soon as they have arms. The Albany Regiment, we understand, is full, and nearly supplied with arms; Colonel Clinton's, though full, have scarcely any arms at all. Orders have been given to the several Colonels to send such of their men as are furnished with arms, and they will be followed by the rest as soon as possible. The greater part of the clothing and other necessities have already been forwarded for the Regiment at Albany. We enclose Mr. Curtenius's account of all the supplies he has furnished, from which it will appear that almost all the articles in your estimate are sent: the rest will be forwarded in a few days.

We have appointed Mr. Duer Deputy Adjutant-General, and his commission has been sent to him by Colonel Campbell, so that we hope he has joined, or will join you soon. With respect to the appointment of a commander of the Artillery, recommended by you to our attention, we are utterly at a loss for a proper person to fill that office, and therefore have as yet done nothing in the matter. Captain Lamb has orders for marching; he has about thirty men enlisted in his Company of Artillery, and orders to fill it up by draughts out of the four Regiments at Ticonderoga.

We have the pleasure to inform you that, in addition to what was before sent, two tons and a half of powder was forwarded from Dobbs's Ferry last week, by Captain Dowe. The Congress, in order to procure a supply of arms, have resolved that every soldier who finds his own arms shall be allowed ten Shillings for the use of them, and that such as have them not shall be furnished by the Province; and for this purpose we have authorized the several Committees in the Counties to hire or purchase such arms as can be got for the use of the Province. We are, Sir, &c.

P. S. We should be glad to know what progress has been made in the enlistment of the Green Mountain Boys.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and transmitted, with the accounts therein mentioned enclosed, by the first conveyance.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., August 9, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Rodgers. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

A Letter from Robert Hempstead, Chairman of the Committee of Southold, in Suffolk County, of the 7th instant, was read and filed. The said Letter informs that thirteen sail of vessels, eight of which were supposed to be ships of war, had been cruising between Montauk and Fisher's Island, and were then riding at anchor between that island and the Oyster Ponds. The said Letter prays for an additional supply of Gunpowder.

Mr. Hobart, from the Committee to form an arrangement of the Militia of this Colony, delivered in a Report, and asked leave to sit again. The said Report was read; and being again read, paragraph by paragraph, and amended, was filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee do report that it be recommended—

1. That every County, City, Manor, Town, Precinct, and District, within this Colony, where the same is not already done, be divided into Districts or Beats, by the respective Committees, in such manner that out of each may be formed one Military Company, ordinarily to consist of about eighty-three able-bodied and effective men, Officers included, between sixteen and fifty years of age; the Battalion commanded by Colonel Lasher, the Companies of Artillery, Light-Horse, and Hussars, in the City and County of New-York, and the Troops of Horse Companies, of Grenadiers, and the associated Companies already formed in the several Cities and Counties within this Colony, excepted.

2. That in each Company so to be formed there be chosen, in the manner hereinafter mentioned, one Captain, two Lieutenants, one Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Clerk, one Drummer, and one Fifer.

3. That two Committee-Men, at the least, attend in each District or Beat, on a day to be by them appointed, for the purpose of choosing the abovementioned Officers, who shall be persons within such Beat or District who have signed the General Association recommended by this Congress; that such choice or election be made in the manner following, to wit: After the Company is drawn up, the Committee-Men who preside at the election may repair to a station at some convenient distance from the Company, then let the men pass in a single file between them, each man giving in the name of the person he chooses to fill the office in question; the majority of such votes to determine the election. But in case the votes shall be so divided that no one has the majority, then the presiding Committee-Men to acquaint the Company therewith, and call them to a new election; the same to be repeated till such majority be obtained, or the Company agree upon some other mode of choosing the Officers. The names of the Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns, so chosen, to be returned, with all convenient speed, to this or some future Provincial Congress of this Colony, or, during their recess, to the Committee of Safety, to be commissioned by them.

4. That whenever a vacancy shall happen in any Company, by the promotion, death, or resignation of an Officer, such vacancy to be filled up in the beforementioned manner.

5. That those Companies in the above excepted Battalion, commanded by Col. Lasher, which are now under the direction of Field-Officers, shall for the future be commanded by Captains, who are to be chosen in the manner above directed.

6. That for the purpose of completely carrying into execution the recommendation of the Continental Congress, after the whole Militia is formed as above, that every fourth man of each Company be selected for Minute-Men, of such persons as are willing to enter into this necessary service; that the Officers of the Militia make, with all convenient speed, a return of the names of those persons to the Committee of their respective Counties, who shall thereupon arrange those men into Companies, and who are to recommend to such new arranged Companies the choice of their Officers, in the manner abovementioned. Provided, that where whole Companies offer their service as Minute-Men, they shall be commanded by the Officers already chosen, and the remaining number of the Minute-Men shall be completed out of the other Companies, as above.

7. That the several Committees do return to the Secretary of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, the names of such persons as do refuse to conform to the above Resolve.

All which is humbly submitted.

Ordered, That Congress do agree with the said Committee in their Report; and Ordered, That it be published, as Resolutions of this Congress, in all the Newspapers.

The Mayor and some other of the Magistrates attending at the door, informed one of the Members that Captain Vandeput, of His Majesty's Ship Asia, had requested to know whether he will receive a Boat in lieu of that lately destroyed.

Ordered, That the Mayor and Magistrates be informed that it is the sense of this Congress that a new Boat be built for the use of His Majesty's Ship Asia.

Thereupon the Congress entered into a Resolution in the words following, to wit:

Whereas the Barge ordered to be built, to replace the one belonging to His Majesty's Ship Asia, lately destroyed, was, when lately finished, sawed to pieces in the night by some disorderly persons,

Resolved, That the Mayor and Magistrates of this City be requested to procure another Barge, to be built in this City, for the purpose aforesaid; and all persons are strictly enjoined not to obstruct the building the said Barge, or the delivery thereof to the commander of His Majesty's said Ship, as those who shall give any obstruction thereto will be considered and treated as enemies to their Country.

Ordered, That the same be published in the Newspapers.

A Letter from Peter T. Curtenius was read and filed. He therein encloses an Invoice of certain bales of Goods which may be purchased for cash at Philadelphia, and setting forth his great difficulties for want of money.

Many of the Goods mentioned in the said Invoice being unnecessary for the supplies now wanted in this Colony, and others of extremely high price,

Ordered, That Mr. Curtenius be desired not to purchase them.

Captain Thomas Wickham having at present the care of Gardiner's Island, and the Stock thereon,

Ordered, That he have leave to go there, to endeavour to prevent the Stock from being taken on board of the Ships now there, for the use of General Gage's Army; and that Mr. Wickham be considered as present, and Suffolk County Members have a vote while he is absent on that business.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., August 10, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Gano. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

A Letter from Colonel Phineas Fanning, dated the 8th instant, informing of the situation of thirteen sail of vessels at Gardiner's Island Point, was read and filed.

A Letter from Isaac Sears, of the 8th instant, excusing his absence, and informing that he will be necessarily absent this month.

Ordered, That the powers of the Military Committee be continued for one week from this day.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., August 11, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Inglis.

On motion of Colonel McDougall, Ordered, That one hundred and twenty-five Pouches, Belts, Bayonet Belts, and Slings, be made for the Officers of the Four Regiments, and for the Officers of the Artillery Company.

A Letter from Thomas Helme, Chairman pro tempore of the Committee of Brookhaven, bearing date the 3d day of August instant, was read and filed. The said Letter informs that Parson James Lyon, Benjamin Floyd, Doctor Gilbert Smith, Joseph Denton, Richard Floyd, and John Baylies, Innkeeper, are counteracting every measure recommended for redress of grievances, and opposing the measures of Congresses and Committees; that they have declared they will furnish, and that it is suspected they have furnished, the men of war and cutters with provisions. The said Committee request the Congress to direct such measures as they shall think proper to suppress such conduct.

Ordered, That Mr. Kissam, Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. Low, Mr. L'Honmedieu, Mr. Herring, and Mr. Ward, be a Committee to take the subject-matter of the said Letter into consideration, and that they report such general resolutions or regulations as may be proper to be entered into, or ordered by this Congress to be done in cases of this nature.

Resolved and Ordered, That the Colonels McDougall, Clinton, and Holmes, do respectively march to Albany, with all convenient speed, with the men now raised and under their respective commands, (except the three Companies at the east end of Long-Island, and such Recruiting Officers as they shall think necessary to leave to recruit men,) and that they there wait the directions of their General Officer or Officers.

Resolved and Ordered, That the Pay of the Officers employed in the Troops now raised or raising in this Colony, shall commence from the time they were respectively taken into the service.

Mr. Low, from the Committee appointed to report the ways and means best adapted to discharge the Debts contracted for the exigencies of this Colony, delivered in their Report, which was read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Report be taken into consideration next Tuesday morning.

Ordered, That Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Verplanck be a Committee to reconsider the Bounty agreed by this Congress to be given on Gunpowder, and to report a proper Resolve for applying the said Bounty to the making of Saltpetre.

A Letter from Samuel Broome, bearing date this day, was read and filed. He thereby informs the Congress that he had withdrawn his Company from Colonel Lasher's Battalion, to prevent some dispute with another Company; that when he returns from the country, he will with pleasure join any other Battalion.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., August 12, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Dr. Laidley. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

Major William Williams, one of the Deputies of Cumberland County, produced a Certificate of James Clay, Chairman pro tempore of Cumberland County Congress, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, Westminster County Hall, July 26, 1775.

"Resolved, nem. con., That our Delegates, chosen on the 7th day of June last, be qualified to act in the Provincial Congress at New-York, singly, in as ample and full a manner, when but one is present, as the whole of said Delegates, when the whole are present at said Provincial Congress. Attest:

"JAMES CLAY, Chairman pro tem. of said County Congress."

A Letter from General Montgomery, of the 8th instant, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius be requested to purchase six hundred Blankets, and to purchase and procure to be made six hundred Tomplines, and seven hundred and twenty pair of Shoes, and forward the same to Albany with all possible despatch.

A copy of the Examination of Garret Roseboom, of the City of Albany, taken before the Sub-Committee of the City and County of Albany, on the 15th July last, and also a copy of the Examination of Benjamin Davis, (alias John Johnson), sworn before John Ten Broeck, Esq., at Albany, both relating to Indian affairs, were read and filed.

Mr. Roosevelt, from the Committee to reconsider of the Bounty resolved to be given on Gunpowder, delivered in their Report, in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee for considering the Resolution of this Congress of the 9th of June last, for allowing a Bounty on all Gunpowder manufactured in this Colony, and also of proper encouragement to be given for the manufacture of Saltpetre, do report, that they conceive that this Congress cannot, consistent with honour, recede from the Resolution entered into respecting the Bounty on Gunpowder. That, notwithstanding, proper encouragement ought to be given for the manufacture of Saltpetre; that, therefore, they are of opinion that this Congress do enter into a resolution to stipulate the price of good and merchantable Saltpetre at half a Dollar for each pound that shall be made in this Colony before the first day of October, 1776; and that they will purchase, on account of the United Colonies, all that the respective manufacturers cannot dispose of at that rate, to the manufacturers of Gunpowder, during the period aforesaid.

Your Committee do further report, that such a Resolution is agreeable to a recommendation of the Continental Congress of the 28th of July last.

All which is most humbly submitted by your Committee.

ISAAC ROOSEVELT.

A Letter from Captain Henry B. Livingston, informing that his Company is ready, and requesting to know who is his Colonel, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Colonel Hoffman write a private Letter, in answer to Mr. Livingston's Letter, and enclose him copies of such Papers and such extracts of the Minutes as will give him proper information.

A Memorial of Peter Clopper and sundry other Merchants of the City of New-York, was read and filed.

The Memorialists set forth, that a difference of opinion hath arisen in this City, with respect to the propriety of shipping Flax Seed to Ireland from this Colony, and beg that the Congress will, by some act or publication of theirs, declare whether the people of this Colony are or are not at liberty to ship Flax Seed as aforesaid, and also to satisfy the publick of the sense of the Continental Congress on that subject, if such their sense has been communicated to this Congress, as before suggested.

Thereupon, the Congress entered into a Resolution, in the words following, to wit:

Whereas doubts have arisen in the minds of some of the good people in this Colony, respecting the propriety of exporting Flax Seed before the 10th of September next: And whereas the respectable Continental Congress thought proper not to make any alteration in the Non-Exportation System agreed to last year: In order to remove such doubts,

Resolved, That this Congress are clearly of opinion, that every person hath an undoubted right to export that article before the 10th of September next.

Ordered, That the above Resolution be published in the Newspapers.

A draught of a Letter to Brigadier-General Montgomery, in answer to his Letter received this day, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, August 12, 1775.

SIR: Your letter of the 8th August has been considered by the Congress, and, agreeable to your request, they have directed Mr. Curtenius to forward you with all possible despatch such of the articles of your order as have not yet been sent up. They are doubtful if the whole can be procured immediately, but as fast as they can be obtained you will have them sent to you. Arms cannot be had here, but the Committee of Albany are furnished with a resolution which will readily enable them to purchase or hire as many as you want. Four Companies of the First Regiment of New-York Troops are, we hope, before this time, with you, and the others are preparing to follow with all expedition. We shall pay a proper attention to the apprehensions you express from the half-pay officers and others who are not well affected to American liberty; and we trust to the vigilance of the Albany Committee, that they will use every necessary precaution to render abortive the designs of our enemies.

We are, Sir, yours, &c. By order.

Brigadier-General Montgomery.

P. S. You have been misinformed with respect to the arrival of Gunpowder here; we are sorry to inform you we are entirely destitute, as yet, of that very necessary article.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by the Messenger who brought General Montgomery's Letter.

The Congress then adjourned to next Tuesday morning, at nine o'clock.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., August 15, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers.

A Letter from General Schuyler, of the 31st of July last, from Ticonderoga, was read and filed.

The several Papers referred to in the preceding Letter from General Schuyler were respectively read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"Dorset, July 28, 1775.

"MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: In compliance with the orders of Congress, as well as your recommendation, I enclose the proceedings of our Committee meeting on the New-Hampshire Grants, upon due notice to the Towns in general. All which is humbly submitted to your wisdom, not doubting but the warrants will issue agreeable to our wishes. We are your most obedient.

. FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III.

"In behalf of the Committee:

"NATHAN CLARK, Chairman.

"To the Honourable General Schuyler."

"At a meeting of the Committees of the several Townships on the New-Hampshire Grants, west of the Range of Green Mountains, convened at the house of Mr. Cephas Kents, in the Township of Dorset, July 27, 1775—Voted as follows, to wit:

"1st. Chose Mr. Nathan Clark Chairman.

"2d. Chose John Fasset Clerk.

"3d. The motion being made and seconded, Whether this Convention shall prosecute in choosing Field and other Officers, according to the Provincial Congress and your Honour's direction? Passed in the affirmative.

"Then proceeded as follows:

"4th. Chose Mr. Seth Warner Lieutenant-Colonel for the Regiment of Green Mountain Boys, by a majority of forty-one to five.

"5th. Chose Mr. Samuel Safford Major for said Regiment, by a majority of twenty-eight to seventeen.

"Then proceeded and chose seven Captains and fourteen Lieutenants, by a great majority, viz:

"Captains: Weight Hopkins, Oliver Potter, John Grant, William Fitch, Gideon Brownson, Micah Vail, Heman Allen.

"First Lieutenants: John Fasset, Ebenezer Allen, Barnabas Barnam, Jille Bleaksley, Ira Allen, Gideon Warren, David Galusha.

"Second Lieutenants: Johan Noble, James Claghorn, John Chipman, Nathan Smith, Jesse Sawyer, Joshua Stanton, Philo Hard.

"NATHAN CLARK, Chairman."

"Head-Quarters, Ticonderoga, July 31, 1775.

"SIR: Your letter, dated Dorset, 28th July, has been delivered me by Captain Fitch, together with the votes that were enclosed. The choice of the Captains and Lieutenants being left unconditional to the people, those chosen will receive their warrants as soon as they come to my hands. And that the levying of the men may not be retarded, you will signify to them that I hereby empower them immediately to proceed to that business, without waiting for the warrants. And in order to prevent any confusion that may take place, the Captains and Lieutenants must immediately signify to me, in writing, that they accept or decline the offices to which they have been elected. The votes I shall immediately transmit to Congress, that they may approve of the Field-Officers, or appoint others out of your body, as they may think proper.

"I am, Sir, your humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To Mr. Nathan Clark, Chairman, &c."

Ordered, That Blank Warrants be sent to General Schuyler, for the seven Captains and fourteen Lieutenants of the Troops to be raised by this Colony from among those called Green Mountain Boys.

Ordered, That General Schuyler be requested and authorized to appoint a Lieutenant-Colonel or Major, or both, for the Troops to be raised by this Colony from among those called Green Mountain Boys, when such a number of them are raised as (in his opinion) shall make it necessary.

Resolved, That when the Green Mountain Boys are raised, each of them shall be furnished with a Coat; and that Mr. Peter T. Curtenius be requested to purchase coarse green Cloth for that purpose, and red Cloth sufficient to face those Coats, and to have two hundred and twenty-five Coats, of a large size, made of the said Cloth.

Messrs. Low, Walton, Micheau, Conner, Journey, and Polhemus, dissent.

And Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius be requested to purchase proper materials for Tents, and get a sufficient number of Tents made for two hundred and twenty-five men of the Green Mountain Boys, as soon as proper materials for Tents can be procured.

Ordered, That a Letter be wrote to the Hon. Robert R. Livingston, Esq., requesting that all the Gunpowder now at the Powder Mill at Rhinebeck be sent to Walter Livingston, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General at Albany, to be by him forwarded to General Schuyler, at Ticonderoga, or his order, agreeable to General Schuyler's request.

A Letter from Mr. Ethan Allen, bearing date at Ticonderoga, on the 20th July, ultimo, was read and filed. He thereby assures the Congress that he will use his influence to promote a reconciliation between this Government and its former discontented subjects on the New-Hampshire Grants.

A Letter from Angus McDonald, bearing date at Fairfield, on the 11th instant, directed to any Printer, and complaining of ill treatment by one of the Riflemen, was read and filed.

A Memorial of Captain Jacobus Wynkoop, dated this day, alleging that, considering his age and former services, he conceives himself aggrieved in his rank and situation in the Troops now raised in this Colony, was read and filed.

A Letter from Captain Henry B. Livingston, bearing date the 10th instant, informing that the Soldiers in his Company are dissatisfied because they are not allowed Underclothes, was read and filed.

A Letter of William Duer, Esq., bearing date this day, was read and filed. He thereby expresses his respect and gratitude for the confidence this Congress placed in his zeal for the publick service, in appointing him Deputy Adjutant-General, and requesting an indulgence of three days, to determine whether his connection with his brothers in Dominica will admit of his accepting the commission, without risking their fortune by his political conduct.

A Letter from General Montgomery, of the 10th instant, was read and filed. He thereby requests that each of the Provincial Troops sent forward to Ticonderoga may be furnished with Gunpowder, at the rate of a quarter of a pound per man.

Two copies of the Association, signed by the Inhabitants of Amenia Precinct, in Dutchess County, were returned and filed.

The Congress then adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., August 16, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President, &c.

A Muster-Roll or Return of Goose Van Schaick's Regiment, signed by Colonel Van Schaick, was read and filed.

A Letter from Johannes Slegt, Esq., Chairman of the Committee at Kingston, to the Deputies of Ulster County, bearing date the 14th instant, was read and filed. He thereby informs, that the Soldiers raised in that part of the County have been promised by their Officers to have a Drilling Waistcoat and Breeches, two Shirts, two pair of Hose, a pair of Shoes, and a Hat; that the Soldiers are now dissatisfied and uneasy, and refuse to march before they receive what was promised to them, and requests directions by the return of the Messenger.

A draught of an Answer to Johannes Slegt, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 16, 1775.

SIR: The Delegates from your County laid before the Congress a letter from you, dated the 14th instant, informing them that dissatisfaction has arisen among the soldiers raised among you, on account of their not receiving jackets, breeches, &c., over and above their monthly pay, as you say their officers promised them. In answer to which, the Congress inform you that the officers had no authority from them to make any such promises, and that they have resolved to furnish them with no other part of their clothing than a coat, which is at the particular expense of this Colony, and is more than any others of the Continental Troops are allowed. Four Companies of the New-York Regiment have already proceeded to Ticonderoga, and three more will proceed in a day or two, who were furnished with only a coat at the publick expense. You will be pleased, therefore, to direct the officers to proceed with their Troops to Albany with all possible speed, as no further allowance for clothing will be made.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants. By order.

To Johannes Slegt, Esq., Chairman of the Committee at Kingston.

P. S. A blanket is allowed to each soldier, at Continental charge.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Hon. Benjamin Franklin, Esq., and the other Members of the Committee of Secrecy, at Philadelphia, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 16, 1775.

SIR: It is with reluctance that we make the present application, but being disappointed in the arrival of a vessel which we had despatched about three months since for a supply of gunpowder, and having freely exhausted our small stock for the Continental service, we now find ourselves necessitated to ask some immediate assistance from you. We have supplied the Continental camp before Boston with sixteen hundred and fifty-five pounds of powder, and Ticonderoga with three hundred pounds, and have been obliged to send to the east end of Long-Island all that we could procure in this City, so that we now remain perfectly destitute. We must therefore entreat that you would oblige us with the loan of about one ton of gunpowder, or as much more as you conveniently can spare; we shall take care to replace it from the first we shall receive.

The present exigency of this Colony, we make no doubt, will induce your immediate compliance with the above request, and we therefore only further add our desire that the powder may be sent with all despatch to the care of the Committee at Newark.

By order.

The Hon. Benjamin Franklin and the other Gentlemen, Members of the Committee of Safety or Secrecy, at Philadelphia.

P. S. We beg that the powder to be sent may be put up in tight casks.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Bedford Williams, of Philadelphia, having sent into Congress several Credentials, certifying his having attended Lectures in Physick and Surgery,

Ordered, That Mr. Bedford Williams be appointed Surgeon's Mate to the Second Regiment of the Troops now raised in this Colony, if a Surgeon's Mate is not already appointed to that Regiment, subject to the general order of this House for the examination of all Surgeons and their Mates, by Dr. John Jones and Dr. Bard.

Ordered, That the several Companies of the Troops of this Colony raised in Suffolk County proceed to Ticonderoga, with all possible despatch, to join the Continental Army under the command of Major-General Schuyler.

Queen's County dissents.

A draught of a Letter to General Wooster was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 16, 1775.

SIR: It being absolutely necessary that the Troops levied on Long-Island march immediately to join General Schuyler, and as it is probable future attempts will be made, by order of General Gage, to take the live stock from the east end of Long-Island and the islands near it, it is conceived by the Congress, that to prevent such depredations, it is proper that you should continue there with your Troops till further order, which you are hereby desired to do accordingly.

We are, Sir, your most obedient humble servants. By order.

General Wooster.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Ordered, That the Report of the Committee of Ways and Means be recommitted to the same Committee.

Whereas, agreeable to a Resolution of this Congress, the Mayor and Magistrates of this City have been requested to procure a Barge to be built for His Majesty's Ship Asia, to replace the one lately destroyed; and this Congress being informed that the Carpenters in this City decline undertaking to build the said Barge, being apprehensive, by threats given out by some persons, if they should undertake to build the said Barge, that the same may not only be destroyed, but that their persons or property may be injured or insulted:

Resolved, That all persons who have given such obstruction, by threats, to the execution of the aforesaid order, or shall hereafter by threats or violence oppose the same, ought to be considered as factious, disorderly members of the community, and as guilty of a dangerous attempt to destroy the authority of this Congress, and to render them contemptible.

Resolved, That for the purpose of effectually carrying into execution the said order, and to defeat the malicious designs of such as dare to condemn or oppose the authority and orders of this House, Mr. Henry Sheaf be ordered immediately to set about building a proper Barge for the said Ship Asia, and to finish her with all possible despatch. And that Colonel Lasher be ordered to furnish a sufficient guard, who are to be relieved at the discretion of the Colonel, to protect the said Barge while building, and to see her safely delivered for the use of the said Ship. And the Magistrates as well as the other inhabitants of this City are requested to give all necessary aid in this business, that it may be known whether a few rash and restless individuals out of doors, or the representative body of the Colony in this Congress, are to direct the measures for our publick safety at this dangerous and critical juncture.

Resolved, That if any person or persons shall be found threatening or attempting to destroy the said Barge, they be taken into custody by the said guard, and detained till the order of this Congress shall be made respecting them.

Ordered, That these Resolutions be published in Holt's and Livington's Newspapers to-morrow.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., August 17, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers.

A Letter from General Washington was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Camp at Cambridge, August 10, 1775.

"SIR: Your favour of the 2d instant is duly received, but it is out of my power to comply with the request it contains, of forwarding commissions. All those I have yet received from the honourable Continental Congress are far short of the number required in this Army; for which reason, when at New-York, and by letter from this, I directed General Schuyler to apply to the Congress at Philadelphia for those of his department, as the shortest and easiest mode; to which I must also now refer you.

"We have had no occurrence in the camp, for several days, worthy of notice; but, by some advices from Boston, and several concurring circumstances, we have great reason to suspect a part or the whole of the Ministerial Troops are about to remove. New-York is the place generally talked of as their destination. I give you the intelligence as it came to me, but do not vouch for its authenticity.

"I am, with the most respectful regard to yourself and the body over whom you preside, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

"GEORGE WASHINGTON.

"The Hon. Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

Ordered, That a copy of General Washington's Letter be sent to General Schuyler.

A draught of a Letter to Major-General Schuyler was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 17, 1775.

SIR: We have received your favour dated the 31st of July last, covering the proceedings of the Green Mountain Boys in their choice of officers, and, agreeable to your request, enclose you twenty-one blank warrants, to be filled up agreeable to their choice. The Field-Officers were to be recommended jointly with you by this Congress; but as we are ignorant of the merits and qualifications of those among them who would be equal to the appointment, we have therefore concluded to leave the appointment to you. The disputes already subsisting amongst their chiefs, the principles whereof we are strangers to, are an additional inducement in determining us to this reference. Your acquaintance with them we hope will enable you to fix the choice on such persons as may be least exceptionable, and who will most effectually promote the service.

The appointing officers and supplying necessaries for an hospital is a Continental expense, for which this Congress are not competent; but at the same time are of opinion that you, as Commander-in-Chief, are fully authorized to order all matters necessary for that purpose; and be assured that we shall gladly give you all the assistance in our power. We enclose you a copy of our resolves entered into on the 15th instant, which we expect will fully answer the remaining particulars of your letter; as, also, a copy of a letter we received of General Washington, dated the 10th instant.

With respect, your humble servants. By order.

Major-General Schuyler.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted, together with copies of the Minutes of this Congress on the 15th instant, in pursuance of the requisitions in General Schuyler's Letter.

Colonel McDougall moved, and was seconded by Colonel Lispenard, that two Brass Kettles, to contain ten gallons each, be provided for each Company of the Troops raised in this Colony, agreeable to the arrangement of the Colony of Connecticut. Objections being made to the said motion, and the question put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Motion.

2 Queen's County.

New-York, Westchester, and Orange Counties, had no votes, for want of a sufficient number of Members.

Against the Motion.

3 Albany,
2 Richmond,
2 Suffolk,
2 Ulster,
2 King's,
2 Tryon,
2 Cumberland,
2 Dutchess.

Ordered, That the following Gentlemen be of the Committee to form an arrangement of the Militia, to wit: Colonel Woodhull in the place of Mr. Hobart, Mr. Jackson in the place of Mr. Herring, and Mr. Covenhoven in the place of Henry Williams.

A Certificate of Doctor John Jones and Doctor Bard, bearing date this day, was read and filed. They thereby certify that they have examined Edward Sands, respecting his knowledge and qualifications for Surgeon's Mate in one of the New-York Regiments, and that they admit him as competent to the office.

Ordered, That the said Edward Sands be appointed Surgeon's Mate of the Fourth Regiment of Troops raised in this Colony.

A draught of a Letter to Benjamin Franklin, Esq., and the Secret Committee at Philadelphia, and also to the Committee of Elizabethtown, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You will easily see the propriety of enclosing to you a paragraph of General Washington's Letter of the 10th instant, and you will not need the hint, which we take the liberty to give you, that the intelligence ought to be communicated to the several Committees of your Colony.

We are Gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient and humble servants.

Ordered, That two copies thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, one to be directed to Benjamin Franklin, Esq., and the Secret Committee at Philadelphia, and the other to be directed to the Committee of Elizabethtown; and that a copy of the paragraph of General Washington's Letter, which mentions General Gage's removal, be enclosed in each of them.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., August 18, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Mason. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

The Report of the Committee of the City and County of New-York, of their inquiry relating to the destroying of the Boat lately ordered to be built for His Majesty's Ship Asia, was read and filed. The said Committee reports the names of a number of witnesses by them examined, and the substance of the examinations of the said witnesses, whereby it appears that the said Committee could not discover any of the persons who were concerned in destroying the said Boat.

A Muster-Roll of Capt. John Hulbert's Company, dated the 9th instant, and certified by David Mulford, one of the Muster-Masters in Suffolk County, was brought in and filed.

That part of General Washington's Letter which informs that he has not any Blank Commissions being read, Ordered, That a Letter be wrote to Charles Thomson, Esq., at Philadelphia, requesting him to send Blank Commissions for the Troops raised in this Colony.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to Charles Thomson, Esq., was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, August 18, 1775.

SIR: We applied to General Washington for commissions for the officers of the Troops raised by this Colony. He has informed us that the commissions he received are far short of the number required for the Army at Cambridge, and that, when at New-York, he directed General Schuyler to apply to the Continental Congress for those of his department, and refers us there.

We imagine General Schuyler has not received the commissions. If they have not been sent to him, and you have Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of Easthampton and Southold was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 18, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The recent transactions of the Ministerial Army and Navy within your District will sufficiently apprise you of the absolute necessity of taking such precautions as will prevent the ill effects of their future piratical descents on our coasts. The most probable and effectual means for this purpose we conceive will be to remove the cattle and sheep from Gardiner's and Plumb Islands; and we therefore recommend that you will take proper steps for their removal with all possible despatch.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

By order:

To the Committee of Easthampton and Southold.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to General Wooster was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 18, 1775.

SIR: We enclose you a copy of a paragraph in General Washington's Letter of the 10th instant, in consequence of which we desire you to return to your camp at Harlem with the utmost speed, to assist in the defence of this City and Province. We are, Sir, yours, &c.

To Brigadier-General Wooster.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by Mr. L'Hommedieu.

Ordered. That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius deliver to Colo-

"Camp at Cambridge, August 8, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: It must give great concern to every considerate mind, that when this whole Continent, at a vast expense of blood and treasure, is endeavouring to establish its liberties on the most secure and solid foundations, not only by a laudable opposition of force to force, but denying itself the usual advantages of trade, there are men among us so basely sordid as to counteract all our exertions, for the sake of a little gain. You cannot but have heard that the distresses of the Ministerial Troops, for fresh provisions and many other necessities, at Boston, were very great. It is a policy justifiable by all the laws of war to endeavour to increase them. Desertions, discouragement, and a dissatisfaction with the service, besides weakening their strength, are some of the natural consequences of such a situation, and, if continued, might afford the fairest hope of success, without further effusion of human blood.

"A vessel cleared lately out of New-York, for St. Croix, with fresh provisions and other articles, has just gone into Boston, instead of pursuing her voyage to the West-Indies. I have endeavoured to discover the name of the captain or owner, but as yet without success. The owner, it is said, went to St. Croix before the vessel, from which, and her late arrival, I make no doubt you will be able to discover and expose the villain. And if you could fall upon some effectual measure to prevent the like in future, it would be doing a signal service to our common country.

"I have been endeavouring, by every means in my power, to discover the future intentions of our enemy here. I find a general idea prevailing through the Army, and in the Town of Boston, that the Troops are soon to leave the Town, and go to some other part of the Continent. New-York is the place generally mentioned as their destination. I should think a rumour or suggestion of this kind worthy of very little notice, if it was not confirmed by some corresponding circumstances. But a four weeks' total inactivity, with all their re-enforcements arrived and recruited, the daily diminution by desertions, sickness, and small skirmishes, induce an opinion that any effort they propose to make will be directed elsewhere. I thought it proper just to hint to you what is probably intended. You will then consider what regard is to be paid to it, and what steps will be proper for you to take, if any.

"I am, with great respect and regard, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

"The Honourable the Provincial Congress of the Province of New-York."

Resolved and Ordered, That the paragraph of General Washington's Letter relative to a Vessel that arrived at Boston with fresh Provisions and other articles, supposed to be from New-York, be sent to the General Committee of New-York; and that they be directed to make inquiry whether the said Vessel did sail from hence, and who are the owners and master of the said Vessel, and report the result thereof to this Congress.

Resolved, That no Cattle, Sheep, Poultry, or Live Stock of any kind, except Horses, be exported from this Colony, (save only such Ship Stores for which the Chairman or Deputy Chairman of the Committee at the Port or place from whence any Vessel may sail shall give permission,) until it shall be otherwise ordered by this or the Continental Congress. And the Committees of the Cities, Counties, Towns, and Precincts, in this Colony, are hereby strictly enjoined to cause this Resolution to be complied with and obeyed within their respective Districts.

Ordered, That a copy of this last Resolution be published in the Newspapers.

Mr. John Carter, lately from Boston, being requested, attended in Congress. Short notes of his information were taken by one of the Secretaries, and being read to the said John Carter, and by him acknowledged to be truly taken, were filed.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of Philadelphia was read, and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 19, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We enclose you short notes of information we received of Mr. John Carter, who left Boston a few days since. Mr. Carter will speedily be at Philadelphia, and can give you more fully and particularly the information we received of him.

You will, no doubt, gentlemen, make such inquiries as to discover whether the owners of the Ship Sally, as well as of Mr. White's Schooner, did not ship their respective cargoes with design to supply the Ministerial Fleet and Army at Boston, which there is but too much reason to suspect.

We are, most respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

Ordered, That a copy of the above Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the notes of the examination of Mr. John Carter, as far as relates to the Ship Sally and White's Brigantine, be transmitted to the Committee of the City of Philadelphia.

Die Lunæ, 9 ho. A. M., August 21, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

Ordered, That Colonel Lispenard, Mr. Sears, Mr. Thomas Smith, and Mr. Robert Yates, be a Committee to examine Captain Lawrence. That the said Committee have power to discharge and liberate Captain Lawrence, if they think proper. That they take with them the Letters found with Captain Lawrence, and that they make report to this Congress.

A Letter from General Schuyler was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Ticonderoga, August 15, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Yesterday I was favoured with a line from Mr. Francis Lewis, dated Philadelphia, the 2d August. He advises me that Congress was adjourned, and that in future I was to address myself to you. That he had received several of my letters to the Continental Congress, which he would lay before you. But as he does not mention of what date, I suppose there are none later than the 27th ult., and that the subsequent ones, of the 28th and 31st ult., 2d and 6th instant, had not come to hand, copies of the two first of which I enclose you, with copies of such of the papers alluded to as may be of consequence, lest those letters should not be delivered you.

"Since my last, Major Brown is returned from Canada; he did not complete my wishes; enclosed you have his reports. I cannot learn that either the regular Troops or Indians have been further south than the latitude 45°. I suppose they are apprehensive of an attack. Captain Smith fell in with an officer, sergeant, and ten Indians; he wished to speak to them, but they retired to their boats, and on his approach they fired three volleys, but did not kill or wound any one.

"I shall soon have boats sufficient to move what men I am likely to have here, and therefore wish that any of the articles requested in my estimate, and which have not yet been sent, together with such as I have subsequently applied for, may be immediately forwarded to me. Cartridge paper, and the various articles necessary in the artillery branch, except guns, I have none of; and as I cannot make a substitute for any, I wish that not one moment's delay may be made in sending those from New-York, with orders that they may not be detained at any place.

"I am, Gentlemen, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient humble servant, PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To the New-York Provincial Congress."

Nos. 1, 2, and 3, copies of Letters from General Schuyler to the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., were read and filed.

A copy of the Report of Captain James Smith was read and filed.

No. 4, a copy of a Letter of the 6th of August, from General Schuyler to the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., was read and filed.

Copy of the Report of Major Brown was read and filed.

Copy of the Affidavit of John Duguid was read and filed.

The Affidavit of John Shatforth was also read and filed.

The Report of James Stewart was read and filed.

A copy of the Affidavit of Benjamin Davis was read and filed.

A Letter from the Committee at Albany was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany Committee Chamber, August 10, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: We find ourselves once more obliged to trouble you with respect to the soldiers who were taken prisoners at St. John's, who have been furnished with provisions by Elisha Phelps, Esq., Commissary, (appointed by the Governour of Connecticut,) till a few days ago, when Mr. Phelps went into Connecticut upon business, and left no order with his Deputy to supply them; who, being unwilling to supply them without orders from our Board, spoke to the Chairman, who told him he thought, as the Army was now properly organized, it was their business to give orders concerning prisoners, and referred him to General Montgomery, who (as the said Deputy informed us) found much fault with their insolence, and thought it improper that they should be suffered to remain in this Town, as being a frontier place, where they might do disservice to the publick cause, and therefore declined doing any thing in the affair; upon which, Mr. Phelps's Deputy made application to us again, advising us at the same time that the soldiers were so insolent as to threaten to take provisions by force, if he refused to supply them. We have come to a resolution to supply them as formerly, till we have your further instructions in the premises.

"We are, Gentlemen, your humble servants.

"By order of the Committee:

"ABRAHAM YATES, JUN., Chairman.

"To the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York."

A Letter from Ramald McDonald, Sergeant of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, was read and filed.

The state of facts of Abraham Gardiner, Thomas Wickham, and David Mulford, the executors of the last will and testament of David Gardiner, deceased, setting forth the loss the Estate of the testator had suffered by late depredations by part of General Gage's Fleet and Army, was read. They therein set forth, that a number of persons, who have Estates in the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, were principal actors in the robbery, and requesting a Letter from this Congress to be wrote to the House of Representatives of the Massachusetts-Bay, desiring them to secure so much of their Estates as shall be sufficient to make compensation to the injured children of David Gardiner, deceased.

The Certificate of the Chairman of the Committees of Southampton, Easthampton, and Shelter-Island, was read. They certify that the executors of the will of David Gardiner, deceased, were not concerned in assisting or consenting to the seizing and taking the Stock off Gardiner's Island, by General Gage's Fleet and Army.

The separate Affidavits of Benjamin Miller and William Read, proving the removal of the Stock from Gardiner's Island by force, and that a number of persons from Massachusetts-Bay were therein concerned, were read; and an account of the damages suffered by the executors of David Gardiner, was also read.

The Muster-Roll of Captain Rufus Herrick's Company, returned by Mr. Jacobus Swartwout, was filed.

The Muster-Roll of Captain Andrew Billings's Company, and the Muster-Roll of Captain Lewis Du Bois's Company, and the Muster-Roll of Henry B. Livingston's Company, returned by Mr. Jacobus Swartwout, were respectively filed.

A Letter from Jacobus Rosekrans, of the 19th instant, was read and filed, with the Papers enclosed therein.

Resolved and Ordered, That if Samuel Van Veghten declines the service in Captain Rosekrans's Company, in the Troops of this Colony, that Thomas Lee be appointed First Lieutenant, in the stead of Samuel Van Veghten; and that William B. Alger be appointed Second Lieutenant in the said Company, in the place of Thomas Lee, as First Lieutenant, and William B. Alger, as Second Lieutenant, as soon as the Warrant to Samuel Van Veghten and the former Warrant to Thomas Lee are returned to this Congress.

Resolved and Ordered, That Mr. Jacobus Swartwout be appointed Muster-Master, to muster the Company of Captain Jacobus Rosekrans, in Dutchess County, and that Mr. Swartwout be requested to muster the said Company.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius forward to the Deputy Commissary-General, at Albany, twenty reams of Cartridge Paper, to wit: ten reams of the best Cannon Cartridge Paper, and ten reams of Musket Cartridge Paper; and that he write to the Deputy Commissary-General to forward it with all possible despatch.

Colonel McDougall moved, and was seconded by Major Williams, that a Committee be appointed to wait on the Governour, to know of him whether he has any intelligence from Boston, of General Gage's intention to remove his Troops, or any part of them, to this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Scott, Mr. Beekman, and Major Williams, be a Committee for that purpose, and that they report to this Congress with all convenient speed.

Ordered, That Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt and Mr. Thomas Randall be added to the Committee to inspect casting Brass Cannon.

A Letter from the Officers and Men of a Company at Mamacoting Precinct was read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Letter be referred to Captain Hornebeck and Mr. Jackson.

A draught of a Letter to General Schuyler was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 21, 1775.

SIR: We have been honoured with the receipt of your favour of the 15th instant, wherein you inform us that, by letter from Mr. Lewis, you have been advised of the recess of the Continental Congress, and that in future you was to address yourself to us. The copies of your letters of the 28th and 31st ultimo, and the 2d and 6th instant, to the Continental Congress, and the papers attending them, we have duly considered. With respect to the information contained in those letters and papers, it is out of our power to furnish you with any instruction on that head; which we conceive to be the less necessary, as we are assured by a member of that respectable body, now present, that discretionary orders have been transmitted to you, for conducting the department of the publick service under your command according to the dictates of your own judgment; and we supposed those orders had not reached you.

We hope that, before this can reach you, your Troops will be much more numerous than your last letter to the Continental Congress mentions, and that you will have received the several articles of your estimate, which from time to time have been sent you, as fast as they could be provided. Of what remains you have a report enclosed by Mr. Curtenius.

We beg leave to assure you of our readiness to comply, with all possible despatch, with whatever you may think proper to request of us.

We are, Sir, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient servants.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by the Messenger from Albany.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of Albany was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 21, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We received your letter of the 10th inst., in answer to which we inform you that it is the direction of the Congress that provisions be furnished for the prisoners, for which you will apply to the Commissary.

We are, Gentlemen, your humble servants.

To Abraham Yates, Jun., Chairman of the Committee at Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by the Albany Messenger.

A draught of a Letter to Walter Livingston, Esquire, Deputy Commissary-General, at Albany, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 21, 1775.

SIR: By several late letters from General Schuyler, and particularly one of the 15th instant, he complains that he has not received many articles absolutely necessary for the service. The articles wanted have been forwarded from hence, and many of them so long since that we expected he had received them at Ticonderoga.

We pray you, Sir, to make inquiry whether they are not delayed at Lake George, or at some other place on their way from Albany, and to give such directions for their immediate despatch that they may not be detained at any place, but be forwarded without delay, that the service may not suffer, and the General be relieved from his anxiety for want of them.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Walter Livingston, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General, Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., August 22, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Dr. Livingston. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

A Letter from Nicholas Herckheimer, Chairman of the Committee of Tryon, bearing date on the 12th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Committee Chamber, August 12, 1775.

"COUNTY OF TRYON, ss.

"HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: As we are entirely without regulations for our Committees, and especially how to act against the transactions, either in words or deeds, of the enemies of the Association, and also against the transgressors of our orders either in military or civil matters, and also how the expenses necessary for the purpose of the common cause shall be defrayed, we apply therefore to you, and request for your instructions as soon as possible, that we may be able to proceed, with authority, to the preservation of peace and union in the common cause, as need requires; otherwise disputes and other disturbances might soon exist.

"We remain, with great esteem, and relying on your despatching favour, honourable Gentlemen, your obedient humble servants. By order of the Committee:

"NICHOLAS HERCKHEIMER, Chairman pro tem."

Resolved and Ordered, That Mr. Van Zandt and Mr. Sears, the Committee authorized to employ two prime sailing Boats to go to the eastward to observe and make discoveries if any Fleet should be approaching New-York, be authorized, and that either of them be authorized, at the risk and on the behalf of this Congress, to ensure the said two Boats against any seizures by Men-of-War or otherwise: Provided, Such Boats, or either of them, be seized without having any contraband goods on board; and to agree with the master of each such Boat, at the rate of three Pounds per day.

The Congress being informed that Colonel Edward Flemming and Captain Anthony Rutgers cannot attend as Commissioners, to manage erecting and finishing the Fortifications ordered to be erected on the banks of the Hudson River, in the Highlands, Resolved and Ordered, That Captain Samuel Bayard and Captain William Bedlow be, and they are hereby appointed Commissioners for that purpose, instead of Colonel Edward Flemming and Captain Anthony Rutgers, with the like powers as the other Commissioners.

Mr. Sears then moved, and was seconded by Major Williams, in the words following, to wit:

I move that the Committee appointed to superintend the building of the Forts in the Highlands be authorized to procure such Cannon and other Stores as may be necessary for completely fortifying and equipping the said Forts. And the same being unanimously agreed to,

Resolved and Ordered, nem. con., That the Committee appointed to superintend the building of the Forts in the Highlands be authorized to procure such Cannon and other Stores as may be necessary for completely fortifying and equipping the said Forts.

Mr. Low then moved, and was seconded by Mr. Covenhoven, in the words following, to wit:

I move that the sense of this Congress be taken, whether the Cannon on the Battery of this City are understood to be comprehended in the Resolution just made, authorizing the Committee to procure Cannon for the Fortifications on Hudson's River. And the question being put thereon, it was determined in the affirmative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Negative.	For the Affirmative.
2 King's County,—Mr. Henry Wil-	2 Westchester,

Resolved, therefore, That it is the sense of this Congress that the Cannon on the Battery of this City are understood to be comprehended in the Resolution just made, authorizing the Committee to procure Cannon for the Fortifications to be erected on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands.

A Letter from Captain John Lamb, dated this day, soliciting this Congress to ascertain the pay of the Artillery Company under his command, was read and filed.

Agreed and Ordered, That the Artillery Company raised in this Colony, as part of the Continental Army, and enlisted under Captain John Lamb, shall have such pay as the Continental Congress shall agree to and order, and that in the mean time Captain Lamb's Company shall have the like pay as the Rhode-Island Company of Artillery are allowed, until the Continental Congress shall have fixed and ascertained the pay of Captain Lamb's Company.

And Ordered, That Captain John Lamb and his Company be considered as an additional Company to, and a part of Colonel McDougall's Regiment, and subject to his commands.

Whereas the well ordering and regulating the Militia of this Colony is become an object of the greatest importance to the preservation of the lives and liberties of its Inhabitants: And whereas the Continental Congress held at Philadelphia, on the tenth day of May last, taking into consideration the necessity of such a regulation, have recommended the same to the Inhabitants of the aforesaid Colonies: And whereas this Congress, on the ninth day of this instant August, by several Resolutions, recommended to their constituents the expediency of forming themselves into Companies, and choosing their Officers, in the manner following, viz:

Resolved, That every County, City, Manor, Town, Precinct, and District, within this Colony, where the same is not already done, be divided into Districts or Beats, by their respective Committees, in such manner that out of each may be formed one Military Company, ordinarily to consist of about eighty-three able-bodied and effective men, officers included, between sixteen and sixty years of age, (the Battalion commanded by Colonel Lasher, the Companies of Artillery, Light-Horse, and Hussars, in the City and County of New-York, and the Troops of Horse, Companies of Grenadiers and associated Companies already formed in the several Cities and Counties within this Colony, excepted.)

Resolved, secondly, That in each Company so to be formed there be chosen, in the manner hereinafter mentioned, one Captain, two Lieutenants, one Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Clerk, one Drummer, and one Fifer.

Resolved, thirdly, That two Committee-Men, at the least, attend in each District or Beat, on a day to be appointed, for the purpose of choosing the abovementioned Officers, who shall be persons within such District or Beat who have signed the General Association recommended by this Congress. That such choice of Election be made in the manner following, viz: After the Company is drawn up, the Committee-Men who preside at the Election may repair to a station at some convenient distance from the Company, then let the men pass in a single file between them, each man giving in the name of the person he chooses to fill the office in question; the majority of such votes to determine the Election. But in case the votes should be so divided that no one has the majority, then the presiding Committee-Men to acquaint the Company therewith, and call them to a new Election. The same to be repeated till such majority be obtained, or the Company agree on some other mode of choosing the Officers. The names of the Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns, so chosen, to be returned with all convenient speed to this or some future Provincial Congress of this Colony, or during their recess to the Committee of Safety, to be commissioned by them.

Resolved, fourthly, That whenever a vacancy shall happen in any Company, by the promotion, death, or resignation of an Officer, such vacancy to be filled up in the beforementioned manner.

Resolved, fifthly, That those Companies in the above excepted Battalion, commanded by Colonel Lasher, which are now under the direction of Field-Officers, shall for the future be commanded by Captains, who are to be chosen in the manner aforesaid.

Resolved, sixthly, That for the purpose of completely carrying into execution the recommendation of the Continental Congress, after the whole Militia is formed as above, every fourth man of each Company be selected for Minute-Men, of such persons as are willing to enter into this necessary service. That the Officers of the Militia make, with all convenient speed, a return of the names of those persons to the Committee of their respective Counties, who shall thereupon arrange those men into Companies, and who are to recommend to such new arranged Companies the choice of their Officers, in the manner above-mentioned: Provided, That where whole Companies offer their service as Minute-Men, they shall be commanded by the Officers already chosen, and the remaining number of Minute-Men shall be completed out of the other Companies, as above.

Resolved, seventhly, That the several Committees do return to the Secretary of the Provincial Congress of this Colony the names of such persons as do refuse to conform to the above Resolves.

1st. That the several Companies so formed be joined into Regiments, each Regiment to consist of not less than five or more than ten Companies, the Battalion commanded by Colonel Lasher excepted.

2d. That a Major-General be appointed and Commissioned by this Congress, to command the Militia of the Colony of New-York.

3d. That one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and two Majors, an Adjutant and Quartermaster, be commissioned by this Congress for each Regiment.

4th. That the Militia of this Colony be formed into Brigades, in the following manner, to wit: The Militia of the City and County of New-York, and Counties of King's and Richmond, one Brigade; the Militia of the City and County of Albany, and the County of Tryon, one other Brigade; the Militia of the Counties of Dutchess and Westchester, one other Brigade; the Militia of the Counties of Ulster and Orange, one other Brigade; the Militia of the Counties of Queen's and Suffolk, one other Brigade; the Militia of the Counties of Charlotte, Cumberland, and Gloucester, one other Brigade.

5th. That a Brigadier-General, with a Major of Brigade, be commissioned to the command of each Brigade.

6th. That every man between the ages of sixteen and fifty do, with all convenient speed, furnish himself with a good Musket or Fire-Lock, and Bayonet, Sword or Tomahawk, a Steel Ramrod, Worm, Priming Wire, and Brush fitted thereto; a Cartridge Box, to contain twenty-three rounds of Cartridges, twelve Flints, and a Knapsack, agreeable to the directions of the Continental Congress, under the forfeiture of five Shillings for the want of a Musket or Fire-Lock, and of one Shilling for the want of a Bayonet, Sword, or Tomahawk, Cartridge Box, Cartridge, or Bullet, the whole to be judged of and determined by the Captain or next commanding officer. That every man shall, at his place of abode, be also provided with one pound of Powder and three pounds of Bullets, of proper size to his Musket or Fire-Lock.

7th. That each Company, not Minute-Men, do meet the first Monday in every month, and spend at least four hours in each of the said days to perfect themselves in Military Discipline: Provided, That if the Commissioned Officers of any Company shall judge it inexpedient to meet on that day, they have power to put off the meeting to some other day, notifying the Company thereof.

8th. That the Colonels and Commanding Officers of each Regiment do assemble and exercise their respective Regiments at least two days in every year, at some convenient place, to be fixed upon by the Field-Officers.

9th. That the several Companies of Horse already formed and to be formed in this Colony shall be under the direction of the Colonel of the Regiment where their respective Captains do reside, and be considered as part of such Regiment; that the Officers and Privates shall assemble as often as by these regulations it is required of the Companies of Foot, not Minute-Men, and be subject to the same penalties and forfeitures for non-attendance; that every Soldier belonging to the Horse shall, with all convenient speed, provide himself with a good serviceable Horse, not less than fourteen hands high, with a good Saddle, Bridle, Holsters, Housing, Breastplate, and Crupper, a case of Pistols, a Sword or Hanger, one pound of Gunpowder and three pounds of sizeable Bullets, a pair of Boots with suitable Spurs, and a Carbine, well fixed with a good Belt, Swivel, and Buckle, under the penalty of ten Shillings for the want of a sizeable Horse, and of five Shillings for the want of each or either of the articles of the Troopers' furniture; and, also, that every Trooper be provided, at their respective places of abode, with one pound of Gunpowder and three pounds of Bullets.

10th. That in case any person shall refuse or neglect to serve as Sergeant, Corporal, or Drummer, in any Company, being thereunto requested by the Captain or Commanding Officer, or shall refuse or neglect to warn the men to appear under arms, when required by the Captain or Commanding Officer, shall for every such neglect forfeit the sum of forty Shillings.

11th. That all Officers commissioned by this Congress do subscribe the following declaration:

We the subscribers, the Officers of the . . . . Battalion (or Regiment) in the County of . . . , and Colony of New-York, do hereby promise and engage, under all the ties of religion, honour, and regard to our Country, that we will, respectively, duly observe and carry into execution, to the utmost of our power, all and every the Orders, Rules, and Recommendations, made or to be made by the Continental Congress and the Congress or Convention of this Colony. That we will also give, in our respective ranks, due obedience to the Regulations by them established for the forming of the Militia of this Colony; as, also, due obedience to such Officers who, either by rank or superiority, are placed above us, in such order as is directed by the said Continental or Provincial Congress.

12th. That the following Penalties be inflicted on those who do not attend and obey orders on the days appointed for exercise, not having a reasonable excuse, to be allowed of by the Officer commanding, to wit: A Colonel, five Pounds; a Lieutenant-Colonel, four Pounds; a Major, three Pounds; Captain, two Pounds; Lieutenants and Adjutants, thirty Shillings each; Ensign and Quartermaster, twenty Shillings each; Sergeant, Corporal, Drummer, Fifer, and Privates, ten Shillings each for the first default, and double for the second. And in case any person make default three times successively, or refuses to enlist and do duty, such person shall be advertised and held up as an enemy to his Country. All fines under the degree of a Captain to be levied on the goods and chattels of the offender by warrant from the Captain, directed to a Sergeant of his Company, and those of a Captain, and all Field-Officers under the degree of a Colonel, to be levied on the goods and chattels of the offender by a warrant from the Colonel of the Regiment, directed to the Adjutant; and those of a Colonel by a warrant from a Brigadier-General, directed to the Major of Brigade: and for want of the goods and chattels, to take the body of the offender, and him keep in safe custody, until such fine, together with the charges, be paid. The moneys arising by the fines in any Company to be applied by the Captains (after paying for drum and fife for the Company) towards purchasing arms, ammunition, and accoutrements, for such persons in such Company as are unable to furnish themselves. The moneys arising by the fines of the Field-Officers (after paying for a set of Colours for each Battalion) be equally divided between the several Companies, for the abovementioned use.

13th. That the Members of His Majesty's Council, Judges of the Supreme Court, of the Vice-Admiralty Court, of the Mayor's Court and Inferiour Courts of Common Pleas, His Majesty's Attorney-General, Secretary of the Province, or his Deputy, Clerks of the Courts, the Collector, Comptroller, Naval Officer, and Searcher and Surveyor of His Majesty's Customs, Ministers of the Gospel, Physicians and Surgeons, Members of the Continental Congress and of the Provincial Congress, and the several Committees while immediately engaged in the publick service, Sheriffs, Jailors, all Ferry-men, one Miller to each Mill, and the People called Quakers, be excused from military duty, except in cases of invasion. And that in case of an invasion in any part of this Colony, the Physicians and Surgeons there; or such of them as shall be directed by the Officer commanding the Militia that shall march to oppose the enemy, shall attend with proper Medicines, Instruments, and other necessaries, to take care of the sick and wounded.

14th. That the Commissioned Officers of each Company of Minute-Men form their Companies into four subdivisions, in such manner as they shall think most convenient for their frequent meetings. The subdivisions, under their respective officers, to meet once in every week, and to employ half a day, or at least four hours, each time, in perfecting themselves in military discipline; the whole Companies to meet once every fortnight, to spend the same time for the same purpose. That the several Companies of Minute-Men be formed into Regiments, to consist of about seven Companies each. That there be commissioned by this Congress, to each Regiment, one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and two Majors, an Adjutant and Quartermaster.

15th. That those Regiments be formed into Brigades, each Brigade to consist of about . . . Regiments. That there be commissioned by this Congress, to each Brigade, one Brigadier-General and a Major of Brigade.

16th. That the whole body of Minute-Men shall be under the direction of the Major-General appointed by this Congress, while within the Colony, unless a Continental Officer of superiour or equal rank be present.

17th. That the Minute-Men, when called out in defence of their Country, shall be subject to the Articles of War established by the Continental Congress, and be entitled to the same allowance, as to Pay and Provisions, with the Continental Forces; to be under the direction of the Commander-in-Chief of those Forces.

18th. That they be subject to the like penalties and forfeitures, for not attending on the days appointed for exercise, as abovementioned; the said fines to be levied and applied as above directed.

19th. That in case of any alarm, invasion, or insurrection, every Subaltern and Soldier is immediately to repair, properly armed and accoutred, to his colours or parade, (which parade shall be understood to be the habitation of his Captain, unless otherwise ordered,) and the Captain or Commanding Officer of the Company nearest to the place where such invasion or insurrection shall be shall immediately march his Company to oppose the enemy; at the same time send off an express to the Commanding Officer of the Regiment or Brigade to which he belongs, who is to march with the whole or part of the Militia under his command, as he shall judge necessary, and use all possible diligence to prevent the enemy from landing, or penetrating into any part of the country, and to quell every insurrection; and also to send immediate intelligence to the Major-General, and to the Commanding Officers of the Counties adjacent, informing them of the strength and motions of the enemy. That every Non-Commissioned Officer and Private who shall neglect or refuse to perform his duty in this case required, shall be subject to such pains, penalties, and forfeitures, as shall be adjudged by a General Court-Martial.

20th. That at least twice in every year the Captains, or in their absence the next commanding officer of every Company of Militia, as well of the Minute-Men as others, shall deliver to the Colonel of the Regiment a true and complete Roll, containing the names of all the men belonging to his Company, under the penalty of two Pounds, to be recovered and applied as is hereinbefore directed. And the Colonels of the Regiments shall, within one month after the receipt of every such Roll, deliver or send a copy of every such Roll to the Brigadier-General of the Brigade to which he belongs, who is directed to send the same, or a copy, to the Major-General of the Colony.

21st. That in case of an alarm or invasion, the Officer commanding in each District shall have a proper detachment of his Company to guard against the insurrection of slaves; or, if judged more expedient and safe, may take the slaves, or part of them, with him, and employ them in carrying baggage, drawing cannon, or the like.

22d. That all persons, as well Minute-Men as others, able to bear arms, who shall leave or attempt to leave a place actually invaded, without leave of the Officer commanding such place, or who shall refuse to obey orders in time of actual invasion or insurrection, shall be liable to such punishment as shall be inflicted by a Court-Martial.

23d. That in case it shall be judged necessary, at any time and place, by this Congress, by the Committee of Safety, or by the several Committees of the respective Counties or Districts, that a Military Watch be established, all persons able to bear arms when such watch is judged to be necessary, shall, upon due warning, be obliged to serve on such watch, under the penalty of twelve Shillings for every neglect; a commissioned officer in turn to mount said guard in person, under the penalty of forty Shillings.

24th. That every Sentinel who shall leave his post, or be found asleep when he is posted, shall be liable to such punishment as shall be inflicted by a Court-Martial.

25th. That when the Militia, as well Minute-Men as others, in case of invasion or insurrection, shall be called out on actual service, they shall be subject to the same Rules and Orders as directed and ordered by the Continental Congress of the Associated Colonies, held at Philadelphia on the tenth day of May last, for the better government of the Continental Troops.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., August 23, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Moore. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

Messrs. Joseph Hallett and Egbert Dumond being returned from Philadelphia with One Hundred and Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars of the Continental Money, Ordered, That the same be delivered to Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer for this Congress.

And Ordered, That Messrs. Richard Yates and Abraham Brasher be added to the former Committee for auditing Accounts.

And Ordered, further, That Messrs. Jacobus Van Zandt, James Beekman, Samuel Verplanck, Richard Yates, and Abraham Brasher, or any majority of them, audit all Accounts which are or shall be payable, or produced for payment in this Colony, for any charges or disbursements accrued, or by means or on account of the United Colonies, or by means or on account of any order of this Congress; and that they, or a majority of them, do certify, on every Account by them audited, how much shall be paid on or for such Account.

And Resolved and Ordered, further, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer, be authorized to pay and discharge, on all such Accounts so audited, such sum or sums as shall be certified by the said Committee, or a major part of them, to be due and payable on or for such Accounts.

Messrs. Abraham Ten Broeck, Jacob Cuyler, and Robert Yates, Deputies for the City and County of Albany, produced a Certificate from the Committee of the City of Albany, which is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany Committee Chamber, August 16, 1775.

"Whereas the endeavours of this Committee, in collecting the accounts and charges of this County, chiefly accrued by the recommendation of this Committee, have as yet proved ineffectual, and sundry people are daily very pressing for their money,

"Be it Resolved, by this Committee, immediately to apply to the Provincial Congress, by Draft, for One Thousand Pounds, to enable them to discharge such of their debts as are now most pressing, and that the said Committee shall hereafter lay before the Congress proper vouchers for such disbursements. A true copy from the minutes:

"MAT. VISSCHER, Clerk."

The same gentlemen, Deputies from Albany, produced the Draft mentioned in the said Resolve of the Committee of Albany, which is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany Committee Chamber, August 16, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Please to pay to Messrs. Abraham Ten Broeck, Jacob Cuyler, and Robert Yates, or either of them, or order, the sum of One Thousand Pounds, for the use of this Committee, to be applied towards defraying part of the publick charge, as per advice of a resolve from the Committee. We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order of the Committee:

"ABRAHAM YATES, JUN., Chairman.

"To the Provincial Congress of New-York."

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., pay to Abraham Ten Broeck, Jacob Cuyler, and Robert Yates, or either of them, or their order, One Thousand Pounds, on account of the use of the Committee of Albany, to be applied towards defraying the publick charge accrued in that part of the Colony, and take a receipt for the same.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., pay to Mr. Joseph Hallett Six Thousand Pounds, on account, and take his receipt for the same, to be applied towards discharging the debts he has contracted, in purchasing and forwarding Flour for the use of the Army at Cambridge, in obedience to an order of the honourable Continental Congress to this Congress.

Mr. Beekman made a motion, which was seconded, in the words following, to wit:

MR. PRESIDENT: I move that the following Resolves be entered into, viz: Whereas the success of measures necessary to be adopted and pursued by this Congress may, in many instances, depend on their being kept secret until their execution; and whereas it is often necessary, for the publick good, that intelligence received by this Congress should also be kept secret, at least for a time:

Resolved, therefore, That the President of this Congress do, in full Congress, administer, or cause to be administered by some Magistrate, to each Member of this Congress, and that he do take, the following Oath, to wit:

"You do solemnly and sincerely, in the presence of Almighty God, swear that you will not, directly or indirectly, divulge or make known any resolve, order, act, or debate, of or in this Congress, or of any Committee thereof, or the matter of the same, or any thing relating thereto, or any part thereof, or any act, matter, or thing, to be done in or towards the execution thereof, except to such person or persons, not of this Congress, as shall by them or their Committee be necessarily employed in or relating to such execution; nor give any advice or information to any person or persons that may in any wise obstruct, or tend to obstruct, the execution thereof, nor divulge or make known to any person or persons, either directly or indirectly, any information or intelligence which shall be received by this Congress, or any Committee thereof, if the same, or any part thereof, shall be enjoined by resolve or order of this Congress, or of such Committee, to be kept secret, until such secrecy be dispensed with, by further resolve or order of this Congress, or by such Committee. So help you God."

2. Resolved, That the like Oath be administered to and taken by each of the Secretaries of this Congress.

3. Resolved, That the following Oath be administered by a Magistrate to and taken by every person or persons, not of this Congress, who shall be in any wise employed by this Congress, or any Committee thereof, in any matter, business, or thing, whatsoever, in or relating to which secrecy shall have been so enjoined by resolve or order of this Congress, to wit:

"You do solemnly and sincerely, in the presence of Almighty God, swear that you will well and faithfully execute such trust as the Provincial Congress of this Colony, or any Committee thereof, shall repose in you, and you shall accept of; and that in the execution of the said trust you will conduct yourself with all possible care, secrecy, and despatch; and, also, that in the execution thereof you will faithfully obey and perform all such orders and directions as you shall from time to time receive from the said Congress or Committee; and that you will not, without leave of the said Congress or Committee, in any wise howsoever, either directly or indirectly, divulge or make known any matter or thing whatsoever, in or in any wise relating to the said trust, or the execution thereof, whether you accept the same or not, except such matter or things as may necessarily consist in or arise from the execution thereof. So help you God."*

The same motion being read a second time, debates arose thereon; and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, viz:

For the Motion.		Against the Motion.
2 Queen's,	2 Orange,	2 King's,
4 New-York,	2 Tryon,	2 Richmond,
2 Suffolk,	2 Cumberland,	—
2 Westchester,	2 Dutchess.	4

Dissentients: from New-York, Mr. Clarkson, Mr. Low, Mr. Kissam, Mr. Verplanck, Mr. Yates, Mr. De Lancey, Mr. Roosevelt; from Dutchess, Col. Hoffman; from Westchester, Col. James Van Cortlandt; from Queen's, Mr. French, Mr. Townsend; from King's, Mr. Williams.

Mr. Kissam, from the Committee appointed to confer with Colonel Duer, delivered their Report, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, viz:

The Committee appointed to confer with Mr. Duer report, that it appears to the Committee that Mr. Duer's private affairs are so peculiarly circumstanced as to render it extremely imprudent for him to accept of his appointment to the office of Deputy Adjutant-General in the Continental Army, in this Colony. That the Committee are fully satisfied that the said Mr. Duer has the utmost willingness to enter into the service, and that he is a hearty friend to the cause of America, in her present contest with Great Britain. That he proposed a mode for the removing the difficulties that lie in the way of his acceptance of the aforesaid appointment, which, though it affords a strong proof of his readiness to accept the office, yet is of such a nature as that the Committee are of opinion it would be inconvenient to comply with; and therefore do further report it as their opinion that he ought to be permitted to decline the appointment, and to be furnished with a copy of this Report, as a testimony that his so declining proceeds, *List of Members who took the General Oath of Secrecy.

I do solemnly and sincerely swear, that I will keep secret such things as shall be, by order of this Congress, recommended to me for that purpose by the President for the time being, until leave by him given to reveal it by order of the Congress. So help me God.

I do solemnly swear, on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that I have not, directly or indirectly, divulged or made known, to any person or persons whatsoever, the purport or contents of any questions which were put and carried by this Provincial Congress, relating to the Cannon on the Battery, nor mentioned, divulged, or hinted, any matter or thing relating to the removal of the said Cannon, except to my fellow-Secretary, until after the firing had begun at the Battery this morning; and that I do not recollect to have had any conversation with my fellow-Secretary, on that subject, until this morning.

JOHN MCKESSON,
ROBERT BENSON.

Sworn this 25th day of August, before me, not from any motive unfriendly to this Country, but from a necessity that results from the particular state of his private affairs. That it appears that the embarrassment to which Mr. Duer is exposed has arisen from a circumstance that has occurred since his last return from Philadelphia.
WM. WADDELL, Alderman.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with the said Committee in their said Report; and Ordered, That a certified copy of this Report be delivered to Mr. Duer, by one of the Secretaries.

Resolved and Agreed, nem. con., That Robert G. Livingston, Jun., be appointed Deputy Adjutant-General, with the rank of Colonel, in the place of William Duer, Esq., and that he be directed to join the Army, under the command of General Schuyler, with all possible despatch.

4to ho. P. M., August 23, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President, &c.

The President, with leave of the Congress, went to receive the Money brought from Philadelphia by Messrs. Hallett and Dumond, two Members of this Congress, and Colonel Woodhull is elected President pro tempore.

A Letter from Colonel William Bayard was read and filed, complaining that his House is surrounded by armed men of the new levies, and requesting to know if they are posted there by order of the Congress or Committee, or what the meaning of it can be, which would much oblige his family, who are greatly alarmed at it.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall and Mr. Thomas Smith proceed to Colonel Bayard's immediately, and make inquiry of the cause of those Troops surrounding Colonel Bayard's, and discharge them, unless they see cause to detain them there, and that they report to this Congress with all possible speed.

A Letter from the Committee of Safety at Philadelphia, of the 19th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Committee of Safety, Philadelphia, }
August 19, 1775. }

"GENTLEMEN: We have received and considered your application for a supply of gunpowder. We had already furnished to the Army and to the neighbouring Colonies all we could safely spare, when an express arriving from General Schuyler, dated the 2d of August, at Ticonderoga, expressing his great want of powder, we forwarded to him two thousand two hundred pounds weight, directed to the care of the Committee at Albany. At the time we sent it we were not informed that a large quantity, which arrived in New-Jersey, from South-Carolina, had been forwarded to him a short time before, which it is likely he had not heard of when he wrote, but which would make our last supply unnecessary. As probably that may not be gone from Albany, we leave it to your consideration whether it may not, on an application to General Schuyler, be brought back from thence for your use.

"We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order: B. FRANKLIN, Pres't.

"To P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., and the Members of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

Another Letter from the Committee of Safety at Philadelphia, of the 21st instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

August 21, 1775. }

"GENTLEMEN: We are much obliged by your communication of the intelligence from General Washington, and shall forward it to the Committees down the river. As possibly the enemy may think of calling upon us, it renders it more necessary for us to keep the little powder we have; but when any fresh supply shall arrive here, we shall readily spare you a part of it.

"We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order: B. FRANKLIN, Pres't.

"To P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., and the Members of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

Mr. Robert Yates moved, and was seconded by Messrs. Polhemus and Verplanck, that the Resolutions of this Congress entered into this day, that the Members shall take the Oath therein mentioned, be reconsidered to-morrow morning. The same being unanimously agreed to,

Ordered, That the same be reconsidered to-morrow morning.

Ordered, That Dr. Dayton, Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. Townsend, and Captain Wickham, be a Committee to take into consideration the state of the Stock on Gardiner's Island and Montauk, and report to this Congress what they think proper to be ordered or done relating to the said Stock.

Ordered, That Mr. Tredwell and Mr. Melancton Smith be a Committee to take into consideration the Petition of the Executors of the last Will of David Gardiner, deceased, and report a draught of a Letter to the honourable House of Representatives of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, agreeable to the prayer of the said Petition.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to take into consideration the Letter of the Committee of Brookhaven, of the 3d instant, and to report such general Resolutions or Regulations as may be proper to be entered into or ordered by this Congress to be done in cases of this nature, do make report to-morrow.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., August 24, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Opened with prayers by the Rev. Dr. Rodgers.

A Letter from the President to the Secretary was read and filed, informing the Congress that he is overcome with fatigue and want of sleep, and unable to attend.

The Congress then unanimously chose Colonel Woodhull President pro tempore.

Mr. Sears informed the Congress that he had a Letter sealed, which he showed, directed to his Worship the Mayor of this City, and said to be from Captain George Vandeput, of the Ship Asia.

Ordered, That Mr. Verplanck and Mr. Sears wait on the Mayor with the said Letter, and request to know the contents.

Mr. Verplanck returned with the Letter directed to the Mayor, and with his leave to take a copy thereof; which was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Asia, August 24, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: After the event of last night, I think it necessary to inform you, that having had information that it was intended by some people in New-York to take away the guns from the Battery, which, as stores belonging to the King, it was my duty to protect, I sent a boat to lie near the shore to watch their motions. Soon after twelve they began to remove the guns from the Battery, which being observed by the officer in the boat, he left his station to come on board to inform me thereof; but being perceived from the shore, he was fired upon by a great many musketry, by which one of the men in the boat was shot dead. My duty called upon me to repel an act of this sort, as well as to defend the guns, which occasioned me to fire upon the Battery. I acquaint you of this, that the people of the Town may not imagine it is my intention to do them any hurt, which I wish as much as possible to avoid; but if they will persist in behaving in such a manner as to make their safety and my duty incompatible, the mischief that may arise must lie at their doors, and not at mine. An answer is desired.

"I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
GEO. VANDEPUT.

"To the Mayor and other Magistrates of the City of New-York."

Ordered, That Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. Thomas Smith, and Mr. Kissam, be a Committee to examine witnesses and take affidavits relating to the attack mentioned in Captain Vandeput's Letter, and the attack made by him on this City.

Resolved and Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., pay to Peter T. Curtenius Twenty Thousand Pounds, to be applied towards discharging the debts contracted by purchasing Provisions, Military Stores, and other necessities, in obedience to the orders of this Congress; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Curtenius's receipt for the same, on account.

A Letter from William Smith, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Suffolk County, bearing date the 22d instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Suffolk County, August 22, A. D. 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: The Committee of this County are now met to give proper directions for taking the stock from Gardiner's and Plumb Islands, according to your direction of the 18th of this instant. It is with the greatest concern that we find the Troops at the east end of this island are ordered away, whereby we shall be left defenceless. General Wooster was prevailed on, before the receipt of your letter, to tarry with his Troops a few days; he is now present with us, and lets us know that he purposes to depart to-morrow. There are now three cutters at the east end of this island, cruising; and we must beg leave to inform you that the stock on Montauk, Shelter-Island, and Oyster Pond Point, will be in the utmost danger of falling into the hands of the enemy, besides the constant alarms and expense the inhabitants of this part of the County will be exposed to, unless your honourable House will take our situation under your consideration, and allow us at least such number of men as may be sufficient to secure these parts from the depredations of the enemy.

"The Companies raised here, we presume, will not disobey your orders; but we pray you to consider how destitute we shall be left when our men are gone, our arms put into their hands, and carried from us. With the advice of General Wooster, we have ventured to desire the Captains not to march until we can send an express to you to let us know whether we can have any hopes of relief. And, further, we think we cannot at present get off the stock without a sufficient guard upon the islands. General Wooster informs us, that he had advice from Governor Trumbull to return to New-York before he received your letter, and we cannot think it could be the design of the Continental Congress that this County should be left in this situation. Colonel Gardiner, of Plumb-Island, says, that Colonel Abijah Willard, in the Ministerial Fleet, informed him that they should come again, and would bring a sufficient force to take the stock from Long-Island.

"We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order: WM. SMITH, Chairman.

"To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress at New-York."

Ordered, That the said Letter be delivered to the Committee appointed to take into consideration the state of the Stock on Gardiner's Island and Montauk.

A draught of a Letter to the honourable the House of Representatives of Massachusetts-Bay, to cover the Petition of the Executors of David Gardiner, Esq., and the Papers which attend the same, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 24, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You will readily perceive the propriety of our referring to your honourable House a petition from the executors of David Gardiner, Esq., deceased, which we send you enclosed, together with the evidences which we are possessed of, facts therein stated, and an account of the things taken, and damages. If you should approve of the mode pointed out by the petitioners for obtaining the desired satisfaction, we doubt not but you will be ready to grant them all the assistance and relief in your power.

We are, Gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most humble servants.

To the Honourable the House of Representatives of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and transmitted, together with the Petition, Affidavits, and Papers therein mentioned.

4to ho. P. M., August 24, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Marlett, Mr. Thomas Smith, and Mr. J. Van Cortlandt, severally took the General Oath of Secrecy. Mr. Clarkson and Mr. Walton respectively took the Particular Oath of Secrecy, with respect to the examination of Melancton Lawrence, and the Letters found in his custody.

The Committee appointed to examine Captain Melancton Lawrence delivered in the Examination of said Lawrence; which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

The Examination of Captain MELANCTON LAWRENCE, before a Committee of the Congress, on the 24th day of AUGUST, 1775.

That he was appointed, on the 24th of April last, commander of the Schooner Neptune, and believes she belongs to the Government; that he left Boston on the 23d of July last, with despatches from General Gage to Captain Vandeput; that he had orders from the General to put himself under the command of one Lieutenant Evans, agent of the transports; that when he went on board of Evans's transports he received from him two letters directed to one Wallace, Captain of the Rose, man-of-war, at Newport; that if Captain Wallace gave him no particular orders to the contrary, he was to cruise south, off Block-Island, until he heard from the said Evans. That he arrived at Newport in three days, and not finding Wallace, he stood out and fell in with the Kingfisher, the Captain whereof took him under his command, and conveyed him into Rhode-Island, where he found Captain Wallace, to whom he delivered his letters. That he then ordered him to follow him, and proceed to Block-Island, where they fell in with a fleet of transports, and proceeded with the fleet to Fisher's Island. That he was told by one Colonel Willard that he had planned the expedition to take the cattle from the islands; that cattle and sheep were taken off from Gardiner's and Fisher's Islands, to wit: thirty-six head of horned cattle and eleven hundred sheep from Fisher's Island, as he was informed; from Gardiner's Island, between forty and fifty horned cattle, and between eighteen hundred and two thousand sheep, as the examinant was informed. That the examinant did not assist in taking the cattle and sheep from either of the islands, nor received any of them, except four sheep, which were sent aboard for the use of the men, which were sent on board of this examinant by Colonel Willard. That the examinant understood from Willard that the man on Gardiner's Island was very sulky at first, and refused to sell, but that afterwards he insisted that whatever they took away they were to give an account of; that he also understood from Willard, and from other circumstances he has reason to believe, that the man on Fisher's Island was willing to sell cattle. That Evans, the agent, gave this examinant orders to take all vessels he might fall in with, and particularly those loaded with salt; that this examinant met several vessels, particularly a brig loaded with salt, bound to Rhode-Island, but did not take or molest them in their voyage. That he could not discover that there were any intentions of the Army, or any part of it, to remove from Boston, but, on the contrary, there was all the appearance of their intentions to stay, as they were strengthening their fortifications; that no Troops had been sent from Boston to Quebeck, but that he has understood that one Gamble, an officer, was gone to recruit there. That when this examinant, in May or June last, was on his return from here to Boston, near the Hook, a sloop from Staten-Island came down, with sheep, hogs, and hay; that Captain McDonald was on board the sloop, who insisted on their being taken on board the schooner; but upon this examinant's refusing to take them on board, they were sent back, though the said McDonald proceeded with him to Boston; and that the said McDonald, at Boston, informed him he was going to Quebeck, and that he was in full pay. That Allen McLean also went passenger with this examinant to Boston, and returned to New-York with the examinant, when he brought General Haldimand to New-York; that the said McLean brought with him a bag of money, which he took ashore with him; that from papers which he left on board, the examinant first learned he intended to enlist men; this he discovered from the contents of one which was subscribed by General Gage, authorizing him to enlist a Regiment of (he thinks) Highlanders in the Provinces, for His Majesty's service. That at Tarpaulin Cove he received a package of letters from Evans, directed to Gov. Tryon, and that Evans told him they were letters he had received from Gen. Robinson, which he delivered on board the Asia, man-of-war. That this examinant is willing to declare, on oath, that he has at no time carried any provisions, other than his own stores for the use of the vessel, from this or any other port to Boston, though he has had opportunities to do it, except seven sheep, which were put on board of him by Montague at the Hook. — MELANCTON LAWRENCE.

A Letter from Dr. J. Mallett to Mr. William Allmon, of the 18th July, was read and filed.

A Letter from Col. Robertson to Capt. Montague, of the 20th of July, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“ Boston, July 20, 1775.

“ DEAR SIR: Two turtles at a time, when a bit of beef or mutton is a rare feast, command my gratitude; but let me assure you I enjoyed the reflection that I owed them to your friendly regard far above the relish of a well-dressed dish.

“ Your health was drunk by a company whose good wishes you would value. I wish I could send you any thing in return that would be grateful to you. The state of poor Parsons's health affords nothing of this kind; he is very weak, in much pain, and great danger indeed; the heat of the season and the want of fresh provision made many officers' cases, though judged slight, dangerous.

“ It would not be proper to put in writing my sentiments about the state of the war or the mode of carrying this on. I may say, however, the enemy are multiplying immense works, all round this country; every hill has Gothick fortifications, like those in the west of England. With these they seem to intend to shut up every access from this place. All their works, except those they began on Bunker's Hill, have been of the defensive kind. So far they seem sensible that they will be ruined if they give us an opportunity of charging them with bayonets in a fair field. Numbers can't save them; behind works and walls they may kill ten men, and then fly, and this repeated often would make a dozen victories equal to a defeat.

“ I send you some letters that have passed. If you were Admiral here, land and sea would be on better terms, the Town better supplied, and convoys better guarded. The Yankees have brought about fifty whale boats over Dorchester Neck, by Roxbury Church, and put them in the water near Charlestown River; with fourteen others they landed on Thursday, and burnt the Light-House; and, it being calm, afterwards set fire to some fishing boats; and all this in open day, in sight of our fleet. The Congress edicts direct the people in all the Colonies to refuse us supplies; the Committees enforce the edicts with attention and severity. To prevent our suffering by want of fuel and barrack bedding, I sent Mr. Page to London, to purchase and send out these necessary articles. Even candles are ordered from home; we are distressed a little by a scarcity of these already. I have in Sergeant Bowden's care one hundred and forty boxes; if you could get these on board, under the pretence of your ship's service, and then give them to Capt. Evans, who commands the Spy, armed vessel, and will be the bearer of this, you would oblige me, and, what you value more, serve the publick, by saving it from a double loss, as these candles may not only be lost to us, but be taken for the use of the rebels; however, if moving them would endanger the quiet of the Town, or be productive of a riot, it is not an object deserving such a risk. Mr. Page returns from London as soon as he can finish the business he goes on; his address will be to the care of James . . . . ., Parliament Street. He will be here in October, and he would be happy to direct his attention to any commands you may give him.

“ I am, with much regard, ever, dear Sir, your obliged and obedient servant,

JAMES ROBERTSON.

“ To Captain Montague, Commanding his Majesty's Ship Kingfisher, New-York.

“ P. S. I wish poor Mrs. Arry and Betsey well; bid them have patience; her civility will make her friends, and times may soon mend.”

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall and Mr. Sears take into custody . . . . Bowden, and send him in custody to this Congress to-morrow; and that they take and carry away all the Candles in the store adjoining to Bowden's House, and other Stores mentioned in Colonel Robertson's and Mr. Mallett's Letters.

A Letter from Thomas Ash, at Boston, of July 23, to John Shaw, of New-York, Merchant, was read and filed.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., August 25, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers. Present:

Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to examine Captain Melancton Lawrence have power to take such security of him as they shall think proper, and also to take his declaration that he will not enter again into the Ministerial service, and discharge him.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of each Town from hence to Cambridge, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: This will be produced to you by the Captains Willing and Wharton, who have the charge of three prisoners and two servants taken at Philadelphia; and as they may want carriages or other assistance to transport them to the camp at Cambridge, we therefore request you to give them such aid as they shall judge necessary to execute the command with which they are now intrusted, they paying for the same. By order.

To the Committee in each Town from New-York to the Camp at Cambridge.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Committee to take into consideration the state of the Stock on Gardiner's Island and Montauk Point, delivered in their Report, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee do report that a Letter of the following contents be sent to the General Committee of the County of Suffolk:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are fully sensible of the necessity of providing against the future depredations of the Ministerial Army, and we see the danger of your defenceless condition, after the removal of the Companies raised in your County. We do therefore earnestly recommend that you immediately form the Militia of your County into Companies, agreeable to the late regulations of the Continental and this Congress, and that you place two Companies of Minute-Men, or any less number, which you may think sufficient, at or near the pass by the little pond near Montauk, and one other Company, if you think so many necessary, at or near Shelter-Island, with directions to them, upon the discovery of any vessels which may be suspected to have a design against you, immediately to drive the cattle from Montauk-Point and Shelter-Island into the interior part of your island. The disposition of guards, signals, the manner of driving off the cattle, and to what place of security, we must leave entirely to your directions and care.

The Minute-Men, while in actual service, are entitled to the same pay with the Continental Troops, which will be an inducement to them to undertake this necessary service. The repeated orders from General Schuyler, for the march of the Troops raised in this Colony, makes it absolutely necessary that the Companies raised in your County should immediately march. We will, however, venture to recommend their stay ten days from the date hereof, at the most, to give you an opportunity in the mean while to complete the Companies of Minute-Men.

We do also recommend to you that you remove from Gardiner's Island the English hay.

By order:

To William Smith, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Suffolk County.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Mr. Tom, and Mr. Hallett, appeared in Congress and took the General Oath of Secrecy. Colonel Lispenard, and Mr. Marston, Mr. Leffertse, Mr. Scott, Mr. Polhemus, Lewis Graham, and Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., took the Particular Oath of Secrecy as to the examination of Melancton Lawrence, and the letters taken in his custody.

The Committee appointed yesterday to examine Witnesses and take Affidavits relating to the attack made on this City by Captain Vandeput, delivered in Affidavits of eleven different persons in this City, proving that the first firing and attack began from Captain Vandeput's Boat from the Ship Asia; which were read.

A Letter from Colonel James Clinton, of the 19th inst., was read and filed.

A Letter from Major Henry Livingston, Jun., of the 21st instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following:

"Poughkeepsie, August 21, 1775.

"SIR: I am desired by Colonel Clinton to inform the honourable the Provincial Congress, that drums are wanting for the respective Companies that compose his Regiment. He also desired me to mention our medicine chest; suppose, however, we shall find that and the drums at Albany. With respect to Dr. Samuel Cooke, the gentleman nominated Surgeon to our Regiment, I am authorized to inform you, Sir, that he attended several days in New-York for his examination, but at length by one contingency or other came away without it. He at first applied to Dr. Jones, who would not examine him unless Dr. Bard (who was out of Town) was present. The matter was stated to the Congress, who ordered that one of the members should wait on Dr. Jones, and inform him that an examination by him alone would satisfy them. Dr. Jones, however, declined. After Dr. Bard's return, there was a day appointed for the business, but that day both Dr. Jones and Bard were called to Long-Island. Dr. Cooke, being very unwell at the time, could stay no longer, having attended several days to no purpose.

"Those officers and soldiers who are acquainted with Dr. Cooke and his practice, and good success both as physician and surgeon, are very desirous to have his appointment confirmed, and as we expect to march in two or three days, are exceedingly anxious that he may be acquainted with it, and follow us as soon as possible.

"I am, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

"HENRY LIVINGSTON, JUN.

"To the Hon. Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq."

Ordered, That Dr. Samuel Cooke be appointed Surgeon, and he is hereby appointed Surgeon to the Third Regiment of Troops raised in this Colony, and at the request of Mr. Henry Livingston, Jun., the Major of the said Regiment, which he says is with the consent of a considerable number of the said Regiment.

Ordered, That the examination of Dr. Samuel Cooke be dispensed with, and that he be appointed Surgeon, notwithstanding he has neglected to be examined according to the standing order of this Congress, but that this shall not be a precedent in any other instance.

Mr. John Stephenson sent into Congress a certificate of Dr. John Jones and Dr. Bard, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"This is to certify that we, the subscribers, agreeable to an order of the Provincial Congress, have examined Mr. John Stephenson, respecting his knowledge in physick and surgery, and that we find him competently qualified to act as a Surgeon's Mate.

"JOHN JONES, M. D.

"SAMUEL BARD, M. D."

Ordered, That Mr. John Stephenson be appointed, and he is hereby appointed, Surgeon's Mate to the Third Regiment of Troops now raised in this Colony; and Ordered, That he join his Regiment with all possible despatch.

Mr. Bedford Williams, who was on the 16th instant appointed Surgeon's Mate to the Second Regiment, agreeable to a standing order of this House, produced a certificate of Dr. John Jones and Dr. Bard, which is in the words following, to wit:

"This is to certify that we, the subscribers, agreeable to an order of the Provincial Congress, have examined Mr.

Bedford Williams, respecting his knowledge in physick and surgery, and that we find him competently qualified to act as a Surgeon's Mate.

"JOHN JONES, M. D.

"SAMUEL BARD, M. D."

Ordered, That Mr. Bedford Williams's appointment of Surgeon's Mate stand confirmed, and that he join his Regiment with all possible despatch.

A Letter from the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., of the 21st instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following:

"Lebanon, August 21, 1775.

"SIR: I received your favour of the 28th last long since, and with pleasure noted the contents, and the noble forward disposition of your respectable Congress to promote a service of so great a necessity and importance as supplying the Northern Army, among many other necessities, with tents, which I should not have asked of you for the Troops of this Colony, but from a sense that the cause is common, and that we are extremely exhausted of materials for tents, and that it was proposed to me by Major-General Schuyler, that you could probably do it with ease; and from your favourable assurances I hoped they were received at the camp before this, but am unhappy to find, by letters of the 14th instant, received this morning from General Schuyler and Colonel Hinman, that they have not received nor heard of any coming to them, and expressing fears that the proposed progress of the Army may be impeded, disappointed, or Colonel Hinman's Regiment very greatly suffer for want of them.

"I must beg the favour of you, since you were pleased to undertake it, and in confidence thereof we have neglected any attempt to supply them and as it is of so great importance to the whole Continent, and very peculiarly so to your City and Province, that they should be supplied and succeed in their designs, that you will be pleased to forward those tents in the most speedy manner possible, the season being far advanced.

"You are pleased to mention our remitting the money for them; you may rely that if the expense is not seasonably defrayed by the Continental Congress, this Colony will not fail of doing it, although they have already without grudging advanced near one hundred and fifty thousand Pounds, this currency.

"On motion of Mr. Livingston, I lately gave Mr. Rensselaer a permit to purchase in and carry out of this Colony, for the use of said Northern Army, four hundred and fifty barrels of pork, although there is a scarcity of it among us; and in pursuance of an advisory caution from his Excellency General Washington, have since wrote and required of Mr. Rensselaer, not to suffer any of it to be water borne to New-York, lest it might fall into the hands of our enemies, but to transport it directly to the North River, almost as near as the Sound, to any place where it can be purchased. I doubt not you will approve of this precaution, and cause the same pork to be forwarded with all possible expedition to General Schuyler.

"I am, with esteem and regard, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

"To the Hon. P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Honourable Provincial Congress, New-York."

A draught of an Answer to Governour Trumbull was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 25, 1775.

SIR: We have been honoured with your favour of the 21st instant, and are very sorry to learn the apprehensions you express that the progress of the Army may be impeded, if not disappointed, for the want of tents.

The fact is, that all the tents we had, and all the materials that could be procured have been made up into tents, and forwarded with part of our own Troops, and General Schuyler has undoubtedly, ere now, disposed of them as circumstances or the necessity of the service may require. We can only add, on that subject, that we shall procure materials for more tents by every means in our power, and send them up to General Schuyler as soon as possible; but we see no probability of being able to provide, at any rate, a sufficient number for the Northern Army. If, therefore, materials can be collected in any due season in your Government, it will promote the general service to give the necessary orders for that purpose without delay.

The precaution about the pork which you permitted Mr. Van Rensselaer to purchase may be a wise one; but unless proper orders are lodged at the different landings to which it may be carted, the purpose for which it is wanted may be in a great measure defeated. Permit us, therefore, to request the favour of you, to give such directions as you shall judge necessary, to prevent such inconveniences and disappointments.

We have the honour to remain, with much respect, Sir, yours, &c. By order.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Governour of the Colony of Connecticut.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to Charles Thomson, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 25, 1775.

SIR: We are informed by our Delegates that the Continental Congress ordered a ton of their powder to be sent here, to replace what we had lent for the common service. As our defence may probably very soon require a supply of that article, we must beg the favour of you either to be at the trouble of forwarding it, or inform us without delay, by letter, where and to whom we are to apply for it.

We flatter ourselves that your zeal for the service will call your attention to this business; and are, Sir, your very humble servants. By order.

Charles Thomson, Esquire, Secretary to the Continental Congress.

A Return of the Election of Militia Officers in the Borough of Westchester was filed.

A Return of the Election of Militia Officers in the Precinct of Mamacoting was read and filed.

A Return of the Election of Militia Officers in the South District of New-Marlborough was read and filed.

Johan Christian Drewidz, being brought before this Congress, and examined concerning his Vessel lately returned from sea to Sandy-Hook, or the watering place, and many suspicious circumstances appearing, which induce a belief that this Vessel has been to Boston, Ordered, That Johan Christian Drewidz be committed to the care of Colonel McDougall, and that he take care that the said Johan Christian Drewidz be kept with the greatest safety.

A Letter from Francis Stephens, of the 12th of August instant, to General Gage, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Office of Ordnance, New-York, August 12, 1775.

"SIR: Since my letter to your Excellency of the 31st July, I have been honoured with yours of the 18th preceding, which has given me much uneasiness, as it seems to imply a remissness on my part, in not getting more of the stores removed from hence, agreeable to your Excellency's wishes. I must beg leave to observe, that I always used my utmost endeavours to comply with the orders I received, as far as circumstances would admit. But the multiplicity of bulky articles shipped on board the vessels, such as battering plank, boards, joists, brick, straw, and many other particulars, belonging to different departments, the want of which is as strongly urged to me, took up so much room as to render it entirely out of my power to forward a further quantity of ordnance stores. Had the shipping ordered for that service been in a proper condition to have received their full load, I am well persuaded there would not in that case have any thing remained; but as some of them, particularly the Ship Henry, had all their water, provisions, &c., on board, which the master refused to disembark, I was by that means prevented from sending many more articles which I should have otherwise certainly done. If your Excellency will be pleased to order the several bills of lading to be laid before you, or an account of the many articles which were shipped from hence on board the different vessels, exclusive of the ordnance stores, you will judge of the vast deal of room they must have necessarily taken up on board these vessels, and which, of course, prevented my forwarding those stores that have since, very unfortunately, fallen into the hands of the rebels. The Brig Countess of Darlington arrived in the Sound, a few miles above Turtle-Bay, on the 25th of April; and had I been permitted to have loaded her, should no doubt have sent to Boston every species of stores I stood charged with, the largest sizes of shot and shells only excepted; but the violent commotions which at that time prevailed amongst the people were such as to render it impossible, and the vessel was obliged, for safety, immediately to depart, without my being able to put the least article on board her.

"With respect to the saltpetre, it was at the time deposited at Turtle-Bay, where I conceived it to be equally secure with the rest of His Majesty's property, and that moving it might excite the jealousy of the people, who assiduously watched that no supplies should be sent to Boston. At this period I had no idea of powder mills being erected, or that they would ever have the audacity to rob and plunder the storehouses in the manner they have since done. Their declared intention at the time being to prevent all supplies going to Boston, that might enable your Excellency to act with greater effect against their brethren and fellow-subjects in New-England. I entreat your Excellency, therefore, to believe me when I assure you that every thing was done which lay in my power towards expediting and otherwise forwarding the good of His Majesty's service.

"I am, with the greatest respect, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

"FRANCIS STEPHENS.

"To his Excellency the Hon. General Gage."

A Letter from Joseph Allicock, of the 23d instant, to Henry Lloyd, Esq., was read and filed.

Another from Joseph Allicock, of the 23d instant, to Lieutenant Butricke, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., pay to Joseph Hallett, Esq., the further sum of two thousand Pounds, on account, in addition to the sums he has already received, and take his receipt for the same.

The Congress adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

4to ho. P. M., August 25, 1775.

Resolved and Ordered, That no more Cannon or Stores be removed from the Battery, until further orders from this Congress.

Mr. Scott, Mr. John Van Cortlandt, and Mr. Pye, severally dissented.

Resolved, That the Guard be strengthened this night by an additional Company, in order to prevent any insult being offered to his Excellency the Governour.

And Resolved, That Colonel Lasher be desired to strengthen the Guard intended for this evening, by adding the Grenadier Company to that Guard. That the whole Guard be under the command of Captain Brasher; and that, upon a message from his Excellency the Governour, they repair to his house and protect him from insults.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., August 26, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers.

Joseph Allicock, according to a direction from this Congress, attending at the door, was called in. He produced three Receipts, of one tenor and date, for Provisions lately delivered to Captain Melancton Lawrence, for the Armed Sloop then under his command, and acknowledged that he had, in the course of the business of the contractors for victualling the Army, supplied all the Armed Vessels except the Men-of-War. He had supplied such Provisions inadvertently, and without any design to injure the Country.

Captain De Kay, according to a direction from this Congress, attending at the door, was called in, and examined, and notes taken of his examination, which are filed. Captain De Kay gave an order, in writing, to the Pilot and Mate of the Vessel, to bring up his Vessel.

Ordered, That Col. McDougall take Captain Charles De Kay into custody, and keep him safely until the further order of this Congress.

The Committee appointed to report on the Letter from the Brookhaven Committee of the 3d instant, and to report such general resolutions or regulations as may be proper to be entered into or ordered by this Congress to be done in cases of the like nature, delivered in their Report, which was read and filed :

Whereas there is great reason to suspect that Vessels with Provisions, from some parts of this Continent, have been put in the way of some of His Majesty's Armed Vessels, with design that they might be taken: to prevent any thing of the like kind from occurring,

Resolved, That no Vessel depart from this Colony with Provisions, unless the permit of this Congress or of their Committee of Safety be first had for that purpose.

Ordered, That this Resolution be published in the Newspapers and in Handbills.

Mr. Sears delivered in an inventory of all the articles by them taken from the Stores adjoining to Bowden's house, in obedience to the orders of this Congress, which is as follows, to wit: one hundred and forty boxes of Candles, seven Blankets, eighty pair of Sheets, twenty-four Bed-ticks and twenty-six Bolsters, fourteen Halberts, five cartmen loads of Medicines; that the Medicines are in a room at the Barracks.

Ordered, That Doctor Treat and Doctor Thomas Jones be requested to have an inventory made of all those Medicines; and to examine their qualities, and set a valuation on them, and return a copy thereof, signed by them, to this Congress, that this Congress may be able to preserve testimony of the value of those Medicines.

Resolved, That the General Committee of the City and County of New-York be requested to meet every day, Sundays excepted, in order to expedite such business as falls in their department, which frequently arise in this exigency of the publick affairs.

Resolved, That the Congress having thought it expedient to remove some of the Cannon from the Battery to the place where they now are, they will again remove them, as they shall find it necessary for the defence of the inhabitants of this Colony.

Ordered, The Report of the Committee of Ways and Means, to discharge the Debts of this Colony, be taken into consideration on next Tuesday morning.

— Die Lunæ, August 28, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers.

A Letter from P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., dated this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“New-York, August 28, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: It gives me great anxiety that I cannot attend your deliberations at this critical juncture; such is my present indisposition that I am unable to attend to any business whatever. With a continual slow fever, a reluctance to food, and a constant vigilance or want of sleep, I find myself reduced to the necessity of taking some measures to preserve life.

“I have yet a large sum of the Continental money which I received by your order. I earnestly entreat you to appoint some gentleman your Treasurer, to receive it of me, and to direct him to call on me this morning for the money. Be assured, Gentlemen, it will give me very great pleasure to return to Congress as soon as I am able to attend.

“I am, respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

PETER V. B. LIVINGSTON.

“To the Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress, New-York.”

Colonel Woodhull is elected President pro tem., until Mr. Livingston is able to attend.

A Letter from Joseph Trumbull, dated at Cambridge, on the 3d August, to his brother Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., was read. He thereby directs him to purchase large quantities of Flour, Beef, and Pork, for the use of the Army at Cambridge.

Another Letter, from Joseph Trumbull, of same date, to any Merchants in New-York or Philadelphia, as a letter of credit to his brother, Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., until the Continental Currency issues, was read.

A Letter from Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., dated at New-London, 7th instant, and directing Mr. Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., the safest way of transporting Flour, was read.

The Members generally sworn, were charged to keep secret the contents of those Letters, and Messrs. Vanderbilt, Woodhull, Lispenard, Polhemus, Ten Broeck, Hoffman, Kissam, Marston, Cuyler, Richard Yates, Roosevelt, Verplanck, Rensselaer, Diamond, Walton and Hornbeck, were sworn to secrecy in this particular matter.

Mr. Gouverneur Morris came into Congress and took the General Oath of Secrecy.

Richard Jenkins, late master of a vessel of Thomas Ludlow, came into Congress, and gave information: that relating to the vessel and cargo is on oath, and that relating to the state of Quebeck the best information he can give, but not on oath.

The application of Murray, Sansom, Murray & Co., and of Frederick Rhyndlander, to permit the Ship Peggy and cargo of Wheat to sail for Falmouth, in England: the application of Charles McEvers & Co., to permit the Ship Albany and cargo of Wheat to sail for Lisbon: the application of Walter Buchanan & Co., to permit a Vessel and Cargo for Madeira, and another Vessel and Cargo for Barcelona, to sail: the application and affidavit of Thomas Arden, Jun., and David Bemus, Owner and Master of the Sloop Liberty, to obtain a permit for her to sail: and an application from Robert Bryson, of Bermuda, to Mr. Samuel Verplanck, for six dozen bottled Beer, a keg of Albany White Peas, half a barrel Mess Pork, and a good American Cheese, were severally read and filed.

A Letter from Nicholas Cooke, Chairman of the Committee of Inspection at Providence, and from John Smith and Daniel Tillinghast, Committee of Safety, bearing date the 21st instant, was read.

And they requesting that Messrs. Clarke and Nightingale might have leave to purchase and import at Providence a quantity of Flour and Provisions, for the use of the Town of Providence and the American Army,

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be postponed till the afternoon.

A Letter of this day, from Samuel Burling, requesting liberty to supply the Flour and Provisions desired at Providence, and to send the same by Captain Lindsay and Captain Whitney.

A Letter from William McAdam, requesting leave for the Sloop Jane, Captain Bascombe Master, to sail with her cargo for Kingston, in Jamaica, was read.

Resolved, That no Bread, Flour, Beef, or Pork, be shipped or laden after the publication hereof, without an express permission from this Congress or their Committee of Safety.

Mr. Walton and Mr. Kissam dissenting.

Ordered, That the Ship Peggy may have leave to sail with her cargo of Wheat completed, and that she be subject to such instructions as shall be given by the Committee of this Congress to be appointed for that purpose: Provided, That the present Captain or Master be not permitted to proceed in the said Vessel, and that she sail under such Captain or Master as shall be approved of by the said Committee.

Captain Sears dissented.

Ordered, That Charles McEvers & Co. have leave to complete the loading of the Ship Albany, James Bunyan Master, bound to Lisbon, with Wheat only, subject to such instructions as shall be given by the Committee of this Congress to be appointed for that purpose.

Captain Sears dissents.

Ordered, That Walter and Thomas Buchanan & Co. have leave to load the Vessel mentioned in their application to Congress of this day, and let her sail to Barcelona, with Wheat only, subject to such instructions as shall be given by the Committee of Congress to be appointed for that purpose.

Ordered, That Walter Buchanan & Co. have leave to load the Brigantine Catharine and Elizabeth, bound to Madeira, with Wheat, Corn, and Staves, thirty casks Rye Meal, Bees Wax, Spermaceti Candles, and Spruce, but not with any Flour and Leather; to sail subject to such instructions as shall be given by the Committee of this Congress to be appointed for that purpose.

Ordered, That the Sloop Liberty, belonging to Thomas

Arden and James Arden, David Bewes Master, be permitted to sail subject to like instructions.

Resolved, That Colonel McDougall, Mr. Richard Yates, and Mr. Morris, be a Committee to report such Regulations as they conceive proper for the Owners and Masters of all Vessels sailing out of this Port, with any kind of Provisions on board.

Ordered, Mr. Thomas Smith to have leave of absence on Wednesday next.

The Congress adjourned till four o'clock.

4to ho. P. M., August 28, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

A Letter from James and Alexander Stewart, requesting permission to ship three thousand bushels of Rye, the proceeds of which, with what bills they shall ship, they mean to have brought back in articles that will be much wanted.

A Letter from Henry Remsen and John Read, requesting permission for the Sloop Charlotte, under the command of Captain Nathaniel Harriot, to depart for Kingston, in Jamaica, with a cargo of three hundred and eighty barrels of Flour and thirty barrels of Lamp Oil. And they mention that they had agreed to purchase a quantity of Ship Bread in tierces and barrels, and also some Lumber.

Ordered, That the Sloop Charlotte have leave to sail, with her cargo, of three hundred and thirty barrels of Flour, and such quantities of Lamp Oil, Ship Bread, and Lumber, as her owners have engaged or shall think proper to put on board, subject to such instructions as shall be given by the Committee of this Congress appointed for that purpose.

A Letter from V. Pearse Ashfield, bearing date this day, was read, setting forth that he has laden on board the Brig Patty, Bedford Ashfield Master, four thousand bushels of Indian Corn, and asking permission for the said Brig to complete her lading, and to depart for Madeira.

Ordered, That Somuel Burling have leave to ship Flour alone, for the use of the Town of Providence, in Rhode-Island.

Ordered, That G. W. Beekman, D. Beekman, and C. P. Low, be permitted to ship on board the Sloop Pennsylvania Farmer, William Newton Master, already cleared, and bound to the Island of St. Croix, a cargo, to consist of Indian Meal, Ship Bread, Staves, Heading, Hoops, and Boards; subject, however, to the instructions of the Committee of this Congress appointed for that purpose.

A Letter from Captain John Brown, of the British Army, dated the 26th instant, was read, setting forth that, in consequence of the indisposition of Mrs. Brown, he was prevented from embarking in the Ship Monimia, for Europe.

The Committee appointed for that purpose delivered in their Report, which was read and filed, and is in the words following:

Your Committee do report, that they conceive it will be proper that the Owners and Masters of all Vessels sailing out of this Port, with any kind of Provisions, should give security to this Congress that they will proceed to the place for which they shall report such Vessels to be destined, and that no security less than an oath of such Owners and Masters ought to be accepted of. Your Committee therefore do propose, for Vessels bound to Europe, the following Oath, to wit:

For the Owner.

"I, A B, do promise and declare that the . . . , now bound to . . . , and laden with . . . , shall proceed directly on her voyage to the said place of her destination; for which purpose I will strictly order the master of the said . . . to sail from the Hook into the latitude of thirty-five degrees north, and keep in or to the southward of that latitude until she shall reach the fiftieth degree of west longitude from London, and thence proceed with all despatch to the said Port of . . . , thereby to avoid a caption by any of His Majesty's Vessels of War; the unavoidable accidents of the seas only excepted. So help me God."

For the Master.

"I, A B, Master of the . . . , do swear, promise, and declare, that I will proceed with the said . . . , now bound with God's assistance to . . . , immediately, and take every precaution in my power to prevent the said vessel from being taken by any Vessel of War in His Majesty's service; and for this purpose I will use my utmost efforts to go so far to the southward, immediately after I shall leave the Hook, as to the thirty-fifth degree of north latitude, and keep to the southward of that latitude until I shall reach the fiftieth degree of west longitude from London, and thence to proceed to the said Port of . . . with the utmost despatch in my power, the dangers of the seas only excepted; and as I keep this oath, promise, and declaration, so help me God."

For Vessels bound to the West-Indies, the following Oath, to wit:

For the Owner.

"I, A B, do solemnly and sincerely swear and declare that I will take every precaution in my power to prevent the . . . , now bound from New-York to . . . , from falling into the possession of or being taken by any Vessel of War belonging to His Majesty; and for this purpose I will direct . . . , the Master of the said Vessel, to proceed immediately from the Hook to the aforesaid place of his destination, without delay, the danger of the seas only excepted. So help me God."

For the Master.

"I, A B, do promise and swear that I, the Master of the . . . , now bound on a voyage to . . . , will immediately proceed with the said Vessel to the said place of destination, with the utmost despatch in my power, the danger of the seas only excepted, and will take every precaution in my power to prevent the said Vessel from being taken by any Armed Vessels belonging to His Majesty. So help me God."

All which is humbly submitted.

ALEXANDER MCDUGALL,
GOUVERNEUR MORRIS,
RICHARD YATES.

Resolved, That the Owner or Owners and Master of each Vessel, for the lading and sailing whereof application has been made to this Congress, and a permit ordered, do respectively take such Oath as above directed, that is to say: the Master and Owners of such Vessels as are bound to the West-Indies, the Oath for that purpose directed; and the Master and Owners of the other Vessels the Oaths for that purpose abovementioned.

Mr. Morris, Mr. Kissam, and Mr. Thomas Smith, are appointed a Committee to report to this Congress the mode to supply the Ship Asia with Provisions, that will be least inconvenient to the inhabitants of this City.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., August 29, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tem.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay unto Captain Robert Johnson, of Colonel Clinton's Regiment, the sum of one hundred Pounds, for the use of his Company; and that the said Robert Johnson do give a receipt to the said Peter V. B. Livingston, and an order on the Deputy Paymaster-General, for the repayment of the said sum.

A Letter from General Wooster was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Oyster Ponds, August 27, 1775.

"SIR: Your favour of the 18th instant came duly to hand, and I should have sailed for Harlem without loss of time, had I not received the following important intelligence from General Washington, viz:

"August 23, 1775.—Yesterday I received advice from Boston, that a number of transports have sailed on a second expedition for fresh provisions. As they may pursue the same course, only advancing further, we think Montauk Point, on Long-Island, a very probable place of their landing. I have therefore thought it best to give you the earliest intelligence, but I do not mean to confine your attention or vigilance to that place. You will please to extend your views as far as the mischief may be probably extended."

"Thus far the intelligence. I would further inform you that the Kingfisher, last Wednesday, went up the Sound, with several small cutters, reconnoitering the north side of the island, and Thursday there followed past this place two topsail vessels, which I apprehend to be transports, as they fired two signal guns when they went through the Race. I would therefore recommend it to the Provincial Congress to keep a good guard over Queen's County, as I imagine their design is to get stock from Huntington, Lloyd's Neck, or Flushing; and as we hope to secure all the stock upon this part of the island, you may expect the Boston fleet will proceed further up the Sound.

"I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

"DAVID WOOSTER.

"To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq."

Ordered, That copies of General Wooster's Letter be transmitted to the following persons, to wit: Colonel Blackwell, to the Committee of Huntington, and to Mr. Townsend, by express.

A Letter from General Schuyler, dated at Saratoga, on the 19th instant, was read and filed.

A Letter from General Schuyler, dated at Saratoga, on the 20th instant, was read and filed.

A Letter from General Schuyler, dated at Albany, on the 23d instant, was read and filed.

Resolved, That the Company of Artillery, raised by Captain Lamb, be considered as part of the three thousand men directed by the Continental Congress to be raised in this Colony; that the Officers and Men belonging to the said Company be entitled to pay, agreeable to the Continental arrangement now established; that the Officers of the said Company be entitled to the same rank, and be under the same command, as other Artillery Companies in the Continental Army; that Colonel McDougall be ordered to receive, from the Treasurer of this Congress, the sum of two hundred and fifty Pounds, to pay off the Officers and Men belonging to the said Company, up to this day; and that the said Company do forthwith proceed to Ticonderoga, and join the Army under General Schuyler; and that Colonel McDougall see that this order be complied with, with all possible despatch.

William Malcom, by request in writing, prayed permission for the Sloop Thistle, Roger Haddock Master, bound for St. Eustatia, with a cargo of sixteen barrels of Ship Bread, forty barrels of Apples, three hundred bushels of Indian Corn, thirty boxes of Spermaceti Candles, eight cases of Furniture, fifteen thousand feet of Lumber, four thousand Hoops, twenty thousand Shingles, thirty barrels of Corn Meal, and a parcel of bunches of Onions.

Ordered, That he have a permit to ship the said cargo, and for the said Vessel to sail, subject to such orders, and on having such affidavits made and filed, as have in such cases been directed by this Congress.

A draught of a Letter to Thomas Wicks, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Huntington, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, August 29, 1775.

SIR: We thought proper to communicate to your Committee the intelligence contained in the enclosed letter from General Wooster, which we received this morning. Be pleased immediately to call your Committee together, and we expect you will use every measure to prevent the Ministerial Troops from obtaining a supply of provisions from the places mentioned in General Wooster's letter. Depending on your prudence and zeal in the common cause, we are your humble servants. By order of Congress.

To Thomas Wicks, Esq., Chairman of the Committee at Huntington.

P. S. We beg you would immediately communicate this intelligence to the Committees of Smithtown and Brookhaven, and also to Mr. Hobart and Mr. Lloyd.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President pro tempore, and transmitted by the return of the Express.

A draught of a Letter to Colonel Jacob Blackwell was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Congress, July 29, 1775.

SIR: We enclose you a copy of a letter we just now received from General Wooster, and beg you would immediately so dispose of the Militia under your command as to prevent the Ministerial Troops from obtaining a supply of provisions from the places mentioned in General Wooster's letter. We rely on your zeal and utmost exertions to defeat the designs of our common enemy, and are your humble servants. By order of the Congress.

To Colonel Jacob Blackwell, at Newtown.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President pro tempore, and sent by return of the Messenger.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius, the Commissary, do immediately purchase all the Sail Cloth in this City that comes cheaper than Russia Duck, and that he purchase the residue of Russia Duck, to complete the number of Tents. That all the Tent and Sail-Makers in this City be immediately set to work, to complete the said Tents; and that they be forwarded up as fast as they are made, by twenty or thirty at a time, until the whole number are completed, to the Commissary at Albany, to be forwarded, with all possible expedition, to General Schuyler, at Ticonderoga.

A Letter from Abraham Yates, Jun., Esquire, Chairman of the Committee at Albany, bearing date the 17th inst., was read and filed.

A Letter from Abraham Yates, Jun., Esquire, Chairman of the Committee at Albany, bearing date on the 21st, was read and filed.

A State of the Case of Alexander White, Esquire, was read and filed.

A copy of a Letter from Sir John Johnson to A. White, Esquire, dated at Johnson Hall, on Sunday morning, was read and filed.

A copy of a Letter from Sir John Johnson to A. White, bearing date on the 25th July last, was read and filed.

A copy of a Letter from General Schuyler to the Committee of Albany, dated the 11th inst., was read and filed.

The copy of the Examination enclosed in Gen. Schuyler's Letter was read and filed.

Resolved and Agreed, nem. con., That Edward Fleming, Esq., be appointed Deputy Adjutant-General in the Continental Army, with the rank of Colonel, and that he be directed to join the Forces, under the command of Major-General Schuyler, with all possible despatch.

Whereas the Commander of His Majesty's Ship Asia, under pretence of protecting the King's property, did, in the dead of the night of the 23d instant, most unwarrantably fire on the south part of this defenceless City, whereby three of His Majesty's subjects were wounded, the property of several destroyed, and the lives of many exposed to the most imminent danger; and whereas many of the inhabitants, under apprehensions that the like hostile conduct may be in future pursued by the Commander of the said Ship, have been induced to move their wives, children, and property, out of this City; and whereas, from the present temper of the people, it is apprehended that the peace of this City may be interrupted, and the lives and property of many be exposed, in case the Officers or Crew, belonging to any of His Majesty's Ships, should come with their Boats to this City:

In order, therefore, to preserve the peace, quiet the minds of the inhabitants, and prevent the Officers and Men, belonging to any of His Majesty's Ships, that now are or hereafter may arrive in this Port, from coming to this City, under pretence of procuring supplies, this Congress have thought proper to permit, and they do hereby permit, agreeable to the former directions of this Congress, that Abraham Lott, Esquire, Contractor for His Majesty's Navy, do in future supply His Majesty's Ships, stationed here, with all necessaries, as well fresh as salt, for the use of the said Ships; that such supplies be by him sent to the Governour's Island, that they may be taken from thence on board the said Ships.

And the inhabitants of this City and Colony are hereby enjoined from using any attempt to prevent the said supplies from being furnished by the said Abraham Lott, or his Agent, or for obtaining satisfaction for the injury they have received, as this Congress, duly impressed with a sense thereof, are determined to pursue every prudent and proper measure for preventing the like insults in future, and for obtaining satisfaction and redress.

Ordered, That the above Resolution be published in Handbills.

A Petition of John Candell, praying to be heard, was read.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall be directed to have John Candell brought to the Bar of this House this afternoon, and that the Witnesses respecting him do attend at the same time.

Ordered, That Abraham De Peyster, of the City of New-York, Merchant, have a permit to load the Sloop Charity with two hundred bushels of Corn, four tons of Ship Bread, two hogsheads of dried Cod, and ten dozen of Poultry, to the Island of Antigua, or some other of the West-India Islands, subject to such orders, and on having such affidavits made and filed, as have in such cases been directed by this Congress.

Ordered, That Messrs. Verplanck and Richard Yates be a Committee to consider of the applications of the Owners of Vessels which are going to sea, and to give them permits agreeable to the Resolutions and Orders of this Congress.

Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius furnish Arms for the Fourth Regiment as fast as may be conveniently done; and that he forward such a number of Arms to Albany, for the Fourth Regiment, as Col. Holmes shall advise to be necessary, as fast as they can be procured.

Ordered, That Colonel Lasher be requested to furnish a Guard of twenty-four men, to proceed from New-York to the Highlands, when requested by Messrs. Isaac Sears, Samuel Bayard, Wm. Bedlow, John Berrien, and Christopher Miller, (Commissioners appointed to erect Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands,) or any three or more of them, and to attend upon and be subject to the direction of the said Commissioners, who will agree to pay the said Guard.

A draught of a Letter to Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 29, 1775.

SIR: Several Companies belonging to the Regiments raised in this Colony refuse marching until they receive their pay; and as General Schuyler is very pressing for their joining him with all possible expedition, we are confident he will readily excuse your dispensing with forms, in order to promote the general service.

We therefore cannot hesitate earnestly to request the favour of you to advance Colonel James Holmes six hundred Pounds, to enable him to pay his men, that they may immediately march, according to the pressing requisition of General Schuyler.

I am, Sir, your very humble servant. By order.

To Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., Esquire, Deputy Paymaster-General of the Continental Forces.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and delivered to Mr. Trumbull.

4to ho. P. M., August 29, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

Ordered, That Colonel Lispenard, Mr. Van Zandt, and Mr. Roosevelt, be a Committee, on behalf of this Congress, to contract with some merchant or merchants for fifteen tons of Gunpowder; and if Gunpowder cannot be obtained, then to contract for the value of fifteen tons of Gunpowder in fourteen hundred stand of good Arms, and in Saltpetre, or either of them that can be had or obtained; and that they have leave to contract for the same, to be paid for at the rate of one hundred per cent. on the European invoice, provided the same arrive here before the first day of March next.

Messrs. Low, Walton, Leffertse, French, Cortelyou, Richard Lawrence, R. Yates, and Polhemus, dissent.

A Letter from Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., Esq., Deputy Paymaster-General, assigning his reasons, and excusing himself from advancing any money to pay Troops.

The Report of the Committee appointed to consider of the Letter of the Committee of Brookhaven, of the 3d instant, and of what is proper to be done with persons whose conduct is inimical to the interests of this Colony, was read, and ordered to be postponed for further consideration.

Messrs. Thomas Arden and James Arden having filed such affidavit, taken by them, with respect to the Sloop Liberty and her cargo, as is directed by this Congress to be taken by the owners of vessels intended for the West-Indies, and having also sent into Congress and filed such affidavit of David Bewes, the Master of the said Sloop Liberty, as in such cases is directed by this Congress to be taken by the Master of every such vessel:

Ordered, That the Sloop Liberty, with her cargo now on board, be permitted to sail.

Mr. William Malcom having delivered in such affidavit, taken by him, with respect to the Sloop Thistle and her cargo, as is directed by this Congress to be taken by the owners of vessels intended for the West-Indies, and also delivered in such affidavit of Roger Haddock, the Master of the said Sloop Thistle, as is in such cases directed by this Congress to be taken by the Master of every such vessel, which affidavits are filed:

Ordered, That the Sloop Thistle, with her cargo now on board, be permitted to sail.

Messrs. Henry Remsen and John Read, of the City of New-York, Merchants, having delivered in such affidavit, taken by them, with respect to the Sloop Charlotte and her cargo, as is directed by this Congress to be taken by the owners of vessels intended for the West-Indies, and also delivered in such affidavit of Nathaniel Harriot, the Master of the said Sloop Charlotte, as in such cases is directed by this Congress to be taken by the Master of every such vessel, which affidavits are filed:

Ordered, That the Sloop Charlotte, with her cargo now on board, be permitted to sail.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., August 30, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

A Letter from Walter Livingston, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General, was read and filed. He assures the Congress that the Stores he has received have been forwarded without delay.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of Albany was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We received your letters of the 11th and 17th instant, together with the several enclosed papers. As White, the late Sheriff of Tryon County, is detained in your jail by process issued out of court, it is the opinion of this Congress that he ought not to be removed before he satisfies the demand, or otherwise discharged from actual custody upon his giving bail to the suit. When he performs either, you will then send him down.

As you are best acquainted with the circumstances of Boon and Clement, we must therefore leave it to your discretion either to acquit or detain them. Conner was brought down yesterday, and he is secured under guard.

We approve the lenient measures you pursued with the Indians who escorted those prisoners in their escape. Their friendship, at this critical conjuncture, is become an object of the utmost moment to the Colonies.

We are, Gentlemen, your most humble servants. By order of the Congress.

To Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., Chairman of the Committee at Albany.

Mr. Thomas Smith and Mr. DeLancey dissent from that part of the Letter which directs White to be sent down to New-York when discharged.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President pro tempore, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay unto Col. James Holmes the sum of six hundred Pounds, for the use of his Regiment, and take his receipt for the same.

A Certificate of Doctor John Jones and Doctor Bard was read and filed. They thereby certify that they have examined Mr. Joseph Marvin, respecting his knowledge in physick and surgery, and find him well qualified for the office of a First Mate to a Provincial Regiment.

One Mate having heretofore been appointed to each Regiment, Ordered, That Mr. Joseph Marvin be appointed an additional Surgeon's Mate to the First Regiment of Troops raised in this Colony.

The Congress then took into consideration the Report of the Committee appointed to report the ways and means best adapted to discharge the Debts of this Congress, in the present exigencies of this Colony. The same was read, and being again read by paragraphs, the first paragraph is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee, in obedience to the directions of the Congress, do report, that they are of opinion that the Moneys requisite to defray the expense incurred by this Congress ought to be raised by a tax; that at least Fifteen Thousand Pounds is required for that purpose.

Which being read, Mr. Gilbert Livingston moved, and was seconded, that the following amendment should be made, viz: that all that part of the Report which is from the word Moneys to the word purpose be obliterated, and the following words there inserted, viz: "Means requisite to defray the expenses incurred by this Congress, and to be incurred by the Colony, be supplied by an emission of Forty-Five Thousand Pounds, to be sunk in manner following, viz: one third part on the first of March, 1776; one other third part on the first of March, 1777; and the remaining third part on the first of March, 1778."

And debates arising on the said amendment, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative in the manner following, to wit:

For the Amendment.	Against the Amendment.
2 Dutchess,	3 Albany,
2 Suffolk,	2 Ulster,
2 Tryon,	2 Richmond.
2 Westchester,	—
2 Cumberland,	7 Queen's and Orange have no votes,
2 King's.	for want of a sufficient number —	of Members.
12	New-York equally divided.

Resolved, therefore, That that part of the Report which is from the word Moneys to the word purpose be obliterated, and the following words there inserted, viz: "Means requisite to defray the expenses incurred by this Congress, and to be incurred by the Colony, be supplied by an emission of Forty-Five Thousand Pounds, to be sunk in the manner following, viz: one third part on the first of March, 1776; one third part on the first of March, 1777; and the remaining third part on the first of March, 1778."

Dissentients: Messrs. Roosevelt, Verplanck, Walton, Low, Kissam, Lispénard, Richard Yates, and De Lancey.
Adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

4th ho, P. M., August 30, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tem.

Ordered, That Mr. John Hanson be appointed, and he is hereby appointed, one of the Commissioners to erect Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., pay to the said Commissioners, or any three or more of them, one hundred Pounds, to be expended in the necessary business of preparing for and erecting the said Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius be requested to forward to Albany, immediately, a sufficient number of Tents for Col. Hinman's Regiment at Ticonderoga.

A draught of a Letter to Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, August 30, 1775.

SIR: Since writing you the 25th instant, we have been agreeably surprised to learn from our Commissary that he had purchased materials for a much larger number of tents than we imagined. We have therefore the pleasure to acquaint you that he has our orders to forward, with all possible expedition, the number of tents required for Col. Hinman's Regiment, so that you need give yourself no further trouble to provide materials for that purpose.

We are, Sir, most respectfully, your humble servants.
By order of the Congress.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the Colony of Connecticut.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President pro tem, and transmitted.

Mr. Sears moved, and was seconded, that the Company of Artillery, under the command of Captain John Lamb, should have the same Pay as the Rhode-Island Company of Artillery; and debates arising thereon, and the question being put, it was carried in the affirmative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.	For the Negative.
2 Dutchess,	2 Richmond,
2 Westchester,	3 Albany,
2 Cumberland,	2 Ulster.
4 New-York, (Messrs. Walton ,	—
Thomas Smith , and Kissam ,	7 ( King's , Queen's , and dissent.)	Orange Counties could
2 Suffolk,	not vote, for want of
2 Tryon.	a sufficient number of

Resolved, therefore, That so many of the Artillery Company, under the command of Captain John Lamb, as are now enlisted, shall have the same Pay as the Rhode-Island Company of Artillery, until the time for which they were enlisted does expire, in December next, but no longer. That the said John Lamb be directed and enjoined, and he is hereby enjoined, not to enlist any more men in his Company at that rate; but if he enlist any other man or men than those he has already enlisted, that they shall have or be entitled to such pay only as is agreeable to the arrangement of pay established by the Continental Congress.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the residue of the Report of the Committee of Ways and Means to discharge the Debts of this Congress, in the present exigencies of this Colony; after some time spent therein,

Ordered, That the residue of the said Report be re-committed; and that Mr. Scott, Colonel Hoffman, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, and Mr. Tredwell, be a Committee for that purpose; and that they report thereon with all convenient speed.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., August 31, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

A Letter from Benjamin Franklin, of the 26th August, was read and filed. He thereby informs, that the Committee at Philadelphia have, at the request of this Congress, sent them a ton of Powder, which is forwarded.

A Letter from Benjamin Franklin, Esq., dated at Perth-Amboy, 29th instant, was read and filed. He thereby informs, that having information at Brunswick that Powder had arrived and passed through that place for this Colony, he had countermanded the Powder, and sent it back.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall have leave to agree with Thomas Oakes, Jun., a Timman, on the best terms he can, to proceed to Ticonderoga, to be employed there in the Army under the command of General Schuyler; and that Colonel McDougall also have leave to purchase such Tin and other materials as he shall think necessary to send, and forward the same to Ticonderoga.

Ordered, That Captain Patrick Sinclair be at liberty to go to Lloyd's Neck, in Queen's County, on Nassau-Island, at his pleasure, in addition to his former limits in Suffolk County, on his former promise parole on his honour pledged and given to this Congress.

Messrs. Leonard Lispénard, Isaac Roosevelt, and Jacobus Van Zandt, brought into Congress a contract by them made, on behalf of this Congress, with Joseph Hallett, Jun., for the importing of fifteen tons of Gunpowder, and fourteen hundred stand of Arms, and for any quantity of Saltpetre which he may import in lieu of the said Gunpowder.

The said Contract was read and approved of, and ordered to be filed.

The Examination of Jacobus Stoutenburgh, Jun., a Messenger from Dutchess County, with relation to Peter Dop and his Sloop, was taken and filed.

Ordered, That Colonel Lasher be directed to furnish a sufficient detachment of his Battalion to take and seize the Sloop, and people on board, which is charged with having supplied necessaries for the use of the Army and Navy, and now lying at anchor near the Ship of War.

Ordered, further, That Colonel Lasher use his discretion with respect to the mode, time, and place of seizing the said Sloop; and that the said Sloop, when seized, be taken to some secure place up the River, and stripped of her sails, rudder, &c., and that such persons as shall be found on board be immediately brought to this Congress by land.

The Congress then proceeded to consider of the Report of the Committee appointed to consider of the Letter from the Committee of Brookhaven, of the 3d instant, and of what is proper to be done with persons whose conduct is inimical to the interests of this Colony; and after having proceeded to hear and amend the preamble, and the first paragraph, which was changed into two paragraphs, and after some time spent therein, it is deferred for further consideration.

John Candell was brought to the bar of the Congress, from the guard room at the Upper Barracks.

The following persons were examined as witnesses against the said John Candell, in his presence, to wit: John Johnson, James Moore, David Dixon, Cornelius J. Bogert, Allen Rodgers, Uzal Meeker.

The Examinations of those persons were filed, and John Candell ordered to be confined until the House meet this afternoon.

The Congress adjourned to four o'clock, this afternoon.

Die Jovis, 4to ho. P. M., August 31, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment: Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

A Letter from Abraham Lott, Esq., Agent Victualler for His Majesty's Ships in this Port, was read and filed; also, an account of Provisions supplied the Ship Asia with, between the 27th of July and the 2d of August; also, an account of Provisions required for the use of the said Ship.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the testimony of the witnesses against John Candell;

And thereupon, Ordered, That the said John Candell be taken back to the Barracks, and there kept under guard until the further order of this Congress.

Messrs. Walton, French, Cortelyou, and Lawrence, dissenting.

Ordered, That Abraham Lott, Esq., Agent for victualling His Majesty's Ships, be requested to attend this Congress to-morrow morning, and also to furnish this Congress with an estimate of the quantity of Provisions the Ship Asia will require per week, and the number of men on board.

Ordered, That Captain Patrick Dennis and Mr. Anthony Griffiths be requested to go to the house of Linton, the Innkeeper, at the sign of the Blue Bell, in this City, to search for the Baggage of Alexander Bell; and that, at their discretion, they search the house of the said Linton; that they retain such Papers as they shall find, and think necessary; and that they report to this Congress to-morrow morning.

Linus King, Thomas Marston, and Hamilton Young, filed Affidavits with respect to the Brig Polly, bound to the West-Indies, and also a list of her cargo, as is directed. Also, an Affidavit of Bernard McDavit, the Master of said Brig Polly, as is directed by this Congress to be taken by the Master.

Ordered, That the Brig Polly, with her cargo now on board, be permitted to sail.

Archibald Mercer filed a like Affidavit, as Owner of the Sloop Greyhound, bound to Curagoa, with a list of her cargo. Also, the Affidavit of William Montanye, Master of said Sloop Greyhound, as directed and required by this Congress.

Ordered, That the said Sloop Greyhound, with her cargo now on board, be permitted to sail.

Samuel Burling filed an Affirmation respecting the Sloop Joseph, bound to Providence, in Rhode-Island, with Flour. Also, an Affidavit of Benjamin Lindsay, Master of the said Sloop Joseph, as required and directed by this Congress.

Ordered, That the said Sloop Joseph, with her cargo now on board, be permitted to sail, &c.

John Murray filed such Affidavit, as Owner of the Ship Peggy, bound to Falmouth, and laden with Wheat, as is required to be taken by an Owner.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., September 1, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

Ordered, That Gabriel W. Ludlow be requested and empowered to deal out the Powder lately received in this City, according to the directions of this Congress or the Committee of Safety, and to keep accounts of the distribution thereof.

An Estimate or Account from Abraham Lott, Esq., Agent Victualler for His Majesty's Ships in this Port, was read; and Mr. Lott, being so indisposed as to be confined to his house, by one of the Secretaries requested a conference with some Member or Members of this Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Clarkson, Mr. Walton, and Mr. Sears, be a Committee to confer with Abraham Lott, Esq., and also to report to this Congress on the Letter of Mr. Lott, requesting to permit the Ship Asia's Boats to get Beer and Water at Brooklyn, and also on the quantities of Provisions proper to be supplied to said Ship.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall have one hundred weight of Gunpowder, for the use of the Troops under his command; and that Mr. Gabriel W. Ludlow be requested to let the same be delivered to him.

Ordered, That Alexander Bell and his Examination, and the Notes or Memorandums found on Bell, be delivered over to the City Committee; and that the Chairman or Deputy Chairman of the Committee be informed that the said Alexander Bell is confined in the Barracks.

The Committee appointed to confer with Abraham Lott, Esq., agent for victualling His Majesty's Ships, reported that they had conferred with him, and are of opinion, that the best method of supplying the said Ship with Beer and Water is to let her be supplied from Brooklyn Ferry with Beer and Water, as usual; and that she be supplied with Provisions weekly, agreeable to the Order of this Congress.

Resolved, therefore, That the said Ship have leave to be supplied with Beer and Water from Brooklyn Ferry, as usual; and that they be supplied with Provisions weekly, agreeable to the former Resolutions of this House.

Whereas General Schuyler, by his Letter to this Congress of the 23d ultimo, has declined to nominate any Field-Officer or Officers to the Regiment of Green Mountain Boys; the Congress took into consideration the appointment of such Field-Officers.

Debates arising thereon, the question was put, whether the Congress will now proceed to nominate the Field-Officers for the Regiment of Green Mountain Boys, or defer that nomination until the men are raised, or further information obtained? and it was carried in the affirmative, that Congress will now proceed to nominate the said Officers, in manner following:

For the Affirmative.

2 Suffolk,
2 Dutchess,
2 Cumberland,
3 Albany,
2 Tryon,
2 Westchester,
2 Orange.

15

For the Negative.

2 Richmond,
2 Ulster,
2 King's.

New-York and Queen's County have not votes, for want of a sufficient number of Members present.

Resolved, therefore, That the Congress will now proceed to nominate and appoint Field-Officers for the said Regiment of Green Mountain Boys.

Dissentients: Mr. Richard Yates, Mr. Walton, Mr. Kissam, Mr. Low, and Mr. Verplanck.

And Resolved, That Seth Warner be appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the said Regiment of Green Mountain Boys.

Dissentients: Mr. Walton, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Kissam, Mr. Low, and Mr. Verplanck.

And Resolved, That Samuel Safford be appointed Major of the said Regiment.

Dissentients: Mr. Walton, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Kissam, and Mr. Low.

Resolved and Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Peter T. Curtenius the further sum of five thousand Pounds, to be applied towards discharging the debts contracted by purchasing Provisions, Military Stores, and other necessities, in obedience to the Orders of this Congress; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Curtenius's receipt for the same, on account.

Ordered, That John Berrien be Commissary for the Agents for building the Fortifications in the Highlands, and such persons as they shall employ.

The Congress adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

4to ho. P. M., September 1, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

A Letter from Colonel Goose Van Schaick, dated the 29th August, was read and filed.

A Letter from Henry Livingston, Jun., Major of the Third Regiment, was read and filed.

It being represented to this Congress that Barnabas Tuthill, Major of the Fourth Regiment of Troops now raised in this Colony, and Job Mulford, Adjutant of the said Regiment, are both in this City, and unable to proceed to Ticonderoga, for want of Money to defray their expenses:

Resolved and Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Major Barnabas Tuthill twenty-six Pounds, thirteen Shillings, and four Pence, for his Pay for two months, to enable him to proceed to Ticonderoga, to join the Army under the command of General Schuyler; and that the said Peter Van Brugh Livingston pay to the said Major Barnabas Tuthill the further sum of fourteen Pounds, thirteen Shillings, and four Pence, on account, as two months' Pay for Job Mulford, the Adjutant of the said Fourth Regiment, to enable him to join the Army at Ticonderoga; and that Mr. Livingston take Major Tuthill's receipt for those two sums, amounting, together, to the sum of forty-one Pounds, six Shillings, and eight Pence, on account of Pay.

And Ordered, That Major Barnabas Tuthill do, without delay, give information, in writing, of the Money by him received by virtue of this Order, both to Col. James Holmes, of the Fourth Regiment, and to Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., Esq., Deputy Paymaster-General.

Resolved, That no person other than the Deputy Postmaster appointed by the Continental Congress, or the Deputies that shall be appointed by them or the Postmaster General, shall demand any Postage for or receive any Letters in this Colony, with intent to receive pay for the same, such Letters which shall or may arrive by the Packet from Great Britain excepted. And the several Committees of this Colony are hereby directed to cause this Resolution to be faithfully observed.

Mr. Walton and Mr. Kissam dissent.

Ordered, That the foregoing Resolution be published.

A draught of a Letter to Major-General Schuyler was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, September 1, 1775.

SIR: We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 19th, 20th, and 23d ultimo, and are to observe, in answer to them, that the difficulty of procuring arms obliged us to adopt the mode we have done, as the best and only expedient for an immediate supply. Nor have we been inattentive to what you recommend, having taken every means in our power to encourage the manufacturing of arms in this Colony; and we shall not fail, in future, to attend duly to an object of so much importance. We are to inform you, that from the peculiar situation Mr. Duer is in, respecting some of his private affairs,

(which were communicated to a secret Committee,) the Congress thought it rather proper that he should decline the appointment, and have appointed Colonel Flemming in his stead, who we hope will be acceptable to you, and who will proceed to join you as soon as possible.

Enclosed is a copy of our military arrangement, which you request. As to what you mention with respect to Ticonderoga being the place to be kept, we know not what directions to give you on that head, and must therefore leave you upon the general orders you have from the Continental Congress and the exigency of the case to determine what is proper as to that matter.

We are happy to find, from your intelligence, that affairs in Canada wear so favourable an aspect; and in further confirmation of it, we enclose the copy of an examination of a person lately returned from Quebeck, as we think it of importance to apprise you of this information.

A sufficient quantity of cartridge paper has been forwarded. The order for artillery stores, Mr. Curtenius says, was so general that he did not know what particulars nor of what sizes to send, but supposes that Mr. Rensselaer procured what was necessary. We are endeavouring to procure blankets for the Troops, that article being difficult to be got. As to the Green Mountain Boys, we see no method for our supplying them with arms or blankets. We have ordered two hundred and fifty coats, and would be glad to know what progress the Green Mountain Boys have made in their enlistment.

Since you decline appointing the Field-Officers, the Congress have taken it upon themselves, and determined upon the best information they can get.

When we first wrote you concerning the hospital, Mr. Lewis had not informed us of the determination of the Continental Congress. We therefore thought that matter to be without our department, and declined giving any directions about it. And although, in a subsequent letter to you, we expressed our approbation of the measure, yet we submitted the expediency of it entirely to your own discretion and judgment.

As to the artillery department, we are obliged to rely on Captain Lamb, not being able to procure any person who we think better qualified; he will march with his Company in a day or two.

We have been a good deal embarrassed with the Troops, they having refused to march without their pay. We applied to Mr. Trumbull, the Paymaster, to advance a sufficient sum for the purpose, but he thought he could not do it, consistent with the orders he had from you. The money we have been and shall be obliged to advance, for the pay and subsistence of the Troops, we think will amount to ten thousand Pounds. We must beg, Sir, that you will give us an order on the Continental Congress for that sum, to reimburse us, which we will duly account for to you or the Paymaster, as you shall direct. The following articles were sent to you about the latter end of July: Three quarter-casks of Madeira wine, one hogshead of claret, four barrels of oatmeal, three kegs of raisins, and twelve kegs of barley. Four barrels of vinegar were sent a few days ago. We fear they have been delayed on the way. Some bullet moulds will be sent you by Captain Goforth. They would have been sent sooner, had not the Commissary been obliged to get them made here. The rest will be forwarded as soon as they are finished. We have lost no time in getting tents made of all the materials that could be procured for that purpose. We have forwarded such as are done, and will send the others as soon as complete. There will be tents enough for our four Regiments and Colonel Hinman's, but we have not yet materials for tents for the Green Mountain Boys, but think we shall soon be able to supply them.

We are, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servants.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President pro tempore, and transmitted by the Messenger from Albany.

A draught of a Letter to Colonel Goose Van Schaick, of the Third Regiment, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, September 1, 1775.

SIR: We received your letter by express, dated the 29th ultimo. We have given the necessary orders in this City to collect all the arms that can be got; but we are sorry to inform you that there is no probability of receiving a supply sufficient to answer immediately the demand of the Companies of the Third and Fourth Regiments, now at Albany. No other expedient, therefore, remains to obtain a sufficient quantity, than by endeavouring to purchase or hire them.

Mr. Curtenius informs us that all the necessaries for those Companies are sent, or will be sent by the first opportunity. He will also forward to-morrow, by Captain Cooper, for Albany, most of the other necessary accoutrements for Colonel Holmes's Companies, now with you, arms excepted.

Your letter directed to Mr. Trumbull, we have delivered to him, and you will receive his answer by this opportunity. If General Schuyler has left no directions to Mr. Trumbull to pay the men at Albany, it may be necessary for you to send an express to Ticonderoga, in order to procure such an order by the time he comes up, as it is probable he will not conceive himself authorized to pay them without such an order.

To Colonel Goose Van Schaick, at Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President pro tempore, and transmitted by the Messenger from Albany.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee appointed to report on the Letter of the 3d instant, from the Committee of Brookhaven, and what is proper to be done with persons whose conduct is inimical to this Country; which Report, being corrected and amended, was adopted, as follows, to wit:

Whereas attempts have been made to promote discord among the inhabitants of this Colony, and to assist and aid the Ministerial Army and Navy in their endeavours to carry into execution the cruel and oppressive acts of Parliament against the rights and liberties of the inhabitants of this Continent; and as the immutable laws of self-defence and preservation justify every reasonable measure entered into to counteract or frustrate such attempts: Therefore,

Resolved, That if any person or persons shall be found guilty, before the Committee of any City or County, of attempting (after the date of this Resolution) to furnish the Ministerial Army or Navy with Provisions or other necessaries, contrary to the Resolutions of the Continental or of this Congress, or of holding a correspondence, by letter or otherwise, for the purpose of giving information to the said Army or Navy of the measures pursued by the United Colonies, or any of them, or of advising expedients which the said Army or Navy might or ought to pursue against the said Colonies, or any of them, such person or persons so found guilty, shall be punished at the discretion of the Committee before whom he or they shall be so found guilty, or at the discretion of the Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony, so as the punishment by them, at their discretion inflicted, shall not exceed three months' imprisonment, or other the punishments hereinafter mentioned, for the first offence.

Resolved, That if any person or persons shall be found guilty, before the Committee of any City or County in this Colony, of having furnished the Ministerial Army or Navy (after the date of this Resolution) with Provisions or other necessaries, contrary to any Resolution of the Continental or of this Congress, such person or persons, so found guilty thereof, upon due proof thereof, shall be disarmed, and forfeit double the value of the Provisions or other necessities so furnished; to be applied to the publick exigencies of this Colony, in such manner as the Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony for the time being shall order and direct. And that such person or persons, so found guilty, shall be put into and detained in close confinement, at his or their own expense and charge, until three months after he or they, respectively, shall have paid such forfeiture. And that every such person or persons, who shall be found guilty of a second offence of the same kind, shall be banished from this Colony for the term of seven years from the time of such second conviction.

Although this Congress have a tender regard to the freedom of speech, the rights of conscience, and personal liberty, as far as an indulgence in these particulars may be consistent with our general security, yet, for the publick safety, be it

Resolved, That if any person or persons shall hereafter oppose or deny the authority of the Continental or of this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, or the Committees of the respective Counties, Cities, Towns, Manors, Precincts, or Districts, in this Colony, or dissuade any person or persons from obeying the recommendations of the Continental or this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, or the Committees aforesaid, and be thereof convicted, before the Committee of the County, or any thirteen or more of their number, who shall or may meet upon a general call of the Chairman of such Committee, where such person or persons may reside, that such Committee shall cause such offenders to be disarmed; and for the second offence they shall be committed to close confinement, at their respective expense. And in case any of the said Committees are unable to carry this or any resolution into execution, they are hereby directed to apply to the next County Committee, or Commanding Officer of the Militia, or to the Congress or the Committee of Safety of this Colony, for necessary assistance, as the case may require. But if it shall so happen that any violators of this Resolution shall reside in a County where there is no Committee of the County, in that case the matter shall be triable before the Committee of the next County: Provided, That no person shall be tried before the General Committee of the City and County of New-York, upon the Resolutions herein contained, unless the stated quorum be present; and in the City and County of Albany, unless there are present twenty-five members.

Resolved, further, That the respective Committees and the Militia of the several Counties, by order of the respective Committees or of the Commissioned Officer of the Militia then nearest, are hereby expressly enjoined to apprehend every inhabitant or resident of this Colony, who now is or shall hereafter be discovered to be enlisted or in arms against the liberties of America, and to confine such offender or offenders in safe custody; and his or their punishment is reserved to the determination of this or some future Provincial Congress. And the Committee nearest to any person who shall be so enlisted, or have taken up arms against the liberties of America, are hereby directed to appoint some discreet person to take the charge of the estate, both real and personal, of any such person or persons; which person, so appointed, shall be invested with such estate, and render, on oath, a just and true account thereof to this or some future Congress, or to Commissioners by them to be appointed, and pay the issues and profits thereof to the Treasurer appointed by this Congress, for the use of the associated Colonies.

Resolved, That if any person be taken up on suspicion of any of the crimes in the above Resolutions specified, he shall immediately be taken before the Committee of the City, Town, Manor, Precinct, or District, where the offender shall have been taken up; and if upon examination the suspicion shall appear to the said Committee to be groundless, that he be discharged: Provided, also, That no person charged to be an offender shall be tried upon any of the foregoing Resolves, until the persons to be judges of the offence be first severally sworn to try and adjudge the person so charged, without partiality, favour or affection, or hope of reward, according to evidence, and that every witness who shall be examined on such trial, shall have the charge distinctly and clearly stated to him, and be thereupon sworn to speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., September 2, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. No prayers. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

Ordered, That Mr. Samuel Verplanck advance to John Mason, a soldier taken prisoner at Ticonderoga, and now on his way to Philadelphia with his wife and two children; the sum of twenty-four Shillings, and bring in an account to the Treasurer of this Congress for payment of the same: the said John Mason and his family having permission to proceed to Philadelphia, from Ezekiel Williams, Samuel

Wadsworth, and Epaphras Bull, the Committee at Hartford, as appears by their Certificate, now produced, and dated the 24th ult.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Colony, pay to Colonel Alexander McDougall the sum of Five Hundred Pounds, to be by him applied towards paying the First Regiment; and that Mr. Livingston take Colonel McDougall's receipt for the same, on account of the pay of the First Regiment.

A Letter from David Burger, in Partition Street, New-York, of the 1st instant, complaining of sundry persons in Richmond County who have supplied a Transport, now here, with live stock:

Ordered, That the Letter be delivered to the Richmond County Members, to make inquiry on that subject.

Ordered, That Joseph Robinson, of Jamaica, on Nassau-Island, have leave to receive one hundred weight of Gunpowder, on paying the cash for the same, to Gabriel W. Ludlow or his order, and the said Gabriel W. Ludlow is hereby requested to deliver the same accordingly.

Mr. Gilbert Livingston, from the Committee appointed on Wednesday last to reconsider and report on the residue of the Report of the Committee of Ways and Means, delivered in the said Report, with their amendments, which was read; and the same being again read by paragraphs, the Preamble was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

Whereas a heavy expense has accrued on the credit of this Colony, and the same is likely to increase in our important struggle for the defence of our rights and privileges against tyranny and oppression; and as a large sum of Money is immediately wanted to answer the above important purposes—

The first paragraph, which was agreed to on Wednesday, the 30th ult., was again read, and is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, first, That the means requisite to defray the expenses incurred by this Congress, and to be incurred by the Colony, be supplied by an emission of One Hundred and Twelve Thousand Five Hundred Dollars, (amounting to the sum of Forty-Five Thousand Pounds, New-York currency) to be sunk in the manner following, viz: Fifty-Six Thousand two Hundred and Fifty Dollars, or one-half, the 1st day of March, 1776, and the remaining half part, the 1st day of March, 1777.

The same being read and approved of,

Resolved, That the Congress does agree with their Committee in their said Resolution.

The second paragraph being then read and amended, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, secondly, That Bills of Credit, to the amount of One Hundred and Twelve Thousand Five Hundred Dollars, be immediately printed, as follows, viz:

Five thousand Bills of Ten Dollars each, is	$50,000
Five thousand Bills of Five Dollars each, is	25,000
Five thousand Bills of Three Dollars each, is	15,000
Five thousand Bills of Two Dollars each, is	10,000
Ten thousand Bills of One Dollar each, is	10,000
Five thousand Bills of One-half Dollar each, is	2,500

$112,500

Upon the face of each of which Bills shall be impressed the Arms of the City of New-York, together with such other devices as the Committee appointed for that purpose shall direct; and the said Bills shall be in form following:

"This Bill shall pass current in all payments in this Colony for . . . Spanish milled Dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver, according to the Resolution of the Provincial Congress of New-York, the second day of September, 1775."

Which Bills shall be numbered by Theodorus Van Wyck, Robert Ray, Evert Bancker, John Broome, Eleazer Miller, William Denning, John Sebring, John Reade, Jeremiah Brewer, Thomas Tucker, Abraham Brinckerhoff, Garrit Abeel, Anthony L. Bleecker, Abraham Livingston, and William Mercey, and signed by any three of them: the said Signers, respectively, to deliver said Bills to the Treasurer appointed by this Congress, as soon as finished.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in said Resolution.

The third paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, thirdly, That the said Signers, or any three of them, are hereby directed and required, upon the delivery of the said Bills to them by the Printer of the same, to cause to be administered to him, by a Magistrate, the following Oath, viz: "I, A B, do declare that from the time that the letters were set and fit to be put in the press for printing the Bills of Credit, now by me delivered to you, until the Bills were printed, and the letters afterwards distributed into the boxes, I went at no time out of the room in which the said letters were, without locking them up, so that they could not be come at without violence, or a false key, or other art unknown to me; and, therefore, to the best of my knowledge, no copies were printed off, but in my presence; and that all the blotters and other papers whatsoever impressed by the said letters, whilst set for printing the said Bills, to the best of my knowledge, are here delivered to you, together with the stamps; and in all things relating to this affair I have demeaned myself honestly and faithfully, according to the best of my knowledge and understanding; so help me God."

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said Resolution.

The fourth paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, fourthly, That if any more of the said Bills are printed than is hereby directed, when the abovementioned Signers, or any three of them, have signed the number hereby directed to be issued, they shall immediately burn and destroy all the remainder.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said fourth paragraph.

The fifth paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, fifthly, That . . . or such other person as the major part of said Signers of the said Bills of Credit shall agree with, shall engrave so many Stamps for the said Bills, with such devices, and so many Stamps for the Arms of the City of New-York, as the majority of the said signers shall direct: which engraver shall take the following Oath, to wit: "I, A B, do declare, that I have not engraved more plates than I deliver to the Treasurer, as directed by the Provincial Congress of New-York, of the like kind, or in imitation of the same; neither have I kept copies and draughts of the said plates; neither will I engrave more of the like kind, without the orders of this or some future Congress or House of Assembly." And shall deliver them to the Treasurer of this Congress, who shall, in the presence of the majority of the said Signers, deliver them unto John Holt, Printer, or such other Printer as shall be directed by this Congress or the Committee of Safety, and take his receipt for the same. And when the said John Holt, or such other Printer as shall be employed, has finished and completed the printing the quantity and sorts of Bills hereby directed to be struck and issued, he shall redeliver the said Stamps to the said Signers and Treasurer, who are hereby directed and required to seal them up with their several seals, and they are so to remain with the said Treasurer, until further order of this or some future Provincial Congress; the receipt of the said Treasurer to the said John Holt, or such other Printer, shall be a sufficient voucher for such redelivery.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their said Committee in the said fifth Resolution.

The sixth paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, sixthly, That before the said Signers do receive any of the said Bills, they shall each of them take an Oath or Affirmation, before a proper Magistrate, well and truly to perform what is hereby required as their duty, and that they will knowingly sign no more of the said Bills of Credit than is above directed.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said sixth Resolution.

The seventh paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, seventhly, That the said Treasurer shall pay, out of the said Bills of Credit, all such sums of money as shall be ordered by this Congress, and all such accounts as shall have been audited and approved by the Committee for that purpose by the same Congress appointed or to be appointed.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said seventh Resolution.

The eighth paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, eighthly, That the said sums of Fifty-Six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars, hereby directed to be sunk on the days and times beforementioned, shall be raised, levied, and paid, by the Freeholders, Inhabitants, and residents, in the several and respective Cities and Counties within this Colony, at or within the two several periods beforementioned, according to the quotas and proportions following, that is to say—

The City and County of New-York, —; the City and County of Albany, —; King's County, —; Queen's County, —; Suffolk County, —; Richmond County, —; Westchester County, —; Ulster County, —; Dutchess County, —; Orange County, —; Tryon County, —; Cumberland County, —; Gloucester County, —; Charlotte County, —.

The quotas referred till the Congress meet after the adjournment.

Resolved, That this Congress agrees with their Committee in the said eighth Resolution.

And Agreed and Ordered, That that part of the eighth Resolution which respects the quotas of the respective Counties shall remain to be determined when this Congress meets again.

The ninth paragraph being read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, ninthly, That the Committees of the several Cities, Towns, Manors, Precincts, and Districts, do respectively appoint two or more Assessors, and one or more Collectors.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said ninth Resolution.

The tenth paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, tenthly, That the County Committees be considered as Supervisors, according to the police of the City, County, Town, District, or Precinct, in which they have been chosen; and that they, with the Assessors, under oath, and Collectors, do proceed to assess, raise, and collect, their respective quotas, in the method which in each respective County has heretofore been practised.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said tenth Resolution.

The eleventh paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, eleventhly, That if any person or persons, so rated as aforesaid, shall refuse, delay, or neglect, to pay the said rate, that the said Collectors be authorized to collect and levy the same, by distress, upon the goods and chattels of the defaulters, as heretofore practised.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said eleventh Resolution.

The twelfth paragraph of the said Report being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, twelfthly, That the respective General County Committees do appoint a County Treasurer, into whose hands the respective Collectors be enjoined and required to pay the Money collected in each County, by a certain day, preceding the first day of March then next ensuing, which said County Treasurer shall forthwith transmit the Money by him received to the Colony Treasurer, appointed for that purpose by this Congress. That the several County Committees shall regulate the fees of the respective County Treasurers and their Collectors. The Treasurers' fees not to exceed three Pence, and the Collectors' not to exceed six Pence on the Pound, for the respective sums by each of them received, paid, and collected; such fees to be added to the quotas of the respective Counties.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said twelfth Resolution.

The thirteenth paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, thirteenthly, That the Moneys to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer, by virtue of the above Resolutions, shall be by him applied to sinking the Moneys abovementioned, at the times hereinabove particularly specified.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in the said thirteenth Resolution.

The fourteenth paragraph being then read, is in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, fourteenthly, That in such Counties where Committees have not already, or shall not be appointed by the first day of November next, for the purpose of choosing persons they can confide in for apportioning the quotas and rates, and choosing or appointing Collectors, this Congress will take proper measures for rating and collecting such taxes. And, also, if there be any District or Districts in any County that have not chosen Committees, where notwithstanding the majority of the Districts have chosen Committees, in such case the County Committee are to proceed, in regard to such delinquent District or Districts, in like manner as if said District or Districts, were actually represented in said County Committee. The Assessors of the remaining Districts to assess the inhabitants of such delinquent District or Districts according to the best of their skill and understanding. The County Committees in such case to choose a Collector for such Precinct or Precincts, who is hereby fully empowered to execute his office as effectually as any other Collector hereinbefore directed to be chosen.

Which is humbly submitted: GILBERT LIVINGSTON,
Chairman of the Committee.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in their said fourteenth Resolution.

4to ho. P. M., September 2, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, pro tem.

Resolved and Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, do pay to Colonel Alexander McDougall one thousand and six Pounds, eleven Shillings, and a Penny, to repay the like sum by him borrowed of Mr. John Broome, to advance to the First Regiment as part of their pay; and that Mr. Livingston take Colonel McDougall's receipt for the same.

And Resolved, That the Thanks of this Congress are due to and hereby given to Mr. John Broome, for his zeal in the common cause, evinced by lending, without interest, a large sum of Money for the publick service.

And Ordered, That one of the Secretaries deliver a copy of this Resolution to Mr. Broome.

A. M., Saturday, September 2, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

A draught of a Letter to Samuel Bayard, Jun, Esq., and to Augustus Van Cortlandt, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, September 2, 1775.

SIR: The alarming state of publick affairs commands our attention to the safety of the records under your care; and although we do not at present perceive any immediate danger to this City, yet we are of opinion that matters of such vast importance should not be intrusted to an uncertain contingency. You must be sensible that if by any mischance the office should be destroyed, it would unhinge the property of numbers in this Colony, and throw all our legal proceedings into the most fatal confusion. We do therefore request you to inquire for some place of security to deposite the records under your care, and that you inform the Committee of Safety of such place, that they may give further directions on this subject.

By order of Congress.

Ordered, That two copies thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President pro tem., and that one copy thereof be directed and delivered to Samuel Bayard, Jun., Esq., and the other copy delivered to Augustus Van Cortlandt, Esq., Clerk of the City and County of New-York.

Ordered, That it be referred to the Committee of the City of New-York to consider of the Bill of Exchange drawn on Colonel William Bayard, by Loring, and to determine whether the same ought to be paid.

The President pro tem., by order of the House, gave it in charge to the Members to keep secret that Pork is purchased in Connecticut, and is coming from Connecticut for the use of the Northern Army. And the Members and Secretaries of this Congress are, with the consent of the House, absolved from their obligations to secrecy with respect to Captain Melancton Lawrence, and the Letters taken with him.

Resolved, That this Congress will adjourn this day, until the 2d day of October next; and that a Committee of Safety be appointed during the recess of this Congress, in manner following, to wit:

That New-York appoint three Members, to give four votes; the City and County of Albany appoints one Member, to give three votes; and every other County one Member, to give two votes each; and that such other Members of the several Counties as shall attend, may join in the vote of their respective Counties, or give such vote in the absence of the Member or Members so appointed.

FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW-YORK: Mr. Scott, Mr. Hallett, and Mr. Beekman.

FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF ALBANY: Francis Nicoll.

FOR DUTCHESS COUNTY: Gilbert Livingston.

FOR WESTCHESTER COUNTY: William Paulding.

FOR ULSTER COUNTY: Isaac Roosevelt, (until one of their own Deputies come.)

FOR ORANGE COUNTY: John Haring.

FOR RICHMOND COUNTY: Paul Mischeau.

FOR KING'S COUNTY: Jeremiah Remsen.

FOR QUEEN'S COUNTY: Colonel Blackwell and Jonathan Lawrence, or either of them.

FOR SUFFOLK COUNTY: William Brasher, (until one of their Deputies shall come.)

FOR TRYON COUNTY: Isaac Sears.

FOR CUMBERLAND COUNTY: William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE COUNTY: . . . . .

Resolved, further, That the said votes, or a major part thereof, shall constitute such Committee; and that the said Committee, when met, shall be empowered to open all letters directed to the said Congress, and to answer the same; that they be further empowered to take such measures as they shall think proper to carry into execution all orders of the Continental Congress, and all resolutions and recommendations of this Congress, and to comply with any requisitions made by the Generals of the Continental Army, or any of them, as far as they shall think proper.

That they be authorized to give directions to General Wooster, or the commander or commanders, for the time being, of the Continental Troops stationed in this Colony, now under his command, as also to the Colonels and Officers of the Militia, as well Minute-Men as others, in this Colony, to march and carry into execution the orders and recommendations of the Continental Congress and of this Congress, provided that such directions do not contravene the orders of the Continental Generals; and that they have authority to appropriate such moneys of the Continental Congress, as is now in the hands of the President of this Congress, in payment of the debts already contracted for the publick service, and for the use of the said service, as they shall think necessary, the accounts being first audited and allowed by the Committee of Accounts.

And, further, that the Committee of Safety be empowered to issue commissions to such persons as by the Committees of the several Counties shall be recommended for Field-Officers of the Militia in the said Counties, respectively; and, also, that the said Committee of Safety be enabled to summon this Congress at such day and place as they shall think necessary.

Resolved, further, That the Committee of Safety be empowered to appoint the Signers of the Bills, and do every other act which may be necessary to carry the resolution for emitting a paper currency into execution.

The Members of the Committee of Safety, now present, agreed to meet here at the City Hall, in New-York, on Monday next, at four of the clock in the afternoon.

The Congress then adjourned till the second day of October next, then to meet at the City Hall of the City of New-York, at nine of the clock in the forenoon of that day.

NEW-YORK ASSOCIATION.

General Association adopted by the Freemen, Freeholders, and Inhabitants of the City and County of NEW-YORK, on SATURDAY, the 29th of APRIL, 1775, and transmitted for signing to all the Counties in the Province.

Persuaded that the salvation of the rights and liberties of America depends, under God, on the firm union of its inhabitants in a vigorous prosecution of the measures necessary for its safety, and convinced of the necessity of preventing the anarchy and confusion which attend the dissolution of the powers of Government, we, the Freemen, Freeholders, and Inhabitants [of the City and County of NEW-YORK,] being greatly alarmed at the avowed design of the Ministry to raise a revenue in America, and shocked by the bloody scene now acting in the Massachusetts-Bay, do, in the most solemn manner, resolve never to become slaves; and do associate under all the ties of religion, honour, and love to our Country, to adopt and endeavour to carry into execution whatever measures may be recommended by the Continental Congress, or resolved upon by our Provincial Convention, for the purpose of preserving our Constitution, and opposing the execution of the several arbitrary and oppressive Acts of the British Parliament, until a reconciliation between Great Britain and America, on constitutional principles, (which we most ardently desire,) can be obtained; and that we will in all things follow the advice of our General Committee, respecting the purposes aforesaid, the preservation of peace and good order, and the safety of individuals and private property.

Cornwall Precinct, July 8, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Committee of this Precinct have, according to the Resolve of your honourable Board of the 29th of May last, offered the Association to every person within their limits that they could, and that were proper subjects to offer it to, and have here enclosed it, signed by a large majority. The non-signers are entered on the backs of the papers.

By order of the Committee:

THOMAS MOFFAT, Clerk.

The Hon. P. V. B. Livingston, President of the Honourable Provincial Congress, now sitting in New-York, or, in his absence, to the President pro tem.

July 11, 1775, signed the Association and published the same before all the spectators, calling them to witness, that we would not countenance rebellion, nor have any hand in a riot, but stand for King, Country, and liberty, agreeable to the Charter, but at the same time disallowing taxation in any wise contrary to the Charter, and shall never consent to taxation without being fully represented with our consent :

Those marked * have, on the 14th of July, 1775, sworn to abide by the measures of the Continental Congress.

Whereas we, the subscribers, have refused to sign the Association within the time limited by the Provincial Congress; and whereas our troubles with the Mother Country continue to increase, and we are now convinced that we have no other alternative left but to repel force by force, or submit to be slaves. Sensible that this is our deplorable situation, and in order to continue to link our chain of friendship still more firm, and to convince our friends, and the friends of American liberty in general, we do hereby solemnly and sincerely swear, on the Holy Evangelists, that we will from hence heartily agree and consent to whatsoever our Continental and Provincial Congresses have or may do, direct, ordain, and appoint, for the preservation of our constitutional liberties, and that we will, as much as in us lies, discourage the spirit of opposition that has too unhappily prevailed in some parts of this Country; that we will, from time to time, bear and pay our quota of all expenses, with the rest of our brethren in America, that have already or hereafter may accrue, in defending our liberties afore-said. And we do hereby further swear, that we make this declaration and oath of our own free will and voluntary consent; and in testimony whereof, we have hereunto set our hands this 14th day of July, A. D. 1775.

At a meeting of the Precinct of Newburgh, on Thursday, the 6th of July, 1775, in compliance with a resolve of the Provincial Congress of New-York, requesting us, by the 15th of this instant, to make a return of the Associates, together with those that have not. We lament, gentlemen, that it is our unhappiness that there is such a number of the latter, and a number among them who are the most daring, presumptuous villains, often threatening lives, properties, and individuals, damning Congresses and Committees, declaring they will join our enemies, if opportunity presents, and by the general spirit they discover, we conceive ourselves exposed to their bloody principles, unless some method can be fallen upon for the preventing them in carrying into execution their wicked design, which we submit to your wisdom, conceiving ourselves safe under your wise protection.

Enclosed you have a list of the names of those that have associated, and those that have not. By order of the Committee :

WOLVERT ECKER, Chairman.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

ISAAC SMITH.

Not to infringe on my oaths. ABRAHAM BECKER.

June 8, 1775.

This may certify, to all people whom it may concern, that I, the subscriber, am willing to do what is just and right to secure the privileges of America, both civil and sacred, and to follow the advice of our reverend Congress, so far as they do the word of God and the example of Jesus Christ; and I hope, in the grace of God, no more will be required. As witness my hand:

JOHN GARNSEY.

The following persons (three Tories) have neglected to sign the Association: Joel Harvey, Jun., Philip Rowe; John Garnsey has signed the paper annexed.

ROSWELL HOPKINS.

Amenia, July 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your request, I have procured the persons within mentioned to subscribe the Association, together with Mr. Samuel King and Mr. Silas Marsh, all in Amenia Precinct, in Dutchess County. The two lists of Mr. Marsh and this have four hundred and twenty signers, and six have delayed or refused.

I am, Gentlemen, yours, &c., ROSWELL HOPKINS.

We, the subscribers, inhabitants of the Colony of New-York, do most solemnly declare, that the claims of the British Parliament to bind, at their discretion, the people of the United Colonies in America in all cases whatsoever are, in our opinions, absurd, unjust, and tyrannical; and that the hostile attempts of their fleets and armies to enforce submission to those wicked and ridiculous claims ought to be resisted by arms. And therefore we do engage and associate, under all the ties which we respectively hold sacred, to defend by arms these United Colonies against the said hostile attempts, agreeable to such laws or regulations as our representatives in the Congress, or future General Assemblies of this Colony, have or shall, for that purpose, make and establish.

SAMUEL WHITTEN.

ISLIP PRECINCT, SUFFOLK COUNTY.

At a town-meeting of the Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Precinct of Islip, in the said County, on the 13th day of May, Anno Domini 1775, it was agreed upon by the subscribers to assent to and acquiesce in the measures prescribed by the foregoing Association; but, from the small number of us, think it inexpedient to send a Deputy, but choose rather to abide by the determination of the other Deputies of the County. And as some of us are of the people called Quakers, we mean to act no further than is consistent with our religious principles. [Not one of the Quakers signed the Association.]

The names underwritten are the names of those persons that did not choose to sign the foregoing Association: Platt Smith, Nathaniel Smith, Israel Howell, Jr., Caleb Wood, Jeremiah Homan.

The following are the people called Quakers: Richard Willets, David Willets, Jacob Willets, Jacob Willets, Jr., John Willets, Job Willets, Jacob Willets, 3d, Obadiah Green, Adonijah Underhill.

Islip, June 29, 1775.

Pursuant to the recommendation of the Provincial Congress at New-York, to William Nicoll, Esq., Mr. Richard Willets, and me, directed, I have made a tender of the enclosed Association, &c., to those persons who declined signing it at our town-meeting; and the names of such as still decline to sign it are returned herewith.

ISAAC THOMPSON.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress at New-York.

P. S. There are a number of persons that live within the bounds of this Precinct that have signed the Association at Huntington and at Smithtown, whose names are not on this paper.

EBENEZER DAYTON.

We, the subscribers, do most solemnly declare that the claims of the British Parliament to bind at their discretion the people of the United Colonies in America in all cases whatsoever, are, in our opinions, absurd, unjust, and tyrannical; and that the hostile attempts of their Fleets and Armies to enforce submission to those wicked and ridiculous claims ought to be resisted by arms; and therefore we do engage and associate, under all the ties which we respectively hold sacred, to defend by arms these United Colonies, against the said hostile attempts, agreeable to such laws or regulations as our representatives in the Congress or future General Assemblies of this Colony have or shall for that purpose make and establish.

Since our naming, I hear that Captain Hudson has signed, and most of Captain Lupton's Company will. Captain Lupton has been down and signed. I likewise hear that the tories at Malaluck had a meeting and signed, or did something, but I fear they are all like Major Weekham, only to deceive. I should have written you a letter, but am in great haste, and have no paper, nor have time to go for any.

PHINEAS FANNING.

To Ezra L'Hommedieu, Esq.

The number of the list is fifty-three; and the number that is wanting is eleven.

Whitehall, September 1, 1775.

The House of Representatives of the Province of Nova-Scotia, in North-America, having unanimously agreed to a loyal and dutiful address, petition, and memorial, to the King's most excellent Majesty, the Lords spiritual and temporal, and the Commons of Great Britain, in Parliament assembled, containing declarations of their obedience and submission to the authority of the Parliament of Great Britain, as the supreme legislature of that Province, and of all the British Dominions, and of their readiness, as an indispensable duty, to submit to the payment of such taxes, to be raised upon a permanent plan, and at the disposal of Parliament, as shall be their due proportion of the expenses of the Empire; and William Nesbitt, Esq., Speaker of the said House of Representatives, having transmitted a transcript of the said loyal and dutiful address, petition, and memorial, to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, it was this day presented to His Majesty, and most graciously received.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM IRELAND TO AN ACQUAINTANCE IN NEW-YORK, DATED SEPTEMBER 1, 1775.

Though most of the people here wish well to the cause in which you are engaged, and would rejoice to find you continue firm and steadfast, yet it is the prevailing opinion, especially among the friends to Government, (so called,) that you will be at last frightened into submission to ministerial measures. They are raising recruits throughout this Kingdom. The men are told they are only going to Edinburgh to learn military discipline, and are then to return. The common people are industriously kept from the knowledge of publick affairs. They know nothing but what the great people please to let them. Newspapers, since the Stamp Act, are so high, the poor and middling people cannot purchase them, nor even an almanack; not one of which is to be found within sixty miles, except among the great folks; however, so few are sold, that it is thought there will be no more printed, unless the act is repealed, which is expected next session.

It is most grievous to bear the innumerable burdens they have imposed upon the people here. It is intended to send several Bishops to America, (one at least to every city,) with salaries of four hundred Pounds sterling each, to be paid by the people where they are stationed. It is expected that New-York will be the first to submit to any terms that shall be offered; and great pains have been taken to spread a general belief that the people in all the Colonies are mere cowards, ready to run at the sight of an army. The newspapers that are most circulated are filled with such stuff, but not a word of any thing spirited on your part, so that our people are altogether ignorant of the true state of affairs with you.

Dear countrymen and fellow-sufferers, who have been so happy as to have your lot in a land of liberty, though now persecuted and your rights invaded, suffer not your most precious inheritance, your liberty and property, your noble Constitution, to be torn from you. You are contending for what is of more value than life; fear not to risk your lives freely in defence of it. Keep your presses free, that the people may know all that concerns them and all that is doing against them. By every means in your power keep corruption from influencing any of your offices of publick trust; you cannot possibly be too much guarded against this terrible evil, which has almost undone us here. Let not arbitrary power and despotism have any footing among you. Many in this Country, who groan under it, would be glad to give their utmost assistance, and hope to be over with you before the contest is ended.

It is my opinion that if you continue firm, you will, without doubt, succeed in your glorious struggle; justice will give strength to your arms, and weaken those of your enemies. God himself is on your side, and will cause them to fall before you. Meanwhile, let me caution you against the least appearance of submission. You can hardly conceive the ill effects of every thing that may feed the hopes of your enemies; even base complaisance in this case is criminal, for like drowning men they are ready to catch at straws, and, if possible, interpret every thing you say or do in favour of their own designs, whereby they are encouraged to continue their efforts to subdue you. It behooves you, therefore, to be resolute, plain, and absolute, in your refusal of every proposal that implies giving up one tittle of your rights and liberties, or might bring them into the least danger, and resist every attempt against them with all your might. The least slackness or compliance on your part will embolden them to proceed in their endeavours to enforce their laws, to tax and enslave you. May God guide and protect you. Amen.

I am a sincere friend to the natural rights and liberty of mankind, and yours, &c. M. W.

P. S. It is reported that Charles Stuart is preparing to make an attempt to obtain the Crown of Scotland. I wait for further intelligence.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN VIRGINIA TO HIS FRIEND IN EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND, DATED MIDDLESEX, SEPTEMBER 1, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I embrace this favourable opportunity of writing you by a gentleman who intends to reside in Scot- land with his lady and family. As to the present state of Virginia, I refer you to them. Tears stand in my eyes when I think or write of this once happy, thrice happy land of liberty.

All is anarchy and confusion. A brave people struggling in opposition to the acts of the British Parliament. We are all in arms, exercising and training old and young to the use of the gun. No person goes abroad without his sword, or gun, or pistols. The sound of war echoes from north to south. Every plain is full of armed men, who all wear a hunting shirt, on the left breast of which are sewed, in very legible letters, "Liberty or Death." May God put a speedy and happy end to this grand and important contest between the mother and her children. The Colonies do not wish to be independent; they only deny the right of taxation in the Parliament. They would freely grant the King whatever he pleases to request of their own Assemblies, provided the Parliament has no hand in the disposing of it.

This dispute has put an end to all trade and commerce. The Country is on the brink of destruction. The rising glory of America is totally eclipsed, and, unless some prudent means be fallen on to bring about a reconciliation, I tremble for the consequences. The troubles of the year 1745 were but like a flea-bite to the present commotions. Never was there heard of such an unanimity as prevails through this extensive Empire in the glorious cause of liberty. All ranks and conditions of men have laid aside all sorts of extravagance in living and dressing, vying with one another who shall wear most of their own manufactory. You would hardly believe the quantity of cotton cloth that is annually manufactured here could be made. I do assure you no women in any part of the world can be more industrious than those in Virginia. They labour under one great disadvantage; which is, their being entirely ignorant of the ways of making of linen, which they will severely feel next year, this warm climate requiring more of that article than any other.

WILLIAM TENNENT TO THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY FOR SOUTH-CAROLINA.

Long Cane, September 1, 1775.

This comes by Captain George Reid's wagon from the Long Canes, where I am at present. I parted from Mr. Drayton on Monday morning; he steered his course to Augusta, and thence designed for the camp at Amelia. I thought it necessary to visit the settlements on this side of Saluda. Met a large congregation yesterday, and found the people divided in their sentiments. Spoke at least two hours to them, to good effect. The prevailing party here is for American measures, by the agency of some of our worthy members; but they need confirmation. I have therefore appointed three meetings, at which I expect to see the greater number of the disaffected. I shall then cross over into Fletchall's Regiment once more, to be at an election appointed at Ford's, on Enoree, where we expect great opposition, if not violence, from Cunningham's party. Brown will bring them to blood if he can, but I still hope it may be prevented. I consider myself as running great risks, but think it my duty.

Our visit has given their party a great shock, divided their friends, and strengthened our interest much. One of their chiefs confessed to me, at Little River, that he brought up the thanks of the Governour to Mr. Cunningham, for what he had done and is doing. The Governour's intrigue here is as evident as the light of the sun. The evidences of their design, by the Indians, is no doubt clear to the Council, from the papers sent down already.

The inhabitants here are in great terrour, as far as they have heard of their danger, and that because they have no ammunition. The leaders have frequently dropped in company that they intend to form a camp. I am sure they will find a smaller number ready to befriend them than they imagine. But their dependance is upon the savages to join their army, and that the rest of the inhabitants will be forced to join them, to save their families from a massacre. I am taking proper measures, in this District, to prevent the horrible conspiracy. Three volunteer companies are formed; one under Major Terry, who now seems animated in the cause; another under Captain Pickins; a third under Captain James McCall. More of the like kind is going on as fast as may be. The great difficulty is the want of ammunition. They evidently have a design upon Fort Charlotte, and our friends cannot collect to defend it, unless they are supplied; I have therefore promised them a supply. If you, therefore, gentlemen, think it proper, it will be of the greatest utility to send up one hundred or one hundred and fifty pounds weight of powder, and some lead, by the bearer, Samuel Reid, who will effectually secrete it until delivered safe into the hands of the volunteer Companies, to be subject to the order of the Council in case it is not used for the defence of the Colony. It will be effectually secured, and a small delay may be greatly dangerous. The same measure will be necessary on the other side of Broad River.

I could wish that Virginia might be alarmed and ready, and that a categorical answer might be demanded of the Cherokees before the time of danger. The Creeks are in some danger from one Thompson, an emissary, now among them. I shall visit Fort Charlotte before I return, and hope to let you hear more particularly on these subjects next week.

PHILADELPHIA COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Philadelphia County, September 1, 1775.

In Committee, Resolved, That it be recommended to the Township Committees and the Captains of the different Companies, and they are hereby enjoined to make returns to this Committee of the Associators, Non-Associators, &c., in their respective Districts, agreeable to the directions of the Committee of Safety, on Friday, the 22d instant; and that the Colonels of each Battalion in this County do, at the same time, return the names of the Officers of their respective Battalions, with their ranks and seniority in Battalion.

The Committee adjourned to Friday, the 22d instant, to meet at the house of Jacob Neaff, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

The Committee met Friday, September 1, 1775. Present: Henry Remsen, Chairman, and thirty-five Members.

The Deposition of George Van Schamp, relative to Sergeant Graham's conduct in Boston, received and read.

The Memorial of Stephen Skinner, Esq., received and read, praying leave to land some Trunks and Bedding, the property of Miss Johnson, Miss Kemble, and Mrs. Lee.

Ordered, That leave be given accordingly, and that Mr. O. Templeton and Mr. John Broome be a Sub-Committee to examine the same.

Ordered, That the Chairman be requested to write a letter of thanks to the different Committees in New-Jersey and Orangetown, for their polite behaviour to Captain Dobbs.

New-York Committee Chamber, September 1, 1775.

Whereas this Committee, by their Resolution of the 1st of May last, and the Continental Congress, by their Resolve of the 27th of said month, ordered, that no Provisions should be exported to Quebeck, Nova-Scotia, Georgia, Newfoundland, or any part of the fishing coast or fishing islands to the eastward of Nantucket: And whereas it appears to this Committee, by the Depositions of Charles De Kay, master, and Thomas Millroy, mate of the Sloop Sally, whereof John Christian Drewidts and Moses Delis Dernier are owners, that they, the said John Christian Drewidts and Moses Delis Dernier, did load the said sloop with Provisions; and the said Moses Delis Dernier did proceed with her, so loaded, to Nova-Scotia, and there disposed of the same, in violation of the Resolve of the said Continental Congress: And whereas it further appears, by the Deposition of Captain Jenking, late master of the Sloop Elizabeth, whereof Thomas Ludlow was owner, that the said Thomas Ludlow did load the said sloop in the Port of New-York, with Provisions; and with her so loaded, did proceed to the Island of Newfoundland, and there disposed of the same, in violation of the aforesaid Resolve:

Resolved, 1st, That the Depositions of the said Charles De Kay, Thomas Millroy, and Richard Jenking, be published in the newspapers in this City.

Resolved. 2d. That the said John Christian Drewidts, Moses Delis Dernier, Charles De Kay, and Thomas Ludlow, have knowingly violated the beforementioned Resolve of the Continental Congress, and the General Association entered into by the inhabitants of this City and County; and that the said John Christian Drewidts, Moses Delis Dernier, Charles De Kay, and Thomas Ludlow, have severally acted inimically to, and have been guilty of a high infringement of a Resolve of the associated American Colonies.

By order of the Committee:

HENRY REMSEN, Dep'y Chairman.

City of New-York, ss.

Charles De Kay, of the City of New-York, Mariner, and commander of the Sloop Sally, now lying in the Port of New-York, being duly sworn, makes oath, that on or about the beginning of June last, he sailed from the said Port of New-York, on board of the said sloop, as master and commander thereof, with a cargo consisting of flour, rye meal, bread, pork, Indian corn, rum, and some boards, to the river called Pettiquit Jack, in Nova-Scotia, where Mr. Moses Delis Dernier, supercargo and part owner of the said sloop and cargo, disposed of a small part of the said cargo, to wit: of some of the flour and some of the bread; that from thence he proceeded with the remainder of the said cargo on board of the said sloop, to the Township of Shippody, in the Province of Nova-Scotia aforesaid, and there discharged some part of the said cargo, by the direction of the said Moses Delis Dernier; that from the Township of Shippody he proceeded with the said sloop and the residue of the said cargo to the Town of Cumberland, in the Province aforesaid, where the said sloop was discharged of her said cargo, and the same was disposed of in the manner following, to wit: part to Mr. John Avary, of Windsor, then at Cumberland aforesaid, who loaded or put the part so purchased by him on board of a schooner, to go to Windsor aforesaid, part consisting of flour, bread, iron, and steel, amounting to about the sum of two hundred and ninety odd Pounds sterling in value, to Mr. Thomas Clough, of the Town of Boston, (which he told the deponent he intended to carry or convey to Windsor aforesaid, or Machias, in order therewith to purchase a cargo for the West-Indies, which the deponent believed to be true,) and the rest in small parcels to the inhabitants of the said Town of Cumberland; that that part of the said cargo sold to the said Thomas Clough, as aforesaid, was sold for the same price that the said John Avary purchased at; that the deponent had no knowledge or expectation, or belief, at the time of the sale of part of the said cargo to the said Thomas Clough, that he intended to convey any part thereof so purchased by him to any other place than Windsor or Machias aforesaid, for the purposes aforesaid; and that he, the deponent, verily believes, and is well assured, that the said Thomas Clough did not convey any part of the said cargo, so purchased by him as aforesaid, to the Town of Boston; and this deponent further saith, that the said sloop's cargo being discharged and disposed of as aforesaid, he proceeded from Cumberland aforesaid, on board of the said sloop, in ballast, to this City, where he arrived about the 23d instant; and this deponent further saith, that besides the sloop's cargo beforementioned, he had an adventure belonging to him, the deponent, on board, of two hundred and fifty weight of hams, and one hundred and fifty gallons of rum, which were disposed of at Cumberland aforesaid, in small parcels, to the inhabitants; and further the deponent saith, that before he left New-York, in the said voyage, he, the deponent, was informed by Moses Delis Dernier, one of the owners of the said vessel, that she was bound for the Bay of Fundy; and the said Moses told him, that he would have applied to the Committee, to have got leave to have gone there, but that he was afraid that the port would have been shut; and further the deponent saith not.

WHITEHEAD HICKS, Mayor.

City of New-York, ss.

Thomas Millroy, of the Isle-of-Man, Mariner, and mate of the Sloop Sally, now lying in the Port of New-York, being duly sworn, maketh oath, that on or about the beginning of June last, he sailed from the said Port of New-York, on board the said sloop, as mate thereof, with a cargo consisting of flour, rye meal, bread, pork, Indian corn, rum, and some boards, bound for the West-Indies, as he was informed by the master of the said sloop. When they had got out at sea about eighteen hours' sail, Captain Charles De Kay told the deponent they were bound for the Bay of Fundy. At their arrival in the Bay of Fundy, at a place called Pettiquit Jack, where our supercargo, Mr. Moses Delis Dernier, sold some of the cargo; from thence we went to the Township of Shippody River, and there we discharged part of the cargo, by the directions of said Moses Delis Dernier; from thence we went to Cumberland, in the Province aforesaid, and there we discharged the whole of the cargo we had left, by the order of our supercargo; and then took in ballast, and filled our casks with water, and sailed from thence to New-York, where we arrived the 25th of August, 1775, at Sandy-Hook, or near the Narrows, where the Captain left the sloop and went up to New-York. Before he left the sloop he desired me, if any person inquired where they came from, should say from St. Eustatia; and also desired me to give the people a caution; which I accordingly did.

THOMAS MILLROY.

Sworn this 31st day of August, 1775, before me,

WILLIAM WADDELL, Alderman.

I, Richard Jenking, sailed from New-York on the 28th of May last, as master of the Sloop Elizabeth, belonging to Mr. Thomas Ludlow, laden with provisions, to wit: bread, flour, pork, Indian corn, and a small parcel of iron; that the said Thomas Ludlow went with me, as owner and supercargo, and took with him four negroes, three of which I understood were his own. We came to an anchor that day within Sandy-Hook light-house; next day about noon got under way, and put to sea. I took the log-book and marked it towards Bermuda; and that he then told me not to be surprised, that he intended to go to Newfoundland. I found myself obliged to follow his orders, and shaped a course for Cape Race. The 14th of June, arrived at the harbour of Trespas, in Newfoundland, and there landed the cargo, which he sold to Jackson & Hallet, merchants, of Topsham, for sixteen and sixpence sterling, round, as he informed me. I differed with him there, for deceiving me, and would have left him, could I have got a passage home. He took a passage in a small vessel belonging to Mr. Jackson, for Quebeck, and gave me my sailing orders to follow him, which I did: he arrived at Quebeck some days before me. At my arrival, he ordered me to haul the vessel close into the Town in the mud. In a few days he informed me that he was going to take on board cattle for the West-Indies. I demanded my discharge, and told him I would not proceed any further with him. He insisted I should; on which high words arose between us. I still persisted in my resolution to leave him. In a few days he provided another master, and discharged me. I procured a passage to Saybrook, in the Sloop Betsey, Norman Morrison, master, and arrived at Saybrook the 20th instant; from thence I proceeded here, and arrived the 27th.

DAVID BURGER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, September 1, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I take this opportunity, from the regard that I have for the cause of American freedom, to acquaint you that there is a set of judicious people that live on Staten-Island, who, for the sake of a little gain, would sell their and the Country's privileges, as appears by their selling to the Troops, which they have done last Tuesday, such as hogs, sheep, geese, ducks, and fowls, to go on board the ship that lies now in the North River, to go to Boston, and are determined to continue thus in letting them have such stock as they want, as far as they are able to supply them, and will spare no pains to provide for them. Mr. Cubberly is to let them have some stock. As he is not willing to bring them up himself, for fear of being discovered in so doing, so that they are to call for them, and he will let them have as far as he can spare. Last Tuesday they had the abovementioned stock from John Van Pelt, Cornelius Martin, Benjamin Martin, John Keteltas, Jacob Barregar, and Mary Barregar. The notice to you is from a friend to the cause of America, desiring that I should acquaint you of the same, which I do, as it is my and every friend's duty to the cause of America. From your humble servant,

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ALBANY TO A GENTLEMAN IN NORWICH, CONNECTICUT, DATED SEPTEMBER 1, 1775.

Business of all kinds is entirely stagnated here. Since the primitive chaos gave place to creation, I question if there has been such a scene of confusion as this place has exhibited for a month past. When the wind is southerly, sloops are continually arriving, sometimes six or seven in one day, filled with veteran troops. They encamp, while here, upon the Flats, near the Patroon's, and many of them lodge in sheds, barns, &c. It is said they are all bound for Canada, and propose to winter in Quebeck.

Volkert P. Douw, one of the Commissioners appointed by the Congress for managing Indian affairs, has been inviting the Six Nations to come and visit their brethren at Albany, and hold a conference with him and his colleagues, General Schuyler and Colonel Goose Van Schaick. In consequence of said invitation, upwards of four hundred Indians, with their squaws and papooses, have been here these three weeks past. There have been two publick conferences between them and the Commissioners, and one private in the Presbyterian Meeting-House. The savages declare that they will not lift the hatchet against their King and brethren on the other side of the great water, but observe an exact neutrality, unless either party shall attempt to garrison Fort Stanwix, or shut up their communication with Canada; in which case they will consider them who does it to be their enemy. They are now waiting until they receive their presents, which are soon expected from New-York. General Schuyler's Regiment, at Ticonderoga, embarked yesterday for St. John's.

Watertown, August 21, 1775.

The following Letter was very privately sent from Falmouth, in Casco-Bay, to the late execrable Governour Hutchinson, and lately found among his papers. As some persons have been suspected of signing it, who are entirely innocent, it is now given to the publick, that such pernicious conduct may be chargeable on those only who are guilty of it:

Falmouth, February 10, 1774.

SIR: Being informed that your Excellency intends soon to embark for England, and fearing that certain resolves lately passed in a meeting of this Town, which your Excellency will probably soon see in print, may create unfavourable impressions in your Excellency's mind against the Town, we beg leave to inform you that many of us disapprove of all the proceedings of the said town-meeting, and all of us utterly dislike the indecent reflections on the Administration at home, the East-India Company, and in particular what is said respecting your Excellency.

We further disapprove of the resolve acknowledging any obligations to Boston, for their conduct respecting the tea ships, and are determined to use our influence at the next annual March meeting to obtain a reconsideration of the said resolves.

Wishing your Excellency a prosperous voyage, we are, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient humble servants,

To His Excellency Thomas Hutchinson, Esq.

Falmouth, September 1, 1775.

We, the subscribers, declare that, in signing the letter to Governour Hutchinson, of the 10th of February, 1774, lately published, it was the furthest from our intentions to injure or offend our Town or Country, or to signify our approbation of those acts of Parliament which are so universally and justly odious to America. We really thought Governour Hutchinson was a friend to his Country, and hoped he would have endeavoured, when in England, to obtain a redress of our grievances, and are sorry to find ourselves mistaken. We detest the thought of knowingly countenancing or encouraging an enemy to our once happy Constitution; and had we then been convinced that he was one, as we now are, we should never have signed that letter. We further declare, that it has always been our determination to observe the Association and Resolves of the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and hope this declaration will be satisfactory to the publick, whose favour we shall always think ourselves happy in deserving.

ENOCH ILSLEY,	JOHN KENT,
THEO. BRADBURY,	SIMEON MAYO,
THOMAS SANDFORD,	MOSES SHATTUCK.

I, the subscriber, one of the signers of a letter to Governour Hutchinson, bearing date February 10th, 1774, lately published in the newspapers, do solemnly declare to the publick, that I consider, and always have considered, the Ministerial plan of taxing America without her consent as unconstitutional and oppressive; that I heartily approve of the present mode of defending ourselves against the violence of Ministerial Troops, and I have cheerfully obeyed all the Resolves of the Continental and Provincial Congresses; that I now consider said Hutchinson as one of the greatest enemies of our natural and chartered rights; and had he then appeared to me in the light that he has since, I should not have signed said letter. I further declare, that I did not disapprove of the substance of the Resolves of the Town of Falmouth, which the letter refers to, only of certain reflections on persons, which then appeared to me needless and imprudent, and which I then publicly objected to; therefore, I hope to be still considered as a friend to the liberties of America, and that the candid publick will forgive my error in signing said letter.

BENJAMIN TITCOMB.

Falmouth, September 5, 1775.

Whereas we, the subscribers, with sundry others, in February, 1774, signed a letter to the late Governour Hutchinson; in doing which, we then thought we were serving the publick in general, and this Town in special; but now, finding it has given offence to many persons, we in this publick manner declare, that we had not the least design to offend the publick, or any individual, much less to injure the cause of America, the just rights and liberties whereof we are at all times ready to exert our best abilities to support and defend. Nor have we ever had the most secret wish that the late acts of Parliament, or any one of them, should take place in this country; nor should we have sent said letter to Governour Hutchinson, had we not supposed at that time he was a friend to his native country, but are now very sorry we wrote him.

STEPHEN LONGFELLOW,
DAVID WYER, JUN.,
THOMAS OXNARD.

Falmouth, September 1, 1775.

Finding that a letter which I signed, to the late Governour Hutchinson, in February, 1774, has given offence to many, I embrace this opportunity publickly to declare, that I signed it with a view to serve the publick in general, and the Town in particular; and that I, by signing thereof, had no intention to approve of Governour Hutchinson's conduct, or the transactions of the Ministry, Parliament, or East-India Company; and I sincerely beg the forgiveness of all those whom I have by my conduct at this time offended.

JER. POTE.

Whereas I, the subscriber, with several others, in February, 1774, subscribed a letter to the late Governour Hutchinson, in doing which I then apprehended I was doing service to the publick in general, and to this Town in special; but finding said letter has given offence to many persons, I hereby declare I had not the least design to give offence to the publick, or any individual, much less to injure the cause of America, whose just rights and liberties I am at all times ready to exert my best abilities to support and defend; nor have I ever had the most secret wish that the late Acts of Parliament, or any of them, should take place in the Colonies; nor should I have been concerned in sending said letter, had I not supposed at that time that Governour Hutchinson was a friend to his native country.

THOMAS CUMMING.

Falmouth, September 1, 1775.

As the publick may expect my acquainting them with my reasons for signing a letter to the late Governour Hutchinson, in February, 1774, I take this opportunity to declare, that my sole motives for signing that letter were a view to the publick good, and a wish to serve this Town in particular, to which I acknowledge myself under the greatest obligations. And, further, that I had no intention thereby to approve of Governour Hutchinson's publick conduct, the conduct of the Ministry, or East-India Company. Since I have been an inhabitant of this Province, it has always been my study to avoid giving offence; and I sincerely wish the forgiveness of those who have been offended by that letter.

RICHARD PENN AND ARTHUR LEE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read November 9, 1775.]

London, September 2, 1775.

HONOURABLE SIR: On the 21st of last month we sent to the Secretary of State for America a copy of the petition from the General Congress; and yesterday, the first moment that was permitted us, we presented to him the original, which his Lordship promised to deliver to His Majesty.

We thought it our duty to press his Lordship to obtain an answer; but we were told, as His Majesty did not receive it on the throne, no answer would be given.

We have the honour of being, honourable Sir, your most faithful and obedient servants, &c.

CAPTAIN PHINEAS RUMSEY TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

September 19, 1775.

SIR: I desire the enclosed Petition may be laid before the Congress, or the Committee of Safety where the Militia Commissions come from, that I may have a hearing before the commissions for Dr. Pierson be given out.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

PHINEAS RUMSEY.

Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., or to John McKesson, Esq., in New-York.

To the Honourable the Members of the Provincial Congress in NEW-YORK assembled:

The humble Petition of the several persons whose names are hereunto subscribed, sheweth:

That on the 23d day of August, 1775, came on the choice of electing a Captain for one of our last division of Goshen Township Companies, in Orange County, at which Captain Phineas Rumsey, Dr. Silas Peirson, and Stephen Gilbert, were candidates:

That Archibald Little, Esq., and Nathaniel Satterly, two of the Committee of Blooming Grove, were appointed to be the returning officers to take in the poll, to which they proceeded in the order as the Congress directs, at which Phineas Rumsey obtained the most votes to continue Captain; and in said order, John Vail and John Woodhull Tichel were, by a majority, chosen First and Second Lieutenants, by fair votes, and, as said judges say, were returned accordingly; but said Peirson and Gilbert being disappointed, together with a small party of the people who were their associates, thinking to gain their ends by taking the advantage of some words that they say said Rumsey spoke, as they suppose in violation of one of the orders of the Congress, about choosing the warranted or non-commissioned officers, and said Gilbert entered a complaint to said Committee of Blooming Grove, of which he himself is a member, and obtained a citation for said Rumsey, and served the same the day of trial, which day he could not attend, as he was engaged for the space of ten days before that to go to Warwick that day to do business of consequence that could not be omitted; neither could said Rumsey come to trial on so short a notice, as one of his material evidences was in New-York at that time. Said Rumsey sent said John Vail, who informed said Committee of his circumstances, but they, not thinking proper to adjourn, met and proceeded to try said Rumsey, and voted themselves that Rumsey's notice was too quick to be then tried, but the discontented party thinking it their most proper time to try him when he was not there to vindicate himself. All informed the said Committee that they were evidences, and would not appear again; at which said Committee gratified them, and on their verbal words condemned Rumsey, and adjudged him unfit to wear a commission; but said Committee must not have known that all those men were equally prosecutors, or they would not have condemned the man without one legal witness, and stopped the commissions coming to the other officers who were legally chosen, and no complaint entered against. Said Committee ordered a second choice, at which we attended, where said Little and Zachariah Dubois were returning officers, who did proceed to take in the poll in a very irregular manner, as the men that pretended to vote for them were but few in numbers, and did not choose to appear with so small a party of the Company, and we declined voting a second time, until we had further orders from this honourable House, as we thought we had gone according to their direction in our first choice; but these few who were discontented with the first choice had procured several voters out of other Companies, and some that did not live in the County, who all voted once, and some, it is said, twice, as it was not in the power of the officers to know who had voted, or how often, as they were not less than eight or ten deep, all crowded around the table from different parts of the country; by which means they voted in Dr. Silas Peirson Captain, and other Lieutenants to command, as contrary to order and our inclination, and said they would return the same accordingly.

That your petitioners humbly conceive the said proceedings not only to be a manifest wrong to the said Captain Rumsey and said law, but a violation of the rights of your petitioners and others, the electors of our neighbouring Companies, whose discontented parties are encouraged by their success, and now following their example, to the great annoyance of peace in our Country. Your petitioners, therefore, humbly pray this honourable House to take their case into consideration, and to give them such relief therein as to this honourable House shall seem meet; and your petitioners shall ever pray.

PETITION OF JOHN MCKINNEY TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

To the Honourable Members of the Provincial Congress, at this time convened in the City of New-York:

The Petition of JOHN MCKINNEY most humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, with his wife and family, are under the greatest distress of mind, at the confinement and misfortunes of Captain John Kendall, who has for some time past been married to your petitioner's daughter, who is very lately brought to bed, and now lies in so truly deplorable a manner that her life is much despaired of, and that in great part attributed to her husband's present unhappy situation. That your petitioner is unspeakably concerned at the said John Kendall's being under the censure and displeasure of this honourable Board, but does not mean to vindicate, in the least, any misconduct he may have been guilty of; only means hereby to hope his own and family's present unhappiness may be speedily alleviated by your feeling consideration. That your petitioner has been many years an inhabitant of this city; has, with great care and trouble, brought up a large family; is a freeman and freeholder, and would willingly become the said John Kendall's security that he shall in future behave himself in a becoming manner; that he shall not take up arms, or otherwise behave offensively against the Continental Army, nor shall go on board any of His Majesty's ships of war, or otherwise your petitioner is willing to be bound as this honourable Board shall see reasonable and requisite. Wherefore, your petitioner earnestly prays that the premises may, in the most convenient time, be taken into consideration by this honourable Board, that his security may be taken for the future good conduct of the said John Kendall, and be thereupon discharged from his present confinement; for which great favour your petitioner, with his family, will ever most sincerely pray, &c.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN AT ALBANY, DATED SEPTEMBER 2, 1775.

By an express arrived last night, we hear there has been some skirmish, near St. John's, between a reconnoitering party of our men in a boat, and a boat of Regulars, Canadians, and Indians. The General's letter on the occasion mentions that the Captain of our party was killed (one Baker) and a number of whites, and two Indians of the enemy were slain; that General Montgomery, with twelve hundred men, set off the first of the week for St. John's, and were to muster on the Isle-aux-Noix, until joined by General Schuyler, who, with about as many more men, has by this time arrived, so that within a very few days it is possible the blow will be struck which shall determine the fate of three Provinces. And here I must wait, an idle listener to news, merely because hard necessity ties me down, as our men cannot yet march for want of their campaign equipage.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ALBANY TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED SEPTEMBER 5, 1775.

Before you get this you will hear of the unhappy affair of Captain Baker, near St. John's. It seems Baker had often been sent out by General Schuyler, to make observations, but always with strict orders never to molest either Canadians or Indians. The last tour was without any orders from the General; and landing somewhere on the shore of the lake, he indiscreetly or wickedly snapped his firelock at some Indians he saw near him; immediately he was fired at and slain, on which his people returned the fire, and killed two of the savages. This matter was immediately represented in its true colours, by the Commissioners of Indian affairs, to the Six Nations now in Congress in this City, who thanked them for their candour; and, in order to put out the flame which this unhappy affair could not help kindling, a Lieutenant sets out to day, with four Mohawk Indians and an interpreter, to join General Schuyler, wherever he shall be, to endeavour to make up matters. This affair was prodigiously misrepresented here at first.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 2, 1775.

SIR: I am favoured with your Excellency's letter of the 31st of last month, by Captain Baylor, who hath purchased the warlike stores imported by Messrs. Clarke & Nightingale. The prices appear to be very high, but, considering the cost, expenses, and risk, I believe they are as low as can be reasonably expected.

In the letter I did myself the honour to write you, by Mr. Brown, I mentioned the extreme scarcity of tow cloth in the Colony. There is indeed none to be purchased.

The Committee appointed to act during the recess of the General Assembly, have given your proposal, for taking the powder from Bermuda, a full consideration, and have come to a resolution to make the attempt. Captain Abraham Whipple, the Commodore of the two armed vessels in the service of this Colony, who has been very ill, but is now upon the recovery, has been consulted, and will undertake the enterprise as soon as his health will permit. He is deemed the most suitable person to conduct it that we have. He requests your Excellency to give him a line, under your hand, assuring the people of Bermuda that in case of their assistance you will recommend it to the Continental Congress to permit them to fetch provisions for the use of the island. He does not propose to make any use of it unless he shall find it utterly impracticable to obtain the powder without their assistance.

I am, with much esteem and respect, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
NICHOLAS COOKE.
General Washington.

CLARK AND NIGHTINGALE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 2, 1775.

SIR: Agreeable to your request by Captain George Baylor, your Excellency's Aid-de-Camp, we have delivered him all the gunpowder and lead, with what arms his Honour Governour Cooke thought would be expedient to spare; the remainder of the powder and arms, which are but few, and not yet come to Town, he thinks will be best to continue here, in order to supply the inhabitants in case of an attack upon these parts.

As our vessel is not arrived here, and we have not been able to obtain the Captain's accounts with respect to the voyage, we cannot ascertain our proportion of these articles; the Provincial Congress of the Massachusetts-Bay being equally concerned with us in them, they having advanced four thousand dollars, to which we put the like sum, to be invested in military stores if they could be procured. It will therefore be entirely out of our power to have this matter adjusted till the Captain's arrival; for which reason we must request your Excellency to inform Colonel Benjamin Lincoln, (to whom we write, as he was formerly one of the Committee of Supplies, and now one of the Council of the Massachusetts-Bay, and the person with whom we contracted,) that you have the powder and lead allowed to you, and that the arms, and five thousand flints, will be sent by the first opportunity, for which your Excellency will please to settle with them, as soon as they know the amount, which shall be immediately on the Captain's arrival.

We are, with due respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most obliged humble servants,

CLARK & NIGHTINGALE.

His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp at Cambridge, September 2, 1775.

SIR: I am to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 21st ult., with the enclosures. By my last letters from Ticonderoga, I expect a quantity of lead will be forwarded soon, to your care, from thence. I am glad there are such prospects of a supply of that article from the mines in your Colony. I make no doubt they will receive such encouragement, both publick and private, as their importance and value demand.

By the time you receive this letter you will be able to judge, with some certainty, whether the fleet which sailed last from Boston was destined for your coast. If it is not yet arrived, we may conclude it has sailed to the eastward. If it has arrived, the issue will be known immediately; so that in either case the continuance of the new-raised levies along the coast is unnecessary. You will, therefore, on the receipt of this, be pleased to order them to march immediately to this camp, directing the commanding officer, at the same time, to give me two or three days' notice of the time in which the troops will arrive, that suitable accommodations may be prepared. Their presence is the more necessary, as I may in confidence inform you that I am about to detach ten or twelve hundred men on an expedition into Canada, by way of Kennebeck River, from which I have the greatest reason to expect either that Quebeck will fall into our hands a very easy prey, or such a diversion made as will open a very easy passage to General Schuyler.

We are now so well secured in our late advanced post on the hill, that the enemy have discontinued their cannonade. The men continue in good health and spirits.

I am, with much regard and esteem, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

Camp at Cambridge, September 2, 1775.

SIR: I have just received your favour of the 29th ult., by express. I am very sensible that the situation of the inhabitants of Long-Island, as well as of all those on the coast, exposes them greatly to the ravages of the enemy; and it is to be wished general protection could be extended to them, consistent with the prosecution of those great plans which have been adopted for the common safety. This was early foreseen, and the danger provided for by a resolution of Congress, that each Province should depend on its own internal strength against these invasions: the prejudice arising from them, even if successful, not being equal to that of separating the Army into a number of small detachments, who would be harassed in fruitless marches and countermarches, after an enemy whose conveyance by shipping is so advantageous that they might keep the whole coast in constant alarm, without our being able, perhaps, at any time, to give them vigorous opposition. Upon this principle I have invariably rejected every application made me here, to keep any detachments on the coast for these purposes. I should therefore, most probably, have thought it my duty to have ordered the three Companies mentioned in your letter to have joined your Army, to act in the general service, had they not been under command, from General Schuyler, to join him; but, as it is, I can by no means interfere. He is engaged in a service of the greatest importance to the whole Continent, his strength and appointments far short of his expectations; and to give any counter orders may not only defeat his whole plan, but must make me responsible to the publick for the failure. Instead, therefore, of their further stay, I would have them march immediately. I fear the delay of the ten days may have very bad effects, as, by my last advices from Ticonderoga, General Schuyler was to march in a few days for Canada; and it is highly probable he may depend upon these Companies to occupy the posts of communication, which otherwise he must weaken his Army to do. No Provincial Congress can, with any propriety, interfere in the disposition of Troops on the Continental establishment, much less control the orders of any General Officer, so that in this instance the Congress at New-York have judged properly in declining to counteract General

Schuyler's orders. I wish I could extend my approbation equally to the whole line of their conduct. Before you receive this letter, you will most probably be able to judge how far your continuance on Long-Island will be further necessary. If the Fleet which last sailed was destined for those coasts, it must be arrived. If it is not, it is certainly gone to the eastward, and your present station is no longer necessary. The importance of preserving the communication of the North River, and many other reasons, induce me to wish you were returned to your former post. The late transactions at New-York furnish additional reasons for your being as near that City as is consistent with the discipline and convenience of your Troops. Your next, therefore, I flatter myself, will inform me of your having resumed your former station.

I am, Sir, with much regard and esteem,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General Wooster, New-York.

INSTRUCTIONS TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

To Captain NICHOLSON BROUGHTON:

1. You, being appointed a Captain in the Army of the United Colonies of North-America, are hereby directed to take the command of a detachment of said Army, and proceed on board the Schooner Hannah, at Beverly, lately fitted out and equipped with arms, ammunition, and provisions, at the Continental expense.

2. You are to proceed, as commander of said Schooner, immediately on a cruise against such vessels as may be found on the high seas or elsewhere, bound inwards and outwards, to or from Boston, in the service of the Ministerial Army, and to take and seize all such vessels, laden with soldiers, arms, ammunition or provisions, for or from said Army, or which you shall have good reason to suspect are in such service.

3. If you should be so successful as to take any of such vessels, you are immediately to send them to the safest and nearest Port to this camp, under a careful prize master, directing him to notify me, by express, immediately, of such capture, with all particulars, and there to wait my further direction.

4. You are to be very particular and diligent in your search after all letters and other papers tending to discover the designs of the enemy, or of any other kind, and to forward all such to me as soon as possible.

5. Whatever prisoners you may take you are to treat with kindness and humanity, as far as is consistent with your own safety. Their private stock of money and apparel is to be given them, after being duly searched; and when they arrive at any Port, you are to apply to the Committee, or to any officer of the Continental Army stationed at such Port, for a guard to bring them up to headquarters.

6. For your own encouragement, and that of the other officers and men, to activity and courage in this service, over and above your pay in the Continental Army, you shall be entitled to one third part of the cargo of every vessel by you taken and sent into port, (military and naval stores only excepted, which, with vessels and apparel, are reserved for publick service;) which said third part is to be divided among the officers and men in the following proportions: To a Captain, six shares; a First Lieutenant, five; a Second Lieutenant, four; Ship's Master, three; Steward, two; Mate, one and a half; Gunner, one and a half; Boatswain, one and a half; Gunner's Mate and Sergeant, one and a half; Privates, one share each.

7. You are particularly charged to avoid any engagement with any armed vessel of the enemy, though you may be equal in strength, or may have some small advantage; the design of this enterprise being to intercept the supplies of the enemy, which will be defeated by your running into unnecessary engagements.

8. As there may be other vessels employed in the same service with yourselves, you are to fix upon proper signals, and, your stations being settled so as to take the greatest range, avoid cruising on the same ground. If you should happen to take prizes in sight of each other, the rules which take place among private ships of war are to be observed in the distribution of the prize money.

9. In case of retaking the vessel of any friend to the American cause, I will recommend it to such person to make a suitable compensation to those who have done such a service; but such vessels are not to be deemed as coming within the directions respecting other vessels.

10. You are to be extremely careful and frugal of your ammunition; by no means to waste any of it in salutes, or for any purpose, but what is absolutely necessary.

Given under my hand, at Head-Quarters, Cambridge, this second day of September, 1775.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, September 2, 1775.

By his Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the UNITED STATES.

To NATHANIEL TRACY, Esq.:

You are hereby authorized and empowered to take up for the service of the said Colonies so many vessels as shall be necessary for the transporting a body of Troops to be detached from this Army on a secret expedition. Freight of such vessels to be paid in such manner and at such a rate as is herein endorsed; and in case of loss or damage to such vessels, or any of them, such loss or damage to be compensated by the publick, according to an estimation to be made before the said vessels proceed in the above service.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To prevent any dispute which may arise respecting the freight of the within vessels, it is agreed that Colonel Orme, of Marblehead, with two other persons, to be nominated by him, fix the price, which shall be binding on both parties, and that the same gentlemen do appraise the vessels before they proceed.

JOSEPH REED, Secretary.

GENERAL CHARLES LEE TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Camp on Winter-Hill, September 2, 1775.

MY DEAR FRIEND: We have just heard of the strange manœuvre of sending back the clothing which was taken from Philadelphia. I have only time to express my astonishment and apprehension that this conduct will betray some degree of fear, than which nothing can be more pernicious, both here and on the other side of the water. Upon this principle, I must confess I was shocked at your last address to the King. I am confident it will do mischief; it will bring on a negotiation, which perhaps will be fatal. That callous tyrant must have his fears alone worked upon. If I did address him, I would do it in the following style: "Sir, if you do not withdraw your Troops upon the receipt of this, we will absolve ourselves from all allegiance to you, and we will divorce ourselves forever from Britain, whose abject patience in suffering such tyranny as that she has experienced through your whole reign, renders her totally unworthy to be the presiding power of a great Empire."

This is the style you should adopt; it is the only style which can possibly succeed. I rejoice that Congress has made the acquisition of your brother. My love and respects to him. Have you received my long scroll? For God's sake, let me hear from you soon. God bless you, my dear friend, and send the common cause all the success it merits from a righteous being.

Farewell, yours, most truly and sincerely,

CHARLES LEE.

DOCTOR ZUBLY TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Philadelphia, September 3, 1775.

To the Right Honourable WILLIAM, Earl of DARTMOUTH:

MY LORD: Your Lordship's appointment to be Secretary of State for the American Department, by numbers that respected your Lordship's religious character, was looked upon as a very providential and happy event. Your patronising of religious undertakings confirmed the general opinion, and we were happy in the expectations of your Lordship's conscientious regard to justice and equity, as well as to the civil and religious liberties of this great Continent; we expected the cause of liberty and religion would meet with the strongest support under your administration, and in your Lordship would ever find a constant and successful advocate with your royal master.

Unhappily, during your administration, measures have been pursued very contrary to American hopes; and we easily conceive your Lordship may think it not less strange that many friends of religion in America should be so uneasy under laws which had your Lordship's concurrence and approbation.

It is to the man and to the Christian I wish to be permitted to address myself. Your Lordship ranks among the highest subjects, and has a large share in all publick measures; but anxiety for what may distress, and zeal for the welfare of the Empire, can be no crime, even in the meanest; and when a house is once in flames, every man is inexcusable, or must at least be so in his own breast, that does not contribute whatever he may think in his power to their being extinguished. The effects of the present measures are visible, and it requires no sagacity to foresee what may be the consequence, should they be continued. Your Lordship may do much towards restoring and perpetuating the tranquillity of a great Empire: persons of my station have nothing to offer but hints and wishes; should these be beneath your notice, or stand in need of forgiveness, my sincere wish to contribute any thing towards a just, happy, and perpetual connection between a parent State and an infant Country, growing apace to the most astonishing importance, must be my only apology. Pulchrum est bene facere reipublica, sed et bene dicere non est absurdum.

The question, my Lord, which now agitates Great Britain and America, and in which your Lordship has taken such an active part, is, whether the Parliament of Great Britain has a right to lay taxes on the Americans, who are not and cannot there be represented; and whether the Parliament has a right to bind the Americans in all cases whatsoever? Whatever may be said, or whatever the good people in Great Britain may believe, this is the whole subject of the dispute. All the severities hitherto exercised upon the Americans professedly have no other view than to enforce such a dependance; and nothing less than a claim destructive of all natural and national liberty could possibly have united all America in a general opposition, or have aroused them to join all like one man in their common defence. Let a declaratory bill be passed that, any law and usage to the contrary notwithstanding, America is entitled to all the common rights of mankind, and all the blessings of the British Constitution, that the sword shall never be drawn to abridge, but to confirm her birthright, and the storm instantly becomes a calm, and every American thinks himself happy to contribute to the necessities, defence, and glory of Great Britain, to the utmost of his strength and power.

To bind them in all cases whatsoever, my Lord, the Americans look upon this as the language of despotism in its utmost perfection. What can, say they, an Emperor of Morocco pretend more of his slaves than to bind them in all cases whatsoever? Were it meant to make the Americans hewers of wood and drawers of water; were it meant to oblige them to make bricks without straw; were it meant to deprive them of the enjoyment of their religion, and to establish a hierarchy over them similar to that of the Church of Rome in Canada; it would, say they, be no more than a natural consequence of the right of binding them (unseen, unheard, unrepresented) in all cases whatsoever.

My Lord, the Americans are no idiots, and they appear determined not to be slaves. Oppression will make wise men mad, but oppressors in the end frequently find that they were not wise men; there may be resources, even in despair, sufficient to render any set of men strong enough not to be bound in all cases whatsoever.

Grievous is the thought, my Lord, that a nobleman of your Lordship's character should be so zealous to make war, and to imbrue his hands in the blood of millions of your fellow-subjects and fellow-Christians. Pray, my Lord, is it possible that those, who at three thousand miles distance can be bound in all cases, may be said to have any liberty at all? Is it nothing in your Lordship's eye to deprive so considerable a part of the globe of the privilege of breathing a free air, or to subjugate numbers and generations to slavery and despotism? Can your Lordship think on these things without horror, or hope they must be productive of any thing but detestation and disappointment? Your Lordship believes a Supreme Ruler of the earth, and that the small and great must stand before him at last. Would your Lordship be willing, at the general meeting of all mankind, to take a place among those who destroyed or enslaved Empires, or risk your future state on the merit of having, at the expense of British blood and treasure, taken away the property, the life and liberty of the largest part of the British Empire? Can your Lordship think those that fear the Lord will not cry to him against their oppressors? and will not the Father of mankind hear the cries of the oppressed? or would you be willing that their cries and tears should rise against you, as a forward instrument of their oppression?

I know, my Lord, that this is not courtly language, but your Lordship is a professor of religion, and of the pure, gentle, benevolent religion of Jesus Christ. The groans of a people pushed on a precipice, and driven on the very brink of despair, will prove forcible; till it can be proved that any power, in whose legislation the Americans have no part, may at pleasure bind them in all cases whatsoever; till it can be proved that such a claim does not constitute the very essence of slavery and despotism; till it can be proved that the Americans (whom in this view I can no longer call Britons) may, and of right ought to be thus bound; abhorrence of such assertions is only the language of truth, which in the end will force its way, and rise superiour to all the arts of falsehood and all the powers of oppression.

Right or wrong, my Lord, in all cases whatsoever, but more especially when the fate of Nations is concerned, are words of infinite moment. Your Lordship doubtless believes that the weighty alternative must have very solemn and different effects here and hereafter; but waiving the right or wrong of this vile unhappy dispute, let me entreat your Lordship's attention to consider at what an infinite risk the present measures must be pursued, even were it not demonstrable that they are in the highest degree wrong, cruel, and oppressive.

The bulk of the inhabitants of a Continent extending eighteen hundred miles in front on the Atlantic, and permitting an extension in breadth as far as the South Sea, look upon the claim to bind them in all cases whatsoever, as unjust, illegal, and detestable. Let us suppose for a moment that they are grossly mistaken—yet an error imbibed by millions, and in which they believe the all of the present and future generations lies at stake, may prove a very dangerous error—destroying the Americans will not cure them, nor will any acts that condemn to starve or be miserable, have any tendency to persuade them that these acts were made by their friends. The people in England are made to believe that the Americans want to separate from them, or are unwilling to bear their part of the common burden. No representation can be more false; but, my Lord, a Nation cannot be misled always, and when once the good people of Great Britain get truer notions of the matter, they will naturally wreak their resentment on those by whom they have been grossly misinformed or wretchedly deceived.

Review, my Lord, the effects of the present measures; the past and present will inform your Lordship of what may be to come.

With an unparalleled patience did the Bostonians bear the annihilation of their trade, the blocking up of their harbour, and many other distresses, till at Lexington an attack was made upon their lives, and then they gave sufficient proof that their patience was not the effect of timidity, but of prudence, and an unwillingness to shed British blood. This attack convinced all America that the British Ministry and Troops were athirst after their blood; and the behaviour of both parties on that day, and in many little skirmishes since, must convince all the world that in the cause of liberty the Americans are not afraid to look Regulars in the face, and that in an unjust and oppressive service British Troops are far from being invincible.

The burning of the innocent Town of Charlestown, after it had been left by its inhabitants, is a piece of such wanton cruelty as will fix an everlasting disgrace on the British arms. In the long civil war in Great Britain, nothing of the kind was attempted by either party; and this barbarity cannot fail being condemned by all civilized nations.

If at the battle on Bunker's Hill the Americans have been surprised, superiority has cost the Regulars dearer than the Americans what is called their defeat; one or two more such defeats of the Americans would forever put it out of the power of the present Regular Army to gain a victory.

The rejecting of the New-York Petition has effectually silenced all those who pleaded for, or hoped any good from petitioning. The cannonading of that Town in the dead of the night, and without the least previous warning, as it has shown what the inhabitants are indiscriminately to expect, will in history stand as a lasting monument of such wantonness of cruelty as Nations not remarkable for humanity would be ashamed of.

The destroying of the New-England Fishery laid all those who were deprived of their bread and occupation at sea, under an absolute necessity of seeking it in the American Army, and the sense of the injury done them will doubtless exert itself in the day of battle.

The endeavour to stir up Popish Canadians and savage Indians against the Colonists has been productive of the taking of the important pass of Ticonderoga, which has been effected without the loss of a single life on either side.

Detaining the inhabitants of Boston, after they had, in dependance on the General's word of honour, given up their arms, to be starved and ruined, is an action worthy of the cause, and can only be equalled by the distresses of Protestants driven under the walls of Londonderry, at which even a James relented.

Proposals publickly made by ministerial writers, relative to American domesticks, laid the Southern Provinces under a necessity of arming themselves; a proposal to put it in the power of domesticks to cut the throats of their masters can only serve to cover the proposers and abettors with everlasting infamy.

The Americans have been called "a rope of sand:" but blood and sand will make a firm cementation; and enough American blood has been already shed to cement them together into a thirteenfold cord, not easily to be broken.

My Lord, the violence of the present measures has almost instantaneously created a Continental Union, a Continental Currency, a Continental Army, and before this can reach your Lordship, they will be as equal in discipline as they are superiour in cause and spirit to any Regulars. The most zealous Americans could not have effected in an age what the cruelty and violence of Administration has effectually brought to pass in a day.

The Regular Army employed on this errand, with four able Generals, now lies no better than besieged within the ruins of Charlestown and Boston, unable to procure the necessaries of life, obliged to import their bread from Europe and fuel from Canada, pining away with disease, and affording daily martyrs to cruelty and arbitrary power, while every day adds to the improbability of their ever obtaining those unhappy ends. A strange situation for a British Army!

Restraining the trade of the Colonies will effectually annihilate all their trade with Great Britain. The numbers that crossed the Atlantick, or re-exported American commodities from Great Britain, the manufacturers that wrought for America, or worked up their raw materials, will now be at full leisure to know and feel whether the American trade be an object of any importance, and how much the Nation is obliged to a Ministry that has so effectually laboured its destruction.

The present dispute has made every American acquainted with and attentive to the principles of the British Constitution; in this respect, as well as in a strong sense of liberty, and the use of fire-arms almost from the cradle, the Americans have vastly the advantage over men of their rank almost everywhere else. From the constant topick of present conversation, every child unborn will be impressed with the notion: it is slavery to be bound at the will of another in all cases whatsoever; every mother's milk will convey a detestation of this maxim. Were your Lordship in America, you might see little ones acquainted with the word of command before they can distinctly speak, and shouldering the resemblance of a gun before they are well able to walk.

When millions of free people at once turn their thoughts from trade, and the means of acquiring wealth, to agriculture and frugality, it must cause a most sensible alteration in the State. My Lord, this is the case at present in America; every new act of violence will strengthen and confirm the spirit that taught them the necessity of being frugal and virtuous, that they might remain free, and become invincible.

Admit, my Lord, (for suppositions now become probable in proportion of their being astonishing and violent,) that a British fleet may effectually guard every harbour, river, creek, or inlet, on the American coast; admit, also, that her Troops destroy every town, village, or hut, along the sea-shore, what then will be the consequence? Why, my Lord, it will be the destroying the property of thousands in Great Britain, and of a few on this side of the water, whom your Lordship calls your friends. Perhaps the attempt may not succeed; but supposing it should, the Americans, injured beyond a possibility of reparation, and irritated to the highest degree, will retire where they are inaccessible to troops and ships; instead of trade and navigation, you will have a desolate sea-coast; the trade of America will be lost, and with it the sinews of war; and, my Lord, in the natural course of things, America, in less than half a century, will contain more inhabitants than Great Britain and Ireland; and that period, my Lord, is not so far distant to put the present treatment entirely out of remembrance. America and Great Britain, joined in arms together, may grow confident against the world besides; but if Britain continue her arms against America; if her Troops can be persuaded to go on against their brethren and friends; if they will destroy the last asylum of liberty, and a Country which has saved so many thousands from starving at home; the Americans will fight like men who have every thing at stake; the mercenaries with bayonets at their backs, and at the rate of six pence a day, if they are once defeated, whence will they be re-supplied? If they return to Britain victorious, they will be fit instruments to promote that slavery at home which they have been successful in fastening (probably for a very little while) on their fellow-subjects abroad.

In times of publick confusion, men of all parties are sometimes carried further than they intended at first setting out. History and the knowledge of human nature should inform your Lordship how much it is against all sound policy to secure or strive for punctilios at an infinite risk.

The Americans have always shown an affectionate regard to the King, and they are truly sensible of the necessity and advantage of a perpetual union with the Parent State; but undeserved severities cannot be productive of any pleasing returns. The Americans firmly believe that the claim at present endeavouring to be enforced would render them mere slaves, and it is their general motto, "Death or Freedom." The parliamentary, or, as they say, ministerial claim, is now written in letters of blood, and that will be far from making it more acceptable to American readers.

On the whole, my Lord, should this address be deemed impertinent and intrusive, I hope it may still be excusable, from the importance of the cause and the sincerity of its motive. In the event of the present dispute I look upon all mankind as interested, and though not natural born, His Majesty has not another subject that more ardently wisheth that his own repose and happiness, and that of all his subjects, may never meet with any interruption. Whether British Troops shall now drive liberty from out of the greater part of the British Empire, and bury her remains in the American wilderness, or whether that wilderness shall flourish and cheerfully contribute to make Great Britain the greatest Empire of the universe, is the question now to be decided; and it is not so unimportant but it may be expected He that is higher than the highest, and taketh up the isles like a very little thing, will interpose in the decision. The whole American process, my Lord, is liable to a revision, and when righteousness and judgment to come once make an impression, many a Felix will tremble.

To restore peace and harmony, nothing is necessary than to secure to America the known blessings of the British Constitution. This may be done in a moment, and without any disgrace or risk. Let the Americans enjoy, as hitherto, the privilege to give and grant by their own representatives, and they will give and grant liberally; but their liberty they will never part with but with their lives.

The day that restores their liberty, restores every thing to their former channel; to enforce the contrary claim, ages may be insufficient, and every day increases the danger of "a mother's being dashed to pieces on her own children."

That your Lordship, in the hand of Providence, may be a happy instrument to bring the present unnatural contest to a speedy, just, and honourable issue; that you may live to see much of that happiness which must be the result, is no less my fervent prayer than that God would blast every counsel and measure that may have a contrary tendency—that would separate Britain and America, whom God has joined together—that would abridge the rights, liberties, and happiness of the Nation, our rightful Sovereign, (whom God ever preserve,) or any of his subjects!

I am, my Lord, your Lordship's most humble servant,
J. J. ZUBLY.

A Return of the names of the persons elected Officers in the five Companies of Militia in the Precinct of Rhinebeck, in Dutchess County:

First Company: Simon Westfall, Captain; Peter Westfall, First Lieutenant; Wilhelmus Smith, Second Lieutenant; Abraham Wells, Ensign.

Second Company: William Radclift, Captain; Abraham T. Kipp, First Lieutenant; John De Witt, Second Lieutenant; Johannes Moore, Ensign.

Third Company: Martin Hoffman, Captain; Johannes Klum, First Lieutenant; Zacharias Hoffman, Jun., Second Lieutenant; John J. Heermanse, Ensign.

Fourth Company: David Van Ness, Captain; Goldthop Martin, First Lieutenant; Frederick Bender, Second Lieutenant; Cornelius Elmendorph, Ensign.

Fifth Company: Jacobus Kip, Captain; Everardus Bogardus, First Lieutenant; Jacob Tremper, Second Lieutenant; Benjamin Van Steenbergh, Ensign.

By order of the Precinct Committee:

EGBERT BENSON, Chairman.

JOSEPH REED TO MAJOR FRENCH.

Camp at Cambridge, September 3, 1775.

SIR: By direction of General Washington, I herewith send you a copy of a letter he wrote you on Thursday last, per post. General Gage has rejected, in very indecent and illiberal terms, a proposition made to him some time ago, respecting officers who were prisoners, so that your hopes of being exchanged, or even having an interview with any of your friends, would not be answered by proceeding to this place, as General Howe last week desired all intercourse between the two camps might be at an end. General Gage's treatment of our officers, even of the most respectable rank, would justify a severe retaliation. They have perished in a common jail, under the hands of a wretch who had never before been employed but in the diseases of horses. General Washington's disposition will not allow him to follow so unworthy an example. You and your companions will be treated with kindness, and upon renewing your parole at Hartford, you will have the same indulgence as other gentlemen under the like circumstances. Captain Webb has orders to accompany you to Hartford, and is particularly enjoined to show you every mark of civility and respect. It is not doubted but that you and the other gentlemen will make his duty easy.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
JOSEPH REED.

JOSEPH REED TO THE COMMITTEE OF HARTFORD.

Camp at Cambridge, September 3, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Since I wrote you last week respecting Major French and his companions, they have proceeded within seventeen miles of this place; the General has sent Captain Webb to receive them from the Philadelphia officer, with orders to deliver them to you. Enclosed is a copy of their parole given at Philadelphia, which you will observe was limited to their coming to this camp. As this may not now be deemed binding, it is the General's intention they should renew it before they are admitted to the same liberty with the other prisoners at Hartford; that being done, General Washington requests they may be treated with kindness and civility.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,
J. REED.

JOSEPH REED TO CAPTAIN WHARTON.

Camp at Cambridge, September 3, 1775.

SIR: This will be delivered you by Captain Webb, Aide-de-Camp to General Putnam, who has orders from General Washington to receive from you Major French and the other gentlemen, and return with them to Hartford. To this gentleman, therefore, you will please to deliver them. After which, I am directed by the General to request your company at Head-Quarters, if convenient, to dinner, where you will find Captain Willing and many other gentlemen of your acquaintance.

I am, with much esteem, Sir, your very humble servant,
J. REED.

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOUR TRYON.

By his Excellency WILLIAM TRYON, Esq., Captain-General and Governour-in-Chief in and over the Province of NEW-YORK, and the Territories depending thereon in AMERICA, Chancellor and Vice-Admiral of the same:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the General Assembly of this Province stands prorogued to the sixth day of September instant, I have thought fit for His Majesty's service to prorogue, and I do, by and with the advice of His Majesty's Council, further prorogue the said General Assembly to the fourth day of October next, of which all His Majesty's subjects concerned therein are required to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

Given under my hand and seal, at Fort George, in the City of New-York, the fourth day of September, 1775, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord, George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.

WILLIAM TRYON.

By his Excellency's command:

SAMUEL BAYARD, JUN., Deputy Secretary.

God save the King.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

The Committee met Monday, September 4, 1775. Present: William Walton, Chairman pro tempore, and thirty-two Members.

In pursuance of an order of the Committee of Safety of the 4th instant, Ordered, That Petrus Byvanck, Peter T. Curtenius, George Janeway, and William Denning, be a Committee to purchase all the spare Arms in the City, for the use of the Colony.

New-York, September 4, 1775.

Yesterday our people seized a sloop that had been for several days alongside the Asia man-of-war, and supplied them with provisions, as is thought, for the use of the Army at Boston. After securing the chests, &c., belonging to the people on board, they set fire to the sloop, which soon consumed her. The men, about twelve in number, are all in close confinement in this City. They belong up the North River, and will soon undergo an examination before our Committee, when no doubt they will be punished according to their deserts.

Suffolk County, Smithtown, September 4, 1775.

At a meeting of the Company, for the purpose of choosing their Officers, according to direction of the Continental Congress and the Provincial Congress, the following Officers were chosen, to wit:

Philetus Smith, Captain; Edmund Smith, Jun., First Lieutenant; Dan'l Tillotson, Second Lieutenant; Richard Smith, Ensign; under the inspection of us, the subscribers, three of the Committee of the said Town.

OFFICERS ELECTED IN THE SECOND REGIMENT OF ULSTER COUNTY MILITIA.

ULSTER COUNTY, ss.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of the Province of New-York, or in their absence to the Committee of Safety for said Province, or their Secretary, greeting:

GENTLEMEN: These are to certify that on Saturday, the fourth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, personally appeared before us, Colonel James McClaghry, Nathan Smith, Esq., and Samuel Sly, three of the Committee for the Precinct of New-Windsor, in the Second Regiment of Ulster County, the Company formerly commanded by the aforesaid James McClaghry, in our presence, agreeable to your votes, did then and there choose, by the majority, William Telford, of Little Britain, in the aforesaid Beat, Precinct, and Regiment, for their Captain, James Talkanter, of the aforesaid place, for their First Lieutenant, and Alexander Betty, as aforesaid, for their Second Lieutenant; and that on the twenty-second day of July last past, did likewise choose John Burnet, in the aforesaid manner, for their Ensign. We therefore, Gentlemen, agreeable to your return, pray that you will send commissions for the aforesaid persons, agreeable to our return; and by so doing you will serve your constituents and your very humble servants,

JAMES MCCLAGHRY,
NATHAN SMITH,
SAMUEL SLY.

Given under our hands, the day and year above written.

NORWALK (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, Norwalk, September 4, 1775.

Whereas the removal of persons and families into this Town, who are inimical to the liberties and constitution of these Colonies, (as the same were delineated by the late

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III.

Continental Congress,) will tend to disturb the peace of this Town, and obstruct our endeavours in defence of our liberties; therefore,

Resolved, That no person or family shall be permitted to reside here, unless he or they shall produce a certificate from a Provincial or County Congress, or from the Committee of Observation of the Town or place from whence they removed, certifying that they are friends to the liberties of these Colonies, and defenders of the Association recommended by the Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, on the fifth day of September last; and that this Resolve be published in Mr. Holt's Journal.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN CANNON, Chairman.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT AND COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Camp at Cambridge, September 4, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Colonel Sergeant has applied to me for his commission in the Continental Army, and I have no objection to comply with his request, but his not having received one under the Legislature of this Province; but as I do not mean to confine myself to forms, if he has been considered by this Government as an officer authorized to raise a Regiment, and would have received a commission on the Provincial establishment, and you will signify this to me for my government and security, I shall make no difficulty to grant a commission to him, on the same terms as are prescribed to the other officers.

I am, Gentlemen, most respectfully, your obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Honourable James Otis, Esq., President, &c.

EXTRACT OF A SEPARATE LETTER FROM THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE, DATED WHITEHALL, SEPTEMBER 5, 1775.

I have already, in my letter to General Gage of the 2d August, which will have been left with you upon his return to England, pointed out the different ideas which had been suggested, of the plan of operations in North-America next year, if the present unnatural rebellion should continue to be supported; but I did not think myself at liberty to go further in that letter than nakedly to state the propositions themselves, and I carefully avoided appearing to have any opinion of my own upon questions of which, both from the nature of them, and the difficulty of forming any precise judgment at such a distance, and without fuller information, it was not fit for me to decide. But I ventured to describe, in general terms, not only some of the advantages which would arise from taking post at New-York, but also the hazard of the Army's continuing at Boston in the winter.

The intelligence and information of every day since have shown more clearly both the one and the other; and the situation of the Troops, cooped up in a Town, exposed to insult and annoyance, if not to surprise, from more places than one, deprived of the comforts and necessities of life, wasting away by disease and desertion faster than we can recruit, and no longer either the objects of terror or cause of distress to the rebels, is truly alarming, and demands the most serious consideration; and I am commanded by the King to say, that if no alteration for the better should have happened before this reaches you, or any unexpected advantages of carrying on the war on the side of New-England should have opened themselves, it seems not only advisable, but necessary, to abandon Boston before the winter, to dismantle Castle William, and having embarked all the stores and artillery, and afforded every means to the well-disposed inhabitants of getting safely away with their families and effects, to remove with the Troops either to New-York, or some other place to the southward, which considerations of superiour advantage, safety, and convenience, shall point out as the most proper, and where a squadron of the King's ships may not only lie, but carry on operations with security during the winter.

The taking post in such a situation as I have described holds out a prospect of many advantages, which you will better conceive than I can suggest. But I cannot avoid mentioning one, though I am persuaded it will not escape your attention; and that is, the opportunity it may afford of employing a part of your forces, during the open part of the winter, in some sudden and unexpected enterprise to the southward, which, if it has not the effect to subdue, will at least strike terror to the rebellious Colonies, and be the probable means of securing a supply of provisions and other necessities for the Army.

Another matter which I have touched upon in my letter to General Gage, as an essential part of his consideration, is the transmission of the most exact and particular state of every thing that will be wanted from hence for carrying on the service; and it being the King's intention that you should continue in the command next year, it is His Majesty's express direction that I repeat this to you, as a necessary and indispensable object of timely attention. And I am further commanded to add, that it is His Majesty's pleasure that you do appoint, if you think fit, an Adjutant-General and a Quartermaster-General, His Majesty being sensible of how much consequence it is to you to have such persons in those situations, as from your own knowledge and experience of their ability you may safely rely on in all cases.

ADDRESS FROM THE TOWN OF LANCASTER.

Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of the Town of Lancaster, in Common Council assembled: presented to His Majesty by Sir George Warren, Knight of the Bath, one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

The humble Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of the Town of LANCASTER, in Common Council assembled.

May it please your Majesty:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of the Town of Lancaster, in Common Council assembled, happy in the enjoyment of the same privileges, under various Charters granted by your royal predecessors, with the first City of this Kingdom, presume we have the same right to address the Throne upon every just occasion, and upon every true principle of the Constitution, unseparated by bad example, and uninfluenced by party.

We beg leave to assure your Majesty, it was with the deepest concern we saw the first troubles break out in North-America, and most sincerely lamented the infatuation of a misguided people, hoping they would soon have returned to a sense of themselves and their duty; but now, when the standard of rebellion is erected in that Country; when your Majesty's Governours have been expelled or overawed, and every form of legal Government subverted and destroyed; when the supreme authority of the Mother Country is derided and denied, we think it incumbent on us to declare to your Majesty and the world, we look upon the authors and abettors of these violences with the utmost detestation and abhorrence.

At such a crisis, then, as the present, when, under the sacred name of liberty, (of late so vilely prostituted and abused,) every enormity is committed, and every dangerous tenet adopted and advanced; when rebellion abroad is cherished and fomented by traitorous correspondences, as well as furnished with means of offence from home; we flatter ourselves there is not a man to be found, who is worthy to be called a Briton, that dares to arraign the wisdom of your Majesty's Councils, or the exertion of your Majesty's executive powers against subjects so unnatural, so ungrateful; but whatever may be the fate of this deluded people, whatever mischiefs they may bring upon themselves, we absolutely rely on your Majesty, that the indubitable rights of this Kingdom will be inviolably preserved, and that no measures will be taken, in relation to America, but what are consistent with the dignity, honour, and safety of Great Britain.

Given under our hands, and the common seal of the Town of Lancaster, this fifth day of September, in the year of our Lord 1775.

HANOVER COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee for Hanover County, September 5, 1775:

"Whereas I, the subscriber, have been charged with saying many things injurious to the American cause, and in particular with declaring that this Country was in a state of rebellion, and aimed at a state of independence, more than opposition to parliamentary taxation; and whereas due proof is made thereof, before the Committee of this County: now, in order to atone, to the utmost of my power, for the injury that may possibly have been done by me, I do hereby declare, that I am heartily sorry for such my offence; and I do hereby promise, in future, to conduct myself so as to give no just cause of complaint to my countrymen, but to contribute my utmost to the success of the measures adopted for the defence of American liberty.

"THOMAS ANDERSON."

The said Thomas Anderson, having signed the above concession, is acquitted from further prosecution; and it is ordered that the Clerk do forthwith transmit the same to the Printer, to be published in the Gazette.

BARTLETT ANDERSON, Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED BALTIMORE, MARYLAND, SEPTEMBER 5, 1775.

This Town is already, and I am afraid the whole Province will soon be in a state of anarchy and confusion, in consequence of the Committee here having granted an indulgence to Mr. Hudson to take in a cargo after the 10th of September, on account of his ship having met with an accident. Mr. Kelly, now in this Province, (whose family have been all attached to the views of Administration,) is at the bottom of this. The cargo, which is a valuable one, belongs to him. One thousand two hundred men are ready to come from the forest next week, to prevent the ship from loading, so that God only knows how this matter will end, especially if the Town Companies attempt to support the act of the Committee. In consequence of the above indulgence, two or three others have applied for the same favour, and have obtained it; so that we are afraid the credit of this Province will be much injured by this violation of the Association. Mr. Kelly has done this place more injury than he can ever repair; for a defection in one place is too soon made use of as a precedent in another; if so, adieu to the liberties of America. I still hope this matter will not operate against us, but that Great Britain is now sick of the contest. Out of compassion for Mr. Hudson, who must pay for the cargo if the ship is not laden, the indulgence was granted.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, September 5, 1775.

On motion, it is recommended to the inhabitants of the City and Liberties, that they refrain from wasting Powder, more particularly in shooting game; and if any person is found to contemn this recommendation, it is desired that information be given to the Committee.

September 6, 1775.

The Committee, taking into consideration the price of Salt, upon inquiry, are fully satisfied that there is no deficiency in the quantity of that necessary article; they therefore recommend it to the dealers therein, to take such a reasonable price as may render it unnecessary for this Committee to interfere in the regulation thereof.

Ordered, That the same be published with the ninth Resolution of the Congress.

AUGUSTUS VAN CORTLANDT TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

September 5, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Being requested by the Provincial Congress to inquire for some place of safety to deposite the publick records in, and to inform the Committee of Safety thereof; agreeable to which, Mr. Cortlandt informs the Committee of Safety, that, previous to the above request, he caused the publick records to be put into chests, and secured them in a cellar in his garden made for that purpose, of stone and brick, well arched, and exceeding dry. This precaution was taken against accidents happening by fire; but should the City be invaded by an army from Great Britain, or any British troops, he in such case intended to remove them to his brother's, at Yonkers, in the County of Westchester.

If the Committee of Safety shall judge any other place more secure, Mr. Cortlandt will be glad to be informed thereof, that he may communicate the same to the Corporation of this City, for their approbation.

He remains their most obedient humble servant,

AUGUSTUS VAN CORTLANDT.

To the Committee of Safety in the City of New-York.

COMMITTEE OF BROOKHAVEN TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Brookhaven, September 5, 1775.

Agreeable to an order of the Provincial Congress, the Second Company in Brookhaven, commanded by Captain Ebenezer Miller, was called together on the fifth day of September, and after reading to them the directions given by the Provincial Congress, proceeded to the election, and chose Ebenezer Miller for their Captain, Caleb Woodhull First Lieutenant, James Davis Second Lieutenant, Davis Davis Ensign.

COMMITTEE OF AMENIA, DUTCHESS COUNTY, NEW-YORK, TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Agreeable to the late recommendation of our Provincial Congress, under the direction and inspection of the Committee of Amenia Precinct, Dutchess County, on the 5th day of September, 1775, were chosen by the soldiers of each Company, as follows:

In the oldest or First Company: William Barker, Captain; Job Mead, First Lieutenant; Noah Hopkins, Second Lieutenant; Abner Gillet, Ensign.

Second Company: Brinton Paine, Captain; Samuel Waters, First Lieutenant; Ichabod Holmes, Second Lieutenant; William Brush, Ensign.

Third Company: Joshua Lasell, Captain; Colbe Chamberlain, First Lieutenant; David Doty, Second Lieutenant; Elisha Barlow, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Robert Freeman, Captain; Elijah Smith, First Lieutenant; Ezra Saint John, Second Lieutenant; Noah Wheeler, Ensign.

ROSWELL HOPKINS,

Clerk of said Precinct and of the Committee.

NICHOLAS BERRIEN AND OTHERS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

To the honourable Provincial Congress for the Province of NEW-YORK:

The Petition of the subscribers, Inhabitants of the Manor of FORDHAM and WEST-FARMS, in the County of WESTCHESTER, humbly sheweth:

That we were summoned to appear at Westchester, in order to choose officers, according to the Resolution of the Congress, it having been represented, as we understand, that there was not a competent number of men in our District to form a Company. We therefore beg leave to inform, that the Manor of Fordham and the West-Farms have in the Militia always been considered as a District by themselves, and that within their limits there are upwards of seventy men fit to bear arms. And that an attendance at Westchester, upon the meeting of the Company, will be attended with great inconvenience to many of the inhabitants, and therefore injurious to the service intended to be advanced; from which considerations, your petitioners humbly pray the honourable Congress will be pleased to order that the Manor of Fordham and the West-Farms have a Company within themselves, and that they elect their own officers, under such inspection as the honourable Congress in their wisdom shall think best; and your petitioners shall ever pray.

LETTER FROM A TORY OFFICER TO MR. CORNELL, NEW-YORK.

On board the Transport, New-York, September 5, 1775.

SIR: I suppose you have tried every way to get those things finished in the manner directed, but have not been able, the communication between us and the shore being entirely stopped. This is to put you in the way of doing it: which is, to get every thing ready by some time, which you will now appoint, and bring them from your house in the middle of day to the packet, which sails for England in a few days. If any person says any thing to you about it, you may tell them it is for stores to go on board the packet, which the mate, Mr. Mitchell, spoke for. When you get to the packet, you will tell Mr. Mitchell, the mate, who they are for: he will take care of them for me. When you bring the things, bring also an account of those things you brought for me. Do get them on board by to-morrow noon, as the packet sails on Thursday. Pray don't fail. Do try to send those letters that were left at your house for me, by this or some other opportunity. I will be on board the packet to-morrow noon, and will see you there. There will be no kind of danger in carrying them on board the packet, as I will have them brought on board the transport in the night from the packet. Do send me an answer by the bearer, whether you will or not: Perhaps you don't know which is the packet. She lies the other side of us, nearer the North River. She is a brig that lies off. You can't miss her. Your humble servant.

Mr. Cornell.

P.S. You had better see your — W—h—d, I mean Daniel, and desire him to get them all ready to-day, that you may bring them to-morrow. If you think this wont do, you may sail close by us with those things on board, and we will bring you to, as we have done many already, and then you may tell them you could not help yourself. Let me know which you will do, and when you will do it, that I may take steps accordingly.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, September 5, 1775.

SIR: Your Excellency's favour of the 2d instant was delivered to me last night; this afternoon received General Schuyler's of the 31st August. He has ordered the lead to Albany, with directions to forward it by the most direct route to your camp.

We are infested by Ministerial ships and transports. I gave your Commissary-General a narrative yesterday; beg leave to refer to him, from the haste of this express. Our coasts are kept in continual alarm. Three ships of war, with thirteen other vessels of divers sorts, were seen off Fisher's Island, and in the Sound, yesterday. They have gained no provisions from the main; have heard nothing from Montauk, or any part of Long-Island. New-London is in great fears, and Stonington expects another attack. I have ordered the new levies to guard and defend those two places, and the coasts as far as Connecticut river; there are likewise four Companies of them beyond the river, for defence in those parts; this appears absolutely necessary for their security at present. Hope this use of them, till these dangers are over, will neither injure nor hinder any of your operations. Whether these are the same ships your Excellency noticed us of remains uncertain. Yesterday ordered the best intelligence to be gained, to render that matter more certain.

Lord's day morning, constrained by the weather, came into the harbour at New-London, a schooner taken by the Rose, Captain Wallace, at Stonington; four hands on board; one, a white man, sent to Windham jail; the other three negroes, two belonging to Governour Cooke, and one to Newport, ordered to be returned to their masters, and the schooner to her owner.

General Schuyler's army is moved forward. A few days will determine the event.

I have ordered our Commissaries in the several Counties to send to your camp all the hunting shirts they can procure.

I am, with great esteem and regard, Sir, your very obedient and humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

His Excellency General Washington.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Sudbury, September 5, 1775.

The question upon which the grand contest between Great Britain and America turns, is, whether the Parliament of Great Britain has a right to legislate for the American Colonies. The British Ministry and their adherents have taken the affirmative side of the question, and the Colonists the negative. The former have asserted without the shadow of proof, while the latter have offered incontestable arguments to support their position. By the British Constitution of civil Government, (and indeed it is the basis of liberty,) no subject can be bound by any law to which he has not given his consent, in person or by his representative. Americans have no voice in the laws made by the British Parliament, and therefore are not bound by them. The British Ministry, finding that the Americans could not, by their and their tools' sophistry, be persuaded to believe that wrong is right, have sent an army and navy to force conviction, which are the powerful arguments used by tyrants. Much blood has been shed, and more will be, unless the British Parliament give up their claim to legislate for America, excepting in matters that relate to the regulation of trade, which, from the necessity of the thing, not derived from the Constitution, is allowed. Happy for America, that it does not admit of a doubt that the British Troops were the aggressors, in firing upon and destroying several of its worthy inhabitants, without any provocation, unless their being in the road at the time such majesterial fellows were marching can be viewed as such. Happy for America, that three or four hundred of her sons, who lived near to the scene of blood, were inspired with such courage as to prompt them to oppose eighteen hundred butchers, and to compel them to retreat to the place from whence they came. Happy for America, that such an union prevails among the Colonies, as is the admiration of the world, and must be of future generations. Under the influence of this union, we at this day see a large army, composed of the worthy yeomanry of this Country, commanded by men whose characters are established, and bid defiance to the attacks of those who partake of a diabolical spirit, commonly called Tories. In every enterprise, success has attended the American arms. Perhaps it may be thought that the author does not recollect the battle at Bunker's Hill. It is fresh in his mind, and he thinks it must be allowed, that although the troops of Britain obtained the ground, yet it was at so dear a rate as to justify a declaration of victory upon the side of the Americans. As the cause is righteous, as the war is strictly defensive, and therefore justifiable, the divine blessing may be expected to attend the future efforts of the Army of the United Colonies, as it has done the past. Much depends, under the blessing of Heaven, upon the continuance of this union; and as every measure is carrying into execution by the British Ministry to interrupt and destroy it, it is the indispensable duty of every friend of mankind to make it his chief business to establish it. It has been said, and with good authority to support it, that British goods may be expected to be clandestinely carried (if possible) among the people, in order to break the Non-Importation Agreement; which, if closely adhered to, will produce great distress and trouble in Britain, such as may cost the lives of the British Ministry. Let it be the desire and endeavour of every American to comply with and see that others punctually observe the Resolutions of the Continental Congress: and I doubt not we shall have the happiness, ere long, of viewing the rights and privileges of America established upon a more sure basis than ever yet they have been, upon such an one as will remain to the end of time.

PHILO PATRIA.

BY THE KING—A PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE, R.

Whereas our Parliament stands prorogued to Thursday, the fourteenth day of this instant, September: We, with the advice of our Privy Council, do hereby publish and declare that the said Parliament shall be further prorogued, on the said fourteenth day of this instant, September, to Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of October next, and we have given order to our Chancellor of Great Britain to prepare a commission for proroguing the same accordingly. And we do hereby further declare our royal will and pleasure, that the said Parliament shall, on the said twenty-sixth day of October next, be held for the despatch of divers weighty and important affairs, and the Lords spiritual and temporal, and the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses, and the Commissioners for Shires and Burghs, of the House of Commons, are hereby required to give attendance accordingly, at Westminster, on the said twenty-sixth day of October next.

Given at our Court at St. James's, the sixth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, in the fifteenth year of our reign.

God save the King.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE LONDON EVENING POST.

Manchester, September 8, 1775.

SIR: as a native of, and a well-wisher to Manchester, I feel some concern that the Town should be represented as inimical to the Americans, by means of an Address this day sent up to the King. Be assured, Sir, that this Address does not give the true sense of the Town in general, and that it may properly enough be said to have been smuggled on it. Only a day's notice was given in one of our newspapers on Tuesday last. The advertisement was artfully penned, and the several country gentlemen, of tory character, had been apprized of the meeting some time before; they therefore arrived on Wednesday, the 6th instant, to assist their friends in deceiving Government and injuring the whole community. You may depend upon it that the Address is signed by very few, excepting high churchmen, and men of jacobite principles. I believe one person who has signed it was in the last rebellion; but what is more discreditable than even these circumstances, it contains at least one notorious falsehood, in asserting the flourishing state of trade.

You may take my word for it, trade is in a very languishing condition, and that the ensuing winter presents a most dismal prospect. A great part of our weavers are likely to be without work, and many thousands connected with them unemployed. It is probable, also, that provisions will be dear; add to these, that our manufacturing Towns will be as much injured as ourselves; and, further, that one-half of the sailors, those honest brave fellows, throughout the kingdom, will be deprived of the means of supporting themselves and families, owing to the number of ships laid up. Whoever considers such a situation of things must be alarmed with the apprehension of consequences. But as my assertions of the badness of trade will have most weight when supported by proofs, I shall set down a few facts; facts are stubborn things, and not to be whistled away.

Mr. T. T . . . and Mr. C. F . . . are well known to be two of our most considerable manufacturers. Now, I affirm that the first of these gentlemen has at present only one warper, and the latter no more than two. These particulars, Sir, are clear proofs of a reduced trade, as I doubt not they have often employed half a dozen warpers each for himself. I also affirm that their warehouses contain each an immense stock of goods, which they know not how to dispose of. I write from knowledge. How these men came to sign the address is surprising indeed.

Sir Thomas Egerton, one of our County members, is in my opinion a worthy man. I respect him, though he knows little of me. How he came engaged in this dirty business I will not say. I would rather throw over him the veil of charity. It was indeed observed that he was very much agitated. He was so much fluttered that every one present at the meeting was sorry for him; and his appearance was that of a man conscious of being ill-employed. I believe something in the form of a Protest will be set about by the friends of liberty and commerce.

I am, Sir, yours, &c.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF MANCHESTER.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers, and principal Inhabitants of the Town and neighbourhood of Manchester,* in the County Palatine of Lancaster, (unanimously adopted on the 6th of September, 1775,) presented to His Majesty by Sir Thomas Egerton, Bart., one of the Representatives in Parliament for the said County, attended by Mr. Clowes, Mr. Birch, Mr. Wright, Mr. Houghton, Mr. Ford, and Mr. Lever.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers, and principal Inhabitants of the Town and neighbourhood of MANCHESTER, in the County Palatine of LANCASTER.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Actuated by an affectionate and dutiful regard for your many royal virtues, and firmly attached to that constitution

* This Town is infamously remarkable for being the only one in England where the Pretender found any number of friends. He entered it on the twentieth of November, 1745. After being proclaimed King, he beat up for volunteers, and so great was the zeal of the place that he soon raised a Regiment, the command of which he gave to a townsman of the name of Townly, whose head was afterwards fixed upon Temple Bar, where the remains of it are still to be seen; one Cappock, a Clergyman in the Town, also joined the Pretender, and was honoured with the title of Bishop of Carlisle. On the nineteenth of December following, when the rebels again passed through the Town, upon their retreat from Darby, the inhabitants spontaneously raised two thousand five hundred Pounds for the assistance of the Chevalier and friends to the good old cause, and they now subscribe six hundred thousand Pounds to enable Government to harass the Americans; confident they have no chance in an open attempt to expel the present family, they have recourse to intrigue, in hopes of rendering it so odious as to prevent all future confidence and reconciliation.—London, September 8, 1775.

which secures to us the enjoyment of liberties known only to British subjects, we presume, in the most loyal and respectful manner, to offer our tribute of gratitude to your Majesty, for the many blessings we have enjoyed under the benign influence of your government.

Since your Majesty's accession to the throne, commerce, the great source of wealth, hath been not only successfully encouraged, but firmly established in this island, and, under the auspices of peace, hath been carried to an extent unknown to your royal predecessors. Manufactures flourish in every part of your Majesty's dominions, and particularly in this Town and neighbourhood, where they are daily advancing towards perfection, and where the lowest of your subjects are fully employed, and are blessed with the peaceable enjoyment of the fruits of their industry.

Thus happy under your Majesty's government, we look with horror upon every attempt to disturb its tranquillity; and it is with inexpressible concern we behold the standard of rebellion erected in some of the American Provinces, and our fellow-subjects involved in an unnatural war against their lawful sovereign. We observe, with regret, that the lenity shown by your Majesty towards the insurgents hath been of no avail, but, instead of reclaiming, hath seemed rather to irritate and urge them on to more daring acts of violence; and as force is become necessary to bring them to a sense of their allegiance, we think ourselves bound in duty to assist your Majesty in the execution of the legislative authority.

We are not intimidated at the prohibition laid by the Americans on the importation and exportation of goods to and from the British dominions. Our extensive trade happily flows in so many different channels, that the obstruction of one can but little distress, much less deter us from our duty to our King and Country. But whatever check our manufactures may receive by a necessary war, we shall cheerfully submit to a temporary inconvenience, rather than continue subject to lawless depredations from a deluded and unhappy people, as we are fully persuaded that trade with America can never be established, on its true basis, until the Colonies are reduced to a proper submission to the Government and laws of Great Britain.

As Englishmen, we are led by inclination, as well as impelled by interest, to preserve the authority of the British Legislature, and to protect the dignity and prerogative of the Crown (as founded on the principles of the Constitution) sacred and inviolate. And we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we are ready to support, with our lives and fortunes, such measures as your Majesty shall think necessary for the punishment of rebellion in any part of your dominions, being convinced that the sword of justice will be directed by the hand of mercy towards such of your subjects as have been deluded by the artful designs of a discontented faction.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED
MANCHESTER, SEPTEMBER 8, 1775.

You ask a line of politicks from me. Alas! I can only sincerely lament the present miserable state of publick affairs, and deprecate the mischiefs and distractions that must arise from the weak, oppressive, vindictive system of our American politicks. The friends of American freedom, however respectable, are outnumbered every where, and the Ministry seem to have the cry in their favour. Toryism prevails in this part of the country, and even jacobites and non-jurors are become loyal, and address the King: witness the Manchester Address. I did not attend this business, or (as you will believe) sign the courtly paper, filled as it is with falsehoods and fictitious loyalty. The proposed Association has been sadly managed; their papers dispersed only amongst the avowed friends of Ministry with us, who make them the pretext for addressing. All the houses in Manchester, who have ever had any commerce with America, refused to sign the Address, as impolitick and ungrateful.

PEYTON RANDOLPH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Richmond, September 6, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have it in command to transmit to you the thanks of the Convention of Virginia, for the faithful discharge of the important trust reposed in you as one of their Delegates to the Continental Congress. Your appointment to an office of so much consequence to America, and incompatible with your attendance on this duty, was the only reason that could have induced them not to call you to the Convention. Your brother Delegates were unanimous in their acknowledgments; and you will believe it gives me the greatest satisfaction to convey to you the sentiments of your countrymen, and at the same time to give you every testimony of my approbation and esteem.

The Convention appointed Patrick Henry Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Observation to be raised, which is to consist of one thousand men, to be divided into two Regiments. Mr. William Woodford commands the second. The Lieutenant-Colonels are Christian and Scott. Besides these, the Colony being divided into sixteen Districts, each District is to raise five hundred men, who are to be trained, paid, and disciplined, and are to be paid during the time of training and while in actual service. Patrick Henry is excluded from the Congress, the Convention having resolved that no officer in command in the military shall be a member of the Congress, Convention, or Committee of Safety. Mr. Pendleton and Mr. Bland both resigned, and in their room Colonel Nelson, Mr. George Wythe, and Colonel Frank Lee, are appointed Delegates to the Congress.

I am much obliged to you for your letters. That relating to the action of the men of war and transports did not come to hand till the account had been in Virginia some time.

I shall be much obliged to you to remember me to Edward, from whom I expect to hear by the next post.

I am your most obedient servant,

PEYTON RANDOLPH.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Wednesday, September 6, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Chairman, and thirty-five Members.

Information being received that Captain Isaac L. Winn had left this port, with a cargo of Rum and Sugar, supposed for Boston, Ordered, That Captain Winn be desired to return immediately with his Vessel.

Ordered, That William Walton, William Denning, John Broome, and Daniel Phenix, be a Committee to confer with Mr. Livingston on the business he mentioned to the Chairman, or any three of them.

Mr. McAdam produced to this Committee a Letter from Boston, dated July 18, 1775, ordering (by direction of Alexander Grant, of London) sundry articles to be shipped to Jamaica; which being shipped accordingly, per the Jane, Captain Bascomb, were taken by the ship-of-war Kingfisher, and sent to Boston.

Ordered, That John Broome, Isaac Sears, James Beekman, John Morton, Cornelius P. Low, Francis Bassett, and Jeremiah Platt, or the major part of them, be a Committee to examine into Mr. McAdam's affairs, and report to this Committee.

Captain Hawley and Captain Jennings, of Fairfield, appeared in Committee.

Draught of a Letter to the Committee at Fairfield, read and approved of.

SAMUEL BAYARD, JUN., TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, Secretary's Office, September 6, 1775.

SIR: I received the favour of your letter upon the subject of the publick records under my care, and am, with you, duly sensible of the great importance of them to the Province, and the fatal consequences to private property which would arise from their destruction. How far any such event may be probable at this time, I cannot form any judgment; and you must be sensible, Sir, of the difficulty of my situation, when, if I should, in the exercise of my discretion, depart from the line of my duty, I might subject myself to very disagreeable consequences.

Whenever the removal of the records is absolutely necessary, I shall not fail to continue my care of them, and hope my attention to their security will evince my desire to discharge the trust reposed in me with the strictest fidelity. And with respect to the place where they should in that case be deposited, I can only say, that as it is out of my power to tell from what quarter danger may arise, so it is impossible for me to assign any place where they will be free from danger.

I have not the least preference for one place above another, but shall at all times and in all places use my best endeavours to preserve them from injury. And that nothing on my part may be wanting, I shall provide proper boxes for the most important parts of the records, to be ready in any emergency.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant,
SAMUEL BAYARD, JUN.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Camp at Cambridge, September 6, 1775.

SIR: Your favours of the 30th August and 2d instant are duly received. The concurrence of the Committee in the Bermuda voyage is very agreeable, and I hope will prove a happy earnest of its success. Enclosed is a letter to the inhabitants of that island, of the tenour you have suggested, but I shall depend upon Captain Whipple's not making use of it except in case of real necessity.

I am to acknowledge your kind assistance to Captain Baylor, in his late errand, and must desire you to make known to Messrs. Clarke & Nightingale that I am very sensible of the patriotic and disinterested part they have acted on this occasion.

As the Congress will depend upon a supply of tow cloth from your Colony, unless they are apprized to the contrary, I apprehend it will be proper, through your Delegates, to acquaint them of the state in which you have found that article, in order to guard against a disappointment.

The removal of the stock from the coast and islands will, I hope, have its effect in sending the ministerial plunderers empty home. We have yet no accounts of the last fleet, except six, who returned from Louisburgh with coal a few days ago.

I need not mention to you the vast importance of gaining intelligence of the enemy's motions and designs as early as possible. The great saving to the Continent, both of blood and money, a detection of our secret and most dangerous enemies, with innumerable other advantages, would result from the interception of their correspondence at this juncture. I have, therefore, thought proper to propose to you the seizing the mail by the next packet. She is hourly expected from England; her force of men and guns inconsiderable; none but swivels, and only manned with eighteen men. If the vessel proposed to go to Bermuda should cruise for a few days off Sandy-Hook, I have no doubt she would fall in with her. In which case she might, with little or no delay, land the mail, in order to be forwarded to me, and proceed on the voyage. But if there are any material objections to this mode, I am still so anxious upon the subject that I would have it tried with another vessel, at the Continental expense; and will, for that end, direct that any charge which may accrue in this service shall be paid by the Paymaster here, upon being duly liquidated. It will be necessary that some person well acquainted with the packets should be on board our vessel, or the stopping inward bound vessels indiscriminately will give the alarm, and she may be apprized of her danger. The choice of a proper officer, with the care of providing a suitable vessel, &c., I must leave to you. Should it meet with the desired success, there can be no doubt the honourable Continental Congress will distinguish and reward the officers and men who shall have done so essential a service. Nor shall I fail in making known to them how much the publick service is indebted to you for your zeal and activity on all occasions. I am, Sir, &c.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Nicholas Cooke, Esq., Deputy-Governour of Rhode-Island, Providence.

Camp at Cambridge, three miles from Boston, }
September 6, 1775. }

To the Inhabitants of the Island of BERMUDA:

GENTLEMEN: In the great conflict which agitates this Continent, I cannot doubt but the asserters of freedom and the rights of the Constitution are possessed of your most favourable regards and wishes for success. As the descendants of freemen, and heirs with us of the same glorious inheritance, we flatter ourselves that, though divided by our situation, we are firmly united in sentiment. The cause of virtue and liberty is confined to no Continent or climate; it comprehends within its capacious limits the wise and good, however dispersed and separated in space or distance. You need not be informed that the violence and rapacity of a tyrannick Ministry have forced the citizens of America, your brother Colonists, into arms. We equally detest and lament the prevalence of those counsels which have led to the effusion of so much human blood, and left us no alternative but a civil war or a base submission. The wise Disposer of all events has hitherto smiled upon our virtuous efforts. Those mercenary Troops, a few of whom lately boasted of subjugating this vast Continent, have been checked in their earliest ravages, and are now actually encircled in a small space, their arms disgraced, and suffering all the calamities of a siege. The virtue, spirit, and union of the Provinces leave them nothing to fear but the want of ammunition. The applications of our enemies to foreign States, and their vigilance upon our coasts, are the only efforts they have made against us with success. Under these circumstances and with these sentiments we have turned our eyes to you, gentlemen, for relief. We are informed there is a very large magazine in your island, under a very feeble guard. We would not wish to involve you in an opposition in which, from your situation, we should be unable to support you. We know not, therefore, to what extent to solicit your assistance in availing ourselves of this supply; but if your favour and friendship to North-America and its liberties have not been misrepresented, I persuade myself you may, consistent with your own safety, promote and further this scheme, so as to give it the fairest prospect of success. Be assured that in this case the whole power and exertion of my influence will be made with the honourable Continental Congress that your island may not only be supplied with provisions, but experience every other mark of affection and friendship which the grateful citizens of a free Country can bestow on its brethren and benefactors.

I am, &c.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp in Roxbury, September 6, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I have your esteemed favour of the 4th September; observe that provision is made for Mrs. Dyer. I this day hear of the death of my First Lieutenant. I strongly recommend my Second Lieutenant, Mr. Jonathan Brewster, to succeed. He is an officer I set as much by as any one in the Regiment, although there are so many worthy men among the number.

A secret expedition is on foot, under the command of Colonel Arnold; a draught is to be made of about eleven hundred. Colonel Enos, Major Meigs, Major Bigelow, Captain Flanchet, and Dr. Turner, are of the party. I call it a secret expedition, but it is become, like many others, known to every body. The design is against Quebeck, by the way of Kennebeck River. Should Dr. Turner go, I shall be left without any Surgeon but Dr. Holmes. Dr. Waldo, of Pomfret, is discharged and gone home, on account of his ill state of health. Dr. Waldo, of Coven-try, has been here some time, at my desire, administering to the sick; his assistance has been much needed, and will be more so when Turner is gone. Waldo will expect something to depend upon the pecuniary score, if he continues any longer. We are this night making approaches towards our enemies on the Neck; expect they will show their resentment.

Thursday morn.—Three separate intrenchments were thrown up last night, which will cover our out-sentries and advanced right parties; no opposition made. Nothing further to detain you.

I remain, with suitable regards to all, your dutiful and affectionate son,

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

Edinburgh, September 7, 1775.

We are well informed that the Right Honourable Henry Dundas, Esq., Lord-Advocate for Scotland, had, last week, a meeting with the honourable Board of Customs, concerning the impropriety of vessels being cleared from any port of Scotland with emigrants for America, and proposed that orders should be issued by the Board to all the inferior Custom-Houses, enjoining them to grant no clearances to any ship for America, which had more than the common complement of hands on board; and that this was immediately complied with, and orders issued to all the sea-ports accordingly; a most salutary measure, and which may prevent the destruction of a number of thoughtless and ill-informed people.

JAMES CITY COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee held for James City County, on Thursday, the 7th of September, 1775:

Several reports having prevailed in this County that Mr. William Holt, Merchant at Norfolk, had supplied the Men-of-War, now in the Harbour, with quantities of Bread and Flour from his Mill in this County, and that the inhabitants were thereby made uneasy, Mr. Holt appeared before the Committee, and informed them that he hath for several years contracted to furnish the Men-of-War with supplies of Bread and Flour for immediate use, and that he hath not increased the usual quantity, considering the addition of vessels; that he consulted the Committee of Norfolk respecting the conduct he should observe upon the occasion, and that he has done nothing of the sort without their approbation.

Resolved, as the opinion of this Committee, That Mr.

William Holt hath not transgressed any rule of the General Association, nor done any thing in the least blame-worthy; but, inasmuch as the exports from this continent will, in a few days, be shut up, this Committee give it as their opinion that Mr. Holt ought not, in future, to supply any Men-of-War with Bread or Flour; and it is recommended to him, and all other owners or proprietors of Mills and Bakehouses, not to manufacture any larger quantities of Wheat or Indian Corn, either into Flour, Meal, or Bread, than may be necessary for the internal consumption of this Colony.

BEN. CARTER WALLER, Clerk.

CHARLES PETTIT TO LORD STIRLING.

Perth-Amboy, September 7, 1775.

MY LORD: His Excellency having this day laid before the Council some matters of great consequence to the publick, the Members present have thought it expedient, and therefore have advised his Excellency to postpone the determination of the Board upon them till there shall be a more full meeting. His Excellency has therefore appointed that a Council be held in this City on Tuesday, the 15th of the present month, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which it is expected that every Member of the Board will attend. I have it [further] in command from his Excellency in Council to acquaint your Lordship that it is a matter of publick report that you have accepted a commission from the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, appointing you Colonel of a Regiment of Militia in the County of Somerset, and his Excellency requires an answer from your Lordship, whether you have or have not accepted such commission.

I am, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

CHAS. PETTIT.

Right Honourable the Earl of Stirling.

LORD STIRLING TO GOVERNOUR FRANKLIN.

Baskinridge, September 14, 1775.

SIR: I have received a letter from Mr. Pettit, dated the 7th inst., informing me that your Excellency has appointed a Council to be held at Amboy on Friday, the 15th inst., and that my attendance is expected. The gout, which at present is my constant companion, will render it impossible for me to go from home at that time, and therefore I hope your Excellency will be able to dispense with my attendance. In the same letter Mr. Pettit informs me that "he has it in command from your Excellency to acquaint me that it is a matter of publick report that I have accepted a commission from the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, appointing me a Colonel of a Regiment of Militia in the County of Somerset, and that your Excellency requires an answer from me, whether I have or have not accepted such a commission." I must acknowledge, Sir, that the style and manner in which this inquiry is made a good deal surprises me, especially as I have ever been used to experience from your Excellency a behaviour becoming a gentleman in your exalted station. That you could think of commanding your Clerk to correspond with me on so delicate a subject, or to catechise me in so peremptory a manner, equally astonishes me; however, I will indulge your Excellency's curiosity. I have lately been informed that the good people of this country have unanimously chosen me a Colonel of a Regiment of Militia; that the Provincial Congress of this Province have approved of the choice of the people, and have issued a commission accordingly, which I have received. This mark of confidence the people among whom I reside repose in me, is one of the most satisfactory, and, I think, honourable events that I have ever experienced. At a time when their dearest rights are invaded, to call me forth to take so important a part in their defence, cannot but rouse the most grateful feelings of a man who ever has been a friend to the liberties of mankind. Accepting this commission, and in serving my Country faithfully, I cannot doubt of having your Excellency's highest approbation, especially when I recollect your frequent publick as well as private declarations, that the rights of the people and the prerogatives of the Crown were equally dear to you, and equally your duty, as well as inclination, to preserve.

I am your most obedient humble servant,

To Governour Franklin.

STIRLING.

GOVERNOUR FRANKLIN TO LORD STIRLING.

Perth-Amboy, September 15, 1775.

MY LORD: I have just received yours of yesterday. I am sorry to find that you are prevented, by the gout, from attending your duty in Council. It likewise gives me concern that you should conceive you had been treated with any indelicacy or impropriety in the request signified to you by Mr. Secretary Pettit. You well know that he is no Clerk of mine, that he is Clerk of the Council, and that the letters he writes by my orders, or by order of the Council, are always on matters of publick concern, or respecting the proper business of Government and Council. In the instance in question, though he may have mentioned it only as by my orders, yet the letter was wrote in pursuance of the advice of the Council, who were then sitting at Amboy. He might, it is true, and perhaps with more propriety, have sent you a copy of the minutes. He probably would have done it, could he have supposed that there was any danger that a man of your Lordship's understanding would consider such a letter from him as a private application from me, to be gratified in a mere matter of private curiosity. The application took its rise in this manner. The Council being of opinion the matters I had recommended to their consideration were of such importance that a general meeting of all the Members ought to be called on the occasion; I thought it proper to mention to them that it was publicly reported, and generally believed, that your Lordship had accepted a Colonel's commission from the Provincial Congress, and I desired to know of them if they could inform me whether the report was true or not. They all acknowledged that they had heard the report, and believed it to be well founded, but unanimously advised me to order the Clerk of the Council to write to you respecting it, at the same time that he sent you the summons to attend the general meeting. You might have had some reason to complain against the Board, had they proceeded to consider the matter on no other ground than publick report or general belief. You would likewise have had some cause for your astonishment, had the affair been of a private nature, respecting only your Lordship's private conduct, and I had directed a publick officer to catechise you thereon in the peremptory manner you represent. This would not have been consistent with the becoming behaviour you acknowledge I have always treated you with, nor with that friendship and regard I have constantly professed and shown for your Lordship, during a long acquaintance. Your Lordship's answer, to the question proposed to you, I shall lay before the Council this evening. Whether or not your conduct, in accepting the commission, has my approbation, can, I think, appear but of little consequence to your Lordship, as you intimate that it has met with the approbation of your own conscience, and as you never thought proper to consult me, either directly or indirectly, before you took so extraordinary a step. It is true, as you say, I have repeatedly declared, publickly and privately, "that the right of the people and the prerogative of the Crown were equally dear to me, and equally my duty and inclination to preserve," nor can any motive be sufficient to induce me to sacrifice one at the shrine of the other. Your Lordship will not, however, pretend to say that it is not the sole prerogative of the Crown to grant military commissions in the Province, or that it is not your as well as my duty to prevent any infringements of that prerogative, as far as may be in our power, and to signify your disapprobation of such infringements whenever it may be necessary. Cases may possibly happen, wherein some men may think it their duty so far to fly in the face of prerogative as to accept of commissions from a power set up in opposition to it; but I have not yet met with any person, who makes the least pretensions to honour or honesty, but what readily allows that a man cannot act consistently with either, unless he previously resigns any commission or trust which he holds by virtue of that prerogative he has determined to act in defiance of. This has been the conduct of not only such men as General Lee, but of many of the inferior officers of militia in this and the neighbouring Colonies. It was this consideration, and an unwillingness to entertain any idea the least derogatory to your Lordship's honour, which induced me to suspend my belief of the report you have now thought proper to authenticate.

I am, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,
WM. FRANKLIN.

Right Honourable the Earl of Stirling.

P. S. Since writing the above, Mr. Pettit has shown me a copy of the letter he wrote to your Lordship, which he remembers comparing with the one sent. I have compared it with your quotation, and find it to be materially different. There was a time, my Lord, when great would have been my surprise and astonishment at such a discovery. After informing your Lordship that the Council had advised the calling a full meeting, and requiring your attendance, he adds, "I have it further in command from his Excellency in Council to acquaint you," &c. Had you left the words "further," and "in Council," stand in your quotation, there would not have appeared even a colourable pretence for your considering it in any other light than as an official letter, nor the least excuse for the style and manner of your Lordship's letter to an old friend, who had on many occasions shown he was happy in an opportunity of obliging you, and in thinking you possessed an equal regard for him. But it seems that "the most grateful feelings of a man" happened to be "roused" in your Lordship, and you were of course anxious to convince "the good people of the country" that their "confidence" in you was not misplaced. Some proofs of this, too, I will allow to be the most necessary, as your Lordship's "frequent publick as well as private declarations," that a man ought to be damned who would take up arms against his Sovereign on the present occasion, might happen to be recollected. But, my Lord, was there no other means now left in your power, which might have a chance of effecting your desired purpose, but disrespectful treatment of a Governour? Though the present crisis might promise success to such an expedient, was there no danger that your mutilation of Mr. Pettit's letter might be discovered, and consequently that all good people would consider such conduct as an instance of contemptible meanness and dishonesty, although your Lordship might "think it one of the most satisfactory and honourable events of your life?"

LORD STIRLING TO GOVERNOUR FRANKLIN.

Baskinridge, September 25, 1775.

SIR: Your Excellency's letter of the 15th of this month was delivered to me last Saturday afternoon. At the time I wrote you my letter of the 14th instant, I did not know that Mr. Pettit was either Secretary or Clerk of the Council for this Province, for it was a matter of publick report, some months since, that he was displaced from every office he held under the Crown, and I have some other authority to believe that the report was true. I had therefore great reason to believe he wrote me the letter of the 7th as your private Secretary or Clerk, especially as he did not sign that letter with the additions of his office, which he generally did when he wrote officially. I shall not at present say any thing further in answer to your Excellency's letter, as it would probably involve us in a long epistolary dispute, upon a subject which is already sufficiently understood by the generality of mankind. I cannot so easily pass over the postscript you have, on a sight of a copy of Mr. Pettit's letter of the 7th instant, been pleased to add to your letter. The sight of this copy of Mr. Pettit's letter seems to have had a very strange effect. "Surprise, astonishment, mutilation, contemptible meanness, and dishonesty," are all jumbled together in a most violent agitation; and for what? Because, as you say, I have committed the heinous sin of leaving out the words further and in Council, in quoting Mr. Pettit's letter. Let me beg a few minutes of your Excellency's dispassionate attention, while we examine into the importance of these words being left out or not. In the preceding part of the letter Mr. Pettit does not say that he has any thing in command from your Excellency, in Council or out of it, and had begun the second part of his letter with the words "I have it further in command." I believe your Excellency would have thought it nonsense; and, in quoting that paragraph, I believe your Excellency would have taken the liberty to have made sense of it. Where, then, could have been the important difference between his saying "I have it further in command," or "I have it in command," unless it be to preserve as far as it is connected with the preceding paragraph. But what must be your Excellency's surprise and astonishment when I assure you that in the original letter from Mr. Pettit to me, now in my possession, the word "further" is not to be found. We will next examine the importance of the words "in Council." Whether your Excellency was in Council, or out of it, when you gave the command, it was equally your command; and if the command was improper or impolite out of Council, it is not the advice of your whole Council which can sanctify it, or make it proper or polite in Council. Can your Excellency, therefore, be justified in using the language you have done on this occasion? Your Excellency next intimates that I have made frequent "publick as well as private declarations, that a man ought to be damned who would take up arms against his Sovereign on the present occasion." Your Excellency cannot assert this of your own knowledge, for I have never been in your company since the present occasion occurred. Since the rejection of the most humble, dutiful, and respectful petitions to the Throne has been known in America, since the battles of Lexington and Bunker's Hill, since the wanton and cruel destruction of Charlestown, and since the design of the Ministry to bring indiscriminate ruin on the Colonies on this Continent has been publickly avowed, I have not had the honour of seeing your Excellency, and therefore I may, without offence to you, Sir, say that the assertion, so far as it relates to the present occasion, is false. To retort the rest of this extraordinary postscript would be descending to the language of a certain place in the environs of the Tower of London, with which I am but little acquainted. I shall only observe, that gentlemen who feel themselves intrenched in such exalted offices as that of Governour of a Province, should be extremely cautious how they make use of bad language, either in speaking or writing. The world is very censorious, and will be raising suspicions to their disadvantage. On this very occasion there may be some who will suspect that this postscript, as well as part of the letter, would not have been framed in the style it is, had we been in any other Province than New-Jersey.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

STIRLING.

To Governour Franklin.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Thursday, September 7, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Chairman, and thirty-three Members.

Mr. Duer applied to take the sense of the Committee, whether he might charter the Sloop, late the property of Mr. Drewidtz, now mortgaged to Mr. Simpson.

Ordered, That the Chairman, John Broome, and Ebenezer Miller, be a Committee to determine on this application.

Ordered, That Mr. G. Roorback be desired to deliver the keys of their respective vessels to the Captains Hawley and Hazard, and to detain their sails till further orders from the Committee of Safety.

Ordered, That John Sneydar be forwarded on his way to Lancaster, being a sick Rifleman, and that Messrs. Burling and Janeaway be a Committee to see it done.

Ordered, That Messrs. Bancker, Duryee, Ray, W. Walton, Low, and Clopper, be a Committee to wait on the Committee of Safety, to represent to them the necessity of an arrangement for the issuing a part of the Soldiers' Pay, now in the publick service, to their wives and families here.

COMMISSIONERS FOR BUILDING FORTS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, September 7, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: It appears to us, the Commissioners appointed to erect the batteries recommended by the Continental Congress, necessary that we should be informed whether any fixed sum is allotted for erecting the said batteries, or whether it is left to the discretion of the Commissioners. We beg leave to observe, that as this Province is the centre of America, it is very probable that Administration may endeavour to get possession of it, and thereby prevent any assistance being sent from the southern Provinces to the New-England Governments. It is our opinion that, as it will be a Continental expense, the fortification ought to be rendered respectable.

An Engineer is expected in town to-morrow. We shall be glad to know whether the Committee of Safety propose agreeing with him, or whether the agreement is to be left to the Commissioners.

As our reputation is at stake in the erecting these fortifications, and as we are desirous of acquitting ourselves consistent with the safety of the Province, we request that you will be pleased to give us your full instructions.

We are, very respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

SAMUEL BAYARD, JOHN HANSON,
THOS. GRENELL, JOHN BERRIEN.
WILLIAM BEDLOW,

COMMITTEES OF HUNTINGTON, ETC., IN SUFFOLK COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

At a meeting of the several Committees of Huntington, Smithtown, Brookhaven, the Manor of St. George's, and the Patentship of Meriches, held at Smithtown, September 7, 1775, for the purpose of nominating Field-Officers for the West Regiment, in Suffolk County, Present:

FROM HUNTINGTON: John Sloss Hobart, Esq., Thomas Wickes, Esq., Dr. Gilbert Potter, Captain Timothy Carll, Henry Scudder, Stephen Ketcham, Thomas Brush, Jun., John Squier, Ebenezer Platt.

FROM SMITHTOWN: Thomas Tredwell, Esquire, Jeffery Smith, Jacob Mills, Jonas Mills, Samuel Phillips, Philetus Smith, Edmund Smith, Daniel Smith.

FROM BROOKHAVEN, &c.: William Smith, Thomas Fanning, Noah Hallock, William Brewster, Jonathan Baker, John Woodhull, Joseph Brown, Samuel Thompson, Daniel Roe, Nathaniel Roe.

Mr. William Smith chosen Chairman.

By a verbal message from Colonel Platt Conkling, by Captain Carll, and by information from several other people, it appears to this meeting that he declines accepting of a commission. The meeting then proceeded to the business of nominating Field-Officers for the abovementioned Regiment, which nomination is as follows, viz:

For Colonel, William Floyd, Esq., living in the Manor of St. George's; Lieutenant-Colonel, Doctor Gilbert Potter, of Huntington; First Major, Captain Nathan Woodhull, of Brookhaven; Second Major, Edmund Smith, Jun., of Smithtown; Adjutant, Philip Roe, of Brookhaven; Quartermaster, John Roe, Jun., of Brookhaven.

The question being put, whether this meeting would proceed to recommend or nominate to our Deputies in Provincial Congress a person for a Brigadier-General, was carried in the affirmative; and Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull being proposed, was unanimously agreed to.

By order of the Committee: WM. SMITH.

TRYON COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Tryon County Committee Chamber, September 7, 1775.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: By the affidavits against the Sheriff, Alexander White, now prisoner in the Albany jail, sent to you the 26th of August last, you will be much convinced of his inimical behaviour against the common cause, and in particular against our County; and as the said Sheriff is undoubtedly unworthy of his office, which commission shall be expired this instant month, we, the Committee, upon the motion of the whole County, (the Tories only excepted,) granted a publick voting of a new Sheriff for our County, to the freeholders and inhabitants therein residing, by which John Frey, Esq., of Palatine District, got the majority of votes. The dangerous circumstances of our County, by such a traitorous ruler as this White, give us great reason to protest against him; and fearing that either himself, or another one equal to him, might be intrusted again by the Governour in New-York, for the future service in the Sheriff's office of our County, we resolved unanimously to apply to you for the directions of our present proceedings, begging that you will please to represent the same to his Excellency the Governour, and request his plenary grant of our chosen Sheriff above named, whom we can commend as a real friend to our American cause, a well-proved member of our Committee, and especially a worthy man for this office of a Sheriff, to the almost unanimous approbation of our freeholders and inhabitants. We recommend, and leave entirely to your discretion, the further necessary addresses to the behoof of our County's wishes and desire, not doubting that you will endeavour to interfere therein, as much as it lies in your power, to the confirmation of the aforesaid new chosen Sheriff.

It is a general complaint in our County against the whole situation of our court and other publick houses, and alike against the rule therein appointed, as we have been under remarkable grievances suffering during their authority, and hardly could get justice done, especially such persons not having their partial interests. But we will rely on your favourable advice, regarding the alteration in this grievous matter, when and where to apply for.

We have to annex and to enclose you another affidavit of consequence, against the said Sheriff White, to your serious consideration; and it is to be feared that if said White will not soon be delivered to your care and determination, he, with the secret schemes of his concealed friends in Albany, might get his escape, to a consequential hurt of our County in particular, and generally of our American cause.

There is another great number of approved enemies against our Association, and regulations thereof, proceeding in and about Johnstown, at Kingsborough, under the direction and orders of Sir John Johnson, being Highlanders, amounting to about two hundred men, according to intelligence. We are daily scandalized by them, provoked, and threatened, and we must surely expect a ravage of them in our families, if we should be required and called elsewhere for the defence of our Country's cause.

We cannot suffer much longer their behaviour against us, without blame and consequential damage; and therefore we thought proper to lay this in particular before you, with an humble request that you will consider this matter seriously, and delay not to favour us with your resolve therein, or on the contrary, by the daily rumour of the people in our side of the County, an uproar against indulgent proceedings of our Committee must be expected.

We remain, with great esteem, honourable Gentlemen, your obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

NICHOLAS HERCKMEYER, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York.

N. B. We have great suspicion, and are almost assured, that Sir John has a continual correspondence with Colonel Guy Johnson and his inimical party.

PROVIDENCE (RHODE-ISLAND) TOWN-MEETING.

At a Town-Meeting of the Town of Providence, especially called by warrant, and held according to law, in Providence, on the 7th day of September, A. D. 1775,

COL. BARZILLAI RICHMOND, Moderator.

Notwithstanding the time limited by the honourable Continental Congress for exportation to Great Britain, Ireland, and the West-Indies, is not yet fully expired, yet it is apprehended by this Town that the exporting Flaxseed from this Continent at this time, in large quantities, to any part of Europe, fully to the 10th of this instant, (the memorable day when all exportation from the United Colonies ceases,) militates directly against the spirit and design of the Continental Association. And whereas, upon the presumption that exportation would be continued by the other Colonies to the 10th of September, a quantity of Flaxseed has lately been brought into this Town, the exportation whereof, under the present circumstances, may counteract the good of our Country, and give grounds for jealousy and uneasiness to our brethren in the other Colonies, who we find have determined not to export any Flaxseed of this year's produce; and as we are desirous of the most firm union with our brethren on the Continent, and wish that every cause of uneasiness may be removed, it is therefore Voted and Resolved, That this Town highly disapprove of the exportation of any Flaxseed, at any time hereafter, by any persons in this Town, until a general exportation of that article takes place throughout the United Colonies of America; and that this Vote or Resolve be published in the next Providence Gazette.

Dissentient:

Because the aforesaid Vote or Resolve, under the pretext of amending, is an actual violation of the regulations of the Continental Congress, and deprives the subjects of those privileges they are entitled to, not only agreeable to the plain construction of the Fourth Article in their printed Resolves, but also the full sense and determination of the Members of said Congress, on a late motion, to alter the said Article.

As such a Vote or Resolve is very inconsistent with the well known principles of justice and prudence, as it withholds the benefit of supplies and trade from our real friends, while the same are allowed to those that are violently pursuing the subversion of all rights and privileges. As such a measure, adopted by a number of individuals or small corporations, has a direct tendency to supersede, or render ineffectual and of no validity, the united regulations of the Continental Congress, and to reduce every matter to a state of uncertainty and confusion.

SAMUEL NIGHTINGALE.

The foregoing Protest, signed by Mr. Nightingale, was delivered to the Town Clerk, by him to be entered on record.

The meeting dissolved.

PROVIDENCE (RHODE-ISLAND) COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Providence, September 7, 1775.

Whereas there have been many complaints of such as are venders of goods and merchandise in this County, for selling them at a higher price than settled by the Association Agreement of the Continental Congress, under pretence of buying them at a higher rate, which we deem a breach and violation of said Association: We do hereby forewarn all persons from selling any goods at a higher price than they were usually sold at, before said Association took place, on any pretence whatever, as they will thereby incur the just censure of this Committee, and their names will be published to the world accordingly.

Published by order: CALEB HARRIS, Clerk.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

Camp at Cambridge, September 7, 1775.

SIR: I do myself the honour of addressing you, in consequence of an application from the Commissary-General, who is by my direction taking all proper precautions on the approach of winter. I desired him to commit to writing such proposals as his experience and knowledge of the country might entitle him to make, which he has done in the paper which I have the honour to enclose. The difficulty of procuring a sufficient quantity of salt, which I objected to him, he has fully obviated by assuring me that there is so much now actually in store, in this and the neighbouring Towns, as will remove all possibility of a disappointment.

I propose to do myself the honour of writing in a few days fully and particularly on several heads, to which I must now refer. In the mean time, I have only to inform the honourable Congress, that I have received a small supply of seven thousand pounds of powder this week, from Rhode-Island, and in a few days expect seven tons of lead and five hundred stand of arms, a part of the same importation, and to request that more money may be forwarded with all expedition, the military chest being nearly exhausted.

I am, with the greatest respect, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Cambridge, September 6, 1775.

The Commissary-General proposes to General Washington the expediency of purchasing in Philadelphia, for the use of the Continental Army, ten or fifteen thousand barrels of flour. He supposes flour may be purchased, after the 10th of September, at Philadelphia, at thirteen Shillings, currency, per hundred weight, or under; that he can have it freighted to Newbury at one Shilling and three Pence per hundred weight, he risking the vessels against the enemy's cruisers only, and can have the whole interest in vessels and flour covered in Philadelphia at ten per cent., which will not bring the flour, delivered at Newburyport, up to thirteen Shillings, lawful money of New-England; whereas the lowest we get flour at from Connecticut is thirteen Shillings per hundred weight there, and seven Shillings per hundred weight carting; a saving worth while may be made. But as his mode is attended with a risk, the Commissary, in this as in every other case, thinks it his duty to apply to your Excellency for direction, and likewise to hint to your Excellency that it may occasion no material delay, if you should lay the matter before Congress for their advice, as the business must be transacted where that body are now convened.

The Commissary-General also requests direction from your Excellency, as to procuring pork, for supplying the Army the winter and summer next coming. The season for killing pork is approaching, when he can purchase that article, in any quantities, in the country, drive it in, and have it killed and salted at proper places, within twenty miles of camp, and thereby save transportation. The transportation of much the greatest part of the pork supplied to the Army the summer past has cost twenty and twenty-one Shillings per barrel. The pork may be put up here as cheap as in Connecticut, and the whole transportation saved. Salt, barrels, &c., can be had here; and on a quantity sufficient for twenty thousand men one year, more than ten thousand Pounds may be saved; and should the war be at an end, the pork will fetch its first cost, at least, when the trade opens.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, August 24, 1775.

(Parole, Sunbridge.)

(Countersign, Ulster.)

Lieutenant William Ryan, of Colonel Nixon's Regiment, tried by a General Court-Martial, of which Lieutenant-Colonel Brickett was President, is found guilty of a breach of the sixth and forty-ninth articles of the Rules and Regulations for the Massachusetts Army, and is unanimously adjudged to be cashiered. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to take place immediately.

The Quartermaster-General is to see that the different Brigades, or at least each Division of the Army, are provided with Armourers, sufficient to keep the Arms therein in proper repair; that they have proper places provided to work in, that they are properly attended to, to prevent impositions of any kind. He is also to employ brick-makers, under the care of Captain Francis, of Colonel Mansfield's Regiment, and set them to make bricks immediately. The necessary attendance is to be applied for by Captain Francis to the Adjutant-General.

The Quartermaster-General is also to receive from the General Court of the Massachusetts Government, or from such persons as they shall appoint to deliver them, all the shirts, shoes and stockings, breeches and waistcoats, which have been provided by order of their Committee of Safety, for the use of the Army, and settle for the same, and not deliver any from his store without an order in writing from the Commander-in-Chief.

An exact return of the Company of Artificers, under the care of Mr. Ayres, to be given in, where they have been to work, and how employed.

The General would be glad to have the Rules and Regulations of War (as established by the Continental Congress) returned to him signed, as he will thereupon proceed to distribute the Continental Commissions, agreeable to the rank lately settled.

The late Paymaster of the Massachusetts Forces is once more called upon in a peremptory manner to settle his accounts with the different Regiments, that it may be known what money is due to the men up to the first of this month (August.) The General is sorry that any difficulty or delay should have happened in a matter so plain and simple in its nature. He now assures the Regiments of Massachusetts, as they seem to be the only complainants and sufferers, that if they do not get paid by their own Colony Paymaster before the first day of September, that he will order James Warren, Esq., Continental Paymaster-General, to pay each of the Massachusetts Regiments for the month of August, and that he will moreover use his endeavours to have their pay up to the first of August settled for and adjusted as soon as possible.

Twenty men, from Colonel Mansfield's Regiment, and ten from Colonel Gardiner's, and two from each of the other Regiments in the lines and in Cambridge, to be sent to join Captain Francis, of Colonel Mansfield's Regiment, to be forthwith employed in making of bricks; none but men who are acquainted with that service to be sent upon it.

Colonel Prescott, with two Companies of his Regiment, to march to Sewall's Point this day. The Colonel will apply to the Quartermaster-General for the tents that will be wanted for this detachment.

If the Officers who were sent upon the recruiting service are not all returned to camp, they are to be forthwith recalled, and no more men are to be enlisted until further orders.

The Company late under the command of Captain Ebenezer Lindsey is to join Colonel Woodbridge's Regiment, as that Regiment has at present only nine Companies.

As the Commander-in-Chief has heretofore approved all the sentences of the General Courts-Martial which have been laid before him, and thought himself happy in agreeing with them in opinion, so will he not now disapprove the judgment respecting Ensign Joshua Trofton, as the Court have intimated that they were influenced by some favourable circumstances. Disobedience of orders is amongst the first and most atrocious of all military crimes. He desires that the conduct of Ensign Joshua Trofton (however he may have been provoked) may never be drawn into a precedent, as there are certain modes by which inferior officers may obtain redress of grievances, without proceeding to any unjustifiable acts of violence.

Ensign Joshua Trofton, of the 30th Regiment of Foot, in the service of the United Colonies, commanded by Colonel Scammons, tried by a General Court-Martial for "offering to strike his Colonel, and for disobedience of orders," is found guilty of a breach of the sixth article of the Rules and Regulations of the Massachusetts Army, and sentenced to be confined to his tent for three days.

A Return, signed by the Commanding Officer of each Regiment, of the Commissioned Offices vacant, distinguishing their names, rank, and by what means vacant. This must be delivered to the Adjutant-General, at orderly time, to-morrow.

As the extraordinary duty necessary for some days past prevents the mustering General Sullivan's Brigade this morning, the General appoints Friday morning next for that purpose, and orders that Brigade to be relieved from all but the ordinary camp duty of their particular encampments Thursday morning, that they may have that day to prepare for their mustering.

As nothing is more pernicious to the health of soldiers, nor more certainly productive of the bloody flux, than drinking new cider, the General in the most positive manner commands the entire disuse of the same, and orders the Quartermaster-General this day to publish advertisements, to acquaint the inhabitants of the surrounding Districts that such of them as are detected bringing new cider into the camp after Thursday, the last day of this month, may depend on having their casks stove.

For the future, the several guards mounted upon the General Hospitals are to be reduced into one guard, consisting of one Subaltern, three Sergeants, three Corporals, one File, and thirty Men. The officer, after seeing his sentries posted, is to receive his orders from Doctor Church, Director of the General Hospital of the Army of the United Colonies.

The Quartermaster-General and Commissary-General are to see strict regard paid to the sixth article of the General Orders of the 7th July last, as complaints are continually making of the badness of the bread served to the Regiments.

One Field-Officer, six Captains, twelve Subalterns, twelve Sergeants, twelve Corporals, two Drums, two Fifes, and three hundred Soldiers, from Heath's Brigade, and the same from the Cambridge Brigade, to parade as soon as the weather is fair, to march to Ploughed Hill; one Surgeon and one Mate from each Brigade, to be provided with proper instruments and dressings, are to be ready to march with the above detachment.

By the Orders of the 17th instant, Thomas Chase, Esq., was, to the prejudice of Samuel Brewer, Esq., through mistake, appointed to be continued to do duty to Brigadier-General Thomas's Brigade, as Major of Brigade. His Excellency orders that mistake to be rectified, and directs Samuel Brewer to be continued to act as Major of Brigade to Brigadier-General Thomas. He is to be obeyed as such.

The Colonels or Officers commanding of each Regiment of the Massachusetts Forces are without delay to make out an exact abstract, for the month of August, of the pay due to the Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers and private Soldiers of each Regiment, who were effective in the said Regiment during that month, and who continue to be effective in the same. This abstract must be signed by the Colonel, or officer commanding each Regiment of the Massachusetts Forces, and forthwith delivered by him to the Commander-in-Chief, to the end that each of those Regiments may immediately be paid one month's pay.

Complaint has been made to the General that the body of a soldier, of Colonel Woodbridge's Regiment, has been taken from his grave by persons unknown. The General and the friends of the deceased are desirous of all the information that can be given of the perpetrators of this abominable crime, that he or they may be made an example, to deter others from committing so wicked and shameful an offence.

The magazine guard, in the rear of General Sullivan's Brigade, to be relieved to-morrow morning by the Brigade posted in and near Cambridge.

Captain Edward Crafts, of Colonel Gridley's Regiment of Artillery, tried yesterday by a General Court-Martial, is acquitted of that part of the charge against him which relates to "defrauding of his men;" and the Court are also of opinion, that no part of the charge against the prisoner is proved, except that of "using abusive expressions to Major Gridley," which being a breach of the forty-ninth article of the Rules and Regulations for the Massachusetts Army, sentence the prisoner to receive a severe reprimand from the Lieutenant-Colonel of the Artillery, in the presence of all the officers of the Regiment; and that he, at the same time, ask pardon of Major Gridley for the said abusive language.

Lieutenant Russell, of Captain Symond's Company, in the Twenty-First Regiment of Foot, tried by the above Court-Martial for "disobedience of orders," is unanimously acquitted by the Court. The General confirms the proceedings and sentence of the above Court-Martial.

The General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Experience Starrs was President, is dissolved. Capt. Moses Hart, of the Twenty-Eighth Regiment of Foot, tried by the above-mentioned General Court-Martial, is found guilty of "drawing for more provisions than he was entitled to, and for unjustly confining and abusing his men;" he is unanimously sentenced to be cashiered. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to take place immediately.

A detachment, consisting of two Lieutenant-Colonels, two Majors, ten Captains, thirty Subalterns, thirty Sergeants, thirty Corporals, four Drummers, two Fifers, and six hundred and seventy-six Privates, to parade to-morrow morning, at eleven o'clock, upon the Common in Cambridge, to go upon command with Colonel Arnold, of Connecticut; one Company of Virginia Riflemen, and two Companies from Colonel Thompson's Pennsylvania Regiment of Riflemen, to parade at the same time and place, to join the above detachment. Tents and necessities proper and convenient for the whole will be supplied by the Quartermaster-General immediately upon the detachment being collected. As it is imagined the officers and men sent from the Regiments, both here and at Roxbury, will be such Volunteers as are active woodsmen, and well acquainted with batteaus, so it is recommended that none but such will offer themselves for this service. Colonel Arnold and the Adjutant-General will attend upon the Common in Cambridge to-morrow, in the forenoon, to receive and parade the detachment. The Quartermaster-General will be also there, to supply tents, &c.

The Colonels and Commanding Officers of the Massachusetts Regiments, who have delivered in their pay abstracts at Head-Quarters, are immediately to apply to the General for his warrant upon the Paymaster-General, James Warren, Esq., for the pay for the month of August, agreeable to the General Order of the 31st of last month.

As great complaints have heretofore been made by the men in regard to their pay, the General expects the utmost exactness and despatch be made in this payment.

Whereas a number of pretended Sutlers, utterly disregarding the good of the service, sell liquor to every one indiscriminately, to the utter subversion of all order and good government, the Troops being continually debauched, which causes them to neglect their duty, and to be guilty of all those crimes which a vicious ill habit naturally produces: To prevent such evils from spreading in the camp, no person is for the future to presume to sell any stores or liquor to the Troops, unless he be first appointed Sutler to some Regiment, by the Colonel or officer commanding the same, who will immediately punish such Sutler for any transgression of the Rules and Orders he is directed to observe. And if any person not regularly authorized and appointed shall presume to sell liquor or stores to the Troops in the camp, it is recommended to the Brigadier-General to issue an order for securing their persons and effects; the delinquent to be punished at the discretion of a General Court-Martial, and his effects to be applied for the refreshment of the fatigue-men and out-guards belonging to the Brigade. This order is not meant to extend to those Sutlers who are appointed by Government, and who are permitted to act as Sutlers to the Regiments for which they were appointed; they being subject to all Rules and Regulations of the Army, the same as if appointed by the Colonels.

As the remoteness of some of the Regiments from Head-Quarters renders it difficult to send invitations to the officers, the Commander-in-Chief requests, that for the future the Field-Officer of the day, the Officer of his own guard, and the Adjutant of the day, consider themselves invited to dine at Head-Quarters; and this general invitation they are desired to accept accordingly.

Repeated complaints being made by the Regimental Surgeons, that they are not allowed proper necessaries for the use of the sick, before they become fit objects for the General Hospital, and the Director-General of the Hospital complains that, contrary to the rule of every established Army, these Regimental Hospitals are more expensive than can be conceived, which plainly indicates that there is either an unpardonable abuse on one side, or an inexcusable neglect on the other: And whereas the General is exceedingly desirous of having the utmost care taken of the sick, (wherever placed, and in every stage of their disorder,) but at the same time is determined not to suffer any impositions upon the publick, he requires and orders that the Brigadier-Generals, with the Commanding Officers of each Regiment in his Brigade, do sit as a Court of Inquiry into the causes of these complaints; and that they summon the Director-General of the Hospital, and their several Regimental Surgeons, before them, and have the whole matter fully investigated and reported. This inquiry to begin on the left of the line to-morrow, at the hour of ten, in General Sullivan's Brigade.

When a soldier is so sick that it is no longer safe or proper for him to remain in camp, he should be sent to the General Hospital. There is no need of Regimental Hospitals without the camp, when there is a General Hospital so near and so well appointed.

Colonel Thompson's Regiment of Riflemen to be mustered to-morrow morning, at seven o'clock. General Green's Brigade to be mustered Saturday morning, at the same hour. These Corps are to be one day off duty, previous to their being mustered.

JOSEPH REED TO BENJAMIN LINCOLN.

Camp at Cambridge, September 7, 1775.

SIR: His Excellency the General, hearing of the arrival of a quantity of powder and arms at Providence, despatched one of his Aids-de-Camp to purchase the whole importation, supposing it to be private property. Messrs. Clark & Nightingale, in their letter, make use of the following expression: "As our vessel is not yet arrived here, and we have not been able to obtain the Captain's accounts with respect to the voyage, we cannot ascertain our proportion of these articles—the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts-Bay being equally concerned with us in them, they having advanced four thousand dollars, to which we put the like sum, to be invested in military stores, if they could be procured. It will, therefore, be entirely out of our power to have this matter adjusted until the Captain's arrival; for which reason, we must request your Excellency to inform Colonel Benjamin Lincoln, (to whom we write,) as he was formerly one of the Committee of Supplies and one of the Council of the Massachusetts-Bay, and the person with whom we contracted, that you have the powder and lead delivered you, and that the arms and five thousand flints will be sent the first opportunity, for which your Excellency will be pleased to settle with them, as soon as they know the amount, which shall be immediately on the Captain's arrival."

In consequence of the above letter, I am now, by the General's direction, to acquaint you that seven thousand two hundred and ninety-eight pounds of powder, and six hundred weight two quarters three pounds of lead, have been received by the Commissary of Artillery of the Continental Army, for which he will account with this Province, whenever the papers will enable him so to do.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

J. REED.

JOSEPH REED TO NATHANIEL TRACY.

Camp at Cambridge, September 7, 1775.

SIR: Colonel Glover has just informed the General that there are five vessels at Beverly, and two at Newbury, which were fitted out for another purpose, but will answer the present equally well, as they are completely equipped with platforms, wood, water, &c. It will be a saving, both in time and expense, to make use of these. You will, therefore, be pleased, in your transaction of this matter, to consider these seven vessels as a part of the transports, and only extend your care to the remainder. Whatever expense may have accrued in preparing any vessels which will not be necessary by this arrangement, must be carried to the general account; but you will be careful not to add any thing to it after this comes to hand.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
J. REED.

NICHOLSON BROUGHTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Gloucester, September 7, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: I beg leave to acquaint your Excellency that I sailed from Beverly last Tuesday, at ten o'clock, with a fair wind; proceeded on my cruise. On the same day, about five o'clock, saw two ships of war; they gave me chase. I made back towards Cape Ann, but did not go in. Next morning I saw a ship under my lee quarter; she giving me chase, I run into Cape Ann harbour. I went out again that night, about sunset, and stood to the southward. Next morning saw a ship under my lee quarter; I perceived her to be a large ship. I tacked and stood back for the land; soon after I put about, and stood towards her again, and found her a ship of no force. I came up with her, hailed, and asked where she came from; was answered, from Piscataqua, and bound to Boston. I told him he must bear away, and go into Cape Ann; but being very loth, I told him if he did not I should fire on her. On that, she bore away, and I have brought her safe into Cape Ann harbour, and have delivered the ship and prisoners into the hands and care of the Committee of Safety for this Town of Gloucester, and have desired them to send the prisoners, under proper guard, to your Excellency, for further orders.

Also, have sent the Captain of the ship we took, for your Excellency's examination, and I shall proceed immediately in the further execution of your Excellency's orders. And am your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

To his Excellency George Washington, Esq., Captain-General in and over the Confederate Army of the United Colonies in America.

ADDRESS OF THE MAYOR, BAILIFFS, AND BURGESSES OF THE BOROUGH OF LEICESTER, PRESENTED TO HIS MAJESTY BY JOHN DARKER, ESQ., ONE OF THEIR REPRESENTATIVES IN PARLIAMENT.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

SIRE: Your Majesty's loyal subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Burgesses of the Borough of Leicester, beg leave to approach the Throne, and with all humility to offer an address on the unhappy difference subsisting between the Mother Country and your Majesty's American Colonies; lamenting, as we do most sincerely, the loss of our countrymen who have already fallen a sacrifice in defence of measures extorted from the Parent State by the obstinate delusion of those people who, from their first settlement on the Continent of America, have uniformly experienced protection, encouragement, and defence, at the expense of millions, and with the repeated effusions of human blood.

We have not been inattentive to the late Parliamentary deliberations respecting the Colonies; and whilst we view with full approbation the conduct of our Representatives given in and to those truly respectable majorities, fully informed and competent to decide upon questions so important, it is matter of wonder to us that any part of our fellow-subjects, however small, should so far be seduced by prejudice and faction, as to afford, even in the most distant manner, countenance to a people declared, on the firmest ground, to be in a state of rebellion.

Your Majesty's clemency and justice we are fully impressed with, and do not entertain a doubt but that the Colonists will receive those terms, whenever a proper opportunity occurs, that may be consistent with the dignity and welfare of the Mother Country to offer, and such as may be accepted with security and advantage by those who have shown a disposition to oppose, with the utmost violence, the legislative power of Great Britain; but we cannot refrain from expressing our wishes that, if their present contumacy should continue, your Majesty may adopt such measures as will convince them "that the sword is not borne in vain," and that inclination, not means, has hitherto been wanting to ensure that attachment and obedience to this Country which might reasonably have been expected as the fair result of gratitude and interest. To accomplish this necessary end, and in defence of our happy Constitution, your Majesty may at all times be assured of our best assistance.

Given under our common seal, this eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

SAMUEL OLIVER, Major.

NEW-YORK FIREMEN TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

New-York, September 8, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We, firemen of the City of New-York, beg leave to lay our state and condition before you; that we cannot serve two masters—to be drawn out in the military service, and to tend our fire-engines. We desire the same privilege as is granted to us by the act of the Legislature.

We are willing to serve as firemen; and if a general attack should be made upon our City, we are willing and ready to be drawn out with the rest of the citizens; and if that is not agreeable to the honourable Congress, we must lay down firemanship and turn out as soldiers.

We, the subscribers, are officers and foremen of the several engines.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO JOHN HANCOCK.

[Read September 18, 1775.]

Isle-aux-Noix, September 8, 1775.

DEAR SIR: General Montgomery, having received the enclosed information on the 25th ultimo, and being justly apprehensive that the enemy's armed vessels might get into the lake, unless an immediate movement was made to this place, resolved to proceed with what force he could carry, of which he advised me by express, which I received at Albany, where I was attending at the Indian conference on Sunday, the 27th ultimo. I arrived very much indisposed at Ticonderoga on the 30th, and left it on the 31st, after having given the proper orders for bringing up the artillery, &c., &c. On the 4th instant, I joined General Montgomery at Isle-la-Motte, where he had arrived the preceding day, having been detained by adverse winds and rainy weather. On that day we moved on, and arrived at this place; and, agreeable to a request that had been made us, we fired three cannon, to give notice to the Canadians of our arrival, who were to collect on the occasion. On the 5th, I drew a declaration, (copy of which is enclosed,) and sent it amongst the inhabitants; and as we judged that going to St. John's weak as we were, (our numbers not exceeding one thousand,) might have a good effect on the Canadians, and encourage them to join us, we resolved upon the measure, and accordingly landed our provisions, baggage, &c., and early on the 6th embarked, and without any obstruction proceeded towards St. John's. When we arrived in sight of, and at the distance of about two miles, the enemy began a fire from their fortress, but without doing any damage; we approached half a mile nearer, and then landed, without opposition, in a close deep swamp. After being formed, we marched in the best order we could, in grounds marshy and covered with woods, in order to approach and reconnoitre the fortresses. Major Hobby and Captain Mead, of the Connecticut forces, being on the left, and a little advanced, were attacked in crossing a creek by a party of Indians, from whom they received a heavy fire; but our troops gallantly pressing on them, they soon gave way and left us the ground. In this rencounter we lost a Sergeant, a Corporal, and three Privates killed, one missing, and eight wounded, three of whom are since dead. Besides these, Major Hobby was shot through the thigh, but not dangerously; and Captain Mead received a slight wound through the shoulder, as did Lieutenant Brown in the hand. Our surviving wounded are in a fair way of recovery. Night now coming on, we drew our men together, and cast up a small intrenchment to defend ourselves in case of an attack in the night.

In the evening, a gentleman, whose name I am not at liberty to commit to paper, came to me, and gave me the following account. That there were no regular troops in Canada but the twenty-sixth Regiment; that all these, except fifty at Montreal, were at St. John's and Chamblly; that there were then at St. John's about one hundred Indians; that there was a considerable body with Col. Johnson; that the fortifications were complete and strong, and plentifully furnished with cannon; that the vessel was launched, and had one mast in, and the other ready to raise; that she would be ready to sail in three or four days, and is to carry sixteen guns; that he does not believe our Army will be joined by one Canadian; that they wish to be neuter upon the occasion; but if we should penetrate into Canada it would not displease them, provided their persons and properties were safe, and we paid them in gold and silver for what we had; that, in the situation we were in, he judged it would be imprudent to attack St. John's; and advised us to send some parties among the inhabitants, and the remainder of the Army to retire to Isle-aux-Noix, from whence we might have an intercourse with La Prairie.

He told me that in the afternoon's engagement five Indians were killed and four badly wounded, besides several others the condition of whose wounds he did not know, and Captain Tyce, of Johnstown, who was wounded in the belly.

On the 7th, in the morning, having been undisturbed through the night, excepting by a few shells, which did no other damage than slightly wounding Lieutenant Mills, I called a council of war of all the Field-Officers present, to whom I communicated the information I had received. I enclose a copy of their opinion, which being perfectly consonant to my own, I immediately ordered the Troops to embark, and are retired to this place without any molestation, where we propose to secure ourselves in the best manner we can, so as to prevent the enemy from going up the lake, and also to enable us to take the advantage of any events that may happen in Canada, from whence I hope to hear in a day or two from Colonel Allen and Major Brown, who went to deliver my declaration.

I cannot estimate the obligations I lie under to General Montgomery, for the many important services he has done and daily does, in which he has had little assistance from me, as I have not enjoyed a moment's health since I left Fort George, and am now so low as not to be able to hold the pen. Should we not be able to do any thing decisively in Canada, I shall judge it best to move from this place, which is a very wet and unhealthy part of the Country, unless I receive your orders to the contrary.

The sloop we hear is in the river, and has on board, besides provisions and other stores, three pieces of field-artillery and two mortars; and we are joined by three hundred Connecticut Troops, and four hundred Yorkers, so that we are about seventeen hundred strong, with five pieces of cannon and two mortars.

I am, dear Sir, with every sentiment of respect and esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., &c.

CHARLOTTE COUNTY, ss.

Peter Griffin, soldier in Captain Babcock's Company, and Colonel Easton's Regiment, saith that on Saturday, the 12th instant, he set out from Crown Point, with Lieutenant Watson, on a scout down Lake Champlain; that on Sunday last he fell in with Captain Remember Baker, in the Schooner Liberty; that he was chosen by Captain Baker to go with him to Canada; that on Monday last, at daylight, he, with a little St. Francois Indian, was landed by Captain Baker a little below Windmill Point, on the west side of the river Sorel; that from thence they proceeded on the west side of the river to a place at St. John's about five hundred paces from the fortifications in the woods, where they arrived at about six o'clock in the afternoon; that he saw the intrenchment to the south side of the vessels there building, with four or five cannon mounted, fronting to the river; that he saw two vessels on the stocks there; that he saw the whole broadside of one, the length whereof appeared to be between fifty and sixty feet; that he supposed the vessel was nearly ready for launching; that she was planked up to the wales, and pitched black; that the other vessel was chiefly covered by the vessel last mentioned, so that he could see nothing more than about four feet of her bow, which appeared to him to be planked; that he remained there till next morning; that to the best of his judgment he, with the Indian, lay that night about ten rods from the sentinel of the Regulars placed near the woods, and at break of day they retired towards the place where they were landed near Windmill Point; that on their return, in walking on the beach towards Windmill Point, they saw ten Indians coming in a canoe from the east side of the river towards them, upon which they retired into the woods, and about four miles to the south of the place where they saw the Indians they again came to the lake, and that they arrived nearly opposite Windmill Point at night, and lodged at the house of one Vinelogh, and the next morning the Indian's father brought them on board the schooner, and from thence the deponent came down to Crown Point on Thursday, the 24th instant; that Captain Baker, after leaving the deponent and the Indian, proceeded down the river Sorel, in a boat, to the Isle-aux-Noix, and did determine to intercept the scouts of the Regulars there, and was also there to have taken on board the deponent and the Indian; but that they, being pursued by the Indians abovementioned, were obliged to proceed further up the lake; that the Indian left the deponent at Windmill Bay; that he seemed exceedingly anxious for Captain Baker's safety; and that he, together with his father, determined to go down the river in a canoe to the Isle-aux-Noix, to Captain Baker, the next day; that the French and English inhabitants along the lake are very impatient to have the Army down the lake; that they declared their willingness to supply the Army to their utmost with greens and sauce; that they are almost starving for want of other provisions.

The above examination taken at Ticonderoga, the 25th day of August, 1775, before the Honourable Richard Montgomery, Esq., Brigadier-General, by Richard Varrick, private Secretary to Major-General Schuyler.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF CANADA.

Isle-aux-Noix, September 5, 1775.

FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN: The various causes that have drove the ancient British Colonies in America to arms have been so fully set forth in the several petitions, papers, letters, and declarations, published by the Grand Congress, that our Canadian brethren (at the extirpation of whose liberty as well as ours the nefarious schemes of a cruel Ministry directly tend) cannot fail of being informed thereof, and pleased that the Grand Congress have ordered an Army into Canada, to expel from thence, if possible, those British Troops, which, now acting under the orders of a despotick Ministry, would wish to enslave their countrymen. This measure, necessary as it is, the Congress would not have entered on, but in the fullest confidence that it would be perfectly agreeable to you; for, judging of your feelings by their own, they could not conceive that any thing but the force of necessity could induce you tamely to bear the insult and ignominy that is daily imposed on you, or that you could calmly sit by, and see those chains forging which are intended to bind you, your posterity, and ours, in one common and eternal slavery; to secure you and ourselves from such a dreadful bondage, to prevent the effects that might follow from the Ministerial Troops remaining in Canada, to restore to you those rights which every subject of the British Empire, from the highest to the very lowest order, or whatever his religious sentiments may be, is entitled to, are the only views of the Congress. In these sentiments, you will readily believe that they have given me the most positive orders to cherish every Canadian, and every friend to the cause of liberty, and sacredly to guard their property; and such is the confidence I have in the good disposition of my Army, that I do not believe I shall have occasion to punish a single offence of this kind.

A treaty of friendship has just been concluded with the Six Nations, at Albany. I am furnished with an ample present for their Caghawaga brethren and the other Canada tribes. If any of them have lost their lives, I sincerely lament the loss; it was done contrary to orders, and by scoundrels ill-affected to our glorious cause; and I shall take great pleasure in burying the dead, and wiping away the tears of their surviving relations, which you will communicate to them.

PHILIP SCHUYLER, &c., &c.

At a Council of War held at the Camp near St. John's, September 7, 1775. Present: Major-General Schuyler, Brigadier-General Montgomery, Colonel Waterbury, Fifth Regiment of Connecticut Troops; Lieutenant-Colonel Whiting, the same; Lieutenant-Colonel Ritzema, First Regiment York Troops.

Having taken into consideration the state of the enemy's vessel pierced for sixteen guns, and in such forwardness as in all probability to be in readiness to sail in four days, it was unanimously agreed to be indispensably necessary to take measures for preventing her entrance into the lake. It was the opinion of the Council that this could only be effected at the Isle-aux-Noix, the weak state of our artillery affording no prospect of silencing the enemy's guns, under the protection of which they are now rigging her.

It was therefore resolved to return without delay to the Isle-aux-Noix, throw a boom across the channel, and erect the proper works for its defence, there wait for certain intelligence touching the intentions of the Canadians, and when re-enforced send a strong detachment into the Country by land, should the Canadians favour such a design.

Isle-aux-Noix, (12 miles from St. John's), Sept. 8, 1775.

We embarked on Monday, 28th of August, and proceeded from Ticonderoga to Crown Point; there we encamped until Wednesday; from thence, went down the lake, to a place called Wilsborough, where we tarried that night; in the morning proceeded on our passage to a place near that, called the Four Brothers; from thence, to the Isle-la-Motte, where we remained until the Second Division came up; from the Isle-la-Motte we proceeded to the Isle-aux-Noix; having staid there one day, went to St. John's, and were kindly saluted with bombs and cannon from the fortifications. We immediately landed, to intrench ourselves within about a mile and a half of the fort; but no sooner had we landed, than we were attacked by a body of Indians and Regulars, who lay in ambush for us. We lost four soldiers on the spot. Three more were mortally wounded, who died in about four hours. Seven others were wounded, among whom are two officers, Major Hobby and Captain Meade. We drove the enemy off, but thought it prudent to return to the Isle-aux-Noix until our artillery could come up. We are determined to attack them shortly, and a bloody engagement must ensue, as they are very strongly fortified, and a number of Johnson's Indians are among them. We have a few with us.

CONNECTICUT COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Monday, September 4, 1775.

At a Meeting of the Governour, &c., present:

His Honour the Governour, Jabez Huntington, Samuel Huntington, William Williams, Nathaniel Wales, Jedediah Elderkin, Joshua West, and Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

The Governour laid before us a request and desire of the honourable General Assembly of the Massachusetts-Bay, communicated by the Hon. James Otis, President of the Council, representing that their Jails are generally crowded with Prisoners, &c., and moving for liberty to send some of their Prisoners into this Colony, and for direction where, &c. And in consideration of the circumstances of this case,

It is Agreed and Resolved, That although we have many Prisoners from the Northward, and much burdened many ways, and are very greatly in advance, yet, from our great affection to the common cause, this Board do not refuse to receive some of the Prisoners referred to, but depend that said Assembly will also apply to Rhode-Island and New-Hampshire Assemblies or Conventions, for the same purpose, and send as sparingly to us as may be; and those who may be sent, in pursuance of this license, shall be received in the Counties of Hartford and Windham, for the present, and until this Council shall determine otherwise.

Colonel Saltonstall and Captain Deshon, Committee from New-London, and Major Smith and Captain Palmer, Committee from Stonington, were present—the latter moving to have some of the Companies now at New-London stationed at Stonington, as they have been lately attacked and fired upon, &c. Both Committees ask that some works may be made, for defence, &c.

Also, his Honour the Deputy Governour, in behalf of the Town, by a Letter, moves to have some of the Soldiers sent to Lyme, as they are in danger, &c. And, on consideration, it is Voted and Ordered, That one Company (viz: Captain Rowlee's) be sent to Lyme, and, under the direction of the Deputy Governour and civil authority of that Town, keep up and maintain proper Watches and Guards, in such manner and places as they shall direct, for the present.

And on the request from Stonington,

Ordered, That two Companies (viz: Captain Bostwick's and Captain Tyler's) and the part of a Company under Captain-Lieutenant Hubbard, be stationed for the present at or near Stonington Harbour, and that the rest of the Companies remain at New-London, under Major Latimer; and that, at both said places, the soldiers make such intrenchments and works of defence, and in such place and manner, as shall be directed by the civil authority and Field-Officers within those Towns and limits.

Orders were made out, and forwarded to Major Latimer, to dispose the men, and give the necessary orders and directions accordingly.

On information, by letter, from Major Latimer, that one of the Vessels lately taken by Captain Wallace, of the Rose, man-of-war, &c., at Stonington, was by stress of weather drove back to New-London, with one white man, a petty officer, and three negroes on board, and were in his custody, and asking directions how to dispose of them, &c. And by other information it appears that two of the negroes belong to Deputy Governour Cooke, of Rhode-Island, and were lately seized and robbed from him, with and on board a vessel, by said Wallace, and that the other belonged to one Captain Collins. And, on consideration, Voted and Ordered, That the Major give information to the owner of the vessel, and, on his request, deliver her up to him, and send the white man to the jail at Windham, and the three negroes to the care of, and to be employed for the present by, Captain Niles, at Norwich, who is fixing out a small Armed Vessel, &c., until the Governour shall advise Deputy Governour Cooke of the matter, that they may, on proper notice, be returned to their owners.

Motion, that our Sick in the Camp have reason, and much complain of their usage, &c. The matter much discussed; but it being difficult to know, &c., and time failing, no certain conclusion was had concerning them.

And the Meeting was adjourned to Friday, 8th instant.

Friday, September 8, 1775.

At a Meeting, as before, present:

His Honour the Governour, Honourable Deputy Governour Griswold, Jabez Huntington, Samuel Huntington, William Williams, Nathaniel Wales, Jedediah Elderskin, Joshua West, and Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

Ezekiel Williams, Esq., one of the Committee to fix out the Armed Brig Minerva, &c., moving to have the officers all appointed, as she is nearly ready, &c. And this Board do appoint James Hopkins First Lieutenant, instead of — Horsey, who has declined; Ithiel Tinker Second Lieutenant, in the room of said Hopkins; Andrew Jehonnot Steward, in room of Timothy Larrabe, failed; William Plummet Master; William Warner Mate; Benjamin Cranston, of Providence, Gunner.

And Ordered, That she be supplied with five barrels of Powder, and Ball suitable, from New-London, to be delivered at Saybrook, and three hundred weight of Lead from Weathersfield.

Then a large number of Letters, &c., read and considered, &c.

On motion and consideration,

Voted, That the three Companies under the command of Colonel Webb, now at Greenwich, be removed to New-Haven, there to erect such works of defence and intrenchment, at Five Mile Point or elsewhere, as shall be directed and thought best by Colonel Webb and Lieutenant-Colonel S. Hall, they taking such advice as they shall think proper, so as to make no further expense to the Colony, saving and on condition that if the present report of Troops coming to New-York should appear to said Colonel Webb, on receiving these orders, to be probably true, that he do not remove from his present station without further orders.

Moved and Agreed, That if General Washington should apply, as is expected, for some of the three tons of Powder lately imported by Mr. Shaw, for the Colony, that he may be furnished with not exceeding one ton of it.

Moved, That whereas this Colony is very greatly in advance, both of Men and Money, for and in support of the grand cause of American Liberty: And whereas the honourable Congress of the United Colonies have wisely and equitably resolved that the whole expense of supporting and defending the same should be borne and defrayed by said United Colonies in proper and just proportion, and have emitted a Continental Currency, for and towards defraying said expenses; and this Colony having also lent and advanced the sum of Fifteen Thousand Pounds, lawful money of New-England, at the rate of six Shillings for one Spanish milled Dollar, to Major-General Schuyler, at the request and on the credit of Congress; and that we stand in great need of the same, and of a further supply, towards reimbursing the large sums by them expended and expending in the premises. That it is proper and reasonable to apply to said Congress, at this time, for the sum of Fifty Thousand Pounds of said Continental Currency, at the aforesaid rate, and also for the sum lent Major-General Schuyler, as aforesaid; and said first sum towards reimbursing the overplus of this Colony's proportion by them already expended in the common cause and defence, as aforesaid. And on consideration, Voted and Resolved, That this Board, in behalf of this Colony, will apply to the Congress of said United Colonies, convened at Philadelphia, for the said two sums of Fifty Thousand Pounds and Fifteen Thousand Pounds, currency, and for the purpose as aforesaid. And, thereupon, this Board do appoint, request, and authorize William Williams and Nathaniel Wales, Esquires, Members of their body, taking with them Mr. Livingston's receipt for said Fifteen Thousand Pounds, lent as aforesaid, to repair with all convenient speed to the said Congress at Philadelphia, and in behalf of this Colony to apply to them for, and request and receive said sums of Fifty Thousand and Fifteen Thousand Pounds, currency, and for the use aforesaid; and having received the same, to give up said Livingston's, and pass their own proper receipt, accordingly, which shall be received and acknowledged as good and valid, for any sum not exceeding the sum requested, and the money so received lodge with the Treasurer of this Colony, taking his receipt therefor.

And further Voted, That in case they, or either of them, shall fail of undertaking said service, his Honour the Governour appoint some other person or persons for that purpose, and with the same authority.

Thomas Shaw, present, brings Letters from Nathaniel Shaw, and to him, and sundry Papers relative to the article of Gunpowder, which he was employed and empowered to procure for the Colony, &c., and moving for the sum of Two Thousand Pounds more, to enable him to procure the quantity necessary, &c. And, on consideration, it is thought necessary and fit for the safety of the Colony that said further sum should be advanced.

And Voted, That the Clerk of this Council direct the Committee of the Pay Table to draw on the Treasurer for the sum of Two Thousand Pounds, for said Nathaniel Shaw, for the use aforesaid, taking his receipt to account for the same.

And then Voted, That the fifty stands of Arms lately imported by said Shaw, for the Colony, be lodged in the care of Colonel Jabez Huntington, at Norwich, and to be delivered out, as occasion may require, only by order of his Honour the Governour.

Voted, That Colonel Jabez Huntington be desired to inquire about twelve Blunderbusses brought in by the master of the vessel who lately brought in the three tons of Powder, on account of said Nathaniel Shaw, for the Colony, and, if to be had at a reasonable rate, purchase the same for the use of the Colony's Armed Vessel the Spy, under command of Captain Niles.

A number, about one hundred and eighty, old Gun Barrels being lately sent to his Honour, from Crown Point, by General Schuyler, this Board appoint Mr. David Trumbull to procure them to be supplied with Locks, Stocks, &c., and fitted for use.

Allowed, on motion by Robert Patrick, who brought said Gun Barrels, the sum of nine Pounds for said service, and ordered the Clerk to draw for the same on the Pay Table.

Voted, on motion, That an Order be drawn on the Pay Table, for the sum of One Hundred Pounds, in favour of Captain Robert Niles, of the Armed Vessel or Schooner Spy, fixing out at Norwich, to be improved for the expenses of fixing the same, and paying the wages of the men, &c., if any surplus there be; he giving his receipt for the same, and proper bond for proper disposition of said sum, and whatever money he may receive in capacity of Captain of said Vessel or Schooner, and well accounting for the same.

And the Council was dismissed.

TO THE PUBLICK.

Weston, September 8, 1775.

Having been acquainted by the Gentlemen the Committee of Correspondence in Weston with some uneasiness arising in the minds of people, from the conduct of myself and family upon fast day, the 20th of last July, and having a desire to live in good fellowship with every friend to American liberty, I beg leave publickly to declare, that the part I bore in those transactions that gave offence was dictated solely by the principles of religion and humanity, with no design of displeasing any one, and that I am sorry it was, in the eyes of one of my fellow-countrymen, attended with any disgusting circumstances. As it has been suspected that I despised the day, and the authority that appointed it, I must, in justice to myself, and from the love of truth, affirm, that I very highly respect and revere that authority, and, were it not for the appearance of boasting, could add, that I believe no person observed it with greater sincerity than

ASA DUNBAR.

The Gentlemen the Committee of Correspondence of Weston and Sudbury, (Massachusetts), having taken into consideration the above declaration of the Rev. Asa Dunbar, and questioned him respecting the transaction he refers to, receive it as satisfactory, and think it ought to release him from any unfavourable suspicions that have arisen to his disadvantage.

BENJAMIN PIERCE, Moderator.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp at Cambridge, September 8, 1775.

SIR: Upon the receipt of this you will please to give directions that all the new levies march immediately to this camp. By a resolution of Congress, the Troops on the Continental establishment are not to be employed for the defence of the coasts, or of any particular Province; the Militia being deemed competent to that service. When I directed these Troops to remain in their own Province, I had some reason to expect a remove from Boston to New-York; in which case they would have been able to give them more speedy opposition. But as that suspicion now appears groundless, there will be an impropriety in continuing them where they now are, consistent with the above resolve.

The detachment which I mentioned in my last will march in two days, and I shall have occasion for the Troops from you to fill their places. The ministerial expedition must, I apprehend, by this time have come to some issue; they are either returned with disappointment, or have succeeded in their errands. In either case, the men can be spared without danger to the Country; but should this not be the case, and they are still hovering on the coast, it is to make no difference in their march; so that I shall, at all events, expect them here next week, for which you will please to give the necessary orders.

I am, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp at Cambridge, September 8, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have received your favour of the 31st of August, and am much engaged in sending off the detachment, under Colonel Arnold, upon the plan contained in mine of the 20th ultimo. A variety of obstacles has retarded us since the express returned with yours of the 27th of August, from Albany; but we are now in such forwardness that I expect they will set out by Sunday next, at furthest. I shall take care, in my instructions to Colonel Arnold, that, in case there should be a junction of the detachment with your Army, you shall have no difficulty in adjusting the scale of command.

You seem so sensible of the absolute necessity of preserving the friendship of the Canadians, that I need say nothing on that subject, but that a strict discipline, and punctual payment for all necessities brought to your camp, will be the most certain means of obtaining so valuable and important an end. I shall inculcate the same principle most strongly upon our Troops who go from hence, as that on which their safety, success, and honour, entirely depend.

I am truly concerned that your supplies and appointments are so far short of your expectations; but I trust you will have a feeble enemy to contend with, and a whole Province on your side—two circumstances of great weight in the scale. Your situation for some time must be so critical and interesting, that I hope you will not fail giving me constant information of your motions and success. My best wishes attend you.

Believe me, with much truth and regard, dear Sir, your very obedient servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To General Schuyler.

TO THE PEOPLE OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Salem, Massachusetts, September 8, 1775.

If we recollect in what manner the servants of the best of Princes, and particularly his late faithful Governour of this Province, have been constantly employed, we shall have little reason to be surprised at any condition of disgrace by which the once respected name of Englishmen may be degraded. That unfortunate gentleman, whose signal fidelity and good services will forever endear him to the most gracious Prince who governs this part of his Dominions with such satisfaction to his subjects, has, I trust, by this time established a durable reputation. This Country, I think, will remember his affection for its peace, his piety and zeal in office, with peculiar justice. His Majesty's righteous Ministers are bound to regard him with particular attention. He has laboured more abundantly than they all. Without regarding the opinion of his friends or the censure of the world, he has sacrificed his virtue to merit their esteem. His religious principles have been uniform. I am convinced they were always the very same they are at present. They have been wonderfully serviceable. By these his distinguished zeal in support of the claims of the British Legislature, which he constantly condemned to his friends, and once publickly opposed, though seemingly inconsistent with principles of honesty, may be fairly reconciled. The end, if we acknowledge his divinity, will forever sanctify the means, and murder, on certain occasions, may be lawful. Upon these principles I account for the murders in King-street, the benevolent idea of abridging English liberties, and the present situation of this Country. But this language is too mild for the occasion. Every unwarrantable exertion of Parliamentary power, every scheme hitherto adopted for subjugating the Colonies, has been carefully pointed out by him. In consequence of his earnest repeated solicitations, the Constitution of this Province has been torn up from the foundation; our coasts infested with ships of war; our commerce obstructed; the Metropolis forced from our hands, garrisoned, and fortified; the inhabitants oppressed and reduced to beggary; the Continent forced to arms; the liberties of America endangered, and the lives of three thousand of His Majesty's subjects wantonly destroyed. The best of Princes has been advised to consent to acts which disgrace his royal character, and violate the first principles of justice and humanity; which have already involved the Nation in blood, disaffected his subjects, and will finally dismember his Empire and shake his Throne. This is strong language, but it is supported by fact and argument. I appeal to the confidential letters of his late trusty and well beloved Governour, for a full explanation of that deep plan of policy which has duped the best of Princes, and degraded the honour of his arms. His Majesty's faithful servants adopted it with all its blunders; they never gave themselves leisure to obtain solid information, nor once reflected on the danger of their enterprise; they embarked in the cause with their usual intrepidity, with a fixed determination to persist, though the interests of the Nation should be sacrificed forever in the contest. The system of Government is uniform. Dissipation and luxury can only be supported by plunder and oppression. But these ignorant men should be informed that plunder and oppression will rouse the whelp of the British lion in the woods of America.

But this is not the subject which it is the design of this paper to illustrate. The short recapitulation I have made of the state of the Colonies, and the affection hitherto discovered for their real interest, by our most gracious Sovereign and his favourite servants, was necessary to introduce the consideration of future probable measures. Past kind offices may be considered as ominous, especially if they have been constantly and uniformly bestowed.

There is a certain period in the annals of every Nation, when the collected virtue and abilities of every member of the community should be exerted to defend its rights; when the people should be roused to a sense of their danger, and animated to adopt such measures as will issue in the free and full enjoyment of those rights of nature and society which every man is fairly entitled to. Were I called upon to point out that interesting period in the history of this Country, the present alarming era would fix my attention. We have it now in our hands to establish an everlasting barrier against ministerial influence, and to obtain substantial justice for the people. I mean by carrying back the Constitutions of the several Colonies to their original principles; by vesting the appointment of all legislative, judicial, and executive officers in that branch of Government which can best exert it for the publick service, and with the least diminution of legal liberty; and by immediately exercising the power thus established. Until this be done, we can have no consistent plan of defence, no solid resources in case of sudden emergencies. We must be governed by temporary expedients, and upon every unexpected measure be disconcerted, and finally ruined. I know it may be said that we have prospects of accommodation, and that it may not be necessary to adopt a regular system. This opinion is as fatal as it is groundless. I would not preclude the possibility of a compromise. I confess that I feel the prejudices of my education in favour of a settlement with Great Britain upon honourable terms. But when I reflect that the villain who fomented quarrels among the Colonies, and earnestly pressed that Boston should be made a solemn sacrifice to gratify his resentment; who procured this Province to be disfranchised, and the inhabitants to be wantonly destroyed; when I consider that this man is still consulted upon every measure respecting his Country; that his opinion is invariably pursued, and that he attempts to conceal his crimes from the eye of the publick, by ardent professions of love for his native soil, and zeal for the religion of his fathers, I cannot but suspect some mischievous scheme is in agitation to destroy all the privileges of the people. I own, too, that I am not yet sanguine enough to expect a more plentiful harvest of ministerial virtue in one year than another. We have been witnesses of the flagitious attempts which have been repeatedly made, and obstinately persisted in, to establish a Government in this Province arbitrary upon the face of it, and notoriously under the influence of the Crown. I affirm that we have no reasonable ground to suppose that these attempts are yet laid aside; on the contrary, from the evidence before us, we ought to be assured that they are not. Why are the avowed enemies of the people caressed? Why are all the Powers in Europe meanly requested to assist in our destruction, by refusing us supplies? Why have not our petitions, resolves, and remonstrances, roused the best of Princes from his lethargy? But why this ridiculous mention of the King? Is he ever consulted? Has he any opinion of his own? Was he ever permitted to bestow a single mark of his royal favour upon this Country? No. His favours have a different direction. That noxious northern planet which spreads plague and pestilence wherever its influence extends, absorbs the royal munificence. The friends of the people have nothing to expect but silence and contempt from the private virtues of their Sovereign. His publick virtues have long since ceased to be in question. It is, therefore, no longer for the interest of the people to renounce the benefits of society, under a vain expectation of a change of publick measures. I appeal to past experience and present appearances when I affirm that it is the design of Administration to persist with obstinacy, but not to act with vigour. The one is perfectly consistent with the uniform plan of the cabinet. To adopt violent measures would alarm the body of the people, who are too brave to permit the inhabitants of America to be sacrificed upon the altar of despotism. I repeat it, we have nothing to expect from the Ministry but fraudulent designs upon the liberties of this Country. Why are the Troops under General Gage continually re-enforced? Why do they remain inactive within Boston? Why is our commerce distressed, our seamen dragged out of our ships, and our coasts plundered? The intentions of the Ministry are not pacifick. Their virtues are cunning and perseverance; they have adopted a plan, and they will obstinately pursue it. They avoid the preparations for a vigorous war, for fear of sounding an alarm to the people of Great Britain. By piratical acts of hostility upon the coasts here, the brave Troops of the first Monarch in Europe are tolerably well supplied, his dastard Colonists are frightened and distressed, and the administration of his Ministers, instead of appearing contemptible in his own eyes and ridiculous to the whole world, seems to the most gracious Prince upon the throne to be directed by more than human wisdom. But piracy alone is not the grand object which engrosses the attention of His Majesty's servants. They wait for some favourable event to crown all their schemes. They expect this event in the disunion of the Colonies. To accomplish it, every possible mode, by threats, promises, persuasions, and bribery, is anxiously improved, at the expense of the whole national interest. They know that a confederacy between many distinct States is seldom of long duration. The seeds of dissension are many. The difficulty of keeping a large body of Troops in the field without action is unavoidable; the consequences are too often fatal.

These are the dangers we have to fear, and this is the moment to repel them. The scene, in the course of a few months, may be fatally changed; the advantage thrown away; the most favourable opportunity lost. Hereafter we shall know the value of it. When time and difficulties damp the ardour of our Troops, and disaffection or backwardness prevails among the Colonies; when the Minister has completed his preparations; when the collected force of foreign invasion and domestick troubles attacks us at once, every man will then be able to determine of the wisdom or folly of past measures. It is said that by the delay of the Minister our Troops will be disciplined and the officers acquire experience; that there is not the most distant prospect of a disunion. To this I answer generally: that human affairs are perpetually fluctuating, and a good citizen would wish to guard against every possible contingency that might prove fatal to the community, were it to happen. That our Troops want discipline and the officers experience, and that they will acquire both by delay, I confess to be true. I am ready to acknowledge real advantages; but these are overbalanced by greater impending mischiefs. The state of things is much altered in this Country since it first became necessary to oppose the enormous influence of the Crown. We have nothing to apprehend from violent exertions on the side of the Minister, but every thing from delay and political cunning. Formerly it was the intent of the people to petition, remonstrate, and ascertain their privileges. At present it is not only their interest, but I hold it essentially necessary to the preservation of the rights of America, that such steps be instantly taken as will restore them to the benefits of Constitutional Government in all its branches; and that they improve offensively the natural advantages of their situation. Upon the same principle that I would have opposed the taking up arms and assuming the powers of Government six months ago, I now insist that the first be not employed, or rather neglected, for the service of the enemy, and that Government be instantly established in all its parts, upon principles of publick good. It is indifferent to me whether the Minister carries his point by violence, or whether, by holding out the olive branch in one hand, while he manages the war with the other, he accomplishes the same pernicious designs. In either case, I consider him as a dangerous enemy, who ought to be attacked.

I do not mean to point out any particular mode of attack or defence; I leave it to those of greater abilities—to publick councils. I give my opinion to the people, as one of the people. I only affirm, in general, that we have nothing to expect from the best of Princes, or his virtuous servants, but war. I have endeavoured to confirm my opinion by recollecting past events, by bringing the various appearances of the political world into one point of view. I have said that this is the moment to obtain substantial justice for the people; that it ought to be improved; and, were I to give my opinion upon the subject, I should say, in general terms, that I would have all the members of the community instantly employed for the common weal, in departments to which their various abilities are best adapted. That all, or as many as possible, of our sea-ports be thrown into a posture of defence, and the people constantly used to arms. That vessels of force be immediately fitted out from the several ports upon the Continent, to protect our trade, and drive from our coasts the thousand armed tenders that infest the seas and seize our merchantmen; and that we be no longer guilty of delay.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEWBERN, IN NORTH-CAROLINA, DATED SEPTEMBER 9, 1775.

Our Convention will rise next week. They have agreed to raise one thousand men, to be stationed as follows: two hundred at Newbern, two hundred at Edenton, two hundred at Salisbury, and four hundred at Cape-Fear. Mr. James Moore and Mr. Robert Howe, of Cape-Fear, are appointed Colonels. Francis Nash and Alexander Martin, of Hillsborough and Salisbury, Lieutenant-Colonels. Thomas Clerk, of Hillsborough, and John Patton, of Pamlico, Majors. Dr. White, of Cape-Fear, Adjutant.

There has been a conference held with the chiefs of the Regulators. They have some scruples about the oath administered to them by Governour Tryon; but some of them have signed the Test or Association, and are now signing, and we apprehend no danger from them.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, September 15, 1775.

Last week, Captain Squire sent the following impertinent Letter, by a servant of Lord Dunmore's, to the Printer of the Norfolk Gazette:

"Otter Sloop, Norfolk River, September 9, 1775.

"SIR: You have, in many papers, lately taken the freedom to mention my name, and thereto added many falsities. I now declare, if I am ever again mentioned therein, with any reflections, I will most assuredly seize your person, and take you on board the Otter.

"I am, &c.,

MATTHEW SQUIRE."

And on the day after the disaster which happened to his tender, which was chiefly manned with runaway negroes, he despatched the following Letter to the Committee of the Town of Hampton, dated

"Otter Sloop, Norfolk River, September 10, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Whereas a Sloop tender, manned and armed in His Majesty's service, was on Saturday, the 2d instant, in a violent gale of wind, cast on shore in Back River, Elizabeth County, having on board the undermentioned King's stores, which the inhabitants of Hampton thought proper to seize, I am therefore to desire that the King's Sloop, with all the stores belonging to her, be immediately returned, or the people of Hampton, who committed the outrage, must be answerable for the consequences. I am, &c. MATTHEW SQUIRE.

"Six swivels, five muskets, five cutlasses, two powder-horns, one seine and rope, an anchor and grapnel, with two cables and hawser, one boat's awning, one iron stone, with some lead."

The Hampton Committee having thought proper, on Monday last, to lay the above Letter before the Committee of this City, they represented to the commanding officer of the volunteers here, the necessity of sending down a sufficient force to protect the inhabitants of Hampton from any insult that might be offered to them by Captain Squire, who immediately communicated the same to the volunteers, when one hundred men offered themselves, and next morning set out upon their march to Hampton; where it is to be hoped, should the said Squire attempt any thing hostile against the people there, that they will be able to give a good account of him. And as to the requisition of the King's stores, &c., that were on board the tender, being delivered up to him, it will be time enough to settle accounts with him after he has made satisfaction to the owners of the several slaves he has harboured, some of whom he now employs in the King's service, as well as for the number of robberies he has suffered to be committed, in hogs and poultry, from sundry plantations.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CAPTAIN VANDEPUT, OF HIS MAJESTY'S SHIP ASIA, TO ABRAHAM LOTT, CONTRACTOR FOR SUPPLYING THE KING'S SHIPS ON THIS STATION, DATED NEW-YORK, SEPTEMBER 9, 1775.

Will you do me the favour to contradict a paragraph in Mr. Holt's paper of September 7th, in which he says that the man-of-war had stopped several vessels with provisions, and that we had set our own price upon whatsoever we chose to take. The truth is, that we have not taken or bought any sort of provisions from any vessel, except three hundred oysters, which I bought yesterday, and for which I gave the owner two shillings more than what he told me was the market price. The transport has, I believe, got a few fowls and ducks for their sea stock, not being able to procure any from the shore; but I am well assured, that whatever price was asked for them was paid, and that the officer in the transport has receipts for whatever few things he has bought. I should not have taken notice of this, as I scarcely suppose any one who knows me would believe it; but I think it would be blameworthy in any one not to contradict any such report, which, if credited, might serve to inflame.

CAPTAIN JOHN HULBERT TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Southampton, September 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I would inform you that I marched with my Company from Montauk, the 7th inst.; am preparing to march, and shall set off by the middle of next week.

My Company will want a number of guns; as the inhabitants that supplied them will not let them go away, pleading the want of them themselves. I give you this timely notice, that the Company may not be detained long, when we come to New-York, &c.

I am, Gentlemen, your humble servant,

JOHN HULBERT.

To Mr. Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read September 14, 1775.]

Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
New-York, September 9, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: We enclose you a copy of a letter which we have this day received from General Washington, dated at Cambridge, August 30, 1775, to which we beg leave to refer you. As the General stands in need of gunpowder, and as we are informed that a considerable quantity has lately been received in Philadelphia, we doubt not you will forward as much as can be spared for this necessary service. We have about eight hundred weight in our magazine, which we would willingly part with, if our citizens had a supply. Be assured, we shall be attentive to every requisition from the General. We beg leave to inform you that a commission is wanting for Deputy-Adjutant Flemming, who has proceeded upon the service; you will be pleased to furnish us with it, that it may be forwarded to him. The first commission which we received for that appointment was filled up for a gentleman whose affairs would not permit him to accept it, and it is since returned to us. We are informed that the blank commissions with which General Washington has been furnished have been made use of. General Schuyler has not been supplied with any for this department. We request you will be pleased to furnish us with four hundred.

Some time since we forwarded to the camp at Cambridge nineteen hundred and fifty-five pounds of gunpowder. We submit it to you, whether it would not be proper to replace us that quantity from Philadelphia, as we know not what demand may be for that article from General Schuyler.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants,
By order of the Committee:

ABRAHAM BRASHER.

To the Delegates of the Colony of New-York, Philadelphia.

COMMITTEE OF RUMBOUT PRECINCT, DUTCHESS COUNTY, TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Rumbout Precinct, Dutchess County, September 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: By request of Col. James Clinton, we have collected all the arms we could for Captains Billings and Dubois's Companies, in the service of the Provincial Congress, in consequence of a resolve of theirs of the 8th ult., the cost whereof you have on the other side, by copy, signed by myself, as Chairman of Rumbout Precinct, Dutchess County. The original receipts and orders are in my hands, which have kept for fear of miscarrying, and have therefore sent the copies, attested by me as Chairman. When the originals are wanted, they shall be sent by a safe hand. In the mean time, the people are anxious for their moneys, and are daily calling for it; for which, as a Committee, we have bound ourselves; therefore desire you will immediately, on receipt hereof, send the sum of money the arms amount to, to myself as Chairman, or to Jacobus Swartwout, Deputy-Chairman, or to Henry Schenck, Clerk, or to Henry Godwin, Deputy-Clerk, who will give receipts to the Congress that the moneys are received, and paid to the persons of whom the arms were purchased.

I am, by order of the Committee, Gentlemen, your humble servant,

DIRCK G. BRINCKERHOFF, Chairman.

To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., or, in recess of the Congress, to the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY OF ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK, TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

New-Paltz, September 9, 1775.

To the respectable Provincial Congress of the Colony of
New-York:

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to your recommendation of the 31st May last, the Company of Militia of New-Paltz, (then under the command of Captain Noah Eltinge, Esq.,) per order of Colonel Johannes Hardenbergh, met together in the Town of New-Paltz, on the thirteenth day of June, and did then associate and form themselves into two separate Companies, dividing at the same time that part of the New-Paltz Precinct into two distinct Districts, viz: the Southern and Northern Districts, and the line of partition to run from the west end of the three mile lots on the west bank of Hudson's River, along the publick high road that leads from said Town to Hudson's River, until it meets the Paltz River, then along the same up the stream to the line of the southerly side of the New-Paltz, and then along the said line northwesterly, as it runs to the Paltz Point, excepting two households or families out of the Southern District, which are added to the Northern District. Which said two Companies, so formed as aforesaid, did then also, by majority of voices, choose and elect the following gentlemen to be Officers of the respective Companies aforesaid, viz:

For the Southern District: Lewis J. Dubois, Captain; John A. Hardenbergh, First Lieutenant; Matthew Leferer, Second Lieutenant; Methusalem Dubois, Ensign.

For the Northern District: Jacob Hasbrouck, Jun., Captain; Abr'm Doran, Jun., First Lieutenant; Petrus Hasbrouck, Second Lieutenant; Samuel Bevier, Ensign.

And whereas the said Officers, by the appointment of Colonel Johannes Hardenbergh, did afterwards meet with the Field-Officers in Kingston, to give in their names, in order that a return of the said proceedings might be made to the respectable Provincial Congress of this Colony, for the purpose of obtaining commissions for the said Officers: And whereas the return of the said Officers to the said Congress, it is presumed, hath not been forwarded or laid before the Congress; wherefore the said Committee, taking this affair in consideration,

Resolved, That for the better commanding and regulating the said Companies, it is highly expedient and necessary that the said Officers should be commissioned, and it is therefore hoped that this respectable Congress will be pleased speedily to issue forth commissions for the respective Officers above named, and chosen in manner as aforesaid.

By order of the Committee:

NATHANIEL DUBOIS, Chairman.

RECANTATION OF SAMUEL HOLLY, OF STAMFORD, CONNECTICUT.

Stamford, September 9, 1775.

Whereas I, Samuel Holly, of Stamford, have in many instances appeared unfriendly to the Continental Congress, particularly in proclaiming against that article of advertising those that do not adhere to their advice, and in labouring on the Continental Fast Day, for which I freely acknowledge myself to blame, for which I heartily ask the forgiveness of my Country, and do promise, by the solemn ties of honour, virtue, and love of my Country, that I will, for the future, yield a strict adherence to their advice, and be ready to sacrifice my interest and venture my life in the defence of my Country. I desire that the above confession may be published in the publick prints.

SAMUEL HOLLY.

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Roxbury Camp, September 9, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I should be glad that my Second Lieutenant, Mr. Jonathan Brewster, might succeed Lieutenant Kingsbury, and my First Sergeant, Mr. Ebenezer Perkins, have the Ensigny in my Company. The Second Lieutenantcy I could wish Mr. Simeon Huntington would accept. I want officers of a military spirit. Many are appointed who are worthy men, but very indifferent in camp. I once mentioned Mr. Newell to fill Mr. Tracy's place in my Company; but as there will be an opening in Captain Humphrey's Company, I think it is best, on some accounts, that if he is promoted, it should be in that Company. The appointments for my Company, which I have mentioned, I think will be for the service of the Regiment. I would not wish to have it known to any one what I say as to want of good officers. Doctor Church tells Doctor Turner there are to be Brigade Surgeons appointed by the Continental Congress, and that he will recommend Doctor Turner for one of them. If you should think proper to say any thing in the Doctor's favour, it may be of much service to a man very valuable in his place. My love and duty to the family, &c. I remain, most affectionately, JED. HUNTINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 9, 1775.

SIR: I am to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's letter of the 6th instant, and to inform you that, zealous to do every thing in our power to serve the common cause of America, the Committee have determined, instead of the small armed sloop, to send the large vessel, with fifty men, upon the Bermuda enterprise, with orders to Captain Whipple to cruise ten days off Sandy-Hook, for the Packet expected from England; and if he is so fortunate as to meet her, to put the letters ashore at Southampton, and send them by express to your Excellency. She will sail, wind and weather permitting, the beginning of the week.

There is in this Town a Mr. Du Ville, a Frenchman, who hath made several voyages from this port during the last four or five years, and is esteemed a person every way well qualified, and to be depended upon, for the execution of the plan he proposes. He was with Captain Hopkins the last voyage, when he imported the Ammunition, &c., lately purchased of Messrs. Clark & Nightingale for the Army, and hath brought with him a set of papers to qualify a brig as a French bottom. His scheme is to proceed to Bayonne, in France, where he is well acquainted, and there take in a load of powder, which he says can be effected in three days. This despatch will be so great, that intelligence of the vessel cannot be sent to England timely enough for any measures to be taken to intercept her upon her return. I think the plan practicable, and likely to be attended with success. We have here a brig, a fast sailer, and otherwise a suitable vessel for the voyage, which will bring about eighty tons, and we will undertake to fit one-quarter of her, and to supply the money to purchase one-quarter part of that quantity of powder, which is the most we can do here.

I have written to Governour Trumbull upon this subject, and desired him, if the plan meets with his approbation, to despatch a trusty person to confer with you upon it, who can return through Providence, and let me know the result, so that we may immediately equip the vessel for the voyage.

I have communicated to Messrs. Clark & Nightingale that part of your letter which related to them; they desire me to present to you their respectful thanks for the polite notice you have taken of them.

I have the honour to be, with much esteem and regard, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Cambridge, September 9, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 6th instant is now before me. Our state of ammunition disables us from availing ourselves of our present stations, as I would wish to do, and requires every assistance that can be given to it. You will, therefore, on the receipt of this, be pleased to forward whatever can be spared from the necessities of the Colony; and the more expedition you can use, the more acceptable it will be. I am, Sir, with due regard, yours,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

NICHOLSON BROUGHTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Gloucester, September 9, 1775.

SIR: As there are several matters of complaint turned up since my capture of the Ship Unity, against the Captain of the said ship, I think proper to acquaint you of the particulars, viz: On my sending of an officer on board said ship, his treatment was such as I would rather have expected from a polite enemy than a friend to our cause as Americans. I would acquaint your Excellency, in the next place, that there is on board said ship a much greater quantity of naval stores than is customary to export from our ports. There is, likewise, as I understand, some considerable quantity of provisions; much more, in my opinion, than is necessary for a ship's crew. I would likewise inform your Excellency that the Captain, contrary to the resolves of our General Assembly, has taken on board a considerable quantity of new fish. And from these, and many other circumstances, I conclude that Captain Flagg was designed for the Port of Boston, instead of any one of the West-India Isles. From this consideration, Sir, I, with the greatest deference to your own judgment, should think it proper that the ship should be removed to Beverly, as a place of much greater security than her present port. The lumber which she has on board is considerable, and might be much easier removed to head-quarters, for service, from thence, than the present port. I shall leave the ship with the Committee of Safety till further orders.

With the greatest respect, I am, Sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

To his Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I would not neglect acquainting your Excellency, in excuse for my making a short stay here, that my first Lieutenant was accidentally wounded, for the particulars of which, or circumstances relative to my taking the ship, your Excellency will be pleased to inquire of the bearer.

NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

JOSIAH BARTLETT AND JOHN LANGDON TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Windsor, September 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: A gentleman just from New-York informs us that a vessel had arrived there, the Captain of which informs, that there were great disturbances in the City of London, and many other places in England, concerning American affairs, which is much in our favour. Enclosed are the proceedings of the City of London, by which you will see the spirit of the people. We are also told that a quantity of powder has arrived, within a few days, in this Colony. We shall make all possible despatch to join the Congress. The Massachusetts Members are but few days before us.

We are, with respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

JOSIAH BARTLETT,

JOHN LANGDON.

To the Committee of Safety, Province of New-Hampshire.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED SEPTEMBER 10, 1775.

The anxiety of your mind at the unhappy state of the Colonies is honourable to your humanity. No good man can behold the picture you drew, without shedding a tear; all hope of an amicable settlement is, I fear, expired; and yet, as much as I know of this Country, I am convinced that nothing would be more pleasing to it than a reconciliation: not that the loss of your trade or military preparations are considered of importance, but that the characteristic benevolence of the nation laments the woes you are drawing upon your own heads.

Be not deceived by false representations of the state of this Country. You have already, in your non-importation scheme, found how little your seducers in this City are to be credited. The bulk of the people are against you, and your advocates few and inconsiderable. If some mode of pacification is not fallen on before spring, you will be fatally convinced of the truth of this information.

KINGSTON (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Kingston, Ulster County, September 10, 1775.

SIR: At a meeting of the Committee of this Town on Tuesday, the 5th instant, were informed by Mr. Egbert Dumond, one of the Delegates in Provincial Congress, that a sloop belonging to one Dop was taken and destroyed by fire, for carrying on a clandestine trade with the enemies of British America. We were at the same time credibly informed that a sloop belonging to one Christian Bergh, at Staatsburgh, in Dutchess County, had been employed in the same service. We immediately entered into a resolve, a copy whereof, and the proceedings thereon, is enclosed, and herewith sent to you. By order of the Committee:

JOHANNES SLEIGHT, Chairman.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON.

Camp at Cambridge, September 10, 1775.

DEAR BROTHER: So little has happened since the date of my last, that I should scarcely have given you the trouble of reading this letter, did I not imagine that it might be some satisfaction to you to know that we are well, and in no fear or dread of the enemy; being, in our opinion at least, very securely intrenched, and wishing for nothing more than to see the enemy out of their strong-holds, that the dispute may come to an issue. The inactive state we lie in is extremely disagreeable, especially as we can see no end to it, having had no advices lately from Great Britain to form a judgment upon.

In taking possession, about a fortnight ago, of a hill within point blank cannon shot of the enemy's lines on Charles-town Neck, we expected to bring on a general action, especially as we had been threatened, by reports from Boston several days before, that the enemy intended an attack upon our intrenchments. Nothing, however, followed, but a severe cannonade for a day or two, and a bombardment afterwards for the like time; which, however, did us no other damage than to kill two or three men, and to wound as many more. Both are now at an end, as they found that we disregarded their fire, and continued our works till we had got them completed.

Unless the Ministerial Troops in Boston are waiting for re-enforcements, I cannot devise what they are staying there for, nor why, as they affect to despise the Americans, they do not come forth, and put an end to the contest at once. They suffer greatly for want of fresh provisions, notwithstanding they have pillaged from several islands a good many sheep and cattle. They are also scarce of fuel, unless, according to the account of one of their deserters, they mean to pull down houses for that article. In short, they are, from all accounts, suffering all the inconveniences of a siege. It is true, from their having the entire command of the sea, and a powerful navy, and, moreover, as they are now beginning to take all vessels indiscriminately, we cannot stop their supplies through that channel; but their succours in this way have not been so powerful as to enable them to give the common soldiers much fresh meat as yet. By an account from Boston, of the 4th instant, the cattle lately brought in there sold at publick auction from fifteen to thirty-four Pounds ten Shillings sterling apiece, and the sheep from thirty to thirty-six Shillings each, and fowls and every other species of fresh provisions went in proportion. The expense of this, one would think, must soon tire them, were it not that they intend to fix all the expense of this war upon the Colonies; if they can, I suppose we shall add.

I am just sending off a detachment of one thousand men to Quebeck, by the way of the Kennebeck River, to co-operate with General Schuyler, who by this time is, I expect, at or near St. John's, on the north end of Lake Champlain; and may, for aught I know, have determined the fate of his Army and that of Canada, as he left Crown Point the 31st of last month, for the Isle-aux-Noix, within twelve miles of St. John's, where Governor Carleton's principal force lay. If he should succeed there, he will soon after be in Montreal without opposition; and if the detachment I am sending from hence, though late in the season, should be able to get possession of Quebeck, the Ministry's plan in respect to that Government will be defeated.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED CAMBRIDGE, SEPTEMBER 10, 1775.

We are at present in our camp, in tolerable security. Ploughed-Hill may bid defiance to all their malice; and what is more amazing, that can scarce be credited by a Philadelphian, though nevertheless true, they have suffered our men at Roxbury to throw up an intrenchment below the George Tavern, and within musket shot of their last intrenchment, and have scarce honoured us with a cannon. We were last night under some apprehensions of an attack. General Ward sent a letter to his Excellency, informing him that he had seen, or his people had seen, a number of men parading on Bunker's Hill; and our Army was kept during the night under arms, in order to give them a genteel reception. They have since been seen with their knapsacks on their backs, and, from good accounts from Boston, we are convinced they have sent a party of men either (which is most probable) to re-enforce the garrison at Quebeck, or to New-York. Three men-of-war are gone out of the harbour, for what purpose we cannot tell.

LORD NORTH TO HIS FRIENDS, SOLICITING THEIR ATTENDANCE IN PARLIAMENT.

Downing Street, September 11, 1775.

SIR: Before you receive this letter you will probably have seen His Majesty's Proclamation, fixing the meeting of Parliament for the despatch of business on the 26th of next month. The situation of publick affairs, which has made so early a meeting necessary, will bring on very important business at the beginning of the session; give me leave, therefore, to submit to you that it is extremely desirable that the Members of the House of Commons should attend on the first day.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, Sir, your most faithful humble servant,
NORTH.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF LIVERPOOL.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Bailiffs, and Common Council of Liverpool, in the County Palatine of Lancaster, in Council assembled, transmitted to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

The humble Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Bailiffs, and Common Council of LIVERPOOL, in the County Palatine of LANCASTER, in Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Truly sensible of the many blessings we enjoy in common with the rest of your people under your Majesty's mild administration and paternal care, we, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, beg leave to approach the Throne with all due respect to your royal person, the most steady attachment to the Protestant succession, and the firmest zeal for our glorious Constitution, to testify our warmest commendations of the wisdom and stability of your Majesty's councils, which have been directed to allay and put an end to the unhappy differences subsisting between Great Britain and her Colonies.

It is with the greatest concern we reflect that the measures hitherto pursued to bring our fellow-subjects in America to a true sense of their duty and interest, have not as yet had the desired effect; but we ardently hope that they will very soon be sensible of their error, and return to a due acknowledgment of the power of the British Legislature; that the joys of peace and tranquillity may be restored, and the hearts of all your Majesty's subjects be reunited in the strictest bonds of mutual confidence and affection.

We cannot, however, avoid expressing our abhorrence and detestation of all traitorous and rebellious disturbers of your Majesty's peace and Government, and assuring your Majesty that we shall ever be ready and willing to exert our utmost endeavours for the discouragement of all such illegal proceedings; and we pray that your Majesty may long reign in the hearts and affections of all your subjects, and that the Crown of these Realms may descend to your latest posterity.

Given under our common seal, the eleventh day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

AMELIA COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Amelia County, at the Court-House, on Monday, September 11, 1775:

Resolved, That the most cordial thanks of the Inhabitants of this County are due to John Tabb and John Winn, Esquires, for their disinterested and unwearied attention to the preservation of the just rights and liberties of the people of this Country, by assisting at the General Conventions that have been held in the Colony, and that at their own private expense, although they have been repeatedly offered the cheerful contributions of their constituents for bearing the expenses of their attendance; and that all the Members of this Committee accordingly wait on the above gentlemen with the thanks of the County in general.

This Committee have never entertained the least doubt but that the interior Counties of this Colony would all of them most cordially, in case the lower Counties, and those exposed to the danger of an invasion, should be attacked by the Ministerial plunderers who are now doing every thing in their power to distress and oppress his Majesty's faithful subjects on this Continent, give them every assistance and protection in their power, and have therefore hitherto taken it for granted, that, as their humanity and their sincere affection for all their fellow-subjects engaged in the glorious struggle for our dearest rights, could not be questioned, formal invitations would be needless; but as several of the upper Counties have lately published their sentiments on this subject, we think it proper to declare that we will not be behind them in acts of humanity and brotherly affection; and therefore we do hereby, for ourselves and our constituents, most heartily assure our friends and countrymen of the lower Counties, that when the day of distress may come upon them, and they find it necessary to quit their habitations, that we will then receive them with the utmost cordiality, and that we will afford to as many of their families as we possibly can, every comfort and protection which it may be in our power to give.

Resolved, That these Proceedings be published in the Virginia Gazette.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Chairman.
JOHN PRIDE, Clerk.

MEETING OF COMMITTEES OF WILLIAMSBURGH (VIRGINIA) DISTRICT.

On Monday, the 11th day of September, 1775, pursuant to the appointment of the Chairman of Elizabeth City, the Deputies for the several Counties, and the City of Williamsburgh, within that District, appeared at the Court-House of the said City, and produced Certificates, under the hands of the Clerks of the Committees of the several Counties, and the City of Williamsburgh, of their deputation to represent the several Committees in the General Committee for the said District.

The Deputies, being so assembled, proceeded to the choice of a Chairman, and appointed Robert Carter Nicholas, Esquire, to that office. Present:

ROBERT C. NICHOLAS, Esquire, Chairman.

For ELIZABETH CITY County: William Roscoe, Wilson Curle, John Cary, Cary Selden, and Miles King, Gentlemen.

For the County of WARWICK: William Harwood, William Langhorne, Richard Cary, and Hind Russell, Gentlemen.

For the County of YORK: Corbin Griffin, Rev. Robert Andrews, and William Eaton, Gentlemen, and Mr. William Diggs, in the room of Hugh Nelson, Esq.

For the County of JAMES CITY: Robert C. Nicholas, William Norvel, Nathaniel Burwell, and Champion Travis, Gentlemen.

For CHARLES CITY County: William Acrill, William Edloe, and William Green Mumford, Gentlemen, and Mr. Samuel Harwood, in the room of Benjamin Harrison, Esquire.

For NEW-KENT County: Bartholomew Dandridge, John Armistead, and George Webb, Gentlemen, and Mr. Richard Allen, in room of Burwell Bassett, Esq.

For the City of WILLIAMSBURGH: Messrs. John Dixon, and James Cocke, in the room of Benjamin Waller, Esquire.

William Russell, Gentleman, appointed Clerk of this Committee.

Then the Committee proceeded to the choice of Officers in the Regular service for this District, and nominated the following gentlemen:

George Nicholas, Esq., Captain; Mr. Beverly Dickson, First Lieutenant; Mr. Thomas Russell, Second Lieutenant, and Mr. Merritt Moore, Ensign.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Officers so appointed, to proceed with the utmost expedition to enlist, within this District, one Company of Regulars, to consist of sixty-eight men, rank and file; that they rendezvous with the said Company in the City of Williamsburgh, when enlisted, until further orders of the Committee of Safety.

Tuesday, September 12, 1775.

The Committee proceeded to take under their consideration the proper arrangement of Minute-Men, to be enlisted in this District, in pursuance of an Ordinance of the General Convention, and came to the following Resolution:

Resolved, That there be enlisted in the County of Elizabeth City, one Company of 50 men; in the County of York, two Companies of 50 men each; in the County of James City, one Company of 50 men; in the County of New-Kent, two Companies of 50 men each; in the County of Charles City, two Companies of 50 men each; and in the City of Williamsburgh, one Company of 50 men, to be commanded by their proper Officers.

The following gentlemen were then appointed Officers: Champion Travis, Esquire, Colonel of the Battalion;

Hugh Nelson, Esquire, Lieutenant-Colonel; and Samuel Howard, Esquire, Major.

Mr. John Cary, Captain of the Company to be raised in Elizabeth City; Mr. John King, Lieutenant; and Mr. Joseph Selden, Jun., Ensign.

Mr. Richard Cary, Captain of the Company to be raised in Warwick County; Mr. Thomas Haynes, Lieutenant; and Mr. Josiah Messenburg, Ensign.

Mr. William S. Sclater, Captain of one of the Companies to be raised in York County; Mr. Callohill Minnis, Jun., Lieutenant; and Mr. Edward Howard, Ensign.

Mr. William Goosley, Captain of the other Company to be raised in York County; Mr. Thomas Harwood, Lieutenant; and Mr. Frederick Bryan, Ensign.

Mr. John Walker, Captain of the Company to be raised in James City; Mr. William Johnson, Lieutenant; and Mr. Henry Brown, Ensign.

Mr. Furnea Southall, Captain of one of the Companies to be raised in Charles City; Mr. Edward Marrable, Lieutenant; and Mr. John Bell, Ensign.

John Tyler, Esquire, Captain of the other Company for Charles City; Mr. Stith Hardyman, Lieutenant; and Peter Dunn, Ensign.

Mr. Thomas Massie, Captain of one of the Companies to be raised in New-Kent; Mr. Henry Finch, Lieutenant; and Mr. Samuel Manning, Ensign.

Mr. Andrew Anderson, Captain of the other Company to be raised in New-Kent; Mr. Walter Hopkins, Lieutenant; and Mr. William Armistead, Jun., Ensign.

Mr. Robert Anderson, Captain of the Company to be raised in the City of Williamsburgh; Mr. Humphrey Harwood, Lieutenant; and Mr. William Rosway, Ensign.

Resolved, That Mr. James Bray Johnson, Gentleman, be appointed Commissary of Musters for this District.

Resolved, That the general place of rendezvous for the Battalion of this District be in the neighbourhood of the City of Williamsburgh.

Resolved, That publick notice be given to such persons as may be willing to contract for supplying the Battalions of this District with necessary Provisions, by the Chairman of this Committee, in writing; and that the said Chairman, together with the Members of James City, York, and Williamsburgh, or any six of them, do in the mean time, as occasion may require, contract with proper persons to supply any Company or Detachment of Minute-Men who may, upon any emergency, be called out to actual service.

It being represented to this Committee, that a number of Field-Pieces have been lately brought to the City of Williamsburgh, and the Committee being of opinion that it is necessary the same should be properly mounted and taken care of, offer it as their opinion, to the Committee of Safety, that a proper person be appointed for that purpose; and take the liberty of recommending Mr. William Finnie, as a gentleman who hath distinguished himself by his activity and zeal in the cause of the Country.

Ordered, That the Committee be adjourned to such day as the Chairman may think fit to call them for their reassembling.

ROBERT C. NICHOLAS, Chairman.

WILLIAM RUSSELL, Clerk of Committee.

DELAWARE COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

On Monday, the 11th of September, 1775, the Council of Safety for this Colony met by appointment, at Dover, in the County of Kent, and unanimously chose John McKinley, Esq., President, and James Sykes, Esq., Secretary.

The Council continued to sit six days, and, amid a great many useful measures for protecting and defending the Country, proceeded to regulate the Militia of the several Counties, consisting of nine Battalions; three of which, in Newcastle County, under the respective commands of Colonels John McKinley, Thomas Cooch, and Richard Cantwell, Esquires, were formed into one Brigade, under Brigadier-General John McKinley, Esq.; two in Kent County, under the respective commands of Colonels Cesar Rodney and John Haslet, and the Western Battalion of Sussex County, were formed into a second Brigade, under Brigadier-General Cesar Rodney, Esq.; and the remaining three Battalions, under the respective commands of Colonels John Dagworthy, David Hall, and Jacob Moore, Esquires, were formed into a third Brigade, under Brigadier-General John Dagworthy, Esq. Commissions were made out for all the officers, and the seniority and command of each precisely ascertained. There are about five thousand effective men in this Government associated and determined to defend their just rights and liberties with their lives and fortunes.

BUCKS COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, Bucks County, September 11, 1775.

Thomas Smith, appearing before the Committee, voluntarily executed the following acknowledgment and declaration, viz:

"As I have been charged before the Committee for having uttered expressions derogatory to the Continental Congress, invidious to a particular denomination of Christians, and tending to impede the opposition of my countrymen to Ministerial oppression, I do hereby declare myself heartily sorry for my imprudent expressions, and do sincerely promise for the future to coincide with every measure prosecuted for the redress of American grievances; so far as is consistent with the religious principles of the society to which I belong.

"THOMAS SMITH."

Voted, That this be considered as a sufficient satisfaction for his misconduct.

The Members of the Committee are desired to be particular in their attendance at the house of John Bogart, the 9th of October, at ten o'clock in the morning. By order of the Committee:

HENRY WYNKOOP, Clerk of Committee.

MILITIA OFFICERS OF THE FIRST THREE COMPANIES OF HUNTINGTON, SUFFOLK COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Committee Chamber, Huntington, September 11, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The following are the names of the gentlemen who have been chosen Militia Officers in Huntington, Suffolk County, New-York, agreeable to the recommendations of the Provincial Congress, viz:

John Wickes, Captain; Epenetus Conkling, First Lieutenant; Jonah Wood, Second Lieutenant; Ebenezer Prime Wood, Ensign.

Jesse Brush, Captain; Jonathan Titus, First Lieutenant; Philip Conkling, Second Lieutenant; Joseph Titus, Ensign.

Timothy Carll, Captain; Gilbert Fleet, First Lieutenant; Joel Scuddey, Second Lieutenant; Nathaniel Buffet, Jr., Ensign.

There is one Company in the south part of this Township which have not yet chosen their Officers, for which we are very sorry that we cannot make a return of their names with the above; but as we expect the choice will soon be made, shall make a return of the same as soon as possible.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servants. By order: THOMAS WICKES, Chairman.

To the Committee of Safety in New-York.

COMMITTEE OF WESTCHESTER TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

White Plains, September 11, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: None of the inhabitants of the Manor of Fordham or West-Farms having appeared to support the allegations of their petition, the consideration of which you referred to us, we have appointed a Sub-Committee to inquire into the matter, and report to us, at our next meeting, how they find the case circumstanced.

Complaints having been made to this Committee that an Independent Company is now forming in this County, and that the person who is most active about raising a Company expects a commission from the Committee of Safety this week, we are induced to request that no commissions for Independent Companies may be given out for this County, as it will make the raising of Minute Companies exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, and put the County into great confusion.

We enclose you the affidavit of Mr. William Hadley, one of our Committee, a man of unblemished character, respecting the conduct of John Cock, who was chosen a Captain by the inhabitants of the Yonkers. Affidavits will also be forwarded, as soon as possible, of Mr. Cock's speaking very disrespectfully of the Congress.

If the Committee of Safety are of opinion that it is improper to give Mr. Cock a commission, we submit whether it will not be necessary to acquaint those of our body who live in the Yonkers therewith, that they may proceed to a new election.

We enclose a list of the Field-Officers nominated by the Committee of this County, which we beg leave to recommend to the Provincial Congress as persons properly qualified for the several places for which they are nominated.

We are, Gentlemen, your most humble servants. By order of the Committee:

GILBERT DRAKE, Chairman.

To John Haring, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety at New-York.

For the District late commanded by Joseph Strang: John Hyatt, Captain; John Drake, First Lieutenant; Obadiah Purdy, Second Lieutenant; Joseph Horton, Ensign.

For the District late commanded by Ebenezer Theall: Andrew Brown, Captain; Samuel Haight, First Lieutenant; John Crissey Miller, Second Lieutenant; Solomon Purdy, Ensign.

For the Northern Division of the District late commanded by Levi Bailey: Nathaniel Delavar, Captain; Thomas Nicolls, Jun., First Lieutenant; Titus Runnels, Second Lieutenant; Abraham Purdy, Ensign.

For the South Division of the same District: Gideon Selah, Captain; Samuel Lawrence, First Lieutenant; Caleb Hobby, Second Lieutenant; Abraham Todd, Ensign.

The Company commanded by David Montross refused to choose officers.

RECANTATION OF WILLIAM WHETEN.

Stamford, September 11, 1775.

Whereas I, the subscriber, being this day apprehended for being an enemy to my Country, and for being guilty of damning the honourable the Continental Congress, and all other friends to American liberty; likewise for holding meetings detrimental to the laws, liberty, and honour of American freedom; for which I do humbly and heartily beg forgiveness of God, and all friends to American liberty. And I do hereby promise, before God and my Country, to aid and assist in apprehending any person or persons that are supposed to be enemies to American liberty, and to do all in my power to suppress any such enemies, and to give the most secret and quick information against any enemy that I shall know of, convened, or convening on any such occasion, against the good of my Country.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, the day and date above written; and this I desire to be transmitted to the publick prints.

WILLIAM WHETEN.

MEETING OF INHABITANTS OF THE LOWER DISTRICT OF FREDERICK COUNTY, MARYLAND.

Frederick County, September 16, 1775.

Agreeable to the recommendations of the Provincial Convention, the Freemen of the Lower District of Frederick County met at Charles Hungerford's on the 12th of this instant, and voted in the following gentlemen as a Committee of Observation: Captain Henry Griffith, Dr. Sprigg Wootton, Zadock Magruder, Thomas Cramphin, Samuel W. Magruder, George Beall, Jun., John Murdock, Richard Brooke, Charles Griffith, Allen Bowie, Robert Owen, William Luckett, Jonathan Wilson, Edward Burgess, Gerard Brisco, Francis Deakins, and Archibald Orme.

Dr. Wootton, from the great extent of his private business, declined serving as a Delegate. Captain Griffith likewise declined. Mr. Richard Brooke declared his intention of standing the poll. Captain Griffith, from the solicitations of the people, was induced to offer his service. A box being prepared, the people were desired to give in their ballots, when a very large majority appearing for Captain Griffith, Mr. Brooke closed the poll, and Captain Griffith was declared elected.

The Committee then met, and appointed Captain Henry Griffith, Dr. Sprigg Wootton, Zadock Magruder, Thomas Cramphin, Jun., Samuel W. Magruder, John Murdock, and Allen Bowie, a Committee for licensing suits, and Dr. Wootton and John Murdock a Committee of Correspondence.

The Committee for licensing suits in the Lower District will meet on the first and third Mondays in every month, at Hungerford's Tavern, by ten of the clock in the forenoon.

SIMON NICHOLS, Clerk.

MEETING OF INHABITANTS OF CHARLES COUNTY, MARYLAND.

At a meeting of the Inhabitants of Charles County, at the Court-House in Port Tobacco Town, on Tuesday, the 12th day of September, 1775, Daniel Jenifer, John Dent, Robert T. Hooe, William Smallwood, Samuel Hanson, (son of Samuel), John H. Stone, and William Harrison, Members of the late Convention, attended, when the people proceeded to choose thirty-two persons for a Committee of Observation, agreeable to a Resolve of the late Provincial Convention, and the following gentlemen were elected, to wit: Francis Ware, Josias Hawkins, William Smallwood, George Dent, Robert T. Hooe, Samuel Hanson, Jun., Benjamin Philpot, John Marshall, Kenemin Truman Stoddard, Gustavus R. Brown, John Dent, Thomas Harris, Thomas Hanson Marshall, Zephaniah Turner, Richard Barns, Joseph H. Harrison, John H. Stone, William Harrison, Thomas Simms, Warren Dent, Samuel Love, Bennett Dyson, Joshua Saunders, Richard Speake, Thomas Stone, Alexander McPherson, Jun., Samuel Hanson of Samuel, Walter H. Jenifer, Robert Sinnett, Daniel Jenifer, Charles S. Smith, and Henry Smith Hawkins, or any seven or more of them, to be a Committee of Observation for this County, for the term of one year.

And immediately after the said election, the following five gentlemen were chosen, by ballot, to represent this County in Provincial Convention, for the term of one year: William Smallwood, Francis Ware, Josias Hawkins, Thomas Stone, and Robert T. Hooe.

At a meeting of the Committee for Charles County, on Wednesday, the 27th of September, William Smallwood, Esq., in the Chair, and John Quinn Clerk, Messrs. William Smallwood, Francis Ware, Josias Hawkins, George Dent, Samuel Hanson, Jun., John Dent, and Warren Dent, were chosen, by ballot, to license suits in this County, agreeable to an order of the late Convention; and Messrs. Robert T. Hooe, Daniel Jenifer, John H. Stone, Walter H. Jenifer, and Zephaniah Turner, were chosen a Committee of Correspondence.

At the same time, the Committee appointed Messrs. Robert T. Hooe, Samuel Love, and Samuel Hanson, to receive gifts and contributions, agreeable to a Resolve of the Provincial Convention.

Resolved, That this Committee unanimously accord to the Resolutions of the late Provincial Convention, held at Annapolis the 26th day of July last, and will, so far forth as lies in their power, carry the same into execution.

Whereas vast numbers of executions have issued, and may continue to issue, on judgments obtained against many of the inhabitants of this County, to the great vexation of some and ruin of others, who have it not in their power to pay their just debts at this time of general stoppage to our trade, when their effects would not command money at half value, were they offered at publick or private sale; and as much distress, disorder, and ruin, may happen before the Provincial Convention can have the particular situation of this County under their consideration, and grant relief, we think it our duty, in the mean time, to apply such remedies, for the ease and quiet of the people, as seem to us most just and reasonable: Therefore,

Resolved, That where executions are already served, and the debtors cannot pay the debt or supersede, of which the Committee for licensing suits shall judge, the debtor ought then to offer the creditor the best security in his power, before the aforesaid Committee, which if the creditor unreasonably refuse, they are then to direct the Sheriff of the County to enlarge the debtor, at the risk of the creditor.

That the Committee for licensing suits immediately give notice to the Sheriff, to return all such executions as he has not already served, to the creditors or persons who put them into his hands, and desire them to order a return of countermand thereon, unless they can show cause to the said Committee why, without oppression, they may be served.

That it be recommended to the Clerk of this County, to deliver no execution on any judgment already obtained, without leave of the Committee aforesaid; that if any execution, on judgment obtained in the Provincial Court, should hereafter come to the hands of the Sheriff, he is hereby desired not to serve the same, but give notice to the creditor or creditors, or person or persons, who put the same into his hands, to countermand, or appear, as aforesaid, and show cause why, without oppression, such execution may be served.

Signed by order: JOHN GWINN, Clerk.

COLONEL ISRAEL MOREY TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Orford, September 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have to inform you that Colonel Bedell marched with his Companies last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, excepting twenty men belonging to Captain Osgood, which came to Orford last evening, and went off this morning in high spirits; I think a number of very fine soldiers in each Company. Major Israel Curtis raised a Company of Volunteers in three days, and marched on Sunday from Hanover, and this day left Orford, in company with Captain Osgood. It is expected that a number more will soon follow the example—a most noble spirit this—a number of which from Dartmouth College. I have helped to fix them out, and hope the Committee and Congress will think I did what was right, though at my own risk at present. The Major and men are to join the Army if wanted; but if not, to be upon his hook, and to return when not wanted.

Lieutenant Allen, of the Green Mountain Boys, brought express orders for Colonel Bedell to march immediately. I think he has acted himself much to his honour in pushing the Companies forward. Mr. Allen has enlisted a Company, of about forty-five men, nigh here, most of which marched off with Colonel Bedell, which Colonel Butte supplied with meat, bread, &c.

The occasion of Major Curtis's raising these men was by news from General Schuyler that he wanted men, and that the General had moved off with his Army, and was sick with the fever and ague when he moved forward. Mr. Allen informs us that Captain Baker, one of the Captains of the Green Mountain Boys, was killed by our enemy, who was a very brave officer.

I think, Gentlemen, it is of much importance that the commissions for the Regiment are forwarded by Mr. Porter, the post, as you must think that our Minute-Men should be in readiness, as we don't know how the affair of our Army may turn, which have gone against St. John's. If our Army is defeated, our Minute-Men, &c., most certainly will be wanted; and as Mr. Porter comes round by them, he can bring all the commissions for the four Regiments on Connecticut River, and for the Minute-Men, with blanks for the Captains, &c.

I am, Gentlemen, with respect, your humble servant,
ISRAEL MOREY.

Orford, New-Hampshire, September 12, 1775.

Last Thursday began their march from Haverhill, Coos, Colonel Timothy Bedell, with his three Companies of Rangers, in order to join General Schuyler in his expedition against St. John's, &c. Also marched, at the same time, part of a Company under the command of Captain Veal, who is one of the Green Mountain Boys, enlisted by Lieutenants Allen and Scalley; said Company consisted of men from these parts. Likewise marched this day an Independent Company of Volunteers, under the command of Major Israel Curtis, of Hanover, which he raised on hearing that troops were wanted to go to the westward; they were enlisted, equipped themselves, and marched in three days. This shows their warm zeal for their Country's defence.

ORDERS TO COLONEL MOULTRIE.

In Council of Safety of South-Carolina, }
Charlestown, September 13, 1775. }

SIR: You are to detach one hundred and fifty men, under such command as you shall judge most proper for the service, to embark this night at a proper time of the tide, to proceed with the utmost secrecy, and land at a convenient place on James's Island. Mr. Verree and Mr. Wm. Gibbs will be at Captain Stone's, or in the neighbourhood, attending the landing, in order to conduct the commanding officer to Fort Johnson, which he is to enter and take possession of with as much secrecy and silence as possible, taking especial care that none belonging to the Fort escape, and that no intelligence be given but by his orders. When the officer who shall be sent upon this service is in possession of the Fort, he is immediately to give notice to this Board, and wait for orders; except only in case the man-of-war, now lying in the Rebellion Road, should make an attempt to attack the Fort, or proceed against this Town, when he is to do every thing in his power to prevent her progress. Captain Stone, of James's Island, will order his Company of Militia to join the Troops which you send, and the whole are to be detained till relieved by our order.

By order of the Council of Safety:

HENRY LAURENS, President.

William Moultrie, Esq., Colonel of the Second Regiment.

GENERAL ORDERS BY COLONEL MOULTRIE.

September 14, 1775, 4 o'clock, P. M.

Ordered, that Captains Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, Bernard Elliot, and Francis Marion's Companies, be immediately completed to fifty men each, from their respective corps, and hold themselves in readiness to march in three hours. Colonel Motte is appointed for this command, and will receive his orders from the commanding officer.

September 15, 1775:

Ordered, that Captains Benjamin Cattell, Adam McDonald, and John Barnwell's Companies, of the First Regiment, and that Captains Peter Horry and Francis Huger's Companies, be completed to fifty men each, and to hold themselves in readiness to march. Major Owen Roberts to command this detachment.

To Major OWEN ROBERTS, of the First Regiment.

SIR: You are to proceed with your detachment to Gadsden's wharf, where you will find two schooners ready to take on board your party; with them you will proceed to Fort Johnson, on James's Island. On your arrival there, you are to send an officer to Colonel Motte, to acquaint him; then to march to the Fort, and put yourself under his command. You are not to suffer any boats to obstruct your passage.

To Lieutenant-Colonel MOTTE.

SIR: I have sent Major Roberts with two hundred and fifty men to re-enforce you. You are to defend the Fort from all parties that may attempt to land; but if the man-of-war should attack the Fort, and you find you cannot make a stand against her, you are to withdraw your men to some place of safety, out of the reach of her guns; but you are to take care not to suffer any parties to land with an intent to damage the Fort.

SOUTH-CAROLINA.

By the Honourable WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON, Esquire.

A DECLARATION.

Whereas the liberties of America being treacherously and cruelly violated by an abandoned Administration in Great Britain, surrounding the Throne, and deceiving Majesty for their own corrupt purposes, thirteen American Colonies, including New-Hampshire to the north, and Georgia to the south, virtuously, gloriously, and, thanks to the Lord of hosts, successfully, are confederated, at the hazard of their lives and fortunes, to wrest from the hands of traitors those invaluable which they had ravished from them, and which the Americans have in vain endeavoured to recover by every peaceable mode of application:

And whereas the tools of Administration have encouraged certain inhabitants of this Colony to attempt, by every practicable measure, to oppose and to counteract the virtuous efforts of America; these inhabitants, men of low degree among us, though of eminence in this new Country; men totally illiterate, though of common natural parts; men endeavouring, in this calamitous time, to rise in the world by misleading their honest neighbours; men who are by his Excellency the Governour promised to be amply rewarded for such an infamous conduct; these men, knowingly deceiving their neighbours, and wickedly selling their Country, have practised every art, fraud, and misrepresentation, to raise in this Colony an opposition to the voice of America. To oppose this hellish plan, the honourable the Council of Safety for this Colony commissioned the Rev. William Tennent and myself to make a progress through the disturbed parts of this Colony, "to explain to the people at large the nature of the unhappy disputes between Great Britain and the American Colonies." Thousands heard and believed us; they owned their full conviction; they expressed their concern that they had been misled; and they most sincerely acceded to the Association formed by the authority of our late Congress. Such a proceeding did not accord with the designs of these men, betrayers of their Country, or the wishes of his Excellency the Governour, who, by letters, instigated them to strengthen their party. To prevent a further defection, the leaders of the party resolved, by the din of arms, to drown the voice of reason. For such an infernal purpose, by the instigation of Moses Kirkland, on or about the 29th of August last, men did assemble in arms, and with hostile intentions. My immediately assembling and marching with a part of the Militia caused these men to disperse; but now other leaders of the same malignant party, correspondents of his Excellency the Governour, have assembled men in arms on the north side of Saluda River, who are now actually encamped, at a charge and expense which his Excellency the Governour has promised to pay; and these men threaten to attack the Troops under my orders. Wherefore, to prevent the effusion of civil bloodshed, I think it my duty to issue this declaration, in order that I may leave no moderate step untried, to recover a few of our unhappy countrymen from those delusions, by which they have been drawn on to lift their arms against their injured Country, gloriously struggling to enjoy the rights of mankind.

And whereas his Excellency the Governour has issued private directions that all Magistrates and Militia Officers be required to take the oaths of allegiance, under the penalty of dismission from their several stations: I do hereby declare that, in point of law, his Excellency has no authority to make such requisition from persons who have already sworn according to law, when they were invested in offices civil and military; and that it is not only highly unbecoming in His Majesty's representative to threaten His Majesty's subjects, in order to induce them to do things not warranted in law, but such a conduct is of a most destructive tendency to the good of the King's real service, inasmuch as it tends to convince the people that His Majesty's servants in high trust in America, as well as in Britain, equally conspire to act without authority in law, to the destruction of their just rights and privileges.

And whereas the leaders of our unhappy and deceived countrymen, now assembled in arms against the liberties of America, have drawn them into this dangerous and disgraceful situation, by filling their minds with fears and apprehensions that their lives and properties are in danger from the designs of Congress, the honourable the Council of Safety, the General Committee, and the Troops under my orders, because they, our said countrymen, have not acceded to our Association: wherefore, to remove all such illfounded apprehensions, in the name of and by the authority vested in me by the honourable the Council of Safety, I solemnly declare that all such apprehensions are actually groundless. And I also declare, in the name of the Council of Safety, that our said unhappy and deceived countrymen may, in perfect safety of their lives, persons, and properties, repair to and continue to dwell and abide at home, so long as they shall choose to behave peaceably. We shudder even at the idea of distressing them in any shape; we abhor the idea of compelling any person to associate with us; we only with sorrow declare that any person who will not associate with and aid and comfort us, in this arduous struggle for our liberties, cannot by us be considered as friendly to us; and therefore that we cannot aid and comfort such person, by holding that intercourse and communication with such person as is usually held between friends.

And thus having, in the name of this Colony, declared the terms upon which peace and safety may be had and enjoyed by our unfortunate countrymen as aforesaid, it is my duty also to declare that I shall march and attack, as publick enemies, all and every person in arms, or to be in arms, in this part of the Colony, in opposition to the measures of Congress; and having with the utmost patience and industry gently endeavoured to persuade men to a peaceable conduct, I now shall, with equal patience and industry, prosecute military measures with the utmost vigour; and I make no doubt but that, with the assistance of the Almighty, witness of our endeavours to avert the calamities of war, we shall speedily obtain the wish of every virtuous American—peace, safety, and security to our rights.

Given under my hand, this 13th day of September, at the camp near Ninety-Six.

WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee meeting, held for Gloucester County, at the Court-House of the said County, on the 13th day of September, 1775: Present, the Chairman, and thirty-two Members.

Agreeable to the Ordinance of the Convention, the following gentlemen were nominated Officers in the Militia for the County of Gloucester:

Warner Lewis, Esq., County Lieutenant; Sir John Peyton, Baronet, Colonel; James Whiting, Gentleman, Lieutenant-Colonel; James Boswell, Gentleman, Major.

Captains: Gibson Cuverius, John Camp, Richard Matthews, George Booth, Jasper Clayton, John Hubbard, John Whiting, John Billups, Sen., Benjamin Shackelford, John Willis, Robert Matthews, William Buckner, John Dixon, Richard Billups, and William Smith.

Lieutenants: Samuel Cary, Richard Hall, John Foster, James Baytop, Thomas Buckner, George Green, William Sears, James Bently, Edward Matthews, John Billups, Jun., Dudley Cary, Hugh Hayes, Churchill Armistead, Philip Tabb, John Foster, Jun., and Robert Gayle.

Ensigns: Henry Stevens, William Dawes, William Haywood, Thomas Baytop, John Fox, James Laughlin, William Bently, Christopher Garland, Peter Bernard, John Hayes, Samuel Eddis, Thomas Tabb, Richard Davis, Josiah Foster, George Plummer, and John Gale.

Mr. Purdie is desired to publish the above in his Gazette.
JASPER CLAYTON, Clerk.

Fredericksburgh, Virginia, September 13, 1775.

At a meeting of the Commissioners appointed by the Convention, for superintending the manufactory of Small-Arms, at Fredericksburgh, on Monday the 13th of September, 1775:

The Commissioners intend to meet on the 10th day of October next, at Fredericksburgh, for the purpose of engaging a further number of Gunsmiths, and other artists, capable of managing that business in its various branches. All persons who are willing to enter into the service for a year at the least, and can come well recommended for skill and sobriety, are desired to attend; if agreed with, they will have good encouragement, according to their merit, and, at all events, be paid for their attendance and travelling. Good Locksmiths are much wanting.

THE COMMISSIONERS.

TO THE FREEMEN OF THE PROVINCE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

"As you love your liberties, exercise your virtue; they depend upon it."

The time is now approaching, when a period will in course be put to the present House of Assembly in this Province.

The duty of a Representative of the people, in the ordinary routine of business, is simple and easy; but when extraordinary incidents occur, when questions of the greatest magnitude and of the highest importance to the interests and welfare of the community are offered and discussed in that branch of the Legislature, it is highly necessary we have an eye to men of a liberal way of thinking, of great firmness of mind, of property, weight, and influence, for our Representatives.

But it is not even sufficient that a candidate be possessed of all these qualities: he may possibly have a wrong turn, from conversation or connection with persons of an ill cast. His political principles ought therefore to be well known and approved before he is employed in publick affairs.

It is a fault too common among us, that a Representative is often chosen by the people, without considering the weight and importance he will hold in Assembly: for it is there he is to act his part; it is there he is to answer, by his qualifications, the views, and ends of his constituents.

The present times are big with events of the last importance to this Country. Questions may and doubtless will arise in the course of another twelve months, nearly touching our estates, our liberties, and our lives; and if we have no men fit for such business, the mischiefs that will happen, from a want of liberal knowledge and the other indispensable qualities I have mentioned, may prove irretrievable misfortunes to us.

Human nature is composed of the strongest inconsistencies and contradictions. The world is too apt to ascribe every good quality to a man, because he has one or two in an eminent degree; but it is by no means a proper way of judging. I have seen mingled in the same motley character the most opposite qualities of virtue and vice, of wisdom and folly, that can be imagined. I have seen very honest men, of independent fortunes, diverted by an unaccountable timidity from following the dictates of their understandings, and what they themselves looked upon to be their duty. Hence it plainly and necessarily follows, that we should have not only a perfect acquaintance with the head and heart of the candidate, but a thorough knowledge of his turn and character, and, above all things, be convinced, that he is the right sort of man.

Having mentioned to you my sentiments concerning whom you ought to prefer as Representatives, I shall now beg leave to say whom you ought not, in prudence, to suffer to have a seat there.

"Reject bigots of all kinds and sides: those men whose minds are shut up in band-boxes, and who walk upon stilts, have not thoughts large enough for governing society. Even their honesty, when they have any, is useless to the publick, and is often made an ill instrument in the hands of those who have none. Reject also all timorous, fearful, and dastardly spirits; men who, having good principles, either dare not own them or dare not act according to them. Choose not men who are noted for non-attendance, and who have been members, without waiting on the duty of their station."* Reject all placemen, and those who are properly called Government-Men, for they have and ever will have a bias and leaning in some sort to Government measures. If there are any who have written or spoken sentiments unfavourable to American liberty, regard not their pretensions to patriotism; they are false, and put on merely to serve the times, and they will surely discover their true colour whenever an opportunity offers. When you see a man neglecting or avoiding the important duties to which he has had the honour to be appointed, when you see his piques and little passions so far getting the better of a love of liberty and his Country as to make him desert the essential interests of the community, reject him by all means; depend upon it, he is either weak, or timid, or knavish, and therefore unfit to serve you. Cast off the trammels and fetters in which some of you have been bound by a spirit of party; forget the little animosities which have engaged your minds, and act and vote for the best interests of your Country. I have lived long enough in the world to see instances of party rage and madness which have touched my very soul with indignation. I have seen the time when the worst men were preferred to the best; the arrantest knave and most publick violator of his publick word put into a very honourable post, to give him an opportunity of treating his Country with scorn and contempt. Such has been the depravity of some; but I hope there is now so great and high a spirit of liberty prevailing among us, that no man will venture to insult this Province in the like manner, lest he should draw down upon himself the vengeance that is prepared in the minds of his countrymen for such atrocious behaviour.

"Now, my countrymen, is the time to help yourselves. Now act honestly and boldly for liberty, or forget the glorious and charming sound."

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Wednesday, September 13, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Chairman, and thirty-six Members.

The Report of the Sub-Committee to examine the papers of William McAdam was read, with the examinations, affidavits, &c.

Ordered, That the same lie over for further consideration.

Ordered, That Evert Bancker, John Morton, and Abraham Duryee, be a Committee to call on Thomas Gardiner, Robinson & Price, Phenix & Ten Broeck, Thomas Crabb, Philip Rhinelander, and every other Merchant and Shopkeeper who they may hear have sold Pins at an extravagant price, and to inquire of them the quantity they have on hand, and what the same cost them, and to represent to them that this Committee will be obliged to take notice of their conduct in a manner that must be prejudicial to their character and interest, in case they will not give assurances that they will dispose of their Pins in future at a moderate profit.

On motion, Agreed, That this Committee ought to be augmented by adding twenty new Members, and that we will, at our next stated meeting, consider of a proper mode to recommend the same to our fellow-citizens.

Ordered, That Messrs. Robert Ray and Evert Bancker, or either of them, be a Committee to grant Passes to Masters or Owners of Vessels that intend to leave this Port.

The Committee appointed to superintend the election of Officers in the different Beats in the Out Ward, report as follows, viz:

Beat No. 26: Nathan Tylee, Captain; James Odle, First Lieutenant; Isaac Van Dusen, Second Lieutenant; Joseph Hunt, Ensign.

Beat No. 27: John Grigg, Captain; Alexander Fortin, First Lieutenant; James Bryant, Second Lieutenant; Jonathan Tremain, Ensign.

Beat No. 28: Theophilus Anthony, Captain; William De Witt, First Lieutenant; Martin Stryer, Second Lieutenant; John Hane, Ensign.

Beat No. 29: Samuel Benson, Captain; John Myers, First Lieutenant; John Sickles, Second Lieutenant; Abraham Bussing, Ensign.

MEMORIAL OF WILLIAM RITCHIE TO THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, September 13, 1775.

William Ritchie requests permission from the Committee of Safety to employ a small vessel, commanded by himself, in carrying provisions, and such articles as may be wanted at the camp, from this port; to be landed at Dartmouth, Sandwich, or such port as he may find most safe and convenient.

WM. RITCHIE.

BEVERLY ROBINSON TO ZEPHANIAH PLATT.

Highlands, September 13, 1775.

SIR: Yesterday our Precinct had a meeting, and chose a Committee of twelve persons, out of which number three are to attend the County Committee; and suppose they will, as soon as they can conveniently, proceed to the choice of Militia Officers. As to the commission you proposed to me, though I shall always be ready to serve my Country in every way in my power, yet for the present I must decline accepting it.

I have seen the person I mentioned to you as a Major, and believe he will also decline taking that commission, though he did not give me a positive answer.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

BEVERLY ROBINSON.

To Zephaniah Platt, Esq., Member of the Provincial Congress at New-York.

TRYON COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Tryon County Committee Chamber, September 13, 1775.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to a Resolve of this Committee, instead of our late Delegate at the Provincial Congress of New-York, Mr. John Moore, a member of our Committee was chosen, by the majority of votes, to represent our County in the said Provincial Congress at

New-York, as our Delegate, whom we recommend to be accordingly accepted for that purpose; and we are of the humble opinion that one will suffice as representative for our County, as the expenses for two would be too burdensome for our small County.

Relying on your favourable grant, we are always, with much regard, honourable Gentlemen, your obedient humble servants. By order of the Committee:

NICHOLAS HERCKMEYER, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York.

GOVERNOUR PATRICK TONYN TO GENERAL GAGE.

St. Augustine, September 14, 1775.

SIR: A letter from the Earl of Dunmore, dated 29th August, desires the Fourteenth Regiment entire to be removed from this garrison to Virginia, provided the three Companies of the Sixteenth Regiment be arrived in it from Pensacola.

Major Furlong has a letter to the same end, enclosing two from your Excellency, one of 27th July; the other to Captain Cooper, of 29th.

His Lordship makes a further requisition of bedding, for the whole Regiment, ammunition, powder, lead, flints, cartridge paper, spare arms, and provisions.

Your Excellency's commands of 27th July direct the detachment at Virginia to be supplied with provisions from this place.

Lord Dunmore desires the transports to be filled with provisions. Our duty is undoubtedly to assist and promote His Majesty's service in every corner where it be possible to effect it; at the same time to consider our power to do it at a distance, when His Majesty's service as importantly demands our attention to be as seriously employed on the spot where we are placed. Provisions are sent, consistent with our own circumstances, a return of which is enclosed to your Excellency, with a return of what remains in the garrison.

This Province, cultivating more valuable produce, has hitherto depended for a constant supply of provisions from the Northern Provinces of America, but is now excluded from all communication with them; consequently, we are in no small anxiety in respect to provisions for this year's consumption.

A fellow (Lempriere) is to be rewarded in Carolina with a large ship, mounting several guns, for an act of piracy committed off this bar. He is to be stationed to cruise off St. Mary's River, to intercept whatever vessels are coming to this Province.

No opportunity having offered before to convey to your Excellency an account of this audacious attempt, I beg now to trouble you with it. The 3d of August, in the afternoon, a brig, with ordnance stores, came off this bar. The 4th, the Provincial vessel was sent to lighten the brig, to bring as much powder out of her as she could stow. The vessel returned the 5th, with two hundred and ninety-three barrels of gunpowder, the brig being sufficiently lightened. The 6th being calm, the brig could not come into port. The 7th, in the morning, at low water, a sloop, which was taken for a negro vessel, run on board the brig, boarded with twenty-six men, armed, took away a hundred and eleven barrels of the King's powder, and some for the merchants here. More powder would have been taken, but ten soldiers were on board as labourers, without arms, to get the ordnance stores out of the brig; they grew angry, and began to plot to seize some of the pirates' arms, to drive them out of the brig. The pirates took the alarm, evacuated the brig in confusion, leaving a part of their orders, signed Henry Laurens, and a draft on a merchant in Charlestown, for a thousand Pounds sterling, signed by the commander, Clement Lempriere, as they pretended, in payment for the powder. The instant I heard of this villany, the Provincial vessel was equipped with eight pieces of small ordnance, an officer, and thirty privates of the Fourteenth Regiment, and sailed in pursuit of the pirates. They arrived off Savannah Bar a few hours after the pirate sloop got over it, and went the inland passage to Beaufort, in Carolina, from which place she had sailed. In consequence of the protest made by the master of the brig, the enclosed Proclamation was issued. I have tried to get it inserted in the Georgia and Carolina papers, but cannot get it done. If your Excellency thinks it proper for the Boston newspaper, you can do as you please. Since Lempriere has been off here, we have heard of two armed schooners cruising.

The three Companies of the Sixteenth Regiment not being arrived, your Excellency's orders are complied with, to send another detachment to Virginia, not the whole Regiment. We did not know the strength your Excellency intended the detachment should be; but Lord Dunmore mentions, if the whole Regiment be not sent, at least to send sixty, which is done. Enclosed is a state of those remaining in garrison here.

It would have been a happy thing if His Majesty's service had not absolutely required the removal of the Fourteenth Regiment from this garrison; three Companies, perhaps, far from complete, may be enough to check the disaffected in the Province. Should we be attacked by an external enemy, properly provided and of sufficient force, it will be impossible, in our weak state, to save the Town or barracks an hour.

To be silent on the intelligence I have been able to procure, would be highly blameable. It has been, I am confidently assured, in contemplation in Carolina, to attack this Province, in order to get possession of the ordnance stores in this fort, to burn the barracks, of course the Town. Had the Fourteenth Regiment continued here, I think I should have made any attempt of this sort cost them very dear.

The Province being in an infant state, the Indians seeing most of the Troops removed, may change their tone, and become troublesome, although they never were, at any time, so well disposed, or on such good and friendly terms.

On the transports' arrival, the friends of our excellent Constitution were put in very great consternation. It was rumoured the Troops were all to be taken away.

Your Excellency will forgive me mentioning that His Majesty's fort, and the ordnance stores now in it, are of very great value. They are a great object to the rebels of Carolina and Georgia, which may induce them, with the hope of doing other mischief, to attempt something; for they are exceedingly incensed against this Province, jealous of the productions, superiour to those produced in Carolina, therefore naturally have no good will towards us, and are enraged that we preserve our fidelity and obedience to Great Britain.

Some people have come here from the other Provinces, as a retreat of safety. More are coming, but these were unhappy at the notice of the means of their safety being taken away, and these will probably not now come here to settle. The Province was becoming an asylum to the friends of the Constitution.

To preserve communication with the Creek Nation may be of weighty consideration, in these times, for Great Britain; this has been a mark of my closest attention. Should the communication be interrupted by any fatality, it will lessen the Nation's idea of the King's great power; reducing His Majesty's servants' intercourse with the Indians to the sole channel and great distance of Pensacola. Having no conception of the general plan of operations, I can only write to your Excellency on a judgment formed on the locality of my situation.

Should any Troops be ordered to act against Carolina, it will be a perfect security to this Province. I am told they have four thousand Troops in arms. I was in hopes the Regiment inured to this hard climate would have been here until some measures were put in operation against the Southern Provinces; perhaps your Excellency may intend their return to this garrison, as I understand they cannot be landed in Virginia; a large ship is made into a barrack as their station.

Sir James Wright has doubtless informed your Excellency of the disaffection of Georgia, the government being entirely wrested from him by rebel Committees.

I have wrote to your Excellency, in undressed, undisguised sentiments, what matters occur in relation to the Southern Provinces. We are totally at a loss for what is doing in the north. Many reports fly about, which are incredible. If Lord Dunmore had not sent, by the transports, the printed account, published at Boston the 26th June, of the attack on the heights of Charlestown, we should not have known what opinion to form of it—a report as incredible as others, which I cannot hear without mentioning to your Excellency. I think it next to impossible that the rebels have advice of every thing you do; that they are expeditiously informed of every resolution adopted by your Excellency. They know your Excellency's daily orders in their camp and lines, by the time the orders are delivered to the Regiments of the British Army. Could I hear such advice, and not let your Excellency know it? but it is understood to be true throughout America.

On a general conception of circumstances, I should judge your Excellency would think it necessary to secure a firm post somewhere in the south, for His Majesty's service, without leaving it in any danger to be snatched away. I know of no place more fit than Augustine. Had the Fourteenth Regiment remained here, this object was effected; now it is at a hazard; a sure and certain intercourse with the Creek Indians would have been preserved. But, whatever our condition, I shall put in execution every exertion I am capable of suggesting for the good of His Majesty's service. I don't know whether your Excellency has been informed that the rebels in Carolina are fortifying Charlestown.

By this time I most sincerely hope the British Army, under your Excellency's command, is crowned with glory and success.

I have the honour to be, with very great esteem and respect, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

PAT. TONYN.

To General Gage, Boston.

P. S. The Commissary for the Army represented that his contract was only to supply the Troops within the Province. I told him it was a peaceable contract, meant for quiet times. It was now war. The Regiment must be supplied with six months' provisions, if the commanding officer desired as much to take with him.

I have sent privately to the south parts of Georgia, to procure, by open boats, if possible, rice and corn. If I succeed, we shall be able to let the Virginia command have a further supply sometime hence. It may possibly be a very essential thing to lay up here a very large magazine, for the Troops, of provisions; I think this might be managed if you have any such view. Should I succeed in the plan I am forming, to establish an intercourse of private trade for provisions, with Georgia, be so good as to let me have your Excellency's sentiments on the subject. Whatever you require of me, you may rely shall be done with the utmost care.

An Indian of note, the Cussité King's brother, who came from the Creek Nation with a talk of friendship, on his return with a trader, who lives in the nation, was waylaid by some of the Georgia rebels. They took from them a present of powder and ball. I sent to some of the headmen of the nation, who are soon to be here on a visit to me. The trader, I hear, they have sent to prison; the Indian is gone to the nation. The Superintendent fears this robbery will make the Creeks attack Georgia, but I am sure they will see me before they take any such measure.

Your Excellency will allow me to suppose that some very weighty reasons must exist why a communication be not fixed with all His Majesty's Governours in America; a thing so easy to be done, by a few of His Majesty's cutters, schooners, or sloops, that I wonder very much it be not done.

I imagined Major Furlong would have taken six months' provisions, but he has not taken any such proportion.

EAST-FLORIDA.

By his Excellency PATRICK TONYN, Esq., Captain-General, Governour, and Commander-in-Chief in and over His Majesty's said Province, Chancellor and Vice-Admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas I have received information from Alvara Loft-house, Master of the Brigantine called the Betsy, that on the seventh day of August instant, he, the said Master, being on board the said Brigantine, then lying at anchor off the Bar of St. Augustine, in the Province aforesaid, a Sloop, commanded by one Clement Lempriere, run alongside of the said Brigantine, and in a hostile and violent manner instantly boarded her with twenty-six men, some armed with Muskets and Bayonets fixed, others with Swords and Pistols, and were commanded by the said Clement Lempriere and one Simon Tuffs. That the said Clement Lempriere ordered a guard over the said Master and the people, and then, in an audacious and piratical-like manner, opened the hatches and took out of the said Brigantine, and put on board the said Sloop, one hundred and eleven barrels of Gunpowder belonging to His Majesty, and about four hundred weight, the property of Mr. Robert Payne, of St. Augustine, Merchant. And the said Clement Lempriere, for a justification of his conduct, showed to the said Master a Letter or Commission from Henry Laurens, styling himself President of the Council of Safety in Charlestown, to seize the said Brigantine, and take whatever Gunpowder or warlike stores he could find on board.

And whereas such proceedings are not only unwarrantable and illegal, but subject the offenders and perpetrators thereof to great and severe pains and penalties, and it is highly necessary such atrocious offenders should receive the punishment due to their crimes: To the intent, therefore, that the persons concerned in the above piracy may be apprehended and brought to condign punishment, I have thought fit, by and with the advice of His Majesty's honourable Council, to issue this my Proclamation, offering, and I do hereby promise, a reward of two hundred Pounds sterling, to any person or persons who shall apprehend and bring to justice the said Clement Lempriere and Simon Tuffs, and their associates in the said act of piracy. And I do hereby likewise offer His Majesty's most gracious pardon to any one of the persons on board the said Sloop, commanded by the said Clement Lempriere, who shall give certain information of the other persons concerned in the aforesaid act of piracy, excepting Clement Lempriere, and the other person hereinbefore named.

Given under my hand, and the great seal of His Majesty's said Province, in the Council Chamber at St. Augustine, the twenty-first day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, and in the fifteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

PAT. TONYN.

By his Excellency's command:

DAVID YEATS, Deputy Secretary.

God save the King.

GOVERNOUR PATRICK TONYN TO VICE-ADMIRAL GRAVES.

St. Augustine, September 14, 1775.

SIR: In a letter to General Gage, of the 19th July last, I mentioned the Savage Sloop and St. John Schooner, stationed on this coast and the Island of Providence; that the St. John has been here only once, the other not at all. They harbour at Providence, out of the way of action, in perfect quiet, when His Majesty's service calls for their assistance in these seas.

When the St. John was here, it was a critical hour in the Province of Georgia. Lieutenant Grant, the commander, showed me a note he had received from Sir James Wright, requesting to see him before he sailed, or that he would return again to Savannah. I had despatches of consequence for Sir James Wright, which I desired him to take, advising him to return there, as the dissension and disaffection were mounting to an extreme height between the inhabitants in the interest of the constitution and the rebellious. But I requested of Mr. Grant to return to this port, which he promised. My object for it was, I had intelligence that armed cruisers were out from Carolina, to intercept some merchant ships coming to this place with ordnance stores for His Majesty's garrison, and powder for the merchants. I intended, on their appearance, the St. John should go out to protect them, until the wind permitted them to come into the harbour. If Mr. Grant had returned, an act of piracy, which happened off this bar, would not have been committed: a relation of which I have wrote to his Excellency General Gage, and beg leave to enclose you an extract of it. I also wrote to General Gage some intelligence I had procured, of gunpowder being run from the West-India Islands to the Province of Carolina.

A cruiser of considerable force, I am informed, is to be stationed from St. Mary's River, the north boundary of this Province, to intercept whatever vessels may be bound to this Province, and is to be commanded by Lempriere; she is now equipping in Carolina.

The letters from England for this Province, by the last mail, I have had no account of; but I hear it has been wrote to some gentlemen here, that they are put into the man-of-war in Charlestown Harbour. I have no means to send for them. Was I to send the Provincial vessel, she can make no resistance, and would be taken by the rebel cruisers.

From Carolina a Rebel packet boat is established, that sails, under a flag with liberty wrote upon it, to Philadelphia, and another to Savannah.

Our coasts being entirely without defence, I thought you would be glad to have such information, in maritime affairs, as was in my power to give; at the same time I mean to draw your attention to such services, in these parts of His Majesty's Dominions, as may be thought requisite, when I shall rejoice most heartily to have our coast cleared of such petty, insignificant cruisers, which are able to do great mischief to defenceless merchant ships.

I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

PAT. TONYN.

To Admiral Graves, Boston.

P. S. I am told Captain Thornborough, of the Tamer, lies at Charlestown, in a total state of inactivity.

COMMITTEE OF QUAKERS TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

From our Meeting for Sufferings, held in NEW-YORK this 14th day of the 9th month, 1775.

To the Committee appointed for Safety for the Colony of NEW-YORK, during the recess of the Provincial Congress:

RESPECTED FRIENDS: Yesterday was laid before this meeting a request, signed by Robert Benson, Secretary to said Committee, desiring, without delay, a list of all males amongst us, of the people called Quakers, in this City and County, from sixteen to sixty; which said request hath been solidly considered, and we are of the mind we cannot comply therewith, consistent with our religious principles; therefore hope you will not consider such refusal as the effect of an obstinate disposition, but, as it really is, a truly conscientious scruple, which we desire may at all times be exercised in such peaceable manner as to give no just cause of offence in the sight of God or man.

In tenderness, we remain, respectfully, your friends.

Signed by order and in behalf of our Meeting aforesaid:

WILLIAM RICKMAN, Clerk.

COMMITTEE OF GOSHEN, ORANGE COUNTY, NEW-YORK, TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

COLONEL JAMES ROGERS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Cumberland County, Westminster, September 14, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I have received your letter bearing date May 31st, 1775, and the papers enclosed; it was till the 10th of July before I received the same. I sincerely thank you for this intelligence of matters which so nearly concern us. We have appointed Committees, agreeable to the desire of your Provincial Congress. I have laid the said papers before the Committee of Safety for said County; they are all well pleased with the same. The Association recommended to be signed is now circulating through the County, and I imagine the people will universally sign the same. We expect to be able to send them very soon. If any thing material should occur, which deserves our notice, we should take it as a favour if you would seasonably communicate the same to us. You will perceive by our Delegates, honoured Sir, that the County have nominated sundry gentlemen, as the most qualified persons for Field-Officers in this County. I would desire they might all be commissioned except myself. I desire it upon political principles.

I am, with great respect, your most obedient humble servant,

JAMES ROGERS.

The Honourable P. V. B. Livingston, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER IN THE NEW-YORK SERVICE, DATED AT THE CARRYING PLACE NEAR TICONDEROGA, SEPTEMBER 14, 1775.

I have the pleasure to inform you that I have at length reached this place, with all my people, having been so fortunate as not to have left one of them on the way. They are a parcel of hearty lads, and, from some circumstances that have occurred, I flatter myself they will not turn their noses from the smell of gunpowder in the day of trial, which is near at hand, as we intend setting off to-morrow morning, on our way to Ile-aux-Noix, where I understand they are impatiently waiting our coming, in order to make an attack on the Fort which the Regulars have erected at St. John's. We are so much wanted there, that the boats are ordered to be in readiness to receive the Company under my command, in preference to all others. It is said the Canadians have positively refused to take any part at all in the dispute. I fancy they are a good deal like . . . , and intend to join the strongest party, although they now supply both with provisions for the ready penny. We have met with nothing but difficulties and embarrassments at every post on our way.

The Troops have been much retarded, for want of boats, &c., &c., and some are still detained on that account. I am in perfect good health, which I pray God to continue, till I can give a good account of Governour Carleton and his bloody backs. I call them so, not so much for the colour of their clothes, as for their base and savage conduct in suffering the head of the brave Captain Baker to be severed from his body, and fixed upon a pole at St. John's, where it now remains, as a monument of their savage tempers, and an incentive to us bravely to revenge his death, or fall in the glorious attempt. I have nothing new to communicate, except that a small skirmish has lately happened near St. John's, occasioned by a party of fifty of our men going out to reconnoitre; they were surprised, it is said, by a party of Regulars, Canadians, and savages, who lay in ambush, concealed in the sedge or very high grass. We had five or six men killed, and several wounded, four or five of whom have since died of their wounds. Major Hobby and Captain Mead, of Connecticut, are slightly wounded. The enemy had several wounded; among the former, Captain Tyce, of Johnstown, in Tryon County, a native of New-Jersey, who was formerly a Captain in the service of that Province, and an old acquaintance of mine; but it now appears he was a rank tory. I am very happy to think he met the fate which I hope every one like him will share before the matter is ended. The above is the best account I could obtain, and I believe it is a pretty just one.

I have only to add my compliments to all friends, and request they will be kind enough to excuse my not writing to them severally, as I have this moment received orders to embark, and every minute of my time will necessarily be taken up in preparing for my departure from hence.

I am, &c., &c., &c.

P. S. Col. Fleming, Mr. Trumbull, Captain Quackenbos, Mr. Pearsea, and Lieutenant Van Waggener, with my brother officers, desire their kind compliments to you and all friends.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 14, 1775.

SIR: I am favoured with a letter from Governour Trumbull, in answer to mine, proposing a voyage to Bayonne, in which he informs me that the Council of the Colony of Connecticut are summoned to meet this day, to take the scheme into consideration.

This, Sir, is the time to exert ourselves in sending to Europe for powder, as the vessels may perform their voyages and return upon this coast in the winter, when the enemy's ships are unable to cruise. I have written to our Delegates, strongly recommending it to them to use their influence that measures may be taken to procure sufficient quantities of that necessary article. I have also advised them to move in Congress for opening some lead mines immediately, as the depending upon a precarious supply by sea, when we have such quantities in our own Country, seems to me very preposterous; and, I believe, the article in this way will cost us less money than it can be imported for.

Captain Whipple sailed on Tuesday, with sixty-one men on board, and every way in good order. I have given him instructions to cruise fourteen days off Sandy-Hook for the packet; and if he is so fortunate as to meet her, to take her at all events; to take out of her the letters, arms, ammunition, and warlike stores, and to land the letters at Southampton, and forward them immediately by express. After the taking of the packet, or the expiration of the time, he is immediately to proceed to Bermuda, and, if possible, take the powder into possession, without any communication with the inhabitants. I have given it to him strictly in charge not to make use of your address, unless in case of absolute necessity.

The noble example set by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of London, in their late address to the King, will, I hope, have a good effect in the other parts of the Kingdom, and, together with the disaffection of the people of Ireland to the iniquitous measures now pursuing against the Colonies, added to our own efforts, compel the Ministry to depart from their favourite plan of establishing arbitrary power in America.

This letter waits upon you by Joshua Babcock, Esq. He is a gentleman of a genteel fortune, a member of our General Assembly, and hath highly distinguished himself in the glorious cause in which America is embarked. I beg leave to recommend him to your Excellency's notice; and am, with great esteem and regard, Sir, your most humble and most obedient servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To General Washington.

CONNECTICUT COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Thursday, September 14, 1775.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, holden at Lebanon, present:

His Honour the Governour, Hon. Deputy-Governour Griswold, Jabez Huntington, Esq., William Williams, Nathaniel Wales, Jedediah Elderkin, Joshua West, and Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

His Honour laid before us a Letter from General Washington, dated the 8th instant, containing a peremptory and unconditional demand, that all the remainder of our last raised Troops be forthwith ordered and sent to him at the camp near Boston.

On which, great consideration was had; and it appears to this Council of much importance that they should remain longer on their present stations, at New-Haven, New-London, Stonington, and Lyme, where they are employed in throwing up some works of defence against the Ships &c., which are hovering about the eastern coast, and have of late furiously cannonaded Stonington; and, from repeated threats and many circumstances, it is probable some of these places will be again attacked; yet, considering how far these Troops have been given up to said General's command, and that advantage may be taken against the Colony, should we refuse to send them, although we conceive they cannot be so useful at the camp as in their present station and employment, it is thought most prudent to comply with said demand; and this Board do therefore advise this: his Honour to give orders for their immediate march to said camp near Boston.

And then, on consideration, it appearing of importance for the safety and quiet of the people of this Colony, that those places, from which said Troops are now to be removed, should not be left naked and defenceless, and the works of defence begun drop and fall through, it is considered and ordered, that fifty men be enlisted and raised by and be under command of Major Oliver Smith, and equipped for defence at Stonington, and to pursue and carry on the works of defence begun and necessary there, for a term not beyond the 20th of October; said Major Smith to be paid as a Captain, and Non-Commissioned Officers and the Soldiers as on the present establishment. And, also, that seventy men be raised in the same manner, and for the same purposes, at New-London, or places adjacent, under the care and command of Colonel G. Saltonstall, and for the term as aforesaid; he to have pay as a Captain, and the rest as aforesaid.

And, also, that twenty men be raised, as aforesaid, at Lyme, and properly equipped, to watch and guard and defend at Black Point, Black Hall, or other places where the Cattle and Stock may be exposed to be robbed and plundered, by and under the direction of Lieutenant Lee Lay; he to have pay as an Ensign, and the other as aforesaid, and for the term as aforesaid.

And, also, that fifty men be enlisted and raised in like manner at New-Haven, and kept and employed there for defence for the term aforesaid, and to carry on such defensive works as have been before proposed and ordered, in case and on condition the people of said Town are desirous of it, and think it necessary for their safety; to be under the command of such persons as shall be nominated by William Williams and Nathaniel Wales, Esquires, who are going through that Town in a few days, who are to advise and make proper inquiry, and conduct the matter accordingly; and that the commander of them have power to raise and enlist said fifty men, and have pay as a Lieutenant, and the Soldiers as on the present establishment, and billeting as aforesaid.

And further Voted, That said Soldiers be allowed nine Pence per day for billeting themselves, instead of any other provision or allowance for that purpose.

And Voted, That a half a ton of the Powder lately arrived be sent to General Washington, instead of a ton, as agreed at the last meeting.

A motion, by Letter, from the Hon. Deputy-Governour Cooke, of Rhode-Island, proposing that this Colony join with them in sending to Bayonne for Powder, and proposing a favourable way to obtain it by a French Bottom, and Frenchmen there, &c., was considered, and on the whole advised, that His honour the Governour make a complaisant answer, and advise him that we have advanced and laid out so largely for that article, and so much exhausted, and having reason to expect a supply &c., that we cannot well proceed further at this time, and recommend to propose the measure to General Washington.

Then Commissions were made out, and written at large, for the Armed Brig Minerva, viz: Giles Hall, Captain; James Hopkins, First Lieutenant; Thompson Phillips, Second Lieutenant; (now so appointed instead of Ithiel Tinker, who declined;) and Warrants for William Plymate, Master; Benjamin Cranston, Gunner; William Warner, Mate; and do appoint Andrew Johannot Steward, and a Warrant for Grey Powers, appointed Boatswain.

Allowed an account of Captain Giles Hall, for five days' service, and expense on a journey through the sea-coast Towns, in July last, with others, to look out proper Vessels to arm and furnish for the defence of the coasts, &c., three Pounds, two Shillings; and the Clerk drew an Order on the Pay Table for it, &c.

On a pressing motion by one Widow Smith, of New-London, present; that the prisoners lately driven back to New-London, by stress of weather, with a Vessel piratically taken from Stonington by Captain Wallace, of the Rose man-of-war, now confined at Windham, may be exchanged for her Son Amos Smith, Benjamin Green, and Nathan Comstock, who were lately injuriously taken by said Wallace in a boat in New-London Harbour, she having been to Newport, (as she thinks,) and settled and agreed for such exchange. It is agreed that such exchange may be made, and the Governour is advised to order said prisoners to be delivered up to proper persons for that purpose.

Ordered, That one hundred and fifty pounds of Powder be delivered to Captain Niles, for the use of the Armed Schooner Spy, under his command.

Ordered, That three hundred pounds of Powder be delivered to the Committee at Middletown, for the purpose of raising Lead Ore, &c.

And the Meeting was dismissed.

Cambridge, September 14, 1775.

The following lists of the persons now in Boston Jail, and who have died there, for no other crime than that of being friends to their Country, was brought out of Boston a few days ago.

DOCTOR CHURCH TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

American Hospital, September 14, 1775.

Dr. Church presents his most respectful compliments to General Sullivan, and most heartily felicitates himself on receiving so honorary a testimonial of General Sullivan's approbation, as he met with the last evening, at Headquarters. The Doctor esteems himself peculiarly happy that the undeserved prejudice against him is so totally removed, which, from frequent intimations, he was apprehensive had possessed the General's mind. He flatters himself that his whole conduct, during the present unhappy contest, will bear the strictest scrutiny. A regard to place, popularity, or the more detestable motive of avarice, never influenced his conduct in publick life. The sole object of his pursuit, the first wish of his heart, was ever the salvation of his Country.

The Doctor, nevertheless, in justice to himself, and with respect to the man who behind the curtain has influenced and took the lead in the opposition to him, must declare, that although he could never stoop to act the parasite, play the buffoon, or become the herald of his own eminence in his profession, would feel the indignation of conscious merit, should he be put in competition with the person who vainly endeavours to supplant him.

Hon. General Sullivan.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CAMBRIDGE TO A GENTLEMAN
IN NEW-YORK, DATED SEPTEMBER 14, 1775.

Your Committee of Safety have much obliged the General, and served the cause, in forwarding the powder, which has given our Army fresh spirits and life. I wish it had been thought proper to have sent forward the clothing, as it would have been of great service to our detachment, which set off for Canada yesterday. Colonel Arnold commands it, and expects to penetrate into Quebeck, about ninety miles below Montreal, if the season is not too far advanced, or the Canadians and Indians unfavourable to the scheme. We flatter ourselves, that in a few weeks we shall hear of his being in possession of Quebeck; there is only a Company of twenty-five men there at present, and the American cause highly favoured, both by French and English. All our accounts from that Province are very promising, and afford the pleasing hope that, ere long, that great Province will accede to the American league.

A vessel, taken by the Lively man-of-war, was retaken a few days ago, and brought into Cape-Ann, by an armed schooner that the General had fitted out from Marblehead; and had it not been for a mutiny among the crew, they might have retaken eight more, and got Dawson, the Captain of the man-of-war that had seized them. The rascals are brought down here under guard, and I hope will meet with their deserts. We have several deserters, and taken above twenty prisoners within these two weeks last past; one a domestick of General Howe's, but bringing us nothing very new. He says, the usual chat at his master's table was, that they should winter in Cambridge; the colleges would make good barracks, &c.; and he believes they will come out. They have now got about twenty flat-bottomed boats, that will contain sixty men each, and frequently practise the men in embarking and disembarking. Such an event is most ardently wished by every man in our Army. In all human appearance, their utter defeat would be inevitable. We have now got some floating batteries built, under the direction of Admiral Putnam, whose versatile genius is as ready for operation by water as land. As soon as they are completely equipped, we hope to send you some account of their doings, as the phrase is here. Seven of the prisoners were taken very oddly; one got into a boat, which he was awkward in managing, and was like to drive on our shore; a sergeant and five men set out in another, to bring him back; they knew as little of a boat as he did, and the whole seven came driving over with a strong wind and tide into our guards.

Doctor Coats, Captain Melchior, and Matthew Duman, of your City, with some other volunteers, are gone with Colonel Arnold to Quebeck.

All hostilities between the two camps have ceased for several days. The irregular firing on the lines and sentries having been found very prejudicial to the discipline and good order of the Army, is positively forbidden, on pain of being fired upon by our sentries.

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, September 15, 1775.

SIR: By despatches which we have received from Governour Martin, dated in the month of July, it appears that notwithstanding he has been reduced to the humiliating necessity of taking refuge on board His Majesty's ship Cruiser in Cape-Fear river, and of submitting to see His Majesty's Fort Johnson burnt before his face, within gun-shot of the Cruiser, he continues to be of opinion that if he was supported with a small force, and a large supply of arms, and some field-pieces, he could raise a body of men in that Colony, sufficient to reduce the rebellious subjects, both there and in South-Carolina, to obedience, and to awe the Colonies of Virginia, and prevent any auxiliaries being sent from thence to the northward.

The enclosed extracts from Governour Martin's letter will more fully explain to you what he says; but, I must confess, I think he is much too sanguine; and that, from the late advices of the state of North-Carolina, there is not much ground to hope any thing considerable can be effected there.

As he speaks, however, of the probability of success with so much confidence, it has been thought fit to order a supply of ten thousand stand of arms, and six light field-pieces, to be sent to you, without loss of time, in order to enable you to afford him such assistance in that particular as may be requisite; and it is His Majesty's pleasure that if you find, when this letter reaches you, that there are any good grounds to suppose that the sending to North-Carolina a detachment of your Army, under an able and intelligent officer, would have the good effect Mr. Martin seems to expect, and His Majesty's service will in other respects admit of it, you do in that case send such detachment, consisting of one battalion at least, together with the arms and field-pieces herewith sent to you, for there is no doubt that if what Mr. Martin suggests can be effected, it would be an advantage of the greatest importance, next to the regaining our ground in New-York.

I am, &c.,

DARTMOUTH.

JOHN STUART TO GENERAL GAGE.

St. Augustine, September 15, 1775.

SIR: I had the honour of writing your Excellency fully from hence the 20th July, since which I have not received any of your Excellency's commands. I then fully submitted the motives which induced my coming here, with copies of my correspondence with the Committee of Intelligence at Charlestown, which went by the transport that carried the detachment of the Fourteenth Regiment from hence to Virginia; and I took the liberty of requesting my Lord Dunmore to forward mine with his own despatches, which gives me reason to hope that they may have reached your Excellency's hands.

The seizure of the gunpowder, intended for supplying the Indian trade, at Savannah, by the malecontents of Georgia and South-Carolina, of which in my last I acquainted your Excellency, gave the greatest reason to apprehend a general dissatisfaction throughout the Indian tribes in this department, which occasioned my sending off expresses to my Deputies in the different Indian countries, with talks calculated to quiet the fears and jealousies that by such a step must have been excited in their minds; accordingly, on the 15th ultimate, I sent the talks, of which I have now the honour to submit copies, to the Creeks and Cherokees, with instructions to the Deputies in said nations to support their own consequence, and to frustrate any attempts of the emissaries sent by the Carolina Congress, or any other persons, to alienate the minds of the Indians from their duty to His Majesty, and their confidence in him and his officers, at the same time to prevent their committing any act of violence or hostility on the inhabitants of the Provinces, by all possible means; since which, I have received a letter from Mr. Taitt, in the Upper Creek Nation, dated 1st August, of which I also submit an extract. For the officers in the Indian department to keep the Indians quiet, and at the same time support their own influence with them, in opposition to the machinations of the emissaries sent to debauch their minds, will prove a difficult and delicate task; for when the Indians hear with certainty that their ammunition is seized, they may probably determine upon some such rash step as Mr. Taitt apprehends, which will by the candour of the disaffected be charged upon Government.

About the 25th of last month, an Indian of some note in the Lower Creek Nation arrived here; he came with an Indian trader named Carr; they brought me the above-mentioned letter from Mr. Taitt. The Indian's principal business here was to get certain information concerning my safety, the seizure of their ammunition, and to learn the disposition of the Provinces in general respecting the Indians. He was highly pleased to see me, and said that his return would relieve the Indians from their fears. Carr, the trader, brought three pack-horses to carry home a supply of ammunition for his Town, with which I furnished him; but, by his indiscretion, the news of his arrival and business here was spread through the country, and a party from Georgia was sent to waylay him upon his return, which they effected, and seized his ammunition; my packet was taken from him, which contained duplicates of my talks to the Indians, and letter to my Deputies. I greatly apprehend the resentment of the Indians, upon receiving an account of this affair from the chief, who was witness to it; however bad the consequence may prove, they can have none but themselves to blame. The disappointment to me is great, as I am informed that the person recommended by Governour Tonyn, and charged with my despatches, which were delivered to him the 15th ult., had not set out from his own house, some miles from hence, the 4th current. I have sent another person to take and proceed with my letters, and, lest any accident befall him also, I shall immediately send off a third.

Two Cherokee chiefs arrived in the Creek Nation in the beginning of June last; they had a meeting with the chiefs the 8th of same month, where they declared that their business was to renew ancient friendship. They produced fifteen belts and strings of beads, as credentials; this they thought proper on the death of the Mortar, who was their protector in that nation. The Creek chiefs admonished them to make up all differences, if they had any, with the whole people; to attach themselves to the King's interest, and depend upon his protection; they returned thanks for the advice, which they declared to be exactly corresponding with their intentions.

I am sorry to be informed, by a late letter from Lord William Campbell, that about forty Catawbas are at Charlestown, and in the service of the new Governours. This ungrateful little tribe has for several years been greatly upon the decline. I have, however, never neglected them, but, on the contrary, upon all occasions, I have protected and obtained justice for them. Their annual presents and provisions amounted to a considerable sum; but as they are domiciliated and dispersed through the settlements of North and South-Carolina, it is no wonder that they should be practised upon and seduced by the inhabitants with whom they live, as by their ignorance they are fit tools to be worked upon and receive any impression; it will, however, have a good effect if Mr. Johnson can get a proper message sent to them by the Six Nations. I shall not fail to let them hear from the Creeks and Cherokees.

As the competition for the friendship of the Indian Nations in this district will be great, I must strengthen the hands of all my officers, that, in point of presents, they may be upon a footing with the emissaries of the malecontents; for which purpose I have purchased presents and provisions, and directed them to furnish themselves with several articles from Augusta and West-Florida. As I can have no access to the quantity purchased for the ordinary service of the department for the current year, now in store in Charlestown, which I was obliged to leave there, and as I have invited the principal Creek chiefs to come here, they must return well satisfied, which lays me under the necessity of drawing upon your Excellency for two thousand six hundred and twenty-five Pounds, York currency, equal to fifteen hundred Pounds sterling, payable to Mr. Richard Yates, of New-York, by way of impressed, to be accounted for. I am obliged to draw for this sum at once, as no money can be raised here, or in any of the southern Provinces, upon bills drawn by the servants of Government upon your Excellency. I must therefore order this sum to be remitted to London, and be at my disposal, to answer such bills as I may find necessary to draw upon it, for discharging the unavoidable extra expense which will necessarily be incurred this year.

I think it proper to acquaint your Excellency that hitherto I have not received one shilling of the money due by the new-ceded lands in Georgia, for expenses incurred in conducting the negotiation; and, as affairs are situated, I think it not probable that any part of it will be paid soon. I therefore hope your Excellency will be pleased to grant the impressed abovementioned.

I have the honour of being, with the utmost respect, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient and humble servant,

JOHN STUART.

To his Excellency the Honourable Thomas Gage, Commander-in-Chief.

P. S. This letter I intrust to the care of Mr. Cameron, who is desirous of joining the Army, as a volunteer. From what I know of him, I doubt not but he will do his duty faithfully.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA, DATED SEPTEMBER 15, 1775.

Our people have taken possession of Fort Johnson, where there are now between five and six hundred of our Provincials, who are in daily expectation of an attack from the man-of-war, one armed vessel, and two packets armed, and now in the Road. I hope they may never do it, as our fort is in a very defenceless situation, and not able at present to make any resistance.

JAMES STEWART TO THE PEOPLE OF VIRGINIA.

Williamsburgh, September 15, 1775.

The subscriber, who is an inhabitant of Virginia, and just returned from England (where he has been for these eighteen months past, on purpose to make himself acquainted with the culture and preparation of several dyes) has brought in with him the seeds and roots of madder, woad, and welde, (commonly called dyer's weed,) which are the fundamental dyes of all colours, either in the linen, cotton, or woollen manufactures, with a view to propagate them, and makes no doubt of being able to afford them full as cheap as they are sold in England. He has likewise brought in the seeds and roots of the aranatto, which dyes yellow and pompadour colours; also, the genuine rhubarb and licorice plants, with some thriving olive trees, &c., &c. But as the cultivation of them all is too much for him to undertake, he offers to supply any gentleman, or company of gentlemen, in Virginia, with seeds and roots, and to instruct them how to prepare them for the manufacturers; and as the utensils for preparing the different articles for market are to be had in the Country, at a small expense, nothing else is required but the labour of one hand for every five acres. Madder sells in England, according to the quality, from ten pence to two shillings and five shillings per pound; woad from eighteen pounds to twenty pounds a ton, four or five crops of which may be made yearly in Virginia; and welde is worth five shillings a sheaf, but, for the convenience of exportation, it is intended to manufacture it as they do indigo.

He also offers to instruct one or two ingenious spinning wheel makers, that may be appointed by any County Committee, to make a machine, or wheel, for spinning cotton, with which one hand may spin from fifteen to thirty threads at a time; and he expects no further recompense than as the merit of the machine may appear to deserve.

All persons who intend applying to him must be expeditious, as the land for the cultivation of the above articles ought to be prepared this fall. He may be spoke with at Mrs. Vobe's, for these eight or ten days; afterwards at Winchester, in Frederick County; and all letters for him may be left at the constitutional post-office in this City, directed to the care of Mr. Alexander Wodrow, merchant in Falmouth.

JAMES STEWART.

PETITION OF THE INHABITANTS OF YONKERS, NEW-YORK.

Lower Yonkers, September 15, 1775.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Province of NEW-YORK, in the City of NEW-YORK convened, or, in their recess, to the Honourable the Committee of Safety.

The humble Petition of the Inhabitants of the Precinct of the LOWER YONKERS, in the County of WESTCHESTER, humbly sheweth:

That your honourable house had made a Resolve, and published the same, recommending to the inhabitants of every Town, Manor, Precinct, and District, within the Province aforesaid, to meet, nominate and appoint Captains and other officers, to form themselves as Companies of Militia. And whereas the inhabitants of this Precinct did meet, agreeable to your said Resolve, on the 24th day of August last, under the inspection of the Committee of that District, and by a very great majority, as by the list will appear, did nominate and appoint Mr. John Cock, of the said Precinct, for his known skill and ability in military discipline, and for other good causes, Captain of the said Company, for the District aforesaid: And whereas we are informed that a complaint hath been made to the Committee, by a few of the inhabitants, against the said Mr. John

Cock, out of spite and malice; and as we conceive what has been alleged against him was before signing the Association, we are well assured that since his signing the said Association, no person can accuse him of breaking the same, by any ways or means whatsoever. Therefore, we, the petitioners and subscribers, do humbly beg the indulgence of this honourable House, to grant unto Mr. John Cock the commission of Captain for the Company aforesaid, as we are convinced he was chosen agreeable to your said Resolve; and your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN HANCOCK TO LEWIS MORRIS AND JAMES WILSON.

Congress Chamber, September 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 6th instant was duly received, and communicated to the Congress, who immediately took into consideration the proposed expedition against Detroit; and as the season is so far advanced, and the Congress have not sufficient light to direct their judgment, they cannot undertake to give their countenance to the proposed enterprise; more especially, as an enterprise is now on foot, which, if successful, will necessarily draw that place after it.

Enclosed you have two Resolves, passed in Congress, relative to the appointment of Dr. Walker and Colonel Morris, as Commissioners for Indian Affairs. If Dr. Walker should not be present when this reaches you, it may be proper to despatch an express to him, and notify him of his appointment.

JOHN HANCOCK.

To Messrs. L. Morris and J. Wilson, Pittsburgh.

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR TO GOVERNOUR PENN.

Pittsburgh, September 15, 1775.

SIR: Curiosity led me to this place to be present at the treaty with the Indians, which was appointed for the 10th instant, and that I might have it in my power to give you the earliest notice, if any thing happened, that appeared necessary for you to be apprized of. The treaty is not yet opened, as the Indians are not come in; but there are accounts of their being on the way and well-disposed. We have, however, been surprised with a manœuvre of the people of Virginia, that may have a tendency to alter their disposition. About one hundred men marched here from Winchester, and took possession of the fort on the 11th inst., which has so much disturbed the Delegates from the Congress, that they have thoughts of removing to some other place to hold the treaty. They did every thing in their power to prevent their coming to the fort, but to no purpose. This step has already, as might naturally be expected, served to exasperate the dispute between the inhabitants of the country, and entirely destroyed the prospect of a cessation of our grievances from the salutary and conciliating advice of the Delegates of the respective Provinces in their circular letter; and they are so sensible, if something is not done soon to prevent it, the dispute must end in open violence, that they have warmly recommended to the Congress, without loss of time, to direct a temporary line. It may be necessary, if that measure meets with your approbation, to furnish some of the Delegates with the draughts and calculations respecting the western extent of the Province. I take the liberty to mention this, that, supposing, if agreeable to you, the proper officer may be directed to supply them, that the Congress may have it in their power to take the matter up, with a prospect of at least no disadvantage to the Province. I am sensible, Sir, this is out of my way; but the regard I have for your interests, and the gratitude I feel for your favours, must plead my excuse, as they are my only motives.

I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR.

The Honourable Governour Penn.

TO THE PUBLICK.

We, Luke Raymond, Ebenezer Raymond, and Billy Saunders, of Norwalk, in Connecticut, having, in a cruel and unjustifiable manner, been guilty of attacking, beating, and mauling William Budd Lucas, of Stamford, for which crime we are heartily sorry, and in the first place earnestly beg the forgiveness of said William B. Lucas, and of all other persons whom we have offended. And, furthermore, we, William Stone, James Hait, Jun., Prince Howes, and Samuel Beebe, of Stamford, and John Bigelow, of Norwalk, having been guilty of being drawn into the riotous company above-written, for which misconduct we are sincerely ashamed, and heartily sorry, and humbly ask the forgiveness of all whom we have offended. Furthermore, we, Prince Howes, James Hait, Jun., and Samuel Beebe, aforesaid, having imprudently subscribed a certain paper, said to be drawn up by Captain Tyler Dibble, for which misconduct we are sorry, and humbly ask the forgiveness of all whom we have offended. And, furthermore, we, one and all, solemnly promise and declare that we will, to the utmost of our power and ability, exert ourselves in the defence of our Country, in opposition to the King's Troops. In witness and confirmation of the above, we hereunto set our hands, consenting to have the above confession printed. Dated in Stamford, the 15th day of September, 1775.

LUKE RAYMOND,	WILLIAM STONE,
EBENEZER RAYMOND,	PRINCE HOWES,
BILLY SAUNDERS,	JAMES HAIT, JUN.,

N. B. The above Lucas is accounted a true son of liberty, while the list of subscribers are reputed as having acted inimical to the liberties of their Country.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 15, 1775.

SIR: I observe that in the Cambridge paper of yesterday there is an extract of a letter from Bermuda to New-York, giving an account that upwards of one hundred barrels of powder had been taken out of the magazine, supposed to have been done by a vessel from Philadelphia, and another from South-Carolina. This intelligence appears to me to be true; and I beg to know your Excellency's opinion of it as soon as possible, that if it be thought best to relinquish the expedition, I may recall Captain Whipple as soon as his cruise for the packet is out. His station in the river is very necessary, as Captain Wallace hath equipped a sloop with six and a schooner with four carriage guns, who may be very troublesome here.

I am, with great respect, Sir, your most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To General Washington.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, September 15, 1775.

SIR: I have received your Excellency's letter of the 8th instant by express, who was detained by sickness, and did not deliver it till the 12th in the evening, and my own bodily indisposition is some hinderance. Your peremptory requisition is fully complied with; all our new levies will be at your camp with all convenient expedition. At the time they were, by your direction, to remain in the Colony, on some reason to suspect a remove from Boston to New-York, that they might be able to give them more speedy opposition, I ordered Col. Webb, of our Seventh Regiment, his men being raised in the western part of the Colony, to take his station with three or four Companies at Greenwich, the nearest Town of this Colony to New-York, his Lieutenant-Colonel and Company at New-Haven. The residue of his and Colonel Huntington's who were forward in their march, one Company to Norwich, and the rest to New-London. Last week I sent orders to Colonel Webb to march the Companies with him to New-Haven, to be on his way so much nearer to your camp.

I am surprised that mine of the 5th instant was not received, or not judged worthy of notice, as no mention is made of it.

Stonington had been attacked and severely cannonaded, and, by divine Providence, marvellously protected. New-London and Stonington are still menaced by the Ministerial ships and troops; that the militia cannot be thought sufficient for their security; that it is necessary to cast up some intrenchments. We are obliged actually to raise more men for their security, and for the Towns of New-Haven and Lyme. I hoped some of the new levies might have been left here till these dangers were over, without injury to any of your operations. I own that must be left to your judgment; yet it would have given me pleasure to have been acquainted that you did consider it. I thank divine Providence and you for this early warning to great care and watchfulness, that so the union of the Colonies may be settled on a permanent and happy basis.

I have before me your acceptable letter of the 9th inst. The necessities of the Colony to supply our two armed vessels, to furnish the men necessarily raised for defence of our sea-ports and coasts, and to raise the lead ore, which appears very promising, prevents our being able to spare more than half a ton.

You may depend on our utmost exertions for the defence and security of the constitutional rights and liberty of the Colonies, and of our own in particular. None have shown greater forwardness, and thereby rendered themselves more the objects of Ministerial vengeance.

I am, with great esteem and regard for your personal character, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

P. S. The Glasgow and Rose, men of war, are now at Newport, and threaten that on the return of the Swan from Boston, probably with men for the purpose, they will attack New-London and Stonington. All the Regiments in the Colony, at a great expense, have been extraordinarily disciplined, and one-quarter of them on the sea-coast are selected, equipped, and held in readiness as Minute-Men for every emergency.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, DATED SEPTEMBER 16, 1775.

By Collins or Tyrie my last was written to you, and therein I apprized you that the intention of this nefarious Administration was for the Troops to be removed from Boston to New-York, under the command of Howe, founded on an expectation of being joined by that Roman Catholic devil, Carleton, from Quebeck. From a conviction of the impracticability of the Canadian scheme, and from the repeated complaints of all the officers of the cooped-up Troops in Boston, repeated councils have been held here of late, to ascertain the Province the Regulars should remove to. Much division was among them, (and God increase it, say I,) and, after torturing their ill-informed judgments, they agreed to leave the destined place to winter at to six of the principal military and naval commanders in Boston, with liberty for them, in case of an equality of voices, to call in an umpire or casting vote, who should be the next eldest land officer. From hence you see that as yet it is to us unknown what Province will be cursed with the presence of His Sacred Majesty's fleet and army; for wherever the one goes the other must follow. The reason given for the removal is the scarcity of food, and the danger of a total destruction of the Troops, if they are continued in Boston till winter. This fresh order went out only a fortnight since. But where can such a fleet lie securely all winter for the protection of the Army? You that are on the spot can best conceive, as it is determined they shall be in one of the Twelve United Provinces. For my part, I am clear of opinion that from the vigilance, courage, and number of my countrymen, they will not be suffered to remain in either of the nobly independent Colonies, but will be constrained to proceed either to Quebeck or Halifax.

At this time, several transports are taken up, purposely to convey to the Troops oxen, sheep, and every kind of poultry, with every other necessary of life, and this with the utmost expedition, as Government is afraid that many a gallant soldier is forced to a barbarian meal—the effects of the Don Quixote expedition. And whilst transports are taken up to feed the knights of the rueful face, the emissaries of Administration are busy throughout the Kingdom in cajoling the ignorant to sign addresses to the King, praying him to proceed in cutting the throats of his American subjects. Already two notorious rebel Towns, Manchester and Lancaster, have forwarded theirs, and from such a pious, benevolent King, have met the kindest reception. The design of these petitions is to collect the sentiments of his people, that if happily their numbers square with the view of the Ministry, that they may be laid before a complying Parliament, who will gratify the religious Sovereign with an act enabling him to send eight thousand Roman Catholics from Ireland, and twenty thousand soldiers from Russia, as well as to grant the supplies necessary to such a blood-thirsty scheme. Bravo! Surely every American will now lay down his gun, and fly to the royal standard. Who says so? I say, surely, if there was a lukewarm American before, he will now quit the preposterous idea, and fly at once to the camp of Washington, Wooster, Preble, or Schuyler, and there, if necessary, seal with his blood his hatred to tyranny and his love of American freedom. Counter petitions, or rather protests, will be collected by the sons of liberty, and friends to America, throughout old England, not Scotland. The County of Middlesex is summoned to consult on an address to Parliament against Administration, &c. This will be a busy winter, and, if my judgment is right, a civil war will ensue here before midsummer next. Impeachments are publicly talked of against that great man, Lord Camden; and so vice versa against North, Bute, Mansfield, and the whole gang of anti-Americans.

TREATY OF NEUTRALITY BETWEEN WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON AND COLONEL THOMAS FLETCHALL AND OTHERS.

SOUTH-CAROLINA.

Whereas misunderstandings but too often precipitate men and friends into quarrels and bloodshed, which, but for such misunderstandings, never could have happened: And whereas the present unhappy disputes between Great Britain and North America have unhappily occasioned uneasinesses between a part of the people living between Broad and Saluda Rivers, and other adjacent parts, and the other inhabitants of the Colony aforesaid, from misunderstandings as aforesaid, inasmuch as the said part of the people as aforesaid, having tender consciences, declined to accede to the Association signed in Congress on the 4th of June last; and the said other inhabitants thereby thinking that the said declining to accede proceeded from principles and designs in them, the said part of the people, inimical to the proceedings and designs of the said other inhabitants; and that they, the said part of the people, did mean to aid, assist, and join the British Troops, if any should arrive in the Colony aforesaid, during the present unhappy disputes as aforesaid:

And whereas these are all misunderstandings; and it being the sincere wish and desire of all parts of the Colony to live in peace and friendship with each other: wherefore, for the clearing up the said misunderstandings, and for the manifestation of the wish and desire aforesaid, Col. Thomas Fletchall, Captain John Ford, Captain Thos. Greer, Captain Evan McLaurin, the Reverend Philip Mulkey, Mr. Robert Merrick, and Captain Benjamin Wofford, Deputies for and sent by the part of the people aforesaid, have repaired to the camp of the Hon. William Henry Drayton, Esq., acting under the authority of the Council of Safety for this Colony. And, for the purposes aforesaid, it is hereby contracted, agreed, and declared, by the Honourable William Henry Drayton, in pursuance of powers vested in him by the honourable the Council of Safety as aforesaid, on the one part, and the Deputies aforesaid, in pursuance of powers vested in them by the said part of the people, on the other part:

1st. That the said declining of the part of the people aforesaid, to accede as aforesaid, did not proceed from any ill or even unfriendly principle or design in them, the said part of the people, to or against the principles or designs of the Congress of this Colony, or authorities derived from that body, but proceeded only from a desire to abide in their usual peace and tranquillity.

2d. That the said part of the people never did mean to aid, assist, or join the British Troops as aforesaid; and hereby it is declared, that if at any time during the present unhappy disputes between Great Britain and North-America, any British Troops shall or may arrive in this Colony, the Deputies aforesaid, for themselves and the part of the people aforesaid, by whom they the said Deputies are authorized, and whom they do represent, declare, that if any British Troops as aforesaid, shall arrive as aforesaid, they, the said Deputies, and the part of the people aforesaid, shall not and will not give, yield, or afford, directly or indirectly, to or for the use, advantage, or comfort of the said British Troops, or any part of them, any aid or assistance whatsoever, or hold with them, the said Troops, or any part of them, any communication or correspondence.

3d. That if at any time during the unhappy disputes as aforesaid, any person or persons, of the part of the people aforesaid, shall, by discourses or words, reflect upon, censure, or condemn, or by any conduct oppose the proceedings of the Congress of this Colony, or authorities derived from them, the said Congress, the Council of Safety, or General Committee, as the case may be, shall, without being deemed to give umbrage to the part of the people aforesaid, send to any of the Deputies aforesaid, to make requisition that any and every such person or persons as aforesaid, offending in any of the premises aforesaid, against the proceedings of the Congress or authorities aforesaid, may and shall be delivered up to the authority of the Congress, or the tribunals under that authority, to be questioned and tried, and proceeded against, according to the mode of proceedings by authority of Congress; and if such person or persons as aforesaid, be not delivered up as aforesaid, within fourteen days after requisition as aforesaid, then, in such case, the Congress, or Council of Safety, or General Committee, may and shall be at liberty to use every means to apprehend any and every such person or persons as last aforesaid, and question, try, and proceed against as aforesaid, every such person or persons as aforesaid.

4th. That if any person or persons who has or have signed, or shall sign the Association aforesaid, shall, without authority of Congress, molest any person or persons of the part of the people aforesaid, in such case application shall be made to the said Congress, or Council of Safety, or General Committee, in order that such person or persons, so molested, be punished for and restrained from molesting as aforesaid.

And it is hereby declared that all and every person of the part of the people as aforesaid, not offending in or against any of the premises aforesaid, shall and may continue to dwell and remain at home as usual, safe in their lives, persons, and properties: such being no more than what has been and is the aim, intention, and inclination of the Congress of this Colony, and the authorities under that body. All persons who shall not consider themselves as bound by this treaty, must abide by the consequences.

Done at the camp near Ninety-Six, this 16th day of September, 1775.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM WILLIAM H. DRAYTON TO THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY FOR SOUTH-CAROLINA, DATED SEPTEMBER 17, 1775.

After all, I assure you our situation is utterly precarious while the Governour is at liberty. He animates these men; he tempts them; and although they are now recovered, yet their fidelity is precarious, if he is at liberty to jog them again, and lay new toils for them. Gentlemen, allow me in the strongest terms to recommend that you make hostages of the Governour and the officers. To do this is not more dangerous to us than what we have done; it will secure our safety, which otherwise will be in danger. I would also recommend that the trade with the country be opened; it will give infinite satisfaction. It will convince every person of the rectitude of our designs. It will obliterate a distinction which, if now permitted to remain, will give Fletcher's people room to sell their patriotism, &c., to King's Troops, and thus renew a communication. And, indeed, if we will not trade with them, we cannot in conscience blame them for trading with those who will trade with them. And this seems to correspond with the spirit of the resolution of the General Committee, August 23d, "but also to give such assurances," &c. I am clearly of opinion that upon the instrument of the 16th of September, such a relaxation might be grounded. I am persuaded it will be attended with the most salutary consequences, and therefore I do most heartily recommend that it may be done. But above all things I think it is my duty most strongly to represent that the Governour should be taken into custody.

I beg leave also to represent that the declaration of the 13th, and the instrument of the 16th instant, be not only printed generally in the Gazettes and in sheets, to be immediately, by the Committee of Intelligence, circulated throughout the Colony, to give general notification thereof, (which is greedily desired,) and to prevent erroneous copies, but that they be published in England, for this reason: They will show that no part of the people of this Colony are even unfriendly to the designs of Congress; that none of the people will encourage any person, even by word, to condemn our proceedings; that all offenders shall be delivered up to punishment; that no part of the people will even hold communication with the King's Troops. All this will be in direct contradiction to the Governour's representation of the meritorious conduct and zeal of Fletcher's people for the King's service. And for all this to appear is of infinite importance, and infinitely preferable to our having put a part of those people to the sword, which would not only have lain the foundation for lasting animosities, but would convince Administration that the Governour's representations were true, that there was a strong party here against the Congress; all which would invite them to send a strong body of Troops here, and that very early.

HAMPTON (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN SQUIRE.

Hampton, September 16, 1775.

SIR: Yours of the 10th instant, directed to the Committee of the Town of Hampton, reciting "that a sloop tender in His Majesty's service was, on the 2d instant, cast on shore near this place, having on board some of the King's stores," which you say were seized by the inhabitants, and demanding an immediate return of the same, or that the people of Hampton must answer the consequences of such outrage, was this day laid before them, who, knowing the above recital to be injurious and untrue, think proper here to mention the facts relative to this matter. The sloop, we apprehend, was not in His Majesty's service, as we are well assured that you were on a pillaging or pleasuring party; and although it gives us pain to use indelicate expressions, yet the treatment received from you calls for a state of the facts in the simple language of truth, however harsh it may sound. To your own heart we appeal, for the candour with which we have stated them; to that heart which drove you into the woods in the most tempestuous weather, in one of the darkest nights, to avoid the much injured and innocent inhabitants of this County, who had never threatened or ill-used you, and who would, at that time, have received you, we are assured, with humanity and civility, had you made yourself and situation known to them. Neither the vessels nor stores were seized by the inhabitants of Hampton; the gunner, one Mr. Gray, and the pilot, one Mr. Ruth, who were employed by you on this party, are men, we hope, who will still assert the truth. From them, divers of our members were informed that the vessel and stores, together with a good seine, (which you without cause so hastily deserted,) were given up as irrecoverably lost, by the officers and some of the proprietors, to one Finn, near whose house you were drove on shore, as a reward for his entertaining you, &c., with respect and decency.

The threats of a person whose conduct hath evinced that he was not only capable but desirous of doing us, in our then defenceless state, the greatest injustice, we confess, were somewhat alarming; but, with the greatest pleasure, we can inform you, our apprehensions are now removed.

Although we know we cannot legally be called to account for that which you are pleased to style an outrage, and notwithstanding we have hitherto by you been treated with iniquity, we will, as far as in our power lies, do you right upon just and equitable terms.

First. We, on behalf of this community, require from you the restitution of a certain Joseph Harris, the property of a gentleman of our Town, and all other of our slaves whom you may have on board; which said Harris, as well as other slaves, hath been long harboured, and often employed, with your knowledge, (as appeared to us by the confession of Ruth and others, and as is well known to all your men,) in pillaging us, under cover of night, of our sheep and other live stock.

Secondly. We require that you will send on shore all boats, with their hands, and every other thing you have detained on this occasion.

And lastly. That you shall not, by your own arbitrary authority, undertake to insult, molest, interrupt, or detain, the persons or property of any one passing to and from this Town, as you have frequently done for some time past.

Upon complying with those requisitions, we will endeavour to procure every article left on our shore, and shall be ready to deliver them to your pilot and gunner, of whose good behaviour we have had some proofs. We are, &c.

THE COMMITTEE OF ELIZABETH CITY COUNTY, AND TOWN OF HAMPTON.

To Matthew Squire, Esq., Commander of His Majesty's Ship Otter, lying in Hampton Road.

At a meeting of the Committee of Elizabeth City County, and Town of Hampton, September 16, 1775:

Resolved, unanimously, That the most hearty thanks of this Committee, and all those whom they represent, are justly due to Major James Innes, the other Gentlemen Officers, and to the several Volunteer Companies now under their command, for so expeditiously and cheerfully marching to our assistance and defence on the alarm occasioned by the threats and several insolent letters of a certain Matthew Squire, commander of His Majesty's Ship the Otter; and that this Committee, for themselves and constituents, do accordingly present their most hearty and cordial thanks to the said very worthy Gentlemen and their Companies.

W. R. W. CURLE, Chairman.

OFFICERS OF MINUTE-MEN, CORNWALL PRECINCT, ORANGE COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Blooming-Grove, September 16, 1775.

At a meeting of a Company of Minute-men, held at Blooming-Grove meeting-house, in the Precinct of Cornwall, in Orange County, New-York, on Friday, the 15th instant, for the purpose of choosing their Officers, the following persons were duly chosen to fill the places of commissioned officers in said Company, viz:

Thomas Moffat, Captain; Seth Marvin, First Lieutenant; James Little, Second Lieutenant; Nathan Strong, Ensign.

ELIHU MARVIN, }
ARCHIBALD LITTLE, } Inspectors.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMEN IN NEW-YORK, FROM AN OFFICER AT ISLE-AUX-NOIX, DATED SEPTEMBER 16, 1775.

When I last wrote to you, I was at Crown Point, on my way hither; we arrived here on Monday, the 2d instant, and on Wednesday we set out to go down the lake as far as St. John's, which is about twelve miles distant, in order to find out the disposition of the Canadians. We went on thither with great cheerfulness, till, coming within about a mile of the fort, the enemy began to fire at our boats with cannon, which obliged us to land; we immediately formed, and marching towards the fort, through the woods, we received a smart fire from the Indians and Regulars, who lay in ambush to destroy us; we returned the fire very freely, as you may well suppose. This continued about an hour, when we obliged them to retreat to the fort. They killed eight of our men, and wounded seven. Amongst the latter are Major Hobby and Captain Mead, of Colonel Waterbury's Regiment. Of the enemy we killed nine, and wounded fifteen; among their killed is Matthias Johnson. After this fatiguing piece of business, we thought it necessary to throw up a small breastwork for our own security, which we very speedily did, about three-quarters of a mile from the fort; but being so very near, they kept continually throwing their bomb shells at us; and not being prepared to answer them in that way, we were obliged to retire a mile further from them; we tarried that night, and till ten in the morning, when we re-embarked for the island.

On Sunday, the 9th, we again set out, and about ten in the evening arrived at the place where we tarried the night when we were up before; and then setting out to march to Chambly, just as we came to the breastwork that we before had thrown up, we received a very heavy fire from two batteaus that were on the lake, with swivel and grape shot, and at the same time from the savages on the shore. Our armed boats perceiving the fire on the lake, fired three twelve-pounders, one of which took the enemy's principal batteau directly in the bow, and tore her from stem to stern; she immediately sunk, with all the men in her, amounting to thirty-five. We then proceeded on to the breastwork, where we killed their chief interpreter and one Indian. We received no hurt at all. In the morning we saw their armed schooner, of one hundred and eighty tons, carrying twelve nine-pounders, coming towards us; we then thought it expedient to return to the island, until we could have more artillery with us, which we now have got, with a great number of bomb shells, mortars, &c. We are now immediately to embark a third time, and are determined to take the schooner and fort at all events.

The Canadians have seized two batteaus, that were going to St. John's to supply the enemy with provisions. On their requesting them to stop, the Regulars fired at them, which the Canadians returned, killed twelve Regulars, and took the rest prisoners. We last night sent off a party to Chambly, of one hundred and fifty men, fifty of whom are Canadians, that have been in the camp several days.

JOHN WETHERHEAD TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

On board the Asia, September 17, 1775.

SIR: By letters I have received from my friends on shore, I understand that a certain Doctor Nicholson, and some other evil-minded persons, had endeavoured to injure me greatly, by telling the Committee "that I was the person who informed Captain Vandeput of a design to take away the guns from the Battery on the 23d of last month; that I had also been to Staten-Island in disguise, to purchase provisions to send to Boston in the transport; and, further, that I had furnished the said Nicholson and a negro man with pistols to defend themselves, if necessary, at the time they were purchasing provisions for the same purpose."

As the above reports are either infamous falsehoods or gross misrepresentations, the duty I owe to myself and family induces me to trouble you, Sir, as a member of the Committee, with the following account of my conduct with respect to the matters alleged against me, beseeching you to do me the favour to show this letter to the Committee, or to any other gentleman in the City you may think proper, not doubting but the candour of my fellow-citizens will immediately acquit me of every obnoxious charge brought against me by the malevolent tongue of malice and scandal.

On the 23d of last month, having occasion to see Captain Herbert, of the Fifty-Ninth Regiment, (who I understood kept chiefly on board the Packet,) in order to deliver a letter I had received from Elizabethtown, with a particular request that I would deliver it with my own hands, I went down to Blundett's to watch for the Packet's boat; but as no boat came on shore, I took the opportunity of the Asia's boat; as soon as I got on board the Asia, Captain Vandeput called me aside, and asked me whether I had heard any thing concerning a design to take the guns away that night from the Battery. My answer was, that I had not heard any thing about the matter, nor did I believe it. He then read to me a note he said he had received from shore that morning, giving him the information, telling me at the same time that he could entirely depend on the person who wrote the note, and assured me he could not avoid firing upon the persons who should make the attempt. I then left him, and went on board the transport, where I was told Capt. Herbert was at dinner. As far as I can remember, it was then near five o'clock in the afternoon. I had not been half an hour on board the transport, before two or three gentlemen came on board, with looks of the utmost consternation, assuring me the Town was in the greatest confusion, and that the guns were to be taken away, and that two hundred men were in quest of me, Mr. Bayard, and other gentlemen, whom they were determined to secure; beseeching me, if I had any regard for my own life or safety, by no means to attempt going on shore. This was afterwards confirmed to me by young Roberts and another gentleman; and this is all I know about that matter.

The second charge, concerning my purchasing provisions to send to Boston, or assisting any other person in so doing, is equally without foundation. It is true that I was at Staten-Island, along with the Captain of the transport. It is also true that I was present when the Captain purchased some stock from two or three persons on the island; but I am entirely obliged to my enemies for the information, that the stock or any part of it was intended for Boston; nor do I know that any of it is gone thither. In order, however, to explain this transaction justly and clearly, permit me, Sir, to tell you all the circumstances as they happened. You, and every other gentleman, will then be able to judge how far the merits or demerits of that transaction are to be laid at my door. You will please to observe that the Captain of the transport had proposed to me to take a sail with him in his long-boat, as far as Amboy, to pay a friendly visit to one Mr. Sprowle, a young gentleman who lives with Captain Holland. I consented to go with him, on condition that he would agree to go with me to Middletown Point, where my intention was to pay a visit to my wife's sister, Mrs. Morris, whom I had not seen for some time, and who was at that time very ill. We accordingly set out in the afternoon, and, when we got to the Narrows, discovered the Kingfisher lying at anchor about four miles off, and in a little while after we saw her long-boat put off and stand towards us; as there was but little wind, and the tide began to make against us, she soon came up with us, when I found she was sent on shore with Mr. Unkles, who persuaded us by no means to attempt going any further that evening, as it was impossible for us to get to Amboy by daylight. Mr. Unkles, as a further inducement, told us that if we wanted any fresh provisions, he was sure we might purchase it with great ease in that neighbourhood; for that he had procured ten sheep the day before, from one Cuzzen or Cusson, for Captain Montague. The Captain immediately caught at this information with great eagerness. He would therefore go no further. Unkles stepped on board our boat, and we went on shore together, where Unkles led us from house to house to purchase stock, a good part of which was purchased by the Captain and Unkles, under the pretence that we were part of sixteen passengers and ten servants, outward bound, in a vessel belonging to London, and that no live stock can be had at New-York. In short, we loaded our boat with ducks, geese, fowls, and roasting pigs, and a few lambs, and returned back again, when I insisted that the stock should be immediately divided betwixt the Asia and the transport; which was accordingly done. Our part of it on board the Asia was soon eat up, for we had had no fresh provisions since the 23d. The case was the same with the transport, and I fancy the Staten-Island stock was made an end of several days before she sailed from hence. For my part, I thought myself happy, and do still think so, that the stock was procured, as it in some measure tended to quiet the minds of the officers, who were highly exasperated at the town's people for stopping the fresh beef, in so much that some steps like to have been taken that would have been very fatal to numbers in the City.

As to the pistols, and the story Nicholson has told about them, he well knows it to be an infamous fabrication of his own. The pistols were not mine, nor did I even know that he or the pistols were gone, till three days after; but this

I know I can prove, that the gentlemen on board the transport assured us Nicholson had stolen the pistols, for that he had not asked any body's consent to take them.

Thus, Sir, I have given you as true and circumstantial an account of the several matters alleged against me as my memory can furnish me with, and you will greatly oblige me by showing it to the Committee, or to any gentlemen in the City. In the meantime, I have the pleasure of subscribing myself, with great sincerity, Sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN WETHERHEAD.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, FROM AN OFFICER AT ISLE-AUX-NOIX, DATED SEPTEMBER 17, 1775.

I have just time to acquaint you, that to-morrow we intend to strike a decisive blow at St. John's. We have already had two skirmishes. In the first we lost seven men, besides six or seven wounded. Our enemy had nine Indians killed on the spot, with twice as many wounded, as we are informed.

The savages appear barbarous to the last degree; not content with scalping, they dug up our dead and mangled them in the most shocking manner. I had the pleasure to see two of them scalped, as a retaliation for their barbarity. This happened after our last action, in which none of us were hurt. An armed boat, which threw shells and grape-shot briskly at us for some time, though without doing mischief, was fortunately divided by a salute from a twelve-pounder from one of our gondolas. It is said there were thirty Regulars in the boat, who all perished, either by the shot or in the lake. The chief obstacle we shall meet with to-morrow will be a strong schooner, which we are determined to board. She mounts eighteen nine-pounders, and was launched but two days before we took possession of the island. How this enterprise will succeed, God only knows; but I still have hopes to see you and all my friends once more at New-York.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM QUEBECK, DATED SEPTEMBER 17, 1775.

We have accounts from St. John's, where the King's Troops are in garrison, that the Continental Troops were laying siege to it. The confusion this has thrown every thing into is inexpressible. Proper persons were immediately employed in collecting what Canadians they could, in order to take up arms; and I have the pleasure to assure you they met with little or no success. Was a vigorous effort to be made on your side, this Country would be your own. The tools of Government are in full employment, some in observing the conduct of the Canadians, and others in watching the motions and actions of the English Americans, who can neither speak nor stir without its being known.

NEWCASTLE (DELAWARE) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, Newcastle, September 18, 1775.

A Petition from Charles McKinzie, Master of the Ship Peace and Plenty, now lying in this Port—setting forth, that he arrived at this Port, from Belfast, on the 8th inst., with passengers; that, since his arrival, all exportation from this Continent has been stopped, except from this Government, New-York, North-Carolina, and Georgia; and praying permission to take in a cargo for a foreign Port, which he could do without contravening the Association of the Continental Congress, and thereby prevent a great loss, by returning in ballast only—was by order read.

Resolved, unanimously, That the said Petition be rejected; but that the said Charles McKinzie be permitted to supply himself with such Provisions and Stores as may be necessary for the Ship's crew, on their passage to any other Port, under the inspection of the Committee of Observation for Newcastle Hundred.

JAMES BOOTH, Secretary.

RETURN OF MILITIA OFFICERS, FOR ROCHESTER, ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Pursuant to the resolves of the honourable Congress of the Province of New-York, the Southwesternmost District or Company of the Township of Rochester met and chose for their respective Officers the following persons, viz :

Andries Bevier, Captain; Richard Brodhead, First Lieutenant; Reuben De Witt, Second Lieutenant; Johannes A. De Witt, Ensign; which persons we return to the said Congress, as so elected.

Witness our hands, the 18th September, 1775.

A. DE WITT,

JOHANNES BEVIER, JR.,

J. G. HARDENBURGH,

Members of the Committee of the Township of Rochester.

INTELLIGENCE RECEIVED BY THE CONGRESS FROM GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, September 18, 1775.

General Montgomery, from information received on the 25th of August, being apprehensive that the enemy's armed vessels might get into the lake, unless an immediate movement was made to the Isle-aux-Noix, resolved to proceed with what force he could carry, of which he advised General Schuyler, who was at Albany, attending the Indian treaty. General Schuyler, upon receipt of this, immediately left Albany, and on the 30th arrived, very much indisposed, at Ticonderoga, which place he left the 31st, after having given the proper orders for bringing up the artillery, &c., &c. On the 4th of September, General Schuyler joined General Montgomery at Isle-la-Motte. On that day, both moved on, and arrived at Isle-aux-Noix. On the 5th, General Schuyler drew up a declaration, which he sent among the Canadians. And as it was judged going to St. John's, weak as he was, (his numbers not exceeding one thousand,) might have a good effect on the Canadians, and encourage them to join, he resolved upon the measure, and accordingly, early on the 6th, embarked, and, without any obstruction, proceeded towards St. John's. When he arrived in sight of the enemy's works, and at the distance of about two miles, the enemy began to fire from their fortress, but without doing any damage; he approached half a mile nearer, and then landed, without opposition, in a close deep swamp. After being formed, his Army marched in the best order they could, in grounds marshy and covered with woods, in order to approach and reconnoitre the fortresses. Major Hobby and Captain Mead, of the Connecticut Forces, being on the left, and a little advanced, were attacked, in crossing a creek, by a party of Indians, from whom they received a heavy fire; but our Troops gallantly pressing on them, they soon gave way, and left us the ground. In this rencounter we lost a Sergeant, a Corporal, and three Privates killed, one missing, and eight wounded, three of whom are since dead. Besides these, Major Hobby was shot through the thigh, but not dangerously; and Captain Mead received a slight wound through the shoulder, as did Lieutenant Brown in the hand. The surviving wounded are in a fair way of recovery. Night now coming on, our Generals drew their men together, and cast up a small intrenchment to defend themselves, in case of an attack in the night. In the evening, General Schuyler received certain intelligence that the enemy's fortifications were complete, and plentifully furnished with cannon; that one of their vessels was launched, and would be ready to sail in three or four days, and is to carry sixteen guns. He also learned, that in the afternoon's engagement five Indians were killed, and four badly wounded, besides several others, the condition of whose wounds was not known; and that Captain Tyce, of Johnstown, was wounded in the belly.

On the 7th, in the morning, (having been undisturbed through the night, excepting by a few shells, which did no other damage than slightly wounding Lieutenant Mills;) it was thought most advisable to return to the Isle-aux-Noix, throw a boom across the channel, erect the proper works for its defence, and to prevent the enemy's vessels from entering the lake.

Upon this, General Schuyler ordered the Troops to embark, and he returned to the Isle-aux-Noix without any molestation; where, when the express came away, he was erecting proper works to secure the entrance into the lake, and to be in readiness on the arrival of further reinforcements, which were expected, to take the advantage of any events that may happen in Canada.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM QUEBEC TO PHILADELPHIA, DATED SEPTEMBER 18, 1775.

The 17th instant, at the request of the Lieutenant Governor, the British and Canadian inhabitants assembled on the parade; the latter were formed into eleven Companies, the former into six. The British and Canadian Militia for this place will consist of about eleven hundred men, many of whom neglect and others think the duty hard, and the greater part are dissatisfied with the conduct of Government, as every day convinces them that they are deceived. The snow Fell, of Whitbay, is taken into Government service, to be commanded by Captain Napier—it is said she is to carry eighteen six and nine pounders; the ship Charlotte, belonging to Mr. Roach, of Rhode-Island; likewise, a sloop and schooner, of this place—cannot inform you what force they will carry; they have also a small vessel, that is sent express to Boston. Our militia mount guard from nine to nine in the morning; as yet, they have not received any ammunition, except four rounds in the evening, which gives reason to believe that Government is afraid to trust them with a larger quantity. The publick in general are dissatisfied with Government, for not letting them know the true state of the Province, which may be supposed much worse than it is represented, from the Governor's ordering his lady to England; she has taken her passage in the ship Lydia, Captain Deane, who is to sail on Friday next. There are many other ladies who are preparing to leave the Province; likewise, some men, who are conscious that their conduct does not deserve civil treatment from the Provincials, should they come into the Province. It is currently reported here, that Mr. Livingston and Jerry Dugan had raised one hundred and fifty Canadians, the former with the title of Lieutenant-Colonel, the latter with that of Major, who were near taking Lord Pitt and General Carleton on the river Chambly. Government reports, that on General Carleton's publishing a pardon for those that should come in at a certain time, that a greater part of them had abandoned their officers.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Cambridge, September 18, 1775.

SIR: Your favours of the 9th, 14th, and 15th inst., have been duly received. The readiness of the Committee to co-operate with me in procuring the most authentick intelligence, and despatching Captain Whipple for this purpose, is peculiarly satisfactory, and I flatter myself will be attended not only with success, but the happiest consequences to the publick cause. I should immediately have sent you notice of the paragraph in the Philadelphia papers, which is all the accounts I have of the taking the powder at Bermuda, but I supposed it must have come to your hands before it reached ours. I am inclined to think it sufficient to suspend Captain Whipple's voyage, at least till further intelligence is procured from Philadelphia; as it is scarce supposable those vessels would leave any quantity behind worth the risk and expense of such a voyage. As this enterprise will therefore be most probably laid aside for the present, it may be proper for Captain Whipple to keep his station a few days longer for the Packet. It must be remembered they generally have long passages, and we are very sure she has not yet arrived at Boston, nor do I find she is expected there. The voyage to Bayonne is what I should approve and recommend. The person sent to Governor Trumbull has not yet called upon me, but the scheme appears so feasible that I should be glad to see it executed. At the same time I must add that I am in some doubt as to the extent of my powers to appropriate the publick moneys here to this purpose. I could wish you would communicate it to the Congress, for which you will have sufficient time, and I make no doubt of their concurrence. In fact, the state of our treasury here at present is so low that it would be impracticable to be of any service to the expedition, if all other objections were obviated. We have no news, either in the camp or from Boston, except a piece of intelligence from the latter, that the enemy are pulling down the south end of the Town in order to continue a work across from river to river.

Your cheerful concurrence with me in publick measures, and zeal for the service, call for my best thanks.

You will please to accept them, and believe me to be, with much truth and esteem, your most obedient servant,
 GEORGE WASHINGTON.

P. S. No southern mail arriving last Saturday, we are apprehensive it has again fallen into the enemy's hands. If it was not attended with too much trouble, should be glad you would cause inquiry to be made. If by any accident the letters are at Providence, you will please to forward them by express.

MEETING OF COMMITTEE OF INSPECTION FOR CUMBERLAND ETC., MASSACHUSETTS.

The Committee of Inspection for the Towns of Cumberland, Wrentham, Medway, Bellingham, Hopkinton, Holliston, Mendon, Uxbridge, and Upton, convened at said Bellingham, the 18th of September, 1775. Said Committees, being so convened, received an information against Captain Edward Clark, of Rutland, for purchasing and selling Tea, contrary to the Association Agreement, in article third. This body of Committees, viewing it their indispensable duty to keep said Association Agreement inviolate, taking it upon them to inquire into the facts charged in said information; said Clark being required to appear before said Committee, accordingly appeared, and confessed that he had, since the first day of March last, bought twenty pounds of Tea; that he had sold to sundry persons about five pounds and a half of the same, had used some, and the residue thereof he said was lodged with a certain man, with intent to dispose of it to two others, whom he had not opportunity to deliver it to.

Whereupon we unanimously Resolve, That said Clark's conduct abovementioned is in direct violation of said Association Agreement; and that the said Clark is an enemy to American liberty, and ought to be treated as such. And that it be recommended to all persons who are lovers of their Country, and friends to the common rights and liberties of mankind, to break off all kind of dealings with him; and that this be published in the Gazette.

AARON PHIPS, Chairman.
 NATHAN TYLER, Clerk.

ADDRESSES FROM KINGSTON UPON HULL.

Addresses presented to His Majesty, by Robert Manners, Esq., his father, the Right Honourable Lord Robert Manners, one of the Representatives in Parliament for the Town of Kingston upon Hull, having been prevented by illness from presenting them.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

The humble Address of the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen of the Town of KINGSTON UPON HULL, in Common Council assembled.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen of the Town of Kingston upon Hull, deeply impressed with a sense of those royal virtues which have happily distinguished your reign, and are the great support of our civil and religious liberties, beg leave to approach your throne, and to declare our abhorrence of the unnatural rebellion which prevails in some of your Majesty's Colonies in North-America. We have beheld with that indignation that becomes good subjects, in those parts of your Majesty's dominions, an impatience of good order and Government, seditious assemblies, traitorous addresses and correspondences, insolent and daring violations of private property and legal authority, and at length an open and hostile defiance of the whole power of the British Empire. Crimes of such magnitude, so unprovoked, so deliberately committed, have justly merited the heaviest punishment; yet the benignity of your Majesty's counsels and disposition long suspended the stroke of justice. Happy for these deluded men if the delay of punishment had removed the cause for this so necessary an exertion of power. But the malignity of their counsels, and the factious designs of men who have abetted their cause in this Country, suppressed in them all sentiments of gratitude and loyalty, and misled them from their own interest and preservation, to almost inevitable ruin. In a situation so distressful to a good Prince, we lament the necessity, but we applaud the firmness of your resolution to use vigorous measures in the support and protection of the laws and liberties which these licentious men have so unjustly violated, but which we value and enjoy.

And we humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty that we will exert our utmost endeavours, at the expense of our lives and fortunes, to support your Majesty in the defence and maintenance of our constitutional rights, and the honour and dignity of the Crown of these realms.

Given under our common seal, this 19th day of September, in the year of our Lord 1775.

RALPH DARLING, Mayor, H. ETHERINGTON,
 R. BEATNISSE, Recorder, JOHN PORTER,
 RICHARD BELL, JOSEPH OUTRAM,
 CHARLES POOL, JOHN MACE,
 JOHN BOOTH, JOHN MELLING.
 THOMAS MOWLD,

Kingston upon Hull, September 26, 1775.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, and principal Inhabitants of the Town of KINGSTON UPON HULL.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, and principal Inhabitants of your Town of Kingston upon Hull, with grateful hearts crave leave to approach your royal throne with the tribute of our sincere and hearty thanks for the happiness we have enjoyed under your Majesty's just and mild administration, and at this time particularly, for your paternal care in the conduct of the publick and national affairs, in the present unhappy differences with the British Colonies in America. Permit us to testify our abhorrence and detestation of the violent and unnatural rebellion which those deluded people have been hurried into, by our and their enemies, who, under the mask of friendship and zeal for publick liberty, have, by malicious calumnies and pernicious insinuations, (propagated in the newspapers and by various other means,) instigated measures tending to the utter destruction of all true liberty, and all duty and loyalty to your Majesty. But we hope your Majesty's wise and resolute proceedings against those your rebellious subjects will at length bring them to a due sense of their duty, and submission to the laws of their Mother Country, so that all differences between them and this nation may be settled upon a permanent foundation, to the mutual happiness and prosperity of both, which we ardently wish. And we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we (confiding in your justice and goodness) shall always be ready, to the utmost of our several powers and abilities, to support your Majesty in all such just measures as you in your wisdom shall think fit to take to this desirable end.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

The humble Address of the Guild or Brotherhood of Masters and Pilots, Seamen of the Trinity-House of KINGSTON UPON HULL.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Guild or Brotherhood of Masters and Pilots, Seamen of the Trinity-House of Kingston upon Hull, consider the many privileges granted to our ancient Corporation by your royal predecessors, and the great advantages derived to us as a maritime body, and to the Town of Hull, by your Majesty's kind attention to encourage and secure the navigation and commerce of these Kingdoms, as very great and substantial blessings.

To minds thus gratefully inspired, and uninfluenced by party, nothing can create deeper concern than to behold attempts made to disturb publick tranquillity, and to overthrow the peaceable enjoyment of every thing that is dear or valuable.

We therefore think it highly incumbent on us, at a period so truly alarming as the present, when we see the people in most of your Majesty's Provinces in North-America, cherished and assisted by ill-designing persons, so infatuated as to deny the legislative authority, and so daringly wicked as to act in open rebellion, to give your Majesty this testimony of our unfeigned attachment to your Majesty's person and Government, by earnestly assuring your Majesty that we hold in the utmost abhorrence men capable of such proceedings; and that we think it our duty, as far as we are able, to assist your Majesty in bringing those unhappy and deluded people to a sense of their allegiance, and in carrying into execution the legislative authority of Great Britain.

Given under our common seal, the twenty-third day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, September 19, 1775.

Whereas it has been reported, that there is an intention, formed by some of the inhabitants of this City, of publicly exposing and punishing, before conviction, certain persons supposed to be unfriendly to the cause of liberty: This Committee, after strict inquiry, have reason to believe said report to be altogether groundless, and that it took its rise from and has been industriously circulated by persons inimical to the liberties of this Country, with a view to create jealousies and divisions; nor have they reason to apprehend any violences or irregularities of this kind from the inhabitants of the City and Liberties, who have ever been remarked for their humanity and love of order.

But with a view to quiet and allay such apprehensions, whether real or affected, and that all proceedings against our domestick enemies may have the semblance as well as the reality of justice, the Committee think it necessary to declare, in the following Resolves:

That no person or persons ought to proceed to inflict punishment on any one, on a charge of suspicion of violating the Continental Association, or doing any act or thing tending to weaken and destroy the Association, which is justly regarded as the best security and protection against the machinations and attempts of our Ministerial enemies. But that all charges and complaints of such nature be heard and determined by this Committee, that the directions of the Congress may be strictly observed, and no person held out to his fellow-citizens as an object of indignation and contempt, without full and sufficient evidence of guilt, after a fair and impartial examination.

The rights which all men are entitled to, of speaking their sentiments candidly, so far as is consistent with the peace and welfare of society, they hold to be sacred, and that it ought to be inviolate. But when this privilege is used for the purpose of raising jealousies among the people, distracting their counsels, and counteracting their virtuous exertions against injury and oppression, all laws, human and divine, justify the punishment of such licentiousness.

Therefore, Resolved, further, That, in the opinion of the Committee, no person has a right to the protection of a community or society he wishes to destroy; and that if any inhabitant, by speeches or writings, evidences a disposition to aid and assist our enemies, or endeavours to persuade others to break the Association, or by force or fraud to oppose the friends of liberty and the Constitution, in the present virtuous struggle, such person, being duly convicted thereof before the Committee, ought to be deemed a foe to the rights of British America, and unworthy of those blessings which it is hoped will yet be secured to this and succeeding generations, by the strenuous and noble efforts of the United Colonies.

In order to carry into execution the General Association, and as far as possible to prevent any breaches thereof:

Resolved, first, Each Vendue Master shall be immediately called on to take an oath or affirmation to the following effect: That he will not receive or take into his possession, or dispose of, by publick sale or otherwise, any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, that he may have reason to believe have been imported contrary to the Association. That upon any person's applying to him to sell Goods, if there should be the least reason to suspect the said Goods were imported contrary to the Association, he shall not dispose of them until said person produces a certificate from the Committee of the City, Town, or District, from whence said Goods were received; and that in all their future business, as Vendue Masters, they will faithfully adhere to the Association, and will not, in any respect, aid, assist, or countenance, any person or persons who may attempt an infraction thereof.

Resolved, secondly, That Messrs. Christopher Marshall, Sen., Samuel Moore, George Schlosser, Timothy Matlack, Joseph Watkins, Jun., Christopher Pechin, Jacob Schriener, Thomas Cuthbert, Joseph Dean, Joseph Blewir, and Francis Gurney, or any three of them, be a Committee for the purpose of inspecting the Invoices and Goods that may be received by any Vendue Master or Masters, whose business it shall be to obtain full satisfaction of the proper importation of all Goods offered for sale at publick vendue. And where there is any doubt in the minds of the Committee, respecting any Goods, the Vendue Master shall produce the Invoice of said Goods, signed by the person who sent them for sale, who shall be called on to prove their importation agreeable to the Association. The said Committee, or any three of them, shall also be empowered to give certificates to all persons who buy Goods at any of the vendues in the City and Liberties, upon the vendue Master's requesting the same.

Thirdly, To the end that the above regulations be duly attended to, Resolved, That if any Vendue Masters, in the City or Liberties, shall refuse or neglect an immediate and punctual compliance therewith, no Merchant or others ought to send any Goods for sale to such Vendue Master or Masters; and that no Shopkeepers or others ought to purchase any Goods, either by publick or private sale, of such Vendue Masters. And, further, that the name and conduct of such Vendue Master or Masters shall be published in the newspapers.

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, during the recess of the Congress, New-York, Sept. 19, 1775. }

SIR: We gratefully acknowledge your favour of the 16th current, with Colonel Flemming's commission, and four hundred blank commissions.

We did not presume, Sir, to trouble you with the materials for filling up the commissions, as, by your letter of the 27th June, ultimo, you informed us "that the subordinate officers were to be recommended to the General, to whom commissions from your Congress were sent, to be filled up agreeable to such recommendation."

The commissions for the officers of the troops raised in this Colony shall be filled up with all possible despatch, agreeable to your directions and an arrangement long since delivered to General Schuyler, and the residue of the commissions transmitted to the General, for the use of the department.

We have the honour to be, with the greatest respect and esteem, Sir, your most obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN HARING, Chairman.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, during the recess of the Congress, New-York, Sept. 19, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: This serves to cover the copies of the different Plans of Hudson's River, and the Fortifications there begun, in obedience to an order of the honourable the Continental Congress, and an estimate of the expense, all made by Mr. Romans, the Engineer, which he says is computed at the lowest rates possible, exclusive of the expense of transportation, ropes, and many small incidental charges, which cannot well be estimated. Some of our agents, appointed to superintend this business, conceive that one thousand five hundred Pounds will be necessary for incidental charges, gun carriages, &c., besides cannon, which we hope may be supplied without purchase.

General Wooster is at Harlem, with about four hundred men, which appear to us to be unemployed. In obedience to the order of the honourable Continental Congress of the 16th June last, we thought it our duty to request him to send one full Company of his men up to assist in erecting the fortifications, hoping thereby to save a great expense in labour. The General declines sending any of his troops on that service, unless he has a further order from your honourable House. We take the liberty to enclose you copies of the correspondence between General Wooster and us, on that subject, to which we beg leave to refer. The Congress will, in their wisdom, direct what is best to the general cause, and we will exert ourselves to follow their directions.

We have the honour to be, with the greatest respect and esteem, your most obedient humble servants.

By order: JOHN HARING, Chairman.

To the Honourable the President and Members of the Continental Congress.

Copy of B. ROMANS'S Estimates and Expenses of erecting the Fortifications of HUDSON'S River, in the Highlands, in the Colony of NEW-YORK.

New-York, September 18, 1775.

These works require:

2,400 perches of stone wall, each perch containing 16½ feet in length, 18 inches high, by 12 wide, at 5s. 6d. per perch, £660. 2½ bushels of lime are taken up by each perch, 4,000 bushels, at 6d. per bushel, £100.

1,000 pieces ranging timber, 18 feet long, 12 inches square, for five block-houses, and for the morlins of the battery, &c. These contain 216,000 superficial feet, at 6s. per hundred, (price at Windsor Landing.) £648.

1,500 two-inch plank, for platforms of the battery and floors of the block-houses—400 of 24 feet long, 10 inches wide; 1,200 of 20 feet long, 10 inches wide—49,600 feet, say 50,000 feet, (at Windsor Landing.) at 6s. per hundred, £150.

1,200 beams and sleepers, for block-houses and platforms, of different lengths, from 8 to 24 feet long, 9 inches by 3, supposed to contain 50,000 feet, (at Windsor Landing.) at 6s. per hundred, £150.

3,200 for each, make 16,000 shingles for five block-houses, at £5 per thousand, £80.

140 lathes, of 14 feet long, for each, make 700 lathes, of 2½ inches by 1½, for the roofs of five block-houses, at £15.

8 rafters of 16 feet long, 8 rafters of 10 feet long, make 160 rafters for the block-houses, their mean measure being 6 inches by 3, 3,120 feet, at 6s. per hundred, (at Windsor Landing.) £9 7s., say £10.

2,000 fascines, for levelling, &c., will cost about £25.

4,000 pickets, to picket them, out of about 1,000 lathes, £20.

40 ports, 5 windows; and 6 doors, for block-houses and magazines, and a gate, &c., for the citadel, about £30.

6,400 broad-headed spikes, for the gate and wicket, and block-house doors and windows, 10 to all, of iron, make 640 pounds; 14 bolts of 10 pounds each, 140 pounds; 5 bolts of 4 pounds each, 20 pounds; 26 hinges, on an average, 250 pounds; 50 iron hoops, for swivels, about 200 pounds; small iron work, about 200 pounds—in all, 1,450 pounds, say 15 cwt. wrought iron, at 1s. per pound, £75.

Broad-headed copper nails for magazine door, 360, 10 to a pound, 36 pounds; copper hinges and bolts, 30 pounds; two copper circles, or busses, for vessels, 20 pounds—about 80 pounds wrought copper, at 3s. 6d. per pound, £14.

5 ordinary locks, £2; 1 large lock, £1; 1 copper lock, £1; about 1,000 pounds nails, £40; 5,000 trundles, £25.

Necessary tools—6 stone mauls, 20 pick hammers, 20 pick axes, 50 hand bill hooks, 50 axes and hatchets, 50 spades, 40 mallets, 300 sand bags of crocus, 50 hand barrows—about £150.

For the barracks, 80 by 20 feet: 2 sills, 4 by 5 inches, 80 feet long, 270 feet; 2 plates, 4 by 6 inches, 80 feet long, 320 feet; 25 beams, 4 by 6 inches, 20 feet long, 1,000 feet; 50 posts, 4 by 6 inches, 8 feet long, 800 feet; 50 rafters, 4 by 4 inches, 13 feet long, 870 feet; 20 joists,

4 by 4 inches, 14 feet long, 360 feet; 25 sleepers, 4 by 6 inches, 20 feet long, 1,000 feet—in all, 4,620 feet, at 6s. per hundred, £14.

5,000 shingles, at £5 per thousand, £25.

250 lathes, 14 feet, about £5.

500 inch boards, 14 feet, at 10d. per hundred, £20.

200 inch and a half boards, 14 feet, 1s. 3d. per hundred, £21 10s.

400 pounds nails, at 10d. per pound, £16 13s. 4d.

Store-houses and guard-room, 60 by 20 feet: 2 sills, 4 by 6 inches, 60 feet long, 240 feet; 2 plates, 4 by 8 inches, 60 feet long, 320 feet; 20 beams, 4 by 6 inches, 20 feet long, 800 feet; 40 posts, 4 by 6 inches, 9 feet long, 720 feet; 40 rafters, 4 by 4 inches, 15 feet long, 800 feet; 15 joists, 4 by 4 inches, 14 feet long, 280 feet; 20 sleepers, 8 by 3 inches, 20 feet long, 280 feet—in all, 3,440 feet, at 6s. per hundred, £10 16s.

4,000 shingles, at £5 per thousand, £20; 200 lathes, £4 10s.; 375 inch boards, £15; 300 pounds nails, £11 5s.; a stack of chimneys, £10—in all, £84 1s.

Labour of and provisions for 150 men four months, 26 days to the month, at an average of 3s. per day, £2,250.

Entire cost, £4,645 4s. 4d.

Five iron stoves, for the block-houses.

The above is exclusive of ropes, &c., to raise the guns, transport of stoves, and such tools as may be made by the blacksmiths on the spot, besides other small incidental charges.

B. ROMANS.

N. B. It is most probable that swivel guns cannot be procured otherwise than by purchase.

In Council, June 16, 1775.

Resolved, That the Provincial Convention of New-York be desired immediately to apply to Governour Trumbull to order the Connecticut Troops, now stationed at Greenwich, Stamford, and places adjacent, to march towards New-York; and that part of them occupy posts upon the island, as the said Provincial Convention shall judge best adapted, to prevent the communication between the town and country from being cut off; the remainder of the Troops to be employed in securing the navigation of Hudson's River, by erecting Batteries at such places as the said Convention shall judge most proper to answer that purpose.

SIR: I have before me the order of the Provincial Congress of the 13th instant, directing me to order a full Company, of the Troops under my command, to proceed to the fortifications erecting on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands, to be employed there in erecting and guarding the same, in obedience to the order of the Continental Congress, &c.

I have lately received instructions from General Washington, consistent with which I cannot disperse my Troops, unless ordered by him or the Continental Congress; therefore think it necessary that the order of the Continental Congress, upon which yours is predicated, should be sent to me before I can determine whether to order a Company to the Highlands or not.

I have no objection to employing my Troops in any service that shall be judged of publick utility, consistent with my orders.

I am, Sir, with truth and regard, your most obedient humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

SIR: In answer to your favour of yesterday, we enclose you the order of the Continental Congress respecting the marching of the Troops under your command into the Colony, and the disposition of them after their arrival, by which you will see that it was expected that those Troops should occupy such posts in the Colony as the Provincial Congress should judge necessary to be taken.

GENTLEMEN: I received your favour of yesterday, enclosing the order of the Continental Congress, and say, in answer, the order was given the 16th of June, which was before the Continental Forces were properly organized. Since that time the Congress have ordered about two-thirds of my Troops to the northward; and should I divide the remaining few into detached parties, scattered about the country, and any disagreeable consequences should follow from it, as my orders from General Washington are to be here, it might possibly be difficult for me to vindicate my conduct. I have authority to say that no Provincial Congress can, with any propriety, interfere in the disposition of Continental Troops, much less control the orders of any General Officer. If the Continental Congress or the Commander-in-Chief, think proper to employ the whole or a part of the Troops under my command, in erecting and defending batteries, at the Highlands or elsewhere, I shall expect their orders direct, and no man will with greater alacrity obey their lawful summons.

I am, with great respect, your most obedient and humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary.

Report to the Honourable the Committee of Safety at New-YORK, on the intended Fortifications in the Highlands.

I beg leave first to refer this honourable House to Plan No. 1, a description of the ground, which is as follows:

A, the highest hill. B, the next highest. C, the next eminence. D D, the summit of the bluff. E, a field. F, a field. G, the point called Martyr's Cliff, or Martelaar's Rock. H, the only accessible place on the north side. I I, direction of the ridge next above the field F.

E and F are the only two places where a landing might be effected. Some gentlemen, not well enough versed in the science, and allured by a less stony appearance, have thought that the field F would be a preferable place for the battery. But, beside the small command it has of the river, (as appears by the course of the ridge I I,) it is commanded by all the surrounding heights; it must therefore be left unoccupied, as the batteries 1, 2, and 3, and the block-house in Plan No. 3, can completely and effectually prevent any attempt to land here, as does likewise the block-house A, and the easternmost two guns of the battery A, in No. 2.

The batteries and block-houses B and C, No. 2, are completely sufficient to baffle all such attempts at E, in No. 1; on hill A, in No. 1, which commands all the ground around, I would recommend a block-house, with four four-pounders and twenty swivels, to be erected; perhaps at H, in No. 1, a small lookout is necessary.

Should a landing be effected, and the batteries Nos. 2 and 4, in No. 3, be taken or surprised, they are commanded by batteries 3 and 5, and the block-house in the higher works, which rake battery 4, and consequently would provide an enemy a warm reception there. Plan No. 2 shows the lines of extreme command of each gun, whereby it appears that no spot in the whole reach remains out of the command of the greatest part of the guns at once, and a ship would find hot work for a great way.

In said plan, at A, I would mount four four-pounders in the block-house, and four nine-pounders in the battery. At B, four six-pounders in the block-house, and six nine-pounders on the batteries. At C, four four-pounders in the block-house, and three six-pounders on the battery. At D, the cannon ought to be as expressed in the twenty-eight embrasures, Plan No. 3, and in the block-house four four-pounders. At E, No. 2, four four-pounders and twenty swivels. In all, sixty-one guns and twenty swivels.

This is the most frugal plan that can be of any service here; a less or more imperfect plan would only be beginning a strong hold for an enemy.

I must beg this honourable House to pardon the coarseness of the drawings, they being done in an inconvenient place, and at a distance from my instruments.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Tuesday, September 19, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Chairman, and thirty-seven Members.

The Committee having taken into consideration the great distresses the poor of this City will be exposed to, and the propriety of making some provision for them against the approaching season, think it proper to recommend it to the Friends in this City to raise a contribution for that purpose, and to put it into the hands of the Committee, or such others as they may think proper, to be disposed of.

Thursday, September 21, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Chairman, and thirty-five Members.

Agreeable to a Resolve of this Board of the 13th inst., the following persons were agreed on as an augmentation thereto, and to be held up for the approbation of the publick, viz: *Peter Clopper, William Hyer, Jeremiah Brower, Henry Roome, Richard Ten Eyck, Peter P. Van Zandt, Anthony L. Bleecker, Garret Abeel, John Ramsay, Patrick Dennis, John Pell, Samuel Johnson, Isaac Stoutenburgh, Leonard Lispenard, Jun., Abraham W. GUERT SPT. DE WINT TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, September 19, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you have a few lines, as a request to yourself and the honourable members of the Committee of Safety; which request I beg you will oblige me so far as to present to the said Committee.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

GUERT SPT. DE WINT.

To John Haring, Esq., at New-York.

To the Honourable the President and Members of the Committee of Safety for the Province of New-York:

SIRS: Whereas I was, on the day ordered by the honourable Congress for choosing officers for the Militia of this City, chosen Captain of the sixteenth beat of this City, I have taken said affair into serious consideration, and find, from the situation of my affairs, that it will be totally out of my power to serve in that station in the manner I could wish. I therefore hope and pray that you will, out of your goodness, order a new election for a Captain of said beat in my stead, and I shall ever hold myself bound to serve you in any manner that may be required.

I am, Sirs, your most obedient servant,

GUERT SPT. DE WINT.

THOMAS HAZARD TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, September 19, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The officers of the Companies which constitute the Second Independent Battalion, some considerable time since, presented a nomination to the Congress, of such persons as they desired for Field-Officers. They therefore beg leave again to present the same nomination, with the addition of a Second Major as undermentioned, at the same time requesting your speedy confirmation of the same, or of such others as you may esteem more suitable, the discipline of the Battalion being much affected thereby, and are prevented from making an immediate return of Captains and subalterns for said Battalion, as some of the Field-Officers nominated belong at present to particular Companies of the same.

Your speedy determination of the above request will oblige the officers of said Battalion. Signed per order:

THOS. HAZARD, Chairman.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety.

Officers nominated.—Mr. William Hyer, Colonel; Mr. Christopher Bancker, Lieutenant-Colonel; Mr. William Malcom, First Major; Mr. Samuel Broome, Second Major.

TRYON COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Tryon County Committee Chamber, September 19, 1775.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 6th inst. we received yesterday, wherein we apprehend that, agreeable to the resolve and directions of the Continental Congress, there is one Major and a Quartermaster, by each of our Regiments, yet wanting, the voting of which we would have performed without delay, if the members of our Committee were not so much distant from one another in their abodes. Therefore, not to delay the expedition of the commissions in general, without which we cannot act much here with authority, we beg that you will please to send us the commissions for those four Majors and Quartermasters blank, which we would afterwards fill up at the next meeting of our whole Board, according to the majority of votes, and shall then make a return thereof to you immediately. But in case this our request would be disagreeable, and you could not consent to it, the subscribed Chairman, with eight Members of our Committee, made a choice of such officers, according to their abilities, and enclose hereby the nomination of them, not doubting that those so nominated might get the majority of votes at the whole Board. We recommend them to you, and expect the commissions for our militia officers will be despatched as soon as possible, not knowing how soon we shall be in want thereof for the defence of our American cause, in our exposed frontiers, and besides mixed with a great number of Tories, ready with arms against us: we mean the enemies in Kingsborough. In regard to our resolve in civil matters, we have not as yet transacted any thing, and shall also, agreeable to your order, repeal the same at our Board. We are urged to remember again the utmost want of ammunition, and in particular of powder. We applied lately, therefore, to the Albany Committee for some assistance, but got a refusal.

We remain, with much esteem, honourable Gentlemen, your obedient humble servants. By order:

NICHOLAS HERCKHEIMER, Chairman.

To John Haring, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Safety of New-York.

P. S. We also annex a return of the Field-Officers of our Minute-Men, amounting to one Battalion in our County, although the enlisted men have not as yet, in full, performed their choices for the Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns of their respective Companies; the return of which officers we will send to you immediately after performance.

Return of four Majors and Quartermasters for the four Battalions in the County of TRYON, and also of the

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, September 19, 1775.

SIR: Since my last of the 8th instant, which I had the honour to write from Isle-aux-Noix, my disorder (proceeding from a bilious fever, and violent rheumatick pains) increased so much, and reduced me so very low, that it was thought necessary that I should return to this place, to try, if possible, to recover; which I hope, with the assistance I have here, will be soon accomplished.

In my last I gave you an account of our operations to the date thereof; I shall now continue it till the day on which I came away. On the 9th, I received a letter from Canada, without signature, but which I knew to be written by Mr. James Livingston—copy enclosed, No. 1. As I had, through other channels, a corroboration of the intelligence contained in the former part of this letter, I resolved, as I had not yet my artillery, to despatch five hundred men into Canada, and gave orders, on the 9th, for their embarkation on the 10th, with an additional number of about three hundred, to cover their landing and bring back the boats—copy of my instructions to the commanding officer, No. 2. For the event of the intended expedition, see No. 3, which was drawn and delivered me by one of the party, and, from what I can learn, is just.

This body returned on Monday, the 11th. On Tuesday, the 12th, I found I had upwards of six hundred sick—Waterbury's Regiment being reduced to less than five hundred. General Montgomery (for I was too ill to leave my bed) perceived, however, with pleasure, that the men were unable to bear the reproach of their late unbecoming behaviour; and taking the advantage of this happy return to a sense of their duty, on the 13th I issued the orders in the paper No. 4. The 14th proved rainy, and retarded the embarkation of the cannon. On this day Colonel Allen arrived, and made the report No. 5; and I found myself so much better, that I had hopes of moving with the Army; but by ten o'clock at night, my disorder reattacked me with double violence, and every fair prospect of a speedy recovery vanished. Great part of the 15th rainy; the embarkation much retarded by it. On the same day I received a letter, of which No. 6 is a copy. On the 16th I was put into a covered boat, and left Isle-aux-Noix; and as it rained part of the day, I do not suppose that General Montgomery could move until the 17th, which proved fair.

The mode of the intended attack on St. John's, &c., as judged best both by General Montgomery and myself, is as follows: To land as near the fort as we did the first time we went down; the two row-gallies carrying a twelve-pounder each, well manned; the sloop and schooner, and ten batteaus, with picked men, to lie in the river, ready to attack the enemy's schooner, (which is completed and carries sixteen guns,) in case she should attempt to destroy our boats, or get to the southward of them, and thereby effectually cut off all communication between this place and the Army. After this naval arrangement, (which will take three hundred and fifty men,) five hundred men to be sent as a corps of observation, to intercept any succours between St. John's and Chambly, and to keep as near the former as possible; two hundred men, in a breastwork at the proposed landing, to cover the boats, and secure a retreat for the men in the vessels and boats, should the enemy's vessel be too many for them; the remainder of the Army to invest the place, make the approaches, and erect the batteries.

You will perceive, Sir, by No. 3, that some of the enemy's boats fired on our people. Captain Douglass, who commanded one of the armed boats, pointed and fired a twelve-pounder, loaded with ball and grape-shot, at them; and we have accounts that about thirty of the unfriendly Canadians were killed or drowned. In the first engagement of the 7th, we killed six Indians, two Caughnawagas, as many Mohawks, (Daniel, and William a bastard son of Sir William Johnson's,) one Canassadaga and one Huron; and we are informed by a Caughnawaga and Huron, whom I left at Isle-aux-Noix, that not an Indian remains at St. John's, and which I believe to be true. The four Deputies, sent by the Six Nations to request the Canadian Indians to remain neuter, were not returned when I left Isle-aux-Noix. I have taken the liberty to desire General Montgomery to make a present, in the name of the Congress, to the Canadian Indians, if he should think it necessary.

Since the affair of the 10th, the Army at Isle-aux-Noix, which then consisted of thirteen hundred and ninety-four effectives, all ranks included, has been re-enforced by Captain Livingston's Company of New-Yorkers, nearly complete; on the 16th, by Colonel Warner, whom I met, an hour after my departure, with one hundred and seventy Green Mountain Boys, being the first that had appeared of that boasted corps. He left this with about fifty more; but they mutinied, and the remainder are at Crown Point. Captain Allen's Company, of the same corps, arrived here last night, every man of which was raised in Connecticut. About one hundred men of Colonel Bedell's, from New-Hampshire, which corps was to have been up a fortnight before, (the remainder of one hundred and fifty of that body were yet to come,) joined the 16th at night, and I suppose the Artillery Company, under Captain Lamb, will join them to-day. These last were indispensably necessary, as we had none that knew any thing of the matter: so that the whole re-enforcement consists of about four hundred men. Yesterday I sent off sixty of Easton's, and one hundred and forty more are just embarking; this is the whole of that corps. About one hundred and twenty-five of the first New-York Battalion will embark early to-morrow, together with the Company of Green Mountain Boys, consisting of about seventy.

Two hundred and sixty of the third New-York Battalion remain here, which I will forward as soon as I can procure craft, which is building slowly, as most of the carpenters are gone home sick.

I am so feeble, that although I have much to say about the sick, musters, accounts, and other matters, I feel myself under the necessity of confining to such only which I humbly conceive more immediately require the attention of Congress.

If we succeed, what Troops are to remain in Canada? How are they to be engaged for that service? the like for those at this post, which at all events must have a garrison, weaker or stronger, as matters may turn out in Canada.

The weather already begins to be cold. The Troops in three weeks more will with great difficulty be able to stand it, thinly and poorly as they are clad. How are they to be supplied?

What kind of conduct am I to pursue with the Canadians, respecting civil matters? for I hope to join the Army as soon as I am in the least restored.

Where shall I get gold and silver to pay for necessaries for the Army? paper, of any kind, not having the least currency in Canada. I wish a considerable sum, in specie, was immediately sent to Mr. Trumbull, the Paymaster.

Please to let me know what I am to do with artificers taken out of the Troops; see my letter of the 26th July, ninth paragraph. I also wish an answer to the second paragraph of mine of the 2d August, respecting this place, and to the second paragraph of that of the 6th; also, to the fourth paragraph of the same, respecting a hospital, in which I find there will necessarily be several mates employed, as our sick are so very numerous.

I wish for some resolution of Congress agreeable to my letter of 31st of July, as Mr. Phelps still continues to act in conjunction with Mr. Livingston, which must necessarily be introductory of confusion, of which I fear there is too much already. One only should be employed as chief in the office, and the other may continue subordinate, for both are wanted.

Should we meet with a repulse, am I to prepare timber for vessels of superiour strength to the enemy's, against next spring?

Perhaps other matters of importance may have escaped my attention. Should I recollect any, I will do myself the honour to communicate them to you.

I am, Sir, with the most profound respect, yours and the Congress's most obedient servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President, &c.

[No. 1.]

St. Terese, September 8, 1775.

DEAR SIR: It is with inexpressible regret we are under the necessity of demanding a party of men from your Army, to cut off the necessary communication between St. John's and La Prairie, Chambly, &c. Your manifestoes came safe to hand, and despatched them off to the different Parishes with all possible care and expedition. The Canadians are all friends, and a spirit of freedom seems to reign amongst them. Colonel Allen, Major Brown, and myself, set off this morning, with a party of Canadians, with intention to go to your Army; but, hearing of a party of Indians waiting for us the same side of the river, we thought it most prudent to retire, in order, if possible, to raise a more considerable party of men. The Canadians, at any rate, are determined not to take up arms against you; but immediately upon the arrival of a party from your Army, I make no doubt of joining you with a considerable party of Canadians. Our attempt in getting to your Army, and the failure thereof, has deprived me of the honour of seeing you for the present. We shall drop down the River Chambly, as far as my house, where a number of Canadians are waiting for me. I expect a party of your men before they will stir. I shall, notwithstanding, keep up a spirit of faction amongst them, till I can hear what advances you are making towards a general attack of St. John's. I had the pleasure of acquainting you, in my former, of the absolute necessity of taking the armed vessels at the mouth of Sorel River, which will effectually prevent the escape of the Troops of Chambly and Montreal, going to Quebeck. There is still provisions and warlike stores on board said vessels, and apprehend the taking the same to be of as much consequence as blocking up the communication between Montreal and St. John's, &c. They are but slenderly manned, and make no doubt a dozen men might take one of them without bloodshed. I can easily furnish any party you may send with what provisions they may want. We wait, with the utmost impatience, your answer; till when, I am, with sincere wishes for the success of your arms, yours, &c.

To Major-General Schuyler.

[No. 2.]

Orders to Colonel RITZEMA, on his going into CANADA.

Isle-aux-Noix, September 10, 1775.

SIR: You will proceed, with the detachment under your command, to the road leading from St. John's to La Prairie, and post yourself in such a manner as most effectually to cut off the communication between the garrison of St. John's and the country. This will be most probably best effected by approaching that post as near as the enemy's artillery will admit.

You will be very watchful of the garrison of Chambly, by means of detached parties from your main body, or, which is preferable, by some trusty Canadians, lest any supplies of provisions or men should be thrown into St. John's.

As you cannot march with intrenching tools, you must purchase or borrow from our friends in the country, should you stand in need of them.

Colonel Allen and Major Brown have orders to request that provisions may be brought to you, which must be punctually paid for, for which purpose I have furnished you with the sum of £318 1s. 10d. in gold.

General Montgomery will probably remain on the ground where he lands you, till the 11th, towards night. You will perhaps have it in your power before that time to report your situation, and the reception you may have met with. You will, as frequently as opportunity permits, furnish me with such intelligence as may seem of consequence; by good woodsmen of your own detachment, or by Canadians who are trusty.

I must recommend not only to you, Sir, but every officer under your command, the strictest attention to good order, that our friends may not suffer in their property; that you cultivate the friendship of the Canadians by all manner of means, and should any person sustain damage, that you make him ample satisfaction.

You will not fail to procure the best accommodation for your Troops your situation admits, with respect to lodging, medicines, and refreshments. Some rum also will be necessary, if to be had.

If possible, you will endeavour to establish a correspondence at Montreal. If any of our friends in Canada will furnish you with the cash necessary to carry on the service, your orders upon me in their favour shall be duly honoured.

[No. 3.]

An Account of the Manœuvres and Movements of the Army in CANADA, under General MONTGOMERY.

September 10, 1775.

A detachment from Colonels Hinman, Waterbury, McDougall, and Van Schaick's, Regiments, amounting to about eight hundred men, under the command of Brigadier-General Montgomery, embarked at Isle-aux-Noix, proceeded towards St. John's, and landed, at nine in the evening, about three miles from that place, at a breastwork thrown up by the Troops who had been there before. From this place, five hundred men of those Regiments, besides officers, under the command of Lieut. Col. Ritzema, marched to take post on the other side of St. John's. After they had been gone about a quarter of an hour, a noise was heard, and a report prevailed that they were returning. In a few minutes after, two or three of McDougall's men, who were in the rear, came to the breastwork, and said they had been waylaid by a party of Regulars and Indians, and that the whole detachment were retreating. The same story was told by several stragglers from the other Regiments, though at this time not a gun had been fired, except one by a man of the detachment. The officers remaining in the breastwork endeavoured to rally the Troops who had fled, and with some effect; but they could not prevent others from flying, who, in order to escape being sent back, fled through the woods to the breastwork, and avoided the shore, (the way in which they first marched out.) On searching into the cause of this strange affair, it appeared that one of the parties, who flanked the advanced guard, being unable from the thickness of the woods to keep within it, and apprehensive of being separated from the main body, had come in towards it, and fell in just at the rear of Hinman's, who led, and front of Waterbury. The noise they made in the woods threw a panick on this part of the men, which, quickly spreading to the rest, occasioned the flight. On the return of Colonel Ritzema, who declared the Troops had all left him, General Montgomery determined to try whether, upon an explanation of the matter, they would march again. They were accordingly paraded, and exhorted by the General to do their duty, who mentioned every motive which could induce them to act like men. They then marched in the same order as before, till they came near another breastwork which had been thrown up before, when they were fired upon by one or two swivels from the river. In this intrenchment there was a small house, in which they found a few people, who fired one musket and then attempted to escape, in doing which a Canadian and an Indian were killed. Our Troops took possession of the work, and Colonel Ritzema ordered them to parade, that they might proceed; but found he had not above fifty men. In a little time they increased to about two hundred, and the rest having retired to the other breastwork, the General ordered these two hundred thither likewise, where they arrived about three in the morning, and determined to make another attempt at daylight. September 11th, at the request of some of the officers, the General called a council of war, at which Col. Waterbury and Col. Ritzema, Majors Elmore, Zedwitz, and Dimon, Captains Starr, Smith, Bearsley, Reed, Brown, Weisenfels, Willett, Motte, Lyon, Yates, McCrackin, and Livingston, assisted, and it was unanimously agreed that the detachment should proceed as before ordered, and that the remainder should take post at the other breastwork, in order to divert the attention of the enemy, but that the Troops should declare whether they were willing to march. On being asked, they all declared they were, and accordingly orders were given to embark; the remainder to proceed as advised by the council of war. Before this, Lieutenant Lockwood had been ordered down the river to reconnoitre, and just now returned with intelligence that the armed vessel of the enemy was lying at a point about a mile and a half below, completely equipped. This information rendered it necessary to remove the boats up the river for security, and the opinion of the same council (at the request of some of the officers) was asked, as to the expediency of marching the detachment, seeing the boats must be taken to the Isle-aux-Noix. The majority of voices was for embarking the whole, and returning to that island. On the way the General ordered the boats to stop at a point eight miles from St. John's, to try the temper of the Troops, and know whether they would march from thence; but here the opinion of the majority of the council of war was against the measure, and the whole detachment returned to Isle-aux-Noix, without any molestation, except the throwing a few shells, on our leaving the breastwork, which they continued for an hour and a half, without doing any damage. When the halt was made at the point, the General and Captains, with a few for guards, disembarked, and on cry by one of the men that the boats were coming, the Troops were with difficulty restrained from pushing off without their officers.

Camp at Isle-aux-Noix, September 13, 1775.

The artillery to be embarked to-morrow. The guns and mortars on board batteaus, and the carriages in the row-galleys. The Army will move down the river on the day following. Thirty-six barrels of pork and thirty-six of flour to be put on board the two periaugers. The axes and other intrenching tools to be also put on board those periaugers. The schooner will proceed with the Army. Captain Douglass and Lieutenant Lockwood will choose out determined volunteer crews and good rowers for the galleys.

[No. 5.]

Wednesday, September 6, 1775.

Set out from Isle-aux-Noix on the 8th instant; arrived at Chambly; found the Canadians in that vicinity friendly; they guarded me under arms night and day, escorted me through the woods as I desired, and showed me every courtesy I could wish for. The news of my being in this place excited many Captains of the Militia and respectable gentlemen of the Canadians to visit and converse with me, as I gave out I was sent by General Schuyler to manifest his friendly intentions towards them, and delivered the General's written manifesto to them to the same purpose. I likewise sent a messenger to the chiefs of the Caughnawaga Indians, demanding the cause why sundry of the Indians had taken up arms against the United Colonies; they sent two of their chiefs to me, who plead that it was contrary to the will and orders of their chiefs. The King's Troops gave them rum, and inveigled them to fight General Schuyler; that they had sent their runners, and ordered them to depart from St. John's, averring their friendship to the Colonies. Meanwhile, the sachems held a General Council, sent two of their Captains, and some beads and a wampun belt, as a lasting testimony of their friendship; and that they would not take up arms on either side. These tokens of friendship were delivered to me, agreeable to their ceremony, in a solemn manner, in the presence of a large auditory of Canadians, who approved of the league, and manifested friendship to the Colonies, and testified their good will on account of the advance of the Army into Canada. Their fears (as they said) were, that our Army was too weak to protect them against the severity of the English Government, as a defeat on our part would expose our friends in Canada to it. In this dilemma, our friends expressed anxiety of mind. It furthermore appeared to me that many of the Canadians were watching the scale of power, whose attraction attracted them. In fine, our friends in Canada earnestly urged that General Schuyler should immediately environ St. John's, and that they would assist in cutting off the communication between St. John's and Chambly, and between these forts and Montreal. They furthermore assured me, that they would help our Army to provision, &c.; and that, if our Army did not make a conquest of the King's garrisons, they would be exposed to the resentment of the English Government, which they dreaded, and consequently that the attempt of the Army into Canada would be to them the greatest evil. They further told me that some of the inhabitants, that were in their hearts friendly to us, would, to extricate themselves, take up arms in favour of the Crown; and therefore that it was of the last importance to them, as well as us, that the Army immediately attack St. John's, which would cause them to take up arms in our favour.

Governour Carleton threatens the Canadians with fire and sword, except they assist him against the Colonies, and the Seigneurs urge them to it. They have withstood Carleton and them, and keep under arms throughout most of their Parishes, and are now anxiously watching the scale of power.

This is the situation of affairs in Canada, according to my most painful discovery.

Given under my hand, upon honour, this 14th day of September, 1775.

ETHAN ALLEN.

To his Excellency General Schuyler.

[No. 6.]

DEAR SIR: It is with the utmost concern that I have no account from the party of men you were to have sent me. I still guard the River Chambly, which, through my promises to them of your men coming, has increased to near three hundred men. The night before last I took two batteaus, one of which was armed with twenty men, only owing to the Colonel having imprudently taken five artillerymen coming down the river for baggage, in consequence of which was obliged to demand a re-enforcement to defend myself in case of an attack from the fort, which happened according to expectation. I had the good fortune to kill and wound ten or twelve; the rest, being six in number, escaped to the upper end of the little island, about a league below the Fort Chambly. Had I not received a re-enforcement by art, I must have quitted the country, the consequence of which would have been fatal to me. The Canadians desire nothing more than to see a party of your men, and instead of three hundred men now with me, could procure you three thousand. They are at a great expense to me, owing to their want of flour, the dryness of the season stopping the mills entirely. They brought provisions for three or four days. I was under the necessity of keeping them here, at the expense of the Colonists, so as not to lose my ground. I would this night set to blocking up the communication, as beforementioned, were I certain of your men arriving to-morrow, and would engage the taking of St. John's without exposing your Army. As I have begun a war, must continue, or fly the country, unless you send the support you promised. I am almost harassed to death, as the Major and Colonel can inform you, not having slept six hours this week past, as you know volunteers cannot be kept in regular order. Mr. Duggan, a merchant in this river, gave me a little relief this day, by assisting me with liquor, ammunition, &c., and about sixty men, though I was under the necessity of casting lead into balls. Guns are much wanting, but hope we shall soon have some. Pray God I may be soon relieved from this dilemma, and send a party to our relief. I shall still keep up their spirits with all the eloquence I am master of. May God protect you and the Army, support the justness of the cause, and make you instrumental in uniting this flourishing Province with the United Colonies in America, is the sincere wish of him who is, with the greatest respect, your most obedient and devoted servant,

JAMES LIVINGSTON.

SIR: I hereby send you fifty-nine loaves of bread, and sixteen quarters of beef, conducted by Lieut. Brink, and two prisoners, one of them a considerable merchant in Montreal. They have been through the country to stir up the people to take up arms against us. Accordingly, I sent a party to take them. Yesterday morning I sent a party each side the river, Col. Allen at their head, to take the vessels at Sorel, if possible, by surprise. Numbers of people flock to them, and make no doubt they will carry their point. I have cut off the communication from Montreal to Chambly. We have nothing to fear here at present, but a few Seigneurs in the country, endeavouring to raise forces. I hope Col. Allen's presence will put a stop to it. I must refer to your Lieutenant, Brink, for the characters of the two prisoners, and their good intentions towards me. Time will not admit me to enlarge upon it.

I am your most obedient humble servant,

JAMES LIVINGSTON.

P. S. A little cash would be acceptable at this juncture, and enable me to furnish what necessities might be wanting. If I could pay the inhabitants one-half at present, they would wait for the remainder till all matters were finally settled.

JOSEPH REED TO MAJOR FRENCH.

Camp at Cambridge, September 19, 1775.

SIR: His Excellency the General would have acknowledged your favour of the 3d instant, under his hand, but the gentlemen who are the bearers of this formed a sudden resolution, and a pre-engagement abroad did not permit his showing you this mark of his attention.

Captain Willing will deliver you all the letters which have been sent out of Boston, for you; if any more should come, they shall be carefully forwarded, but at present there is a total interruption of all correspondence between the Town and this camp. The reasons Mr. Wharton can inform you.

The General has directed me to acquaint you that, on the fullest consideration, he is of opinion that your detention is both justifiable and proper. While the appellation of rebel is supposed to sanctify every species of perfidy and cruelty towards the inhabitants of America, it would be a strange misapplication of military rules to enlarge such gentlemen as may think themselves bound by a mistaken notion of duty to become the instruments of our ruin.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
JOSEPH REED.

PERMIT TO IMPORT POWDER.

Camp at Cambridge, September 19, 1775.

By his Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the United Provinces of NORTH-AMERICA.

Whereas the necessities of the Army under my command, for ammunition, are so great as to require all possible supplies, and Messrs. Clark & Nightingale, merchants of Providence, having represented to me that they will, at their own risk, undertake to procure, from the West-Indies or elsewhere, such quantities as may be purchased, provided they obtain my permission for this purpose, I do therefore hereby make known to all Committees and other persons whatsoever, that the voyage now proposed by the Sloop Fly and the Sloop Neptune are for the above purpose, and undertaken with my privacy and approbation, under such restrictions and engagements as the Honourable Governour Cooke, of Rhode-Island, shall think proper, to prevent the same from being perverted to any other purpose than that above specified. And I do recommend it to all Committees and other persons, not only to forbear molesting or intercepting them on the voyage aforesaid, but to give them all assistance and countenance within their power.

ADDRESS OF THE MAYOR, ETC., OF POOLE.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Burgesses, and principal Inhabitants of the Town and County of Poole, presented to His Majesty by Sir Eyre Coote, Knight of the Bath, one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, Burgesses, and principal Inhabitants of your Town and County of Poole, most humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty of our unfeigned duty and inviolable attachment to your Majesty's sacred person and royal authority, and with thankful hearts to acknowledge your Majesty's paternal care and vigilance for the honour of this Nation and the general good of your subjects.

Convinced as we are that nothing has been wanting on your Majesty's part to accelerate and promote these great and glorious ends, permit us, royal Sir, to express how deeply we are affected and concerned to find that our fellow-subjects in America still hold out an obstinate resistance to the legislative authority of this Kingdom; but, nevertheless, we hope that the time is not far off, when these unhappy and deluded people may be brought to a sense of their duty, and obedience to the laws of their parent State; and it is our most ardent wish that it may be the work of your Majesty's justice to accomplish that great purpose.

Permit us, most gracious Sovereign, to assure you that we are steadfast in our allegiance, unalterable in our loyalty, unanimous in the defence of your Majesty's sacred person and Government; and that we will cheerfully devote the utmost exertion of our abilities to crush all impious attempts, either foreign or domestick, to subvert our present happy Constitution.

Poole, September 20, 1775.

GOVERNOUR TONYN TO GENERAL GAGE.

St. Augustine, September 20, 1775.

SIR: We have this moment intelligence that Thomas Gray, an Indian trader, with four Indians, are gone to Latchway, the residence of the headmen of the Indians in this Province, from Jonathan Bryan, with a lease for near one-half of this Province, which Gray is to get the Indians to sign. The Superintendent informed your Excellency of Bryan's exploits and impositions sometime ago. In consequence of those transactions, so notoriously base and wicked, I issued at that time a proclamation against Bryan. In a few hours will set out a Constable, with two soldiers, who will also be appointed Constables, to Latchway, with a talk to the Cowkeeper and headmen, and a Judge's warrant, to apprehend Thomas Gray, wherever they can find him.

The substance of my talk will be a reward to apprehend Gray, to assist the Constables in bringing him safe to this place, and to invite the four Indians to come here. The plan now forming in Georgia is to send five hundred men, to demand Mr. Stuart, the Superintendent; if he be not delivered up, which most certainly he will not, they are to attack this place, and take him by force. As a further part of this plan, Gray's negotiation is with a view to gain over the Indians to co-operate with it, when Bryan is to come at the same time to take possession of the land. If they gain over the Indians, it may not be impossible they may attempt something. If they do not, I should think the undertaking madness. But, indeed, one should be mad to know what madmen would do. Things being in this state, your Excellency will not in the least wonder if I make a strong remonstrance to the commanding officer of the Fourteenth Regiment, to remain here with the little division of his corps, until I hear further from your Excellency, should even the three Companies of the Sixteenth Regiment arrive. Surely, I am justified in this measure many ways. The importance of this post to Great Britain, the very great consequence of the fort, the value of the King's ordnance, the communication and access to the Indians, and the preservation of the Province.

I have the honour to be, with very great respect, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

PATRICK TONYN.

P. S. Your Excellency will be pleased to take notice, I do not intend to remonstrate for the detention of the remainder of the Fourteenth Regiment, without the fullest conviction of the designs of the rebels against this Province being carried into execution.

GOVERNOUR LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL TO GENERAL GAGE.

Tamar, in Rebellion Roads, September 20, 1775.

SIR: I did myself the honour to write to your Excellency, by the only two opportunities that offered since my arrival in this Province, Captain Tollemache and Mr. Logie, and was in hopes His Majesty's service to the northward would have permitted some little attention to have been paid to the southern Provinces. I have now only to acquaint your Excellency that this Province has for some time been in a state of open rebellion; and, after undergoing many mortifications and insults, I was at last obliged, a few days ago, to take refuge on board the Tamar, and leave the officers of the Crown disarmed, and confined to Charlestown. The bearer of this, Mr. Kirkland, was a Lieutenant of Militia in the back part of this country. I know him to be a man who has great influence there; and, by his attachment to Government, he has, I fear, sacrificed his all. He has acquainted me with the particulars of the plan he means to communicate to your Excellency; and I am convinced, if the execution is not delayed too long, he may be made very useful in this and the neighbouring Provinces, Georgia and North-Carolina.

I have the honour to be, with great regard, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

WILLIAM CAMPBELL.

Norfolk, Virginia, September 20, 1775.

We are informed, from good authority, that a system of justice similar to that adopted against the devoted Town of Boston is likely to be established in this Colony, by the renowned Commodore of the Virginia fleet. He has in the course of this week, as a reprisal for the loss of his tender, seized every vessel belonging to Hampton that came within his reach, and thereby rendered himself the terror of all the small craft and fishing boats in this river; especially the latter, having brought some of them under his stern, by a discharge of his cannon at them. He has likewise seized a vessel belonging to the Eastern Shore, and having honoured the passengers so far with his notice as to receive them on board his own vessel, took the liberty of sending one of their horses as a present to Lord Dunmore. This act of generosity, we doubt not, will gain him considerable interest with his Lordship, it being an instance of his industry in distressing a people who have of late become obnoxious to his Excellency for their spirited behaviour. We hope that those who have lived under and enjoyed the blessings of the British Constitution will not continue tame spectators of such flagrant violations of its most salutary laws in defence of our private property. The crimes daily committed by this plunderer we would not willingly brand with the odious name of piracy, but we are confident they come under those offences to which the English laws have denied the benefit of clergy.

We are just informed that he sent, some days ago, a message to the inhabitants of Hampton, with a proposal, that if they would return the stores, &c., taken on board the tender, he would molest them no longer, but retire peaceably to his old station. This proposition being taken under consideration by the principal inhabitants, an answer was returned, promising a compliance with the Captain's request, provided he would deliver up a negro slave belonging to Mr. Henry King, who has long acted as a pilot to the Otter; but this honest Captain, as well on account of the fellow's knowledge of the rivers as his singular attachment and loyalty to his Sovereign, refused; and, after damning the impudence of these people in demanding his Ethiopian director, swore he would make them no other reply than what his cannon could give them. Accordingly, he has taken his station between the two bars, to be more convenient for the business.

EXPLANATION OF THE DEVICES ON THE CONTINENTAL BILLS OF CREDIT.

Philadelphia, October 20, 1775.

An emblematical device, when rightly formed, is said to consist of two parts—a body and a mind—neither of which is complete or intelligible without the aid of the other. The figure is called the body; the motto the mind. These that I am about to consider appear formed on that rule, and seem to relate to the present struggle between the Colonies and the tyrant State, for liberty, property, and safety, on the one hand, for absolute power and plunder on the other.

On one denomination of the bills there is the figure of a harp, with this motto: Majora minoribus consonant; literally, "The greater and smaller ones found together." As the harp is an instrument composed of great and small strings, included in a strong frame, and all so tuned as to agree in concord with each other, I conceive that the frame may be intended to represent our new Government by a Continental Congress; and the strings, of different lengths and substance, either the several Colonies of different weight and force, or the various ranks of people in all of them, who are now united by that Government in the most perfect harmony.

On another bill is impressed a wild boar of the forest rushing on the spear of the hunter, with this motto: Aut mors, aut vita decora; which may be translated, "Death or Liberty." The wild boar is an animal of great strength and courage, armed with long and sharp tusks, which he well knows how to use in his defence. He is inoffensive while suffered to enjoy his freedom; but, when roused and wounded by the hunter, often turns and makes him pay dearly for his injustice and temerity.

On another is drawn an eagle, on the wing, pouncing upon a crane, who turns upon his back and receives the eagle on the point of his long bill, which pierces the eagle's breast, with this motto: Exitus in dubio est; "The event is uncertain." The eagle, I suppose, represents Great Britain; the crane America. This device offers an admonition to each of the contending parties. To the crane, not to depend too much on the success of its endeavours to avoid the contest, by petition, negotiation, &c., but prepare for using the means of defence God and nature hath given it; and to the eagle, not to presume on its superiour strength, since a weaker bird may wound it mortally.

Sunt dubii eventus, incertaque prœlia martis
Vincitur, haud raro, qui prope victor erat.

On another bill we have a thorny bush, which a hand seems attempting to eradicate; the hand appears to bleed, as pricked by the spines. The motto is, Sustine vel abstine; which may be rendered, "Bear with me, or let me alone;" or thus, "Either support or leave me." The bush I suppose to mean America, and the bleeding hand Britain. Would to God that bleeding were stopped; the wounds of that hand healed, and its future operations directed by wisdom and equity; so shall the hawthorn flourish, and form an hedge around it, annoying with her thorns only its invading enemies.

Another has the figure of a beaver gnawing a large tree, with this motto: Perseverando; "By perseverance." I apprehend the great tree may be intended to represent the enormous power Britain has assumed over us, and endeavours to enforce by arms, of taxing us at pleasure, "and binding us in all cases whatsoever;" or the exorbitant profits she makes by monopolizing our commerce. Then the beaver, which is known to be able, by assiduous and steady working, to fell large trees, may signify America; which by perseverance in her present measures, will probably reduce that power within proper bounds, and, by establishing the most necessary manufactures among ourselves, abolish the British monopoly.

On another bill we have the plant acanthus, sprouting on all sides under a weight placed upon it, with the motto, Depressa resurgit; "Though oppressed, it rises." The ancients tell us that the sight of such an accidental circumstance gave the first hint to an architect in forming the beautiful capital of the Corinthian column. This, perhaps, was intended to encourage us, by representing that our present oppressions will not destroy us, but that they may, by increasing our industry, and forcing it into new courses, increase the prosperity of our Country, and establish that prosperity on the base of liberty, and the well-proportioned pillar of property, elevated for a pleasing spectacle to all connoisseurs, who can taste and delight in the architecture of human happiness.

The figure of a hand and flail over sheaves of wheat, with the motto, Tribulatio dicitur; "Thrashing improves it," which we find printed on another of the bills, may perhaps be intended to admonish us, that though at present we are under the flail, its blows, how hard soever, will be rather advantageous than hurtful to us; for they will bring forth every grain of genius and merit, in arts, manufactures, war, and council, that are now concealed in the husk, and then the breath of a breeze will be sufficient to separate from us all the chaff of toryism. Tribulation, too, in our English sense of the word, improves the mind; it makes us humble, and tends to make us wiser; and thrashing, in one of its senses, that of beating, often improves those that are thrashed. Many an unwarlike nation have been beaten into heroes by troublesome warlike neighbours; and the continuance of a war, though it lessen the numbers of a people, often increases its strength by the increased discipline and consequent courage of the number remaining. Thus England, after her civil war, in which her people thrashed one another, became more formidable to her neighbours. The publick distress, too, that arises from war, by increasing frugality and industry, often gives habits that remain after the distress is over, and thereby naturally enriches those on whom it has enforced those enriching virtues.

Another of the bills has, for its device, a storm descending from a black heavy cloud, with the motto, Serenabit; "It will clear up." This seems designed to encourage the dejected, who may be too sensible of present inconveniences, and fear their continuance. It reminds them, agreeable to the adage, that after a storm comes a calm; or, as Horace more elegantly has it,

Informes hiemes reducit Jupiter: idem summovet.
Non, si male nunc, et olim
Sic erit.—Neque semper arcum tendit Apollo.

On another bill there is stamped the representation of a tempestuous sea; a face, with swollen cheeks, wrapped up in a black cloud, appearing to blow violently on the waters; the waves high, and all rolling one way. The motto, Vi concitata; which may be rendered, "Raised by force." From the remotest antiquity, in figurative language, great waters have signified the people, and waves an insurrection. The people, of themselves, are supposed as naturally inclined to be still as the waters to remain level and quiet. Their rising here appears not to be from any internal cause, but from an external power, expressed by the head of Aeolus, god of the winds, or Boreas, the north wind, as usually the most violent, acting furiously upon them. The black cloud, perhaps, designs the British Parliament, and the waves the Colonies. Their rolling all in one direction shows that the very force used against them has produced their unanimity. On the reverse of this bill we have a smooth sea; the sails of ships, on that sea, hanging loose, show a perfect calm; the sun shining fully denotes a clear sky. The motto is, Cessante vento, conquiescemus; "The wind ceasing, we shall be quiet." Supposing my explanation of the preceding device to be right, this would probably import, that when those violent acts of power, which have roused the Colonies, are repealed, they will return to their former tranquillity. Britain seems thus charged with being the sole cause of the present civil war, at the same time that the only mode of putting an end to it is thus plainly pointed out to her.

The last is a wreath of laurel on a marble monument or altar. The motto, Si recte facies; "If you act rightly." This seems intended as an encouragement to a brave and steady conduct in defence of our liberties, as it promises to crown with honour, by the laurel wreath, those who persevere to the end in well-doing; and with a long duration of that honour, expressed by the monument of marble.

A learned friend of mine thinks this device more particularly addressed to the Congress. He says the ancients composed for their heroes a wreath of laurel, oak and olive twigs interwoven, agreeable to the distich,

E lauro, quercu, atque olea duce digna corona,
Prudentem, fortem, pacificumque decet.

Of laurel, as that tree was dedicated to Apollo, and understood to signify knowledge and prudence; of oak, as pertaining to Jupiter, and expressing fortitude; of olive, as the tree of Pallas, and as a symbol of peace. The whole to show that those who are intrusted to conduct the great affairs of mankind should act prudently and firmly, retaining, above all, a pacifick disposition. This wreath was first placed on an altar, to admonish the hero who was to be crowned with it, that true glory is founded on and proceeds from piety. My friend therefore thinks the present device might intend a wreath of that composite kind, though, from the smallness of the work, the engraver could not mark distinctly the differing leaves. And he is rather confirmed in his opinion that this is designed as an admonition to the Congress, when he considers the passage in Horace from whence the motto is taken,

Rex eris, alunt,
Si recte facies.

To which also Ausonius alludes:

Qui recte faciet, non qui dominatur, erit Rex.

Not the King's Parliament, who act wrong, but the people's Congress, if it acts right, shall govern America.

JOHN HANCOCK TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, September 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: As Gen. Schuyler is engaged in an expedition of immense consequence to the United Colonies, and it being of the last importance that he be properly supported, in order to ensure success, or at least to prevent a repulse, I am directed by the Congress to write to you, and direct you immediately to send forward the whole of the Troops ordered to be raised in your Colony, properly equipped, in order to join General Schuyler as soon as possible.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety, New-York.

JOHN HANCOCK TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

Philadelphia, September 20, 1775.

SIR: The necessity of supporting General Schuyler in the important enterprise he is now engaged in has induced the Congress to direct you immediately, on receipt of this, to march with the Troops under your command to Albany, there to await the orders of General Schuyler, in case he should want your assistance; and you will please, without loss of time, to proceed.

By order of the Congress:

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To David Wooster, Esq., Brigadier-General in the Army of the United Colonies, and Commander of the Connecticut Forces at Harlem.

JOHN HANCOCK TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, September 20, 1775.

SIR: Your letter of the 8th instant was received yesterday, and laid before the Congress. I am directed to express their approbation of your conduct, as stated in your letter. Your taking possession of the Isle-aux-Noix, and the proposed measures for preventing the enemy's vessels from entering the lake, appear to them highly expedient and necessary. The Congress have such a sense of the importance of that post, as to wish it may not be abandoned without the most mature consideration, or the most pressing necessity. They view the expedition intrusted to your care as of the greatest consequence to the general cause; and as they clearly foresee that its influence, whether successful or otherwise, will be great and extensive, they are desirous that nothing necessary to give it a fortunate issue may be omitted. They have ordered all the forces raised in New-York immediately to join you; and those under General Wooster to march immediately to Albany; from whence, if you should think such re-enforcement necessary, you will be pleased to order them. Should you stand in need of further re-enforcement, the Congress desire you will apply to General Washington.

The Congress repose the highest confidence in the abilities, the zeal, and the alacrity of the officers and forces employed on this expedition. They are determined to spare neither men nor money; and should the Canadians remain neuter, flatter themselves that the enterprise will be crowned with success, notwithstanding the great and various difficulties to which it has been and still is exposed.

It is with great concern that the Congress hear of your indisposition. They desire me to assure you of their warmest wishes for your recovery, and to request that, in discharging the duties of your station, you will not omit the attention due to the re-establishment of your health.

I am, &c. By order of the Congress:

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Schuyler.

NEW-YORK DELEGATES TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, September 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We have the honour of your favour of the 9th instant, which we instantly communicated to the Congress. Deputy Adjutant Fleming's commission, with the rank of Colonel, and a number of blanks, which you request, have already been forwarded; and you may be assured that we shall be attentive to your want of powder, and embrace every opportunity to supply it.

The article of tea gives us real anxiety. We sincerely wish to relieve our suffering fellow-citizens, by enabling them to dispose of what, so much to their misfortune, lies useless and perishing upon their hands. You cannot be insensible of the delicacy of this subject, and how many difficulties we have to struggle with to accomplish your humane request; whether we shall succeed or not, it is out of our power to determine. We are not without hopes; but whatever may be the event, you may rely upon our utmost exertions to obtain the permission which you solicit.

We have the honour to be, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants,

JAMES DUANE, ROB'T R. LIVINGSTON, JUN.,
JOHN ALSOP, FRANCIS LEWIS.
JOHN JAY,

To the Committee of Safety of New-York.

JOSIAH BARTLETT AND JOHN LANGDON TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, September 20, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Yesterday it was moved in Congress to discharge Colonel Fenton from his confinement. It seems that living at Hartford had afforded him an opportunity to see several of the members, as they passed to and from the Army; and, by his politeness and address, and by telling how much he had suffered, had prejudiced some of them that he had been hardly dealt with by us. The copy of a letter from General Putnam was also produced, wherein he says, that "the populace had seized him, and carried him before the Congress of New-Hampshire; and that, after a full hearing, they could not find that he had done any thing against the liberties of America, in word or deed; but, for fear that he might, had ordered him to be confined." But, as we knew the whole of that affair, we convinced the Congress that our Convention had done right. The Congress passed a resolution to this effect: "That whereas the Convention of the Colony of New-Hampshire had prudently and justly ordered Colonel John Fenton to be confined; and that he being now desirous to remove to Great Britain or Ireland, therefore resolved that General Washington be directed to allow Colonel Fenton to repair forthwith to New-York, and from thence to Great Britain or Ireland, on his giving his parole not to take up arms against America;" which order your Delegates consented to, thinking it better than keeping him confined at the publick expense.

As to publick news, you will see it in the publick prints, and we have no other that we can at present communicate. We should be glad to receive from you all possible intelligence of our affairs, and shall think it our duty to write you often, even though it were only to tell you we have nothing new to inform you of.

We are your most obedient humble servants,

JOSIAH BARTLETT,
JOHN LANGDON.

Matthew Thornton, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-Hampshire. To be communicated.

OFFICERS CHOSEN IN PAWLING'S PRECINCT, DUTCHESS COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

In Captain Coon's Company: John Van Duser, Captain; Valentine Wheeler, First Lieutenant; Luke Wolcott, Second Lieutenant; Rulef Knickerbacker, Ensign.

In Captain Ephraim Pray's Company: Isaac Talman, Captain; Ichabod Ward, First Lieutenant; Andrew Morehouse, Jr., Second Lieutenant; Ezra Rutty, Ensign.

In Captain Thomas Sheldon's Company: James Martin, Captain; Benjamin Elliott, First Lieutenant; Stephen Akin, Second Lieutenant; Nathan Burdick, Ensign.

Dutchess County, Pawling's Precinct, September 20, 1775.
 SIR: These are to desire you to acquaint the Congress that the above gentlemen were chosen by the respective Companies, as their Officers, in Pawling's Precinct; and now they stand ready, as soon as commissioned, to act under the influence and direction of the Continental and Provincial Congresses.

Per order of the Committee:

HENRY CARY, Chairman.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Ticonderoga, September 20, 1775.

SIR: Your Honour's several letters of the 26th and 28th ult., and 11th instant, I have received. A very severe fit of illness, which attacked me before I left this, had brought me so extremely low, that it was thought necessary I should return here, in order, if possible, to recover my health. I find myself, though very weak, yet much better, and hope soon to be able to rejoin my Army, which is now besieging St. John's; from which place all the savages are retired, at the request, I suppose, of the Six Nations, who have sent Deputies to Canada for that purpose. I hope soon to give your Honour a favourable account of our operations. Our sick, especially of the Troops of your Colony, multiply with an alarming rapidity. I discharge such as are able to get home, and the remainder I send to Fort George, where I have established a hospital. I shall be happy, Sir, if I can find a place for Lieutenant Halsey. His disappointment did not arise from any order or arrangement of mine.

I am surprised at the impropriety of Mr. Phelps's conduct, in the application he has made to your Pay Table. I shall order all the accounts to be discharged as soon as the Paymaster-General returns here from the Army, whom I expect in a very few days, and as soon as I am furnished with the accounts to annex the warrants. Major Hobby and Captain Mead, who were wounded, are out of danger. The loss of two such very good officers distressed me much.

I am, with sentiments of esteem, your Honour's most obedient and humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull.

P. S. Be pleased to forward the enclosed letter to General Washington by the first safe hand.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, September 20, 1775.

DEAR SIR: The day after I did myself the honour to write your Excellency from Albany, I set out for this place, and arrived here on the 30th ult., much indisposed with a bilious fever; next day I followed General Montgomery, whom I overtook on the 4th instant, at the Isle-la-Motte, he having been detained by adverse winds and rainy weather. On that day we moved on to Isle-aux-Noix, (twelve miles south of St. John's.) On the 5th I drew a declaration, (but was so ill that it is not such as I could wish, copy of which, No. 1., you have enclosed,) which I sent into Canada by Major Brown and Mr. Allen; and as we judged going to St. John's, weak as we were, (our number not exceeding one thousand, and the little artillery we had not come up,) might have a good effect on the Canadians, and encourage them to join us, we resolved upon the measure, and landed our baggage and provisions, except for four days, and early on the 6th embarked, and without any obstructions proceeded towards St. John's. When we arrived in sight of it, and at the distance of about two miles, the enemy began to cannonade, but did us no damage. We approached half a mile nearer, and then landed, without opposition, in a close deep swamp, which extends to very near the fort. Here we formed, and marched in the best order we could towards the fort, to reconnoitre. Major Hobby, of Waterbury's Regiment, with a detachment, flanked the left wing, and was something advanced before the main body, when he was attacked in crossing a deep muddy brook by a party of Indians, from whom he received a heavy fire; but our men pushing on, they soon gave way and left us the ground. In this rencounter we had a Sergeant, a Corporal, and three Privates killed, and one missing; eight Privates wounded, three of which died the ensuing night. Major Hobby shot through the thigh, Capt. Mead through the shoulder, and Lieutenant Brown in the hand. These gentlemen are all out of danger. Night coming on, and the swamp almost impassable, we drew our men together, and cast up a small intrenchment, to defend ourselves in case of an attack. In the night, a gentleman (Mr. . . . ., whose name I can only mention to your Excellency, not having even ventured it to the Congress, and therefore beg you to erase the scored part of the letter after perusal) came to me and gave me the following account: "That there were no regular Troops in Canada, but the Twenty-Sixth Regiment. That all these, except fifty at Montreal, were at St. John's and Chambly. That there were then at St. John's about one hundred Indians, and that there was a considerable body with Colonel Johnson. That the fortifications were complete and strong, and plentifully furnished with cannon. That the vessel was launched, and had one mast in, and the other ready to raise. That she would be ready to sail in three or four days, and is to carry sixteen guns. That he does not believe that our Army will be joined by one Canadian. That they wish to be neuter on the occasion; but if we should penetrate into Canada, it would not displease them, provided their persons and properties were safe, and we paid them in gold and silver for what we had. That, in the situation we were in, he judged it would be imprudent to attack St. John's, and advised us to send some parties amongst the inhabitants, and the remainder of the Army to retire to the Isle-aux-Noix, from whence we might have an intercourse with La Prairie. He told me that in the afternoon's engagement five Indians were killed and four badly wounded, besides several others, the condition of whose wounds he did not know, and Captain Tyce, of Johnstown, who was wounded in the belly."

On the 7th, in the morning, having been undisturbed through the night, excepting by a few shells, which did no other damage than slightly wounding Lieutenant Mills, I called a council of war of all the Field-Officers present, to whom I communicated the information I had received, and enclose a copy of their opinion, No. 2; which being perfectly consonant to my own, I immediately ordered the Troops to embark, and we retired.

On my return to Isle-aux-Noix, I immediately began to fortify the place, and to throw a boom across the channel, until my artillery should come up. On the 9th, I received a letter from Canada, without signature, but which I knew to be written by Mr. James Livingston, (copy enclosed No. 3.) As I had through other channels a corroboration of the intelligence contained in the former part of his letter, I resolved, as I had not yet my artillery, to detach five hundred men into Canada, and gave orders on the 9th for their embarkation on the 10th, with an additional number of about three hundred, to cover their landing and bring back the boats. Copy of my instructions to the commanding officer enclosed, No. 4.

For the event of this intended expedition, see the paper No. 5, which was drawn and delivered me by one of the party, and from what I can learn is just this. This body returned on Monday, the 11th. On Tuesday, the 12th, I found I had upwards of six hundred sick; Waterbury's Regiment being reduced to less than five hundred. General Montgomery (for I was too ill to leave my bed) perceived, however, with pleasure, that the men were unable to bear the reproach of their late unbecoming behaviour, and taking advantage of this happy return to a sense of their duty, on the 13th, I issued the orders contained in the paper No. 6. The 14th proved rainy, and retarded the embarkation of the cannon. On this day Colonel Allen arrived, and made the report No. 7, and I found myself so much better that I had hopes of moving with the Army; but by ten at night my disorder reattacked me with double violence, and every fair prospect of a speedy recovery vanished. Great part of the 15th rainy; the embarkation much retarded by it. On the same day I received the letter of which No. 8 is a copy. On the 16th I was put into a covered boat, and left Isle-aux-Noix; and as it rained part of the day, I do not suppose that General Montgomery could move until the 17th, which proved fair.

The mode of the intended attack on St. John's, &c., as judged best both by General Montgomery and myself, was as follows: to land as near the fort as we did the first time we went down; the two row-galleys, carrying a twelve-pounder each, and well manned. The sloop and schooner, and ten batteaus, with picked men, to lie in the river, ready to attack the enemy's schooner, which is complete and carries sixteen guns, in case she should attempt to destroy our boats or get to the southward of them, and thereby effectually cut off all communication between this place and the Army. After this naval arrangement, which will take three hundred and fifty men, five hundred men to be sent, as a corps of observation, to intercept any succours between St. John's and Chambly, and to keep as near the former as possible; two hundred men at the proposed landing, to cover the boats and secure a retreat for the men in the vessels and boats, should the enemy's vessel be too many for them; the remainder of the Army to invest the place, make the approaches, and erect the batteries.

You will perceive, by No. 5, that some of the enemy's boats fired on our people. Captain Douglass, who commands one of our armed boats, pointed and fired a twelve-pounder, loaded with balls and grape-shot, at them, and we have accounts that about thirty of the unfriendly Canadians were killed or drowned. In the first engagement, on the 7th, we killed them six Indians, two Caughnawagas, as many Mohawks, (Daniel, and William a bastard son of Sir William Johnson's), one Canassadaga, and one Huron; and we are informed by a Canassadaga and Huron whom I left at Isle-aux-Noix, that not an Indian remained at St. John's, and which I believe to be true. Four Deputies, who were sent by the Six Nations, and left Isle-aux-Noix on the 10th, to request the Canadian Indians to remain neuter, were not returned when I left Isle-aux-Noix. I have taken the liberty to desire General Montgomery to make a present, in the name of the Congress, to the Canadian Indians, if he should think it necessary.

Since the affair of the 10th, the Army at Isle-aux-Noix, which then consisted of thirteen hundred and ninety-four effectives, all ranks included, has been re-enforced by Captain Livingston's Company of New-Yorkers, nearly complete; on the 16th by Colonel Warner, whom I met an hour after my departure, with one hundred and seventy Green Mountain Boys, being the first that have appeared of that boasted corps. He left this with about fifty more, but they mutinied, and the remainder are at Crown Point. Captain Allen's Company, of the same corps, arrived here last night, every man of which was raised in Connecticut. About one hundred men of Colonel Bedell's, from New-Hampshire, (this corps was to have been up a fortnight before, the remainder, one hundred and fifty of that body, were yet to come,) joined the 16th at night; and I suppose the Artillery Company, under Captain Lamb, will join them to-day. These last were indispensably necessary, as we had none that knew any thing of the matter: so that the whole re-enforcement consists of about four hundred. Yesterday I sent off sixty of Easton's, and one hundred and forty more are just embarking. This is the whole of that corps. About one hundred and twenty-five of the First New-York Battalion will embark early to-morrow, together with the Company of Green Mountain Boys, consisting of about seventy. Two hundred and sixty of the Third New-York Battalion remain here, which I will forward on as soon as I can procure craft, which is building slowly, as most of the carpenters are gone home sick.

Your Excellency's letter of the 8th instant, I received yesterday. I am happy to learn that the Troops under the command of Colonel Arnold were to march so soon. I hope our people will commit no depredations in Canada. All possible care will be taken of it; but yet I have many fears on that score, as they stole thirty-two sheep at Isle-aux-Noix, contrary to the most pointed orders.

Be assured, Sir, that I shall not fail of giving you the most early intelligence of every occurrence worthy your attention.

I find myself much better, as the fever has left me, and hope soon to return where I ought and wish to be, unless a barbarous relapse should dash this cup of hope from my lips. The number of sick is incredible, and I have very little assistance to afford them. I wish I could make you a return of the Army under my command, but I cannot get one. A great deal of foul play is carrying on.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III.

I am indebted to General Lee and Colonel Reed for a letter, but I am too feeble to write. Be pleased to assure them of my respect, and be so good as to make my compliments acceptable to all the gentlemen of your suit.

I am, my dear Sir, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

His Excellency General Washington.

COLONEL ETHAN ALLEN TO GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

St. Tuors, September 20, 1775.

EXCELLENT SIR: I am now in the Parish of St. Tuors, four leagues from Sorel, to the south; have two hundred and fifty Canadians under arms; as I march, they gather fast. There are the objects of taking the vessels in Sorel, and General Carleton; these objects I pass by, to assist the Army besieging St. John's. If this place be taken, the country is ours; if we miscarry in this, all other achievements will profit but little. I am fearful our Army may be too sickly, and that the siege may be hard; therefore, choose to assist in conquering St. John's, which of consequence conquers the whole. You may rely on it that I shall join you in about three days, with five hundred or more Canadian volunteers. I could raise one or two thousand in a week's time, but will first visit the Army with a less number, and if necessary will go again recruiting. Those that used to be enemies to our cause come cap in hand to me; and I swear by the Lord I can raise three times the number of our Army in Canada, provided you continue the siege; all depends on that. It is the advice of the officers with me, that I speedily repair to the Army. God grant you wisdom, fortitude, and every accomplishment of a victorious General; the eyes of all America, nay, of Europe, are or will be on the economy of this Army, and the consequences attending it.

I am your most obedient humble servant,

ETHAN ALLEN.

P. S. I have purchased six hogsheads of rum, and sent a Sergeant with a small party to deliver it at Head-Quarters; Mr. Livingston and others under him will provide what fresh beef you need; as to bread and flour, I am forwarding what I can. You may rely on my utmost attention to this object, as well as raising auxiliaries. I know the ground is swampy, and bad for raising batteries, but pray let no object of obstruction be insurmountable. The glory of a victory which will be attended with such important consequences, will crown all our fatigues, risks, and labours; to fail of victory will be an eternal disgrace, but to obtain it will elevate us on the wings of fame.

Yours, &c.,

ETHAN ALLEN.

HENRY LAURENS, PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY,
TO WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON.

Charlestown, September 21, 1775.

SIR: We refer to our last, dated the 15th, by your messenger from Ninety-Six, which we hope has reached you; and that you are now on your way to meet those Indians, who, led by Captain Pearis, came from the Cherokees at your command, and who have, in the utmost anxiety and impatience, been many days waiting for you.

We have several copies of intercepted letters from the Superintendent at St. Augustine, to his agents in the Nation; they look so much like design to amuse us, that we hold it unnecessary to trouble you with them; but, since you have entered upon that branch, a caution against every stratagem may not be unnecessary. Pearis applies for a commission to the Good Warriour; if one is granted, it must be special: and you will be the best judge of the necessary terms; we have therefore referred him to you.

Colonel Wofford has likewise applied for commissions, in order to erect a whole Regiment in the Colony's service, from Fletchall's District. For that purpose we send you thirty-four, signed by us, and blanks left for you to fill up. You will keep a copy of the names of officers, &c., as formerly directed.

We are called together by an alarming account, which threatens the destruction of this Town by three frigates and a bomb ketch; we hope it may prove a groundless report, but it becomes us to act instantly, as if it was real.

We shall be glad to hear that you have established peace and quietness on our backs, and of your outset for Charleston, as soon as possible after, as you please.

By order of the Council:

HENRY LAURENS, President.

The Honourable William Henry Drayton, Esq., Head-Quarters, Ninety-Six.

WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON TO ROBERT CUNNINGHAM.

Ninety-Six, September 21, 1775.

SIR: My only intention in coming into the Country was to promote peace, and to ascertain whether there were any people possessed of a disposition to run counter to and to oppose the efforts of America, and to lift their arms against their Country, their old acquaintances, and their friends and relations, in order to assist British Troops, if any should arrive here. It was therefore with the highest pleasure that on the 16th inst., I, together with Colonel Fletcher and other gentlemen, signed an instrument of writing, fully clearing up all the particulars abovementioned. As I cherish the best opinion of the honour of Colonel Fletcher and the gentlemen who signed after him, so I persuade myself they will do all in their power to execute what they have contracted, as I shall do on my part. But it was with concern that I have heard that you do not hold yourself as included in the above instrument of writing, and that you will not be bound by it. I am sincerely inclined to believe that these are not your sentiments. I do most heartily wish that it will turn out the information is erroneous. I therefore, Sir, entreat that you will as soon as may be favour me with an answer to this letter, assuring me that you hold yourself as included in the above instrument of writing. Such a conduct in you would give me particular pleasure. But that I may be under no mistake, I am sorry to be under a necessity of saying, that unless I shall be favoured by you as above, common sense will dictate to me that you do not hold yourself as included in the above instrument of writing.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON.

To Robert Cunningham, Esq.

P. S. Mr. James Williams will convey to me any letter you may think proper to favour me with.

CAPT. ROBERT CUNNINGHAM TO WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON.

Page's Creek, October 6, 1775.

SIR: This day I received your letter, dated the 21st of last month, desiring to know whether I considered myself as bound by the peace you made with Colonel Fletcher and the other gentlemen from our camp. I think, Sir, at this time the question is rather unfair; however, as it always was my determination not to deceive either party, I must confess I do not hold with that peace. At the same time, as fond of peace as any man; but upon honourable terms. But, according to my principles, that peace is false and disgraceful, from beginning to ending. It appears to me, Sir, you had all the bargain-making to yourself; and if that was the case, I expected you would have acted with more honour than taking the advantage of men (as I believe) half scared out of their senses, at the sight of liberty caps and sound of cannon, as seeing and hearing has generally more influence on some men than reason.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

ROBERT CUNNINGHAM.

The Honourable William Henry Drayton, Esq., per Mr. James Williams.

BRITISH FLEET AT NORFOLK.

Williamsburgh, September 21, 1775.

MR. PINKNEY: We are highly pleased with the conduct of the people of South-Carolina, who have taken the Troops destined for Virginia from St. Augustine, and think ourselves the more obliged to those brave Carolians, as those Troops were to have been a re-enforcement to the sixty men who have been so very formidable to the Towns of Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Gosport. What might have been the consequence, had they arrived! But to be serious: How long will the inhabitants of those Towns suffer themselves to be so shamefully insulted by Lord Dunmore, and the Captains of the men-of-war? To what is it owing that their Committees have so unaccountably acquitted some late extraordinary delinquents? Is it to a want of zeal in the glorious cause, or of spirit to prosecute it? But we trust that the people of Norfolk will remove our doubts and jealousies, and wipe off every stain on their characters, by making a proper use of the golden opportunity Heaven has now afforded them. To do this, nothing is requisite but a little spirit, with some address and ingenuity in the application of it. A number of small vessels may be easily fitted out as fire-ships, and may be used with almost certainty of success, and without the least risk of lives on our part. Nor can the most loyal of His Majesty's subjects condemn this measure, since it is but a proper chastisement of the most despicable tools of his greatest enemies; nor can humanity forbid it, because it is dictated by some of its first feelings—an honest indignation and the love of our Country—and is enjoined by the first law of nature.

When King, Lords, and Commons, have combined to enslave us; when a corrupt and abandoned Parliament have voted their lives and fortunes at the service of a perfidious, cruel, and bloody Administration, in the execution of their wicked plan; when, in consequence of this, fleets and armies are sent against us, which have pillaged our coasts, bombarded our Towns, and but for the glorious intrepidity of our countrymen, under the particular favour and protection of the Almighty, would have spread desolation throughout our land; when we consider the damnable plot that has been laid against us, of stirring up the Canadians and Indians to attack us on our frontiers, and our slaves and tories within the body of our Country, whilst their fleets were to lay waste our coasts; and when we have seen this plan recommended in a pamphlet written by an accursed pensioner, Dr. Johnson, by the order of the Minister, and under the particular patronage of the King; when we consider these things, who can hesitate a moment to declare that we ought to do all in our power to be revenged on such an Administration, and to hurl down destruction on all the infernal tools? Let not our countrymen think that Captain Macartney deserves more indulgence than Captain Squire or Lord Dunmore. He, like Captain Montague, has taken upon himself to interfere with the civil power; has impudently supposed that his presence could awe a Committee, and protect a culprit; and has wickedly threatened to fire on a defenceless Town. But let Captain Macartney know, that whenever he lands in Virginia, he is amenable to the laws of Virginia, which may punish him as a trespasser, rioter, or murderer, or as a rebel, if he should, like Lord Dunmore and Squire, attempt to raise an insurrection; and we would have all those tools of Government to know, that whenever they return to England, we shall try the full force of the English laws against all such offences as they have or shall commit here. The American Governours shall severely answer for their conduct in the King's Bench, and Judges shall remember the fate of Epsom and Dudley.

Williamsburgh, September 21, 1775.

MR. PINKNEY: If you can, please to inform us why the Mercury man-of-war, which has so long been the terror of Norfolk, and a refuge to our slaves, is not yet burnt, notwithstanding she has been ten days and upwards upon her broadside. We, Sir, who live at a distance, are at a loss how to account for the strange remissness of the inhabitants of Norfolk, in neglecting to seize the opportunity which Heaven has kindly thrown in their way. Surely the interest of the Mayor, who, from his letters to Macartney, seems to prefer the friendship of that deceitful enemy to the welfare of the Town over which he presides, must have prevented the noble rage of the citizens from bursting forth in vengeance upon that accursed vessel, which they now have in their power to sacrifice, for the Captain's bloody threats to destroy their Town. We can by no means attribute the omission to a partiality in the inhabitants of Norfolk to the avowed enemies of our Country; nor can we suppose them so far destitute of courage as to be afraid to make the attempt. But let the cause be what it will, we do inform them, through the channel of your intelligence, that unless they immediately perform this act, so ardently wished for by their countrymen, and so easily to be effected, that Thousands are resolved to burn the devoted vessel, even if the consequence of it should be the total ruin of Norfolk.

VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

In Committee at Hanover-Town, the 21st of September, 1775:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Commissary, or Contractor, appointed in each District, should provide for the Battalion thereof, under the said appointment, the several articles necessary for their encampment and discipline, described by an Ordinance of Convention as follows, to wit: Tents of the same kind as directed for the Regulars, Kettles, Canteens, Drums, and Fifes; a stand of Colours, with the following motto on one side: "Virginia for Constitutional Liberty;" and on the other side the name of the District.

JOHN PENDLETON, JUN.,
Clerk to the Committee of Safety.

The Committee of Safety earnestly recommend it to the Committees of the several Counties, to lose no time in collecting and forwarding the publick Arms, according to the order of Convention; and, also, to elect their Militia Officers, where it is not done, and forward their certificates to this Committee, that commissions may be made out, and the Militia embodied as soon as possible.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN PENDLETON, JUN., Clerk.

ALBANY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Albany Committee Chamber, September 21, 1775.

SIR: We are favoured with yours of the 18th instant, enclosing a copy of one to the Convention, and a Resolve of the Committee of Safety. It gives us much pain to hear that any Albany skippers should behave so basely, (as the vessels are not arrived at this place.) It is the resolution of this Board, that a batteau, well manned, shall immediately go in quest of them; that the vessels and cargo, if found in the river, be sent to head-quarters; and that Roff and Brooks be forthwith brought before this Committee, and a state of facts transmitted to the Convention, for their further determination.

We are, Sir, your humble servants. By order:

Mr. McKesson. JOHN BARCLAY, Chairman.

NEW-YORK DELEGATES TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, September 21, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Be pleased by the first opportunity to favour us with a particular account of the number of men raised in our Colony, in pursuance of the orders of the Congress; when the several detachments marched, where they are at present, whether they are armed, and what steps were taken for that purpose. We also wish to know the progress made in erecting the work in the Highlands, whether the materials are purchased, or what proportion, and when probably they may be completed. Inform us,

*The printer is very sorry that the character of the Mayor of Norfolk has become questionable. From intelligence, of the most indubitable authority, he can assure Thousands that the gentleman whom he thinks has not acted in a manner becoming the friend of America, has ever shown himself a staunch advocate for our liberties. With respect to Captain Macartney, we confess there was a time when his conduct did not appear in the most favourable light. We admit that his letters to Mr. Loyall contain something of the usual despotism of the King's officers. But yet there remains an apology for him, even in this case: Lord Dunmore, as we are informed, had severely reprimanded him for his pusillanimity, told him his conduct was highly blameable, in not being more rigorous against us, and that he was punishable for the same, agreeable to the laws of a Court-Martial. This brave commander, however, replied, that measures repugnant to justice and humanity he was not requested by his master to support, and that his own disposition held them in the utmost abhorrence. To this it was chiefly owing that he is superseded in his commission, and sent to Boston, in order to take his trial.

As to the Mercury, notwithstanding she was aground for a considerable time, it was impossible, we hear, for the people of Norfolk to have destroyed her; because the other vessels of war were continually guarding her, and therefore it would of course have been a very imprudent step for them to have gone to extremities, as the destruction of Norfolk, in all probability, would have been the issue.

We do not blame Thousands for the spirit which is manifested throughout his piece; we applaud his zeal. But it should ever be remembered, that resolution, without a proper degree of prudence, might tend to the overthrow of the greatest empire upon earth.—Va. Gaz.

also, of the exact quantity of powder our Colony has, at their own expense, forwarded to either Army, that it may be replaced out of the Continental stock, as soon as it can be afforded.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants,

P. LIVINGSTON, R. R. LIVINGSTON, JR.,
JAMES DUANE, WILLIAM FLOYD,
JOHN ALSOP, FRANCIS LEWIS.
JOHN JAY,

Committee of Safety of New-York.

P. S. Acquaint us likewise of the prices you gave for the different sorts of cloth for tents, and the making.

To the Committee of Safety for the Province of NEW-YORK.

The Petition of the Officers belonging to the Battalions commanded by the Colonels LASHER and HYER, the Officers belonging to the Companies of Artillery, Light-Horse, and Hussars, and of sundry Officers belonging to the different Beats in the City of NEW-YORK, sheweth:

That, in the present critical situation of the publick affairs of the Colonies and Mother Country, they conceive it to be a matter of the utmost consequence to the liberties of America, that every member of the community capable of bearing arms should acquaint himself with military discipline, in order, if possible, to avert the distresses which are now hanging over them; and being convinced that the safety of a nation may be longer preserved by every citizen being a soldier, than by particular persons solicited for that purpose, they cannot but view with great concern the late regulation of the Provincial Congress, respecting the times of meeting for the several Beats in this City, which they humbly conceive are too far distant from each other to answer the design the Congress had in view. They therefore would beg leave to propose, and to solicit your attention thereto, that the times of meeting for the several Beats in this City and County should be at least once a week, for three months ensuing; that a field day for each Battalion composed of the different Beats should be at least once a month, which they are humbly of opinion would effectually answer the intention of their being embodied; otherwise, they fear it will in a great measure be defeated; all of which your Petitioners, with deference, submit to your judgment.

COMMITTEE OF CHARLOTTE COUNTY (NEW-YORK) TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Charlotte County, Dorset, September 21, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Having received the resolves relating to the rules and orders for regulating the Militia in this Colony, we thought proper to carry them into execution with all convenient speed, and ordered a meeting of the County Committee immediately.

There being a contention of part of this County in regard to title of land, (the New-Hampshire Grants,) and it was thought proper by the Committees on the Grants to divide the County in two parts, as they do not choose to join the other part of the County; which was agreed to by the other Committee. And each part of the County to form one Regiment, and recommend their Field-Officers to you, desiring you will remit their commissions with all convenient speed, so that the Regiment may be formed as soon as possible, in case any incursions may be made from Canada, as we are much exposed to that country.

The following gentlemen we recommend for commissions, they being friends to the present cause, and have signed the General Association: Dr. John Williams, Colonel; Platt Smith, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel; Messrs. Nathan Hawley and Hamilton McColister, Majors; Mr. John Jones, Adjutant; Mr. Seth Sherwood, Quartermaster. Likewise, the names of the inferior Officers in each District:

DISTRICT OF WHITE CREEK: Ebenezer Clark, Esq., Captain; Charles Hutchinson, First Lieutenant; Edward Savage, Second Lieutenant; and Daniel McClary, Ensign.

ARGYLE: Alexander Campbell, Captain; Samuel Pain, First Lieutenant; Peter Gilchrist, Second Lieutenant; and John McDougall, Ensign.

KINGSBURY DISTRICT: Asa Richardson, Captain; Adiel Sherwood, First Lieutenant; Nehemiah Sealey, Second Lieutenant; and Samuel Harris, Ensign.

SCHEENSBURGH DISTRICT: Jeremiah Burroughs, Captain; Levi Stockwell, First Lieutenant; Elisha Tousea, Second Lieutenant; and Silas Granger, Ensign.

BLACK CREEK DISTRICT: Alexander Webster, Captain; John Hamilton, First Lieutenant; George McKnight, Second Lieutenant; and Samuel Crossett, Ensign.

Signed by order of the Committee:

SETH SHERWOOD, Chairman.

To the Honourable Members of the Provincial Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Cambridge, September 21, 1775.

SIR: It gives me real concern to observe, by yours of the 15th instant, that you should think it necessary to distinguish between my personal and publick character, and confine your esteem to the former. Upon a reperusal of mine of the 8th instant, I cannot think it bears the construction you have put upon it; and unless that construction was the most obvious, I should have hoped that the respect I really have for you, and which I flattered myself I had manifested you, would have been the most favourable. In the disposition of the Continental Troops, I have long been sensible that it would be impossible to please, not individuals merely, but particular Provinces, whose partial necessities would occasionally call for assistance. I therefore thought myself happy that the Congress had settled the point, and apprehended I should stand excused to all for acting in the line which not only appeared to me to be that of policy and propriety, but of express and positive duty. If to the other fatigues and cares of my station, that is to be added of giving reasons for all orders, and explaining the grounds and principles on which they are formed, my personal trouble would perhaps be of the least concern. The publick would be most affected. You may be assured, Sir, nothing was intended that might be construed into disrespect, and, at so interesting a period, nothing less ought to disturb the harmony so necessary for the happy success of our publick operations.

The omission of acknowledging in precise terms the receipt of your favour of the 5th instant was purely accidental. The subject was not so new to me as to require long consideration. I had had occasion fully to deliberate upon it, in consequence of applications for Troops from Cape-Ann, Machias, New-Hampshire, and Long-Island, where the same necessity was as strongly pleaded; and in the two last instances the most peremptory orders were necessary, to prevent the Troops from being detained. I foresaw the same difficulty here. I am by no means insensible to the situation of the people on the coast. I wish I could extend protection to all, but the numerous detachments necessary to remedy the evil would amount to a dissolution of the Army, or make the most important operations of the campaign depend upon the piratical expeditions of two or three men-of-war and transports.

The spirit and zeal of the Colony of Connecticut are unquestionable; and whatever may be the hostile intentions of the men of war, I hope their utmost efforts can do little more than alarm the coast.

I am, with great esteem and regard for both your personal and publick character, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read September 29, 1775.]

Camp at Cambridge, September 21, 1775.

SIR: I have been in daily expectation of being favoured with the commands of the honourable Congress, on the subjects of my two last letters. The season now advances so fast that I cannot any longer defer laying before them such further measures as require their immediate attention, and in which I wait their direction.

The mode in which the present Army has been collected has occasioned some difficulty in procuring the subscription of both officers and soldiers to the Continental Articles of War. Their principal objection has been that it might subject them to a longer service than that for which they engaged under their several Provincial establishments. It is in vain to attempt to reason away the prejudices of a whole army, often instilled, and, in this instance at least, encouraged by their officers, from private and narrow views. I have therefore forbore pressing them, as I did not experience any such inconvenience from their adherence to their former rules as would warrant the risk of entering into a contest upon it, more especially as the restraints necessary for the establishment of essential discipline and subordination indisposed their minds to every change, and made it both duty and policy to introduce as little novelty as possible. With the present Army, I fear such a subscription is impracticable. But the difficulty will cease with this Army. The Connecticut and Rhode-Island Troops stand engaged to the first of December only, and none longer than to the first of January. A dissolution of the present Army therefore will take place, unless some early provision is made against such an event. Most of the General Officers are of opinion the greater part of them may be re-enlisted for the winter, or another campaign, with the indulgence of a furlough to visit their friends, which may be regulated so as not to endanger the service. How far it may be proper to form the new Army entirely out of the old, for another campaign, rather than from the contingents of the several Provinces, is a question which involves in it too many considerations of policy and prudence for me to undertake to decide. It appears to be impossible to draw it from any other source than the old Army, for this winter; and as the pay is ample, I hope a sufficient number will engage in the service for that time at least; but there are various opinions of the temper of the men on the subject, and there may be great hazard in deferring the trial too long.

In the Continental establishment, no provision has been made for the pay of artificers, distinct from that of the common soldiers; whereas under the Provincial, such as found their own tools were allowed one shilling per diem advance, and particular artisans more. The pay of the Artillery also now differs from that of the Province—the men have less, the officers more; and for some ranks no provision is made, as the Congress will please to observe, by the list which I have the honour to enclose, No. 1. These particulars, though seemingly inconsiderable, are the source of much complaint and dissatisfaction, which I endeavour to compose in the best manner I am able.

By the returns of the Rifle Companies and that Battalion, they appear to exceed their establishment very considerably. I doubt my authority to pay these extra men, without the direction of the Congress; but it would be deemed a great hardship wholly to refuse them, as they have been encouraged to come. The necessities of the Troops having required pay, I directed that those of the Massachusetts should receive for one month, upon their being mustered and returning a proper roll; but a claim was immediately made for pay by lunar months, and several Regiments have declined taking up their warrants on this account. As this practice was entirely new to me, though said to be warranted by former usage, here the matter now waits the determination of the honourable Congress. I find in Connecticut and Rhode-Island this point was settled by calendar months; in Massachusetts, though mentioned in the Congress, it was left undetermined, which is also the case of New-Hampshire.

The enclosure, No. 2, is a petition from the subalterns, respecting their pay. Where there are only two of these in a Company, I have considered one as an Ensign, and ordered him pay as such, as in the Connecticut Forces. I must beg leave to recommend this petition to the favour of the Congress, as I am of opinion the allowance is inadequate to their rank and service, and is one great source of that familiarity between the officers and men, which is so incompatible with subordination and discipline. Many valuable officers of those ranks, finding themselves unable to support the character and appearance of officers, I am informed, will retire as soon as the term of service is expired, if there is no alteration.

For the better regulation of duty, I found it necessary to settle the rank of the officers, and to number the Regiments; and as I had not received the commands of the Congress on the subject, and the exigence of the service forbade any farther delay, the General Officers were considered as having no Regiments—an alteration which I understand is not pleasing to some of them, but appeared to me and others to be proper, when it was considered that by this means the whole Army is put upon one footing, and all particular attachments dissolved.

Among many other considerations which the approach of winter will demand, that of clothing appears to be one of the most important; so far as regards the preservation of the Army from cold, they may be deemed in a state of nakedness. Many of the men have been without blankets the whole campaign; and those which have been in use during the summer are so much worn as to be of little service. In order to make a suitable provision in these articles, and at the same time to guard the publick against imposition and expense, it seems necessary to determine the mode of continuing the Army; for should these Troops be clothed under their present engagement, and, at the expiration of the term of service, decline renewing it, a set of unprovided men may be sent to supply their places. I cannot suppose it to be unknown to the honourable Congress that in all armies it is an established practice to make an allowance to officers of provisions and forage proportionate to their rank. As such an allowance formed no part of the Continental establishment, I have hitherto forbore to issue the orders for that purpose; but as it is a received opinion of such members of the Congress as I have had an opportunity of consulting, as well as throughout the Army, that it must be deemed a matter of course, and implied in the establishment of the Army, I have directed the following proportion of rations, being the same as allowed in the American Armies last war: Major-General, fifteen; Brigadier-General, twelve; Colonel, six; Lieutenant-Colonel, five; Major, four; Captain, three; Subaltern, two; Staff, two. If these should not be approved by the honourable Congress, they will please to signify their pleasure as to the alterations they would have made in the whole or in part.

I am now to inform the honourable Congress that, encouraged by the repeated declarations of the Canadians and Indians, and urged by their requests, I have detached Col. Arnold, with one thousand men, to penetrate into Canada by way of Kennebeck River, and, if possible, to make himself master of Quebeck. By this manœuvre I proposed either to divert Carleton from St. John's, which would leave a free passage to General Schuyler, or, if this did not take effect, Quebeck, in its present defenceless state, must fall into his hands an easy prey. I made all possible inquiry as to the distance, the safety of the route, and the danger of the season being too far advanced, but found nothing in either to deter me from proceeding, more especially as it met with very general approbation from all whom I consulted upon it. But that nothing might be omitted to enable me to judge of its propriety and probable consequences, I communicated it, by express, to General Schuyler, who approved of it in such terms that I resolved to put it in immediate execution. They have now left this place seven days, and, if favoured with a good wind, I hope soon to hear of their being safe in Kennebeck River. For the satisfaction of the Congress, I here enclose a copy of the proposed route, No. 3. I also do myself the honour of enclosing a manifesto, which I caused to be printed here, and of which Col. Arnold has taken a suitable number with him; this is the enclosure, No. 4. I have also forwarded a copy of his instructions, No. 5; from all which I hope the Congress will have a clear view of the motives, plan, and intended execution of this enterprise, and that I shall be so happy as to meet with their approbation in it.

I was the more induced to make this detachment, as it is my clear opinion, from a careful observation of the movements of the enemy, corroborated by all the intelligence we receive by deserters and others, (of the former of whom we have some every day,) that the enemy have no intention to come out until they are re-enforced. They have been wholly employed, for some time past, in procuring materials for barracks, fuel, and making other preparations for winter. These circumstances, with the constant additions to their works, which are apparently defensive, have led to the above conclusion, and enabled me to spare this body of men, where I hope they will be usefully and successfully employed.

The state of inactivity in which this Army has lain for some time by no means corresponds with my wishes, by some decisive stroke, to relieve my Country from the heavy expense its subsistence must create. After frequently reconnoitring the situation of the enemy in the Town of Boston, collecting all possible intelligence, and digesting the whole, a surprise did not appear to me wholly impracticable, though hazardous. I communicated it to the General Officers some days before I called them to a council, that they might be prepared with their opinions; the result I have the honour of sending, in the enclosure, No. 6. I cannot say that I have wholly laid it aside; but new events may occasion new measures. Of this I hope the honourable Congress can need no assurance, that there is not a man in America who more earnestly wishes such a termination of the campaign as to make the Army no longer necessary.

The season advances so fast that I have given orders to prepare barracks and other accommodations for the winter. The great scarcity of tow cloth in this Country, I fear, will totally disappoint us in our expectations of procuring hunting shirts. Governour Cooke informs me few or none are to be had in Rhode-Island, and Governour Trumbull gives me little encouragement to expect many from Connecticut.

I have filled up the office of Quartermaster-General, which the Congress was pleased to leave to me, by the appointment of Major Mifflin, which I hope and believe will be universally acceptable.

It gives me great pain to be obliged to solicit the attention of the honourable Congress to the state of this Army, in terms which imply the slightest apprehension of being neglected. But my situation is inexpressibly distressing, to see the winter fast approaching upon a naked Army; the time of their service within a few weeks of expiring, and no provision yet made for such important events; added to these, the military chest is totally exhausted; the Paymaster has not a single dollar in hand. The Commissary-General assures me he has strained his credit, for the subsistence of the Army, to the utmost. The Quartermaster-General is precisely in the same situation; and the greater part of the Troops are in a state not far from mutiny, upon the deduction from their stated allowance. I know not to whom I am to impute this failure; but I am of opinion, if the evil is not immediately remedied, and more punctuality observed in future, the Army must absolutely break up. I hoped I had expressed myself so fully on this subject, both by letter and to those members of the Congress who honoured the camp with a visit, that no disappointment could possibly happen. I therefore hourly expected advice from the Paymaster that he had received a fresh supply, in addition to the one hundred and seventy-two thousand Dollars delivered him in August, and thought myself warranted to assure the publick creditors that in a few days they should be satisfied. But the delay has brought matters to such a crisis as admits of no farther uncertain expectation. I have therefore sent off this express, with orders to make all possible despatch. It is my most earnest request that he may be returned with all possible expedition, unless the honourable Congress have already forwarded what is so indispensably necessary.

I have the honour to be, with the most sincere respect and regard, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

[No. 1.]

In Provincial Congress, Watertown, May 12, 1775.

Resolved, That the following establishment be made for ten Companies of Matrosses: Captain, six Pounds ten Shillings per month; Captain-Lieutenant, five Pounds ten Shillings; First Lieutenant, four Pounds ten Shillings; two Second Lieutenants, each, three Pounds twelve Shillings; Sergeants, each, two Pounds ten Shillings; Corporals, each, two Pounds six Shillings; six Bombardiers, each, two Pounds four Shillings and six Pence; six Gunners, each, two Pounds four Shillings; thirty-two Matrosses, each, two Pounds three Shillings.

For Chief Engineer, four Sub-Engineers, Commissary of Ordnance, Clerks, four Conductors, and Laboratory Men, no pay established.

[No. 2.]

To his Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners, Delegates from the several Regiments and Brigades mentioned, viz: Colonel Brewer's, Colonel Fellows's, Colonel Cotton's, Colonel Larnard's, in General Thomas's Brigade; Colonel Walker's, from General Spencer's; two Regiments in General Sullivan's; five Regiments in General Green's; and six Regiments in General Heath's; one from Colonel Frye's. That soon after the unhappy commencement of hostilities between Great Britain and the Colonies, we entered into the service of said Colonies, in the rank of Second Lieutenants; this we did from a firm persuasion of the justice of our cause, and from a determination to risk our lives in its defence. We need not mention to your Excellency how disagreeable our circumstances must be, when our pay, as established by the Continental Congress, is so small that it renders us wholly incapable of appearing in a manner suitable to our station, with barely three Pounds per month; although many of our Colonies aforetime voted to officers of our rank the sum of three Pounds ten Shillings or four Pounds per month. We are under a necessity of conducting very much beneath the rank we sustain; besides, many of us have families, who, deprived of our assistance at home, can receive no advantage from our present pay. Your Excellency is also sensible that our task of duty is in all respects equal to that of the First Lieutenants; therefore, we cannot conceive the reason of the disproportion in our pay. These, may it please your Excellency, are our grievances. We would entreat your Excellency's advice and assistance. We doubt not but your Excellency will do every thing in your power to remove this difficulty. We love the service; we glory in the cause, and are willing to spend our blood and treasure in its defence. We pray your Excellency's direction in what manner we shall proceed; and your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Signed for and by order of said Committee:

JOHN SMITH, Clerk.

Route to QUEBECK, from KENNEBECK River.

From the mouth of Kennebeck River to Quebeck, on a straight line, is two hundred and ten miles. The river is navigable for sloops about thirty-eight miles, and for flat-bottomed boats about twenty-two miles; then you meet Jacónick Falls, and from Jacónick Falls to Norridgewock, as the river runs, thirty-one miles; from thence to the first carrying place, about thirty miles; carrying place four miles, then a pond to cross, and another carrying place, about two miles to another pond; then a carrying place about three or four miles to another pond; then a carrying place to the western branch of Kennebeck River, called the Dead River; then up that river, as it runs, thirty miles, some small falls and short carrying places around them intervening; then you come to the height of the land, and about six miles carrying place, into a branch which leads into Ammeguntick Pond, the head of Chaudiere River, which falls into the St. Lawrence River about four miles above Quebeck.

Camp at Cambridge, September 20, 1775.

To Colonel BENEDICT ARNOLD:

SIR: The bearer, Lieutenant Gray, will deliver you the manifestoes, which have been much longer delayed than we expected. You will, by him, send a particular account of your situation and prospects, and every other circumstance material. If this should not find you at Newbury, where we learn you have been much delayed, you will direct Mr. Oswald to inform the bearer where he left the publick horse which he rode from hence when he went express to General Schuyler, and take the proper steps to procure him.

Nothing new has occurred in the camp, nor have we any important intelligence from the Southward, or Europe, since you left us.

Most heartily wishing you all expedition and success, I remain your most obedient and very humble servant,

J. REED.

[No. 4.]

By his Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esquire, Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Colonies of NORTH-AMERICA.

To the Inhabitants of CANADA:

FRIENDS AND BRETHREN: The unnatural contest between the English Colonies and Great Britain has now risen to such a height, that arms alone must decide it. The Colonies, confiding in the justice of their cause and the purity of their intentions, have reluctantly appealed to that Being in whose hands are all human events. He has hitherto smiled upon their virtuous efforts. The hand of tyranny has been arrested in its ravages; and the British arms, which have shone with so much splendour in every part of the globe, are now tarnished with disgrace and disappointment. Generals of approved experience, who boasted of subduing this great Continent, find themselves circumscribed within the limits of a single City and its suburbs, suffering all the shame and distress of a siege, while the freeborn sons of America, animated by the genuine principles of liberty and love of their Country, with increasing union, firmness, and discipline, repel every attack, and despise every danger. Above all, we rejoice that our enemies have been deceived with regard to you; they have persuaded themselves, they have even dared to say, that the Canadians were not capable of distinguishing between the blessings of liberty and the wretchedness of slavery; that gratifying the vanity of a little circle of nobility would blind the eyes of the people of Canada; by such artifices they hoped to bend you to their views, but they have been deceived; instead of finding in you that poverty of soul and baseness of spirit, they see, with a chagrin equal to our joy, that you are enlightened, generous, and virtuous; that you will not renounce your own rights, or serve as instruments to deprive your fellow-subjects of theirs.

Come, then, my brethren, unite with us in an indissoluble union; let us run together to the same goal. We have taken up arms in defence of our liberty, our property, our wives, and our children; we are determined to preserve them or die. We look forward with pleasure to that day, not far remote, we hope, when the inhabitants of America shall have one sentiment, and the full enjoyment of the blessings of a free Government. Incited by these motives, and encouraged by the advice of many friends of liberty among you, the grand American Congress have sent an Army into your Province, under the command of General Schuyler, not to plunder, but to protect you; to animate and bring forth into action those sentiments of freedom you have disclosed, and which the tools of despotism would extinguish through the whole creation. To co-operate with this design, and to frustrate those cruel and perfidious schemes which would deluge our frontiers with the blood of women and children, I have detached Colonel Arnold into your Country, with a part of the Army under my command. I have enjoined upon him, and I am certain that he will consider himself, and act as in the Country of his patrons and best friends. Necessaries and accommodations of every kind which you may furnish he will thankfully receive, and render the full value. I invite you, therefore, as friends and brethren, to provide him with such supplies as your Country affords; and I pledge myself not only for your safety and security, but for ample compensation. Let no man desert his habitation. Let no one flee as before an enemy. The cause of America and of liberty is the cause of every virtuous American citizen, whatever may be his religion or his descent. The United Colonies know no distinction but such as slavery, corruption, and arbitrary domination, may create. Come, then, ye generous citizens, range yourselves under the standard of general liberty, against which all the force and artifice of tyranny will never be able to prevail. GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Camp at Cambridge, September 14, 1775.

To Colonel BENEDICT ARNOLD, Commander of the Detachment of the Continental Army destined against QUEBECK:

SIR: You are intrusted with a command of the utmost consequence to the interest and liberties of America; upon your conduct and courage, and that of the officers and soldiers detached on this expedition, not only the success of the present enterprise, and your own honour, but the safety and welfare of the whole Continent, may depend. I charge you, therefore, and the officers and soldiers under your command, as you value your own safety and honour, and the favour and esteem of your Country, that you consider yourselves as marching, not through an enemy's Country, but that of our friends and brethren—for such the inhabitants of Canada and the Indian Nations have approved themselves in this unhappy contest between Great Britain and America; that you check, by every motive of duty and fear of punishment, every attempt to plunder or insult any of the inhabitants of Canada. Should any American soldier be so base and infamous as to injure any Canadian or Indian, in his person or property, I do most earnestly enjoin you to bring him to such severe and exemplary punishment as the enormity of the crime may require; should it extend to death itself, it will not be disproportioned to its guilt at such a time and in such a cause. But I hope and trust that the brave men who have voluntarily engaged in this expedition will be governed by different views; that order, discipline, and regularity of behaviour, will be as conspicuous as their courage and valour. I also give it in charge to you to avoid all disrespect or contempt of the religion of the Country; and if common prudence, policy, and a true Christian spirit, will lead us to look with compassion upon their errors, without insulting them, while we are contending for our own liberty, we should be very cautious of violating the rules of conscience in others, ever considering that God alone is the judge of the heart of man, and to him only in this case they are answerable.

Upon the whole, Sir, I beg you to inculcate upon the officers and soldiers the necessity of preserving the strictest order during their march through Canada; to represent to them the shame, disgrace, and ruin, to themselves and Country, if they should, by their conduct, turn the heart of our brethren in Canada against us; and, on the other hand, the honours and rewards which await them, if, by their prudence and good behaviour, they conciliate the affections of the Canadians and Indians to the great interests of America, and convert those favourable dispositions they have shown into a lasting union and affection.

Thus wishing you, and the officers and soldiers under your command, honour, safety, and success, I remain, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

[No. 5.]

By His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esquire, Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Colonies of NORTH-AMERICA.

To Colonel BENEDICT ARNOLD:

1. You are immediately on their march from Cambridge to take the command of the detachment from the Continental Army against Quebeck, and use all possible expedition, as the winter season is now advancing, and the success of this enterprise (under God) depends wholly upon the spirit with which it is pushed, and the favourable disposition of the Canadians and Indians.

2. When you come to Newburyport, you are to make all possible inquiry what men of war or cruisers there may be on the coast, to which this detachment may be exposed on their voyage to Kennebeck River; and if you shall find that there is danger of being intercepted, you are not to proceed by water, but by land, taking care on the one hand not to be diverted by light and vague reports, and on the other not to expose the Troops rashly to a danger which by many judicious persons has been deemed very considerable.

3. You are by every means in your power to endeavour to discover the real sentiments of the Canadians towards our cause, and particularly as to this expedition; ever bearing in mind that if they are averse to it, and will not co-operate, or at least willingly acquiesce, it must fail of success. In this case you are by no means to prosecute the attempt. The expense of the expedition and the disappointment are not to be put in competition with the dangerous consequences which may ensue from irritating them against us, and detaching them from that neutrality which they have adopted.

4. In order to cherish those favourable sentiments to the American cause that they have manifested, you are as soon as you arrive in their Country to disperse a number of the addresses you will have with you, particularly in those parts where your route shall lie, and observe the strictest discipline and good order, by no means suffering any inhabitant to be abused, or in any manner injured, either in his person or property; punishing with exemplary severity every person who shall transgress, and making ample compensation to the party injured.

5. You are to endeavour, on the other hand, to conciliate the affections of those people, and such Indians as you may meet with, by every means in your power; convincing them that we come at the request of many of their principal people, not as robbers, or to make war upon them, but as the friends and supporters of their liberties as well as ours; and, to give efficacy to these sentiments, you must carefully inculcate upon the officers and soldiers under your command, that not only the good of their Country, and their honour, but their safety, depends upon the treatment of these people.

6. Check every idea and crush in its earliest stage every attempt to plunder, even those who are known to be enemies to our cause; it will create dreadful apprehensions in our friends, and when it is once begun, none can tell where it will stop. I therefore again most expressly order that it be discouraged and punished, in every instance, without distinction.

7. Whatever King's stores you shall be so fortunate as to possess yourselves of are to be secured for the Continental use, agreeable to the rules and regulations of war published by the honourable Congress. The officers and men may be assured that any extraordinary services performed by them will be suitably rewarded.

8. Spare neither pains nor expense to gain all possible intelligence on your march, to prevent surprises and accidents of every kind; and endeavour, if possible, to correspond with General Schuyler, so that you may act in concert with him. This I think may be done by means of the St. François Indians.

9. In case of a union with General Schuyler, or if he should be in Canada upon your arrival there, you are by no means to consider yourself as upon a separate and independent command, but are to put yourself under him, and follow his directions. Upon this occasion, and all others, I recommend most earnestly to avoid all contention about rank. In such a cause, every post is honourable in which a man can serve his Country.

10. If Lord Chatham's son should be in Canada, and in any way fall in your power, you are enjoined to treat him with all possible deference and respect. You cannot err in paying too much honour to the son of so illustrious a character and so true a friend to America. Any other prisoners who may fall into your hands you will treat with as much humanity and kindness as may be consistent with your own safety and the publick interest. Be very particular in restraining not only your own Troops but the Indians from all acts of cruelty and insult which will disgrace the American arms, and irritate our fellow-subjects against us.

11. You will be particularly careful to pay the full value for all provisions or other accommodations which the Canadians may provide for you on your march; by no means press them or any of their cattle into your service, but amply compensate those who voluntarily assist you. For this purpose you are provided with a sum of money in specie, which you will use with as much frugality and economy as your necessities and good policy will admit, keeping as exact account as possible of your disbursements.

12. You are by every opportunity to inform me of your progress, your prospect, and intelligence, and upon any important occurrence to despatch an express.

13. As the season is now far advanced, you are to make all possible despatch; but if unforeseen difficulties should arise, or if the weather should become so severe as to render it hazardous to proceed, in your own judgment and that of your principal officers, whom you are to consult, in that case you are to return, giving me as early notice as possible, that I may give you such assistance as may be necessary.

14. As the contempt of the religion of a Country, by ridiculing any of its ceremonies or affronting its Ministers or votaries, has ever been deeply resented, you are to be particularly careful to restrain every officer and soldier from such imprudence and folly, and to punish every instance of it. On the other hand, as far as lies in your power, you are to protect and support the free exercise of the religion of the Country, and the undisturbed enjoyment of the rights of conscience in religious matters, with your utmost influence and authority.

Given, &c., 14th September, 1775.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

[No. 6.]

Cambridge, September 8, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: As I mean to call upon you in a day or two for your opinions upon a point of very great importance to the welfare of the Continent in general, and this Colony in particular, I think it proper, indeed an incumbent duty on me, previous to this meeting to intimate to you the end and design of it, that you may have time to consider the matter with that deliberation and attention which the importance of it requires:

It is to know whether, in your judgments, we cannot make a successful attack upon the Troops in Boston, by means of boats, co-operated by an attempt upon their lines at Roxbury. The success of such an enterprise depends, I well know, upon the all-wise Disposer of events, and is not within the reach of human wisdom to foretell the issue; but if the prospect is fair, the undertaking is justifiable, under the following among other reasons which may be assigned.

The season is now fast approaching when warm and comfortable barracks must be erected for the security of the Troops against the inclemency of winter; large and costly provision must be made in the article of wood for the supply of the Army; and, after all that can be done in this way, it is but too probable that fences, woods, orchards, and even houses themselves, will fall a sacrifice to the want of fuel, before the end of winter. A very considerable difficulty, if not expense, must accrue on account of clothing for the men now engaged in the service; and if they do not enlist again, this difficulty will be increased to an almost insurmountable degree. Blankets, I am informed, are now much wanted, and not to be got. How, then, shall we be able to keep soldiers to their duty already impatient to get home, when they come to feel the severity of winter, without proper covering? If this Army should not incline to engage for a longer time than the 1st of January, what consequences can more certainly follow, than that you must either be obliged to levy new Troops, and thereby have two sets, or partly so, in pay at the same time, or, by disbanding one set before you get the other, expose the Country to desolation, and the cause perhaps to irretrievable ruin? These things are not unknown to the enemy; perhaps it is the very ground they are building on, if they are not waiting for a large re-enforcement; and if they are waiting for succours, ought it not to give a spur to the attempt? Our powder, not much of which would be consumed in such an enterprise, without any certainty of a supply, is daily wasting; and, to sum up the whole, in spite of every saving that can be made, the expense of supporting this Army will so far exceed any idea that was formed in Congress of it, that I do not know what will be the consequences.

These, among many other reasons which might be assigned, induce me to wish a speedy finish of the dispute; but, to avoid these evils, we are not to lose sight of the difficulties, the hazard, and the loss, that may accompany the attempt, nor what will be the probable consequences of a failure.

That every circumstance for and against this measure may be duly weighed, that there may be time for doing it, and nothing of this importance resolved on but after mature deliberation, I give you this previous notice of my intention of calling you together on Monday next, at nine o'clock, at which time you are requested to attend at Head-Quarters. It is unnecessary, I am persuaded, to recommend secrecy. The success of the enterprise, if undertaken, must depend in a great measure upon the suddenness of the stroke.

I am, with great esteem, Gentlemen, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-Generals Ward, Lee, Putnam; Brigadier-Generals Thomas, Spencer, Heath, Sullivan, Green, and Gates.

COUNCIL OF WAR.

At a Council of War held at Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 11, 1775, present: His Excellency General Washington; Major-Generals Ward, Lee, Putnam; Brigadier-Generals Thomas, Heath, Sullivan, Spencer, and Green.

His Excellency having communicated, by letter and verbally, to the Generals, for their consideration, a proposition of making an attack upon Boston, by boats, assisted by an attempt on the Roxbury lines, assigned the following reasons for such an attempt:

1st. That the winter was fast approaching, when warm and comfortable barracks must be erected for the Troops.

2d. Large and costly provision made in the article of wood, at twenty shillings per cord; and, with the utmost exertions, fences, woods, orchards, and even houses, will probably fall a sacrifice to our necessities in this article, before the expiration of winter.

3d. A considerable difficulty and great expense will accrue for clothing the men now in the service; and if they do not re-enlist at the end of the present term, it will be increased to a great degree. Blankets, in particular, are much wanted, and not to be procured. The soldiery grow impatient to get home already, and we shall find it a very hard task to detain them, when they feel the severity of a northern winter, without proper covering.

4th. If the present Army should not incline to engage for a longer time than the first of January, you must either levy new Troops, and have two Armies, or partly so, on pay at the same time, or, disbanding one before the other is assembled, expose the Country to desolation, and the cause to ruin.

5th. Our powder (not much of which would be consumed in such an enterprise) is daily wasting; and, to sum up the whole, with the utmost economy, the expense of supporting this Army will so far exceed any estimate yet formed, that the consequences may be very fatal.

On the other hand, the hazard, the loss of men in the attempt, and the probable consequences of failure, are to be considered.

After duly weighing the above proposition, considering the state of the enemy's lines, and the expectation of soon receiving some important advices from England, it was unanimously agreed that it was not expedient to make the attempt at present, at least.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 8, 1775.

(Parole, Edlington.)

(Countersign, Falkland.)

Captain Perry, of Colonel Walker's Regiment, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Alden was President, for "permitting persons to pass the lines on Boston Neck," is found guilty of the crimes laid to his charge, but, from alleviating circumstances, is sentenced only to be severely reprimanded at the head of his Regiment. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be put in execution accordingly.

The detachment going under the command of Colonel Arnold, to be forthwith taken off the roll of duty, and to march this evening to Cambridge Common, where tents and every thing necessary are provided for their reception. The Rifle Company at Roxbury, and those from Prospect-Hill, to march early to-morrow morning, to join the above detachment. Such officers and men as are taken from General Green's Brigade, for the above detachment, are to attend the muster of their respective Regiments to-morrow morning, at seven o'clock, upon Prospect-Hill; when the muster is finished, they are forthwith to rejoin the detachment at Cambridge.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 9, 1775.

(Parole, Genoa.)

(Countersign, Hartford.)

The Major-General commanding the division of the Army posted between Prospect-Hill and Cambridge River is to be very exact in obliging the Colonels and Field-Officers to lay in the encampments of their respective Regiments, and particularly the Colonel and Lieutenant-Colonel of the Thirtieth Regiment.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 11, 1775.

(Parole, Lancaster.)

(Countersign, Middleton.)

Colonel Ebenezer Bridge, of the Twenty-Seventh Regiment of Foot, in the service of the United Colonies, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Brigadier-General Greene was President, for "misbehaviour and neglect of duty in the action at Bunker's Hill, on the 7th of June last." The Court are of opinion that indisposition of body rendered the prisoner incapable of action, and do therefore acquit him.

Ensign Moses Howe, of Colonel David Brewer's Regiment, tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Alden was President, for "contempt of the service." The Court, after due examination of the evidence, acquit the prisoner.

Ensign Levi Bowen, of the same Regiment, and tried by the same General Court-Martial for "absenting from his Regiment without leave." The Court find the prisoner guilty of the crime laid to his charge, and do therefore sentence him to be cashiered.

General Heath's Brigade to be mustered upon Thursday morning next, at eleven o'clock; and Colonel Frye's Brigade upon Saturday morning, at the same time.

Colonel Thompson's Battalion of Riflemen, posted upon Prospect-Hill, to take their share of all duty, of guard and fatigue, with the Brigade they encamp with.

A General Court-Martial to sit as soon as possible, to try the men of that Regiment, who are now prisoners in the main guard and at Prospect-Hill, and accused of "mutiny."

The Riflemen posted at Roxbury, and towards Letchmore's Point, are to do duty with the Brigade they are posted with.

The General Court-Martial to meet to-morrow morning at seven o'clock, to consist of three Field-Officers and ten Captains.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 13, 1775.

(Parole, Pembroke.)

(Countersign, Quebec.)

The thirty-three Riflemen, of Colonel Thompson's Battalion, tried yesterday by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Nixon was President, for "disobedient and mutinous behaviour," are each of them sentenced to pay the sum of twenty Shillings, except John Leamon, who, over and above his fine, is to suffer six days' imprisonment. The Paymaster of the Regiment to stop the fine from each man, out of their next month's pay, which must be paid to Doctor Church, for the use of the General Hospital.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 14, 1775.

(Parole, Roxborough.)

(Countersign, Salem.)

In obedience to the general order of the 7th instant, the inquiry into the conduct of Doctor Church, the Director-General of the Hospital, and the respective Regimental Surgeons, has been held in General Sullivan's Brigade; that being finished, the General orders the like to be held forthwith in General Greene's Brigade.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 15, 1775.

(Parole, Pittsburgh.)

(Countersign, Ulster.)

Colonel John Mansfield, of the Nineteenth Regiment of Foot, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Brigadier-General Greene was President, for "remissness and backwardness in the execution of his duty, at the late engagement on Bunker's Hill." The Court found the prisoner guilty of the charge, and of a breach of the forty-ninth article of the Rules and Regulations of the Massachusetts Army, and therefore sentence him to be cashiered, and rendered unfit to serve in the Continental Army. The General approves the sentence, and directs it to take place immediately.

Moses Pickett, soldier in Captain Merrit's Company, Colonel Glover's Regiment, tried at a General Court-Martial for "disobedience of orders and damning his officers," is found guilty, and sentenced to receive thirty lashes upon his bare back, and afterwards drummed out of the Regiment. The General orders the punishment to be inflicted at the head of the Regiment to-morrow morning, at troop beating.

As Colonel Frye's Brigade is to be mustered to-morrow morning, General Heath's Brigade will furnish the guards, in and about Cambridge, for to-morrow.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 16, 1775.

(Parole, Wilmington.)

(Countersign, York.)

James Finley, Sergeant in Captain Price's Company of Riflemen, tried by a General Court-Martial for "expressing himself disrespectfully of the Continental Association, and drinking General Gage's health." The Court sentence the prisoner to be deprived of his arms and accoutrements, put in a horse-cart, with a rope around his neck, and drummed out of the Army, and rendered forever incapable of serving in the Continental Army.

Sergeant John Cotton, in Colonel Cotton's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial for "defrauding the Regiment of part of their allowance of provisions." The Court sentence the prisoner to refund and pay back fourteen Pounds six Shillings and four Pence, to said Regiment, and be disqualified to serve in said Regiment, as Quartermaster-Sergeant, for the future.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 17, 1775.

(Parole, Andover.)

(Countersign, Beverly.)

The Reverend Mr. John Murray is appointed Chaplain to the Rhode-Island Regiments, and is to be respected as such.

Colonel Prescott being taken sick, Lieutenant-Colonel Johonnet, of the Twenty-First Regiment, is to go forthwith to Sewell's Point, to take the command of that post.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 18, 1775.

(Parole, Brunswick.)

(Countersign, Cambridge.)

The inquiry into the conduct of Doctor Church, Director-General of the Hospital, and the respective Regimental Surgeons, to be held to-morrow, in General Heath's Brigade.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 20, 1775.

(Parole, Falmouth.)

(Countersign, Gloucester.)

As the commissions are ready to be delivered to the Officers serving in the Army of the United Colonies, the General recommends it to them to apply, as soon as it is convenient, to him at Head-Quarters for the same. No person is to presume to demand a Continental commission who is not in actual possession of the like commission from the proper authority of the Colony he is at present engaged to serve, which must be produced at the time application is made for a Continental commission. If, from unavoidable circumstances, any gentleman has served, from the beginning of the campaign, in the rank of a Commissioned Officer, and has not yet received a commission, being justly entitled thereto, such Officer's pretensions will be duly weighed and considered, and, upon sufficient proof of the justice of his claim, a commission will issue accordingly. The General expects that every Officer delivers his present commission, or claim to a commission, to his Colonel or Officer commanding the Regiment; and each Colonel, or Officer commanding a Regiment, is forthwith to apply to the General for the commissions for the Officers of his respective Regiments. The Colonels of the First, Second, and Third Regiments, to apply to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, and so on, day by day, until the whole are supplied; three Regiments each day.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 21, 1775.

(Parole, Hanover.)

(Countersign, Ipswich.)

Whereas frequent applications are making to the General, Commander-in-Chief, by Officers of all ranks and denominations, for an allowance of rations of Provisions, which are not only absolutely necessary, but usual and customarily allowed to them, the General has thought proper to order and direct that from the first day of July last, there be issued, by the Commissary-General, the following proportion of rations, viz:

To each Major-General, fifteen rations; Brigadier-General, twelve; Colonel, six; Lieutenant-Colonel, five; Major, four; Captain, three; Subaltern, two; and to each Staff Officer, two.

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Roxbury Camp, September 21, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I have your favour, per post, enclosing the commissions for Brewster and Perkins. We were called upon, in yesterday's orders from head-quarters, to apply for our Continental commissions. Some officers are suspicious they shall be holden in service during pleasure of Congress, and they accept them. However, I believe they will not be so cautious as the soldiers are, who in general decline signing the Continental Articles of War, lest they should be retained thereby longer than the term of their first engagements.

It will be agreeable to me to see the other part of my Regiment, but am sorry it must be with the necessity of farther exertions of our Colony for its own and the common safety. How free has she been with men and money, for the publick cause! Surely there is a reward for her.

I am astonished that any thing in the General's letter should bear a construction injurious or dishonourable to Connecticut, as it seems by brother D.'s letter to brother Major is the case.

I remain your dutiful and affectionate

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GOVERNOUR WENTWORTH TO THEODORE ATKINSON.

Gosport, September 21, 1775.

SIR: Being just arrived at the Shoals, and pressed for time, I can only desire that the enclosed Proclamation, for proroguing the General Court to the 24th of April next, may be forthwith published and made effectual to its intent. Mr. King will transmit me the copy of Captain Gamble's Patent, properly countersigned.

I am, in haste, dear Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

J. WENTWORTH.

Honourable Theodore Atkinson, Esq.

PROVINCE OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.—BY THE GOVERNOUR.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the General Assembly is now under adjournment to Thursday, the 28th instant, and it appearing to me no way conducive to His Majesty's service, or the welfare of the Province, that the Assembly should meet on that day, but that it is expedient to prorogue them to a farther time, I have therefore thought fit to issue this Proclamation, proroguing the meeting of the General Assembly, appointed to be held at Portsmouth on the 28th of September instant, to the 24th day of April next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon; and the General Assembly is hereby prorogued, accordingly, to that time, then to meet at the Court-House in Portsmouth aforesaid; and hereof all persons concerned are to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

Given at Gosport, the 21st day of September, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Third, by the grace of God of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., and in the year of our Lord Christ 1775.

J. WENTWORTH.

By his Excellency's command:

THEODORE ATKINSON, Secretary.

ADDRESS OF THE PROVOST, ETC., OF THE BURGH OF IRVINE.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Council, of the ancient Burgh of Irvine, in Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Sir George Macartney, Knight of the Bath, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Council, of your ancient Burgh of Irvine, in Council assembled, reflecting with abhorrence upon the rebellious disposition of some of your Majesty's American subjects, and their unjustifiable attempts to oppose the laws of this Realm, and to disturb the tranquillity of your Majesty's mild and merciful reign, which even the unthankful as well as we have experienced, humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty, that as in last war a number of brave sailors from this port distinguished themselves in the glorious cause of your Majesty and their country, against natural and foreign enemies, so we have still numbers equally brave and willing to assist your Majesty and the laws in reducing unnatural and unprovoked rebellion, in whatever part of your extended Empire it shall rear its head.

Deeply sensible of the blessings of the peace and liberty which we enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious reign, fully convinced of the uprightness of your Majesty's Government, and most firmly attached to your Majesty's person and family, we also assure your Majesty we are ready on all occasions to support and defend your royal person and the Constitution of our country, with our lives and fortunes, against all foreign and domestick enemies.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, at Irvine, the 22d of September, 1775.

ALEX. MONTGOMERIE, Provost.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF LIVERPOOL.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, and Traders, of the Town of Liverpool,* in the County Palatine of Lancaster, transmitted to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, and Traders, of the Town of Liverpool, in the County Palatine of Lancaster, humbly beg leave to lay before your Majesty the address of a faithful and loyal people, to testify our firm and warm attachment to your Majesty's illustrious family, the honour of your Crown, and the dignity of your Empire. We esteem it particularly our duty at this time to declare to the world our affection to your royal person, and our detestation of the open and daring contempt shown to the legal authority and constitutional powers of these Realms, by some of your Majesty's deluded and rebellious subjects in America.

Firmly persuaded that every part of your wide extended Colonies is and ought to be subject to the legislative power of Great Britain, it is with the most affecting concern that we reflect on civil discord, and the effusion of blood, shed by the hands of British subjects against each other; and we do most sincerely hope, for the glory of your reign and the welfare of all your people, that when the present phrensy of your Colonists shall subside, a happy reconciliation may take place; yet we cannot without the utmost abhorrence look upon the hand of parricide lifted up against the Parent Country, its most kind and generous protector. As your Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects of Liverpool have always been ready, on every the most trying occasion, to testify their sincere and unalterable allegiance to your royal House, so are we also equally ready now to exert our best abilities towards the crushing every rebellion, and silencing all disaffection that may be har-

* The general sense of the people can by no means be inferred from the number of addresses obtained by Ministerial influence. Every Magistrate in a place can ensure the interest of his butcher and baker; the butcher can prevail in the same manner on the grazier, and the baker on the meal-mar. Thus, though many hundreds may sign an address, it is always to be considered as the real work of two or three Ministerial hirelings.

In the Liverpool Advertiser is the following short address to the Liverpool addressers: "Our once extensive trade to Africa is at a stand; all the commerce with America at an end. Peace, harmony, and mutual confidence, must constitute the balm that can restore to health the body politick. Survey our dock; count there the gallant ships laid up, and useless. When will they be again refitted? What will become of the sailor, the tradesman, the poor labourer, during the approaching winter? Answer me this, and then again address."—Remembrancer.

boured in the breasts of seditious and ill-designing men, who, under the specious mask of liberty, attempt to deceive and seduce the minds of your faithful subjects. We are justly and sensibly thankful for the real enjoyment of that inestimable blessing, in its most pure and rational form, under the mild and auspicious Government of your Majesty. Deeply impressed with these sentiments of gratitude, and the innumerable advantages we reap from our happy Constitution, under your Majesty's paternal care, we, with all due respect, present this our tribute of allegiance and fidelity to the best of Princes; and that the Crown of these Realms may forever flourish upon you, Sire, and your royal posterity, is the earnest prayer of us, your most dutiful and loyal subjects.

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, September 22, 1775.

SIR: It having been thought expedient, with a view of providing more effectually for the security of Canada and of Halifax, to change the destination of the five Regiments now ready to sail from Ireland, enclosed I send you a copy of Lord Rochford's letter to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, containing the directions that have been given on this occasion, which will point out to you the whole of that arrangement. I also enclose to you a copy of the state of the ships taking in stores and provisions for the use of the Army, together with a copy of my letter to the Lords of Admiralty thereupon. And I am to signify to you His Majesty's pleasure, that if, when these ships arrive and are unloaded, you may have occasion for them, in any operations you have in view, you do detain them in His Majesty's service, such only excepted as are chartered for the West-Indies, after delivery of their loading at Boston.

The last advices from North-America are the fullest evidence of an open and declared war, on the part of the twelve associated Colonies; and there is no room left for any other consideration but that of proceeding against them in all respects with the utmost rigour, as the open and avowed enemies of the State.

I am, &c.,

DARTMOUTH.

Newbern, North-Carolina, September 22, 1775.

This week will ever be remembered as the most remarkable epoch in the annals of this Country, for the discovery of the grand repository and dark depositum of Governour Martin's infernal magazine, which, with cool deliberation, he intended to deal out, in missive weapons of death, to the good people of this Province. In the Palace garden, and under a fine bed of cabbages, was discovered and dug up a barrel containing about three bushels of gunpowder; in the Palace cellar was also dug up two quarter-casks of the same commodity—the casks quite new, and marked R. B. In the Palace garden was also dug up about one thousand weight of musket balls, lately cast; about five hundred weight of iron swivel balls; a large quantity of small shot, lead, iron, worms for the cannon, with swabs, rammers, artillery boxes, matches, and the whole apparatus for his park of artillery, which he would have certainly mounted at the Palace, had not the appearance of the people of the Town of Newbern, on his attempting to move the Palace guns, driven him from the trenches before he had made them quite tenable. It is said his Excellency, the night before he took his precipitate flight from the Palace, buried these engines of death, as they might remain in places of safety till he or his creatures might have an opportunity to use them. The Palace cannon, it is said, were spiked up after his Excellency left the Palace, by a person who, no doubt, will be obliged to answer for his conduct. As it is improbable the Governour could procure these deadly weapons without assistance, the Committee of this Town and County are using their utmost diligence to discover the authors of so black a treachery.

WILLIAM MACLAY TO SECRETARY SHIPPEN.

Sunbury, September 22, 1775.

SIR: I enclose to you an estreat of the fines adjudged in our Quarter Sessions, as far back as February Sessions, 1774. Before that time there are none worth attention, save the fines of one Williams, alias Adams, who broke jail and escaped. I am not certain whether I ever sent any account of fines heretofore, but rather think I did not. I believe it is a generally received opinion, that the Governour remits the fine of the woman, in cases of fornication. I mention this circumstance, as it is likely the Sheriff, under the influence of this opinion, may have omitted taking the fines from them; if the Sheriff has heretofore paid any of the fines now estreated, it will be easy to let him have the necessary credit.

The Congress, at the last meeting, ordered the memorials respecting the Connecticut intrusion to lie on their table to the next meeting, on the 5th of September. In the mean time, their Delegates were directed to enjoin a peaceable behaviour on their people. The 5th of September is come and past; the injunction, therefore, is no longer binding, according to their mode of reasoning. We never had more rumours about them and their designs: Samuel Wallis has just now been with me, respecting the conduct of one Vincent, who lives near Mr. Modie. This man was some time ago appointed a Connecticut Magistrate, and is now at Wyoming, in order to pilot down three hundred of them to the West Branch; his son was with him, and is returned, and gives out that his father only waited until the armament would be ready. Wallis says he has taken some pains to examine into the story, and for his part verily believes it to be true; if so, we shall soon hear of them. They have lately been at great pains to enlist their adherents among . . . . . into the twenty-fourth or Butler's Regiment. It is highly probable that every motion of the people at Wyoming is in consequence of orders from the Colony of Connecticut; if so, it is incontrovertible that they intend, per fas et nefas, to possess themselves of the country. It seems mysterious that they should be so intent upon pushing their encroachments so far southward into the Susquehannah settlement, while the lands west of Wyoming are quite unoccupied, and quite disregarded. Perhaps a west line from the most southern settlement they can effect, by art or force, may be contemplated by them, as the boundary of their future empire; that is, in case they intend to leave Pennsylvania a name or place at all among the Colonies.

I am, Sir, with great respect, your most obedient and most humble servant,

WILLIAM MACLAY.

Mr. Shippen.

RETURN OF MINUTE-OFFICERS IN SOUTHEAST PRECINCT, DUTCHESS COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Dutchess County, Southeast Precinct Committee, Sept. 22, 1775.

Ordered, That those persons who have arranged themselves in the character of Minute-Men in this Precinct do assemble themselves on the 26th instant, in order to choose out of their Company the several Officers which, agreeable to directions of our Congress, are to command such Companies; and that Thomas Baldwin, Esq., and Mr. Nathaniel Foster, Members of this Committee, do attend and inspect said choice, and make return thereof to the Chairman of this Committee.

JOSEPH CRANE, Chairman.

Southeast Precinct, September 26, 1775.

We hereby certify that, agreeable to the foregoing order, the Company of Minute-Men therein referred to did, on the 26th instant, assemble, and, under our inspection, made choice of Joshua Barnum, Jr., as Captain; William Marsh, First Lieutenant; Eliakim Barnum, Second Lieutenant; and Jonathan Crane, Ensign.

THOMAS BALDWIN,
NATHANIEL FOSTER.

CONNECTICUT COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Friday, September 22, 1775.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, holden at Lebanon, present: His Honour the Governour, Hon. Deputy Governour Griswold, Samuel Huntington, Jedediah Elderkin, and Joshua West, Esqrs.

On motion from Colonel Saltonstall, Ordered, Colonel Huntington, or Mr. Nathaniel Shaw, Jr., to deliver him, for the use of the men raised for defence of New-London, thirty Muskets, imported by Mr. Shaw, for the Colony; to Dr. Lee Lay, for Lyme, five of the same; and before ordered by the Governour for Stonington, fifteen of the same Muskets.

Granted, that Colonel Saltonstall have the pay of a Colonel for his service, instead of the pay of a Captain, heretofore allowed.

Granted, for the balance of Elijah Wimprey's Account for his services in the Treaty of the Oneida Tribe of Six Nations, ten Pounds one Shilling and seven Pence.

Granted to Reuben Cognahue the balance of his Account for his services in the Treaty with the Oneida Tribe of the Six Nations, six Pounds nine Shillings and seven Pence.

Granted and ordered, that his Honour Governour Trumbull be paid by the Colony Treasurer nineteen Pounds twelve Shillings and five Pence half-penny, for Postage paid for Letters, Post-Riders, and other expenses in Government service, as per Account.

Granted his Honour Governour Trumbull an order on the Committee of Pay Table, for the sum of thirty-two Pounds four Shillings and nine Pence, being for cash paid for Postage of Letters, Expresses, and other Continental services.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF MONTROSE.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council, of Montrose, in Council assembled, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and by him presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of MONTROSE, in Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Deeply impressed with a sense of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's most clement reign, we beg leave to express our grateful sense thereof, and that of the good people of this your ancient Town, whom we at present represent.

We have beheld, with surprise and uneasiness, that the forbearing and lenient measures pursued by your Majesty, in order to bring our fellow-subjects in North-America to reflection, reason, and attention to their own true interest, have, through their infatuation hitherto, not had the desired effect. We sincerely regret their folly, condemn their obstinacy and ingratitude, and are much concerned they have allowed themselves to be so deluded as to rise up in arms against their Mother Country, by which they have been nourished and protected, and who lately, at an expense of so much blood and treasure, rescued and defended them from their enemies. But while we lament their misconduct, and their misimprovement of the great advantages they enjoyed under your Majesty's mild Government, we disapprove of and bear testimony against their rebellious proceedings, and are still filled with greater astonishment and horror at the unnatural and seditious practices of some of our own countrymen, who, under the mask of patriotism, but in order only to serve their own selfish and mercenary designs, have, we fear, instigated them to and encouraged them in such illegal and disorderly practices.

We very much detest and disclaim all such proceedings; and we do assure your Majesty, that, as we highly approve of the prudent measures you have hitherto taken in support of the honour and independence of your Crown and the supremacy of your Parliament, so we will in our several stations exert ourselves to the utmost of our power for supporting your Majesty therein, and in all such future measures as the wisdom of your Parliament may find necessary for securing and preserving unimpaired the just and constitutional rights of Great Britain over all her Colonies.

We are happy in acquainting your Majesty, that the trade and manufactures in this Town and neighbourhood have not in the smallest degree been hurt or affected by the American ports being shut against us; that at present our people are all duly employed in their several occupations, our manufactures find a ready demand, and peace and harmony prevail amongst all your Majesty's subjects here.

We should rejoice, and do most earnestly wish that a reconciliation would yet take place, that so the farther effusion of human blood might be prevented, and peace, with all the blessings thereof, restored to your Majesty's Dominions. But as, through the wantonness and unreasonable conduct of the Colonies, this Nation has been long severely agitated and distressed, great expense incurred, and the lives of many of our countrymen causelessly taken away in defence of the Nation's lawful rights and property, we therefore humbly hope and beg your Majesty that vigorous measures be adopted, and continued until such a settlement takes place as shall be found consistent with the just and equitable claims of America, and the honour, the safety, and true interest of Great Britain; and for this purpose we pray that God may bless your Majesty's counsels with wisdom, grant success to your arms, restore peace and brotherly love to all your subjects, and spare you Majesty long, very long, to reign with glory over a happy, a free, and united people.

Signed in name and by appointment of the rest of the Magistrates and Town-Council, at Montrose, the 23d of September, 1775, by ALEXANDER CHRISTIE, Provost.

By ARCHIBALD COCKBURN, Esq., of COCKPEN, Advocate, His Majesty's Sheriff Depute of the Sheriffdom of EDINBURGH:

Whereas a letter was received by me some time ago, from His Majesty's Advocate for Scotland, intimating that, on account of the present rebellion in America, it was proper a stop should be put for the present to emigrations to that Country, and that the necessary directions were left at the different sea-ports in Scotland to that purpose; I think it my duty, in obedience to his Lordship's requisition contained in that letter, to take this publick method of notifying to such of the inhabitants within my jurisdiction, if any such there be, who have formed resolutions to themselves of leaving this Country, and going in quest of settlements in America, that they ought not to put themselves to the unnecessary trouble and expense of preparing for a removal of their habitations, which they will not, so far as it lies in my power to prevent, be permitted to effectuate.

ARCHIBALD COCKBURN.

September 23, 1775.

Williamsburgh, September 23, 1775.

Thursday last, arrived here Patrick Henry, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Virginia Forces. He was met and escorted to Town by the whole body of Volunteers, who paid him every mark of respect and distinction in their power, in testimony of their approbation of so worthy a gentleman to the appointment of that important trust which the Convention has been pleased to repose in him.

Baltimore, September 26, 1775.

On Saturday, the 23d of this instant, the polls for electing a Committee of Observation for this County were closed, when the following gentlemen were declared elected: John Moale, Jeremiah T. Chase, James Calhoun, Benjamin Nicholson, Andrew Buchanan, Thomas Sollars, John Craddock, James Gittings, Robert Alexander, Samuel Purviance, William Wilkinson, Charles Ridgley, (son of William,) Walter Tolly, Jun., Darby Lux, John Cooke, William Smith, William Buchanan, William Lux, John Boyd, John Ridgley, Thomas Harrison, Benjamin Griffith, William Randall, Thomas Gist, Sen., Stephen Cromwell, Isaac Gist, Thomas C. Dye, Mordecai Gist, John Stephenson, Ezekiel Towson, Jeremiah Johnson, William Asquith, John Howard, George Risteau, Abraham Britton.

And casting up the ballot, the following gentlemen were declared Delegates to the Convention for one year, viz: Robert Alexander, Benjamin Nicholson, John Moale, Walter Tolly, Jun., Jeremiah Townley Chase.

ADAM STEPHEN TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Pittsburgh, September 23, 1775.

SIR: Since my last, we have received advices from the Wyandots, a sensible nation, who live near to Detroit, and have great influence on the contiguous tribes of Indians. It may be plainly seen that they are a great deal attached to the commanding officer at Detroit. Some of them have promised to come and hear what we have to say; that is their policy. They have very lately killed a trader's servant, and carried off part of the goods; the nation has made an apology, and the goods are restored to the owner. We have advices, likewise, from the tribes living up the Alleghany River, about one hundred and sixty miles above this place; several of them have been at a treaty held at Niagara, and inform us that many Indians are gone to Albany, but a greater number to Caughnawaga, near Montreal, at the instigation of Guy Johnson and Carleton.

The commandant of Niagara and Johnson told them to watch our motions here very narrowly, and the red-coats and other English would fight us by ships, whilst the Indians kept picking us off on our frontier; that we could not hold out long, for want of powder, as we usually had it from Britain, and could not make any among ourselves; that he would supply them plentifully with powder, and every thing else. I can see that the Indians are very jealous, greatly divided, and at a loss how to act. General Schuyler's success will settle the matter; but an unsuccessful attempt will determine the greatest part of the Western Indians against us; perhaps make it necessary to take possession of Niagara and Detroit.

We have reason to expect all the Indians who intend to come to us will attend next week.

I have the honour to be, with respect, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ADAM STEPHEN.

Colonel Richard Henry Lee, of Virginia, Philadelphia.

MEETING OF THE INHABITANTS OF COW-NECK, QUEEN'S COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

At a meeting of the inhabitants of Great-Neck, Cow-Neck, and all such as lately belonged to the Company of Captain Stephen Thorn, in Queen's County, being duly warned on Saturday, the 23d of September, 1775, and taking into our serious consideration our distressed and calamitous situation, and being fully convinced of our total inability to pursue proper measures for our common safety, while we in all cases are considered as a part of the Township of Hempstead, and being conscious that self-preservation, the immutable law of nature, is indispensable, do therefore, 1st, Resolve, That during the present controversy, or so long as their general conduct is inimical to freedom, we be no farther considered as a part of the Township, than is consistent with peace, liberty, and safety. Therefore, in all matters relative to the Congressional plan, shall consider ourselves as an entire, separate, independent Beat or District.

2d, Resolved, That Mr. Daniel Kissam, Mr. Henry Stocker, Mr. William Thorn, Mr. Benjamin Sands, Mr. William Cornwell, Mr. John Cornwell, Mr. John Mitchel, Sen., Mr. John Burtiss, Mr. Simond Sands, Mr. Martin Schenck, Mr. Daniel Whitehead Kissam, Mr. Peter Onderdonck, Mr. Adrian Onderdonck, and Mr. Thomas Dodge, be a Committee for this Beat or District.

JOHN FARMER, Clerk of Meeting.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read September 25, 1775.]

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, during the recess of Congress, New-York, September 23, 1775. }

SIR: We acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 20th instant. We beg leave to inform you that the insurmountable difficulty of procuring arms has been the only reason that any of our Troops have been delayed.

Before we were enabled to purchase arms, very few remained to be purchased. No pains were spared or expedients omitted to procure arms. Only six Companies remain, who have not been forwarded. Three of those are now ready; their baggage embarked before the receipt of your letter, and they will proceed immediately: the others we hope to despatch within a week at farthest.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your most obedient servants,

By order:

JACOB BLACKWELL,

Chairman pro tem.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

RETURN OF OFFICERS OF MINUTE-MEN, OF NEW-WINDSOR PRECINCT, ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

New-Windsor, September 23, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: These serve to inform you that Samuel Logan was duly elected Captain, James Jackson, Jr., First Lieutenant, John Moffat Second Lieutenant, and John Robinson Ensign, for the Company of Minute-Men raised in the Precinct of New-Windsor, in the presence of two of the members of this Committee, agreeable to a resolve of the Continental and Provincial Congresses.

By order of the Committee:

SAMUEL BREWSTER, Chairman.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress.

RETURN OF OFFICERS OF MILITIA COMPANY IN NEW-WINDSOR DISTRICT, ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

New-Windsor, September 23, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: These are to certify, that John Nicoll, Esq., was duly elected Captain, Francis Mandivile First Lieutenant, Hezekiah White Second Lieutenant, and Leonard D. Nicoll Ensign, for the Company of Militia in the District of New-Windsor, lately commanded by William Ellison, in the Second Regiment for Ulster County, in the presence of two of the members of this Committee, agreeable to a resolve of the Continental and Provincial Congresses.

By order of the Committee:

SAMUEL BREWSTER, Chairman.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 25, 1775.]

Camp at Harlem, September 23, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 20th instant I have just received, and shall with the greatest expedition proceed with the Troops under my command to Albany, and there wait General Schuyler's orders, according to direction of Congress. I am, Sir, in haste, your most obedient humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of Congress.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO ELIPHALET DYER.

Camp at Cambridge, September 23, 1775.

HONoured SIR: I wrote you by Mr. Tracy, the bearer of this, about two hours ago; since that I have received yours per post, of the 14th instant, but not one word about money. A Commissary, with twenty thousand gaping mouths open full upon him, and nothing to stop them with, must depend on being devoured himself. And over and above all, this same Mr. Tracy has advanced, in cash, out of his own pocket, to furnish out the expedition under Col. Arnold, seven hundred Pounds, lawful money, and is now here, on his way to Philadelphia, on business of importance, and depended, as every reasonable man might and ought, that the Continental Commissary could repay him such a trifling sum. On this his journey depended; he now, to his surprise, finds a Paymaster, a Commissary, a Quartermaster, nominal nonentities; all of them not able to advance one shilling—not able to repay borrowed money; not one of them, the General, or any other person here, have power to draw on Philadelphia, which might serve him as well. This is all truly to be wondered at, and truly shocking. I wish you by some way or means, some how or other, to procure him five hundred Pounds, lawful money, that he may not suffer too much, in going in advance in support of the common cause. He wants the money in Philadelphia; and if we, any of us, had power to draw, we should certainly do it. It certainly ought to be done, though we have not the power. If it is done, it shall account against me, taking his receipt therefor. I must entreat you to exert yourself in this unhappy case, and to relieve me of the additional trouble, to the unavoidable ones of my office, of having my heart dunned out, and be for weeks unable to pay for a bushel of potatoes. I wish the accursed cause of this difficulty no worse punishment than to be put in my situation for ten days past.

I have told General Washington, and I now warn you, as one of the Continental Congress, and the whole Congress, of the fatal effects of this delay, and that I must be quit of the blood of the matter, if this Army is disbanded before spring, for want of provisions. Pray God the event may not equal my fears.

I am, most respectfully, honoured Sir, your most humble servant,

JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

To Colonel Dyer, Philadelphia.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Prospect-Hill, September 23, 1775.

General Greene returns his compliments to General Sullivan, and begs leave to acquaint him, as he was on court-martial on Thursday, he cannot tell him how it happened that so few fatigue-men went from Prospect, compared with those from Winter-Hill. Major Bon was ordered to furnish any number General Sullivan ordered. Yesterday an equal number with the Winter-Hill Troops was ordered down; and if they did not go, it was unknown to the General. There shall be a large party of fatigue-men ordered to work to-day. I should be glad a proper detail of duty between the two Brigades might take place, and include the guards of both hills, and all the fatigue-men on duty.

General Greene hopes that General Sullivan don't suggest, he has the least desire of screening the Troops under his command from the least part of duty equal with those under the command of General Sullivan. It is his intention to furnish upon equal terms.

N. B. Excuse the badness of the writing—it is so cold I cannot feel the pen.

MAJOR BEDELL TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Camp near St. John's, September 23, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are now encamped within a mile of St. John's, the enemy every day throwing shells or balls at our intrenchments, but without success. We shall have our batteries ready to play upon them to-morrow, or the next day, at farthest. Our men are all in good spirits. We arrived at the Isle-aux-Noix the 10th, and the next day we came within a mile and a half of the enemy, who saluted us with shells; no damage was done. We lay upon our arms all night, and in the morning I was detached with a party of four hundred men to re-enforce Major Brown, who had taken eight wagons from the enemy, loaded with stores. Before we could get up to him he was engaged, and obliged to retreat, but saved his booty. They upon our approach saluted us very warm with grape shot; we did not lose one man; what the enemy lost I cannot tell, but we found some blood on the ground; they retreated to the fort, and we kept possession of the ground, and we have a considerable intrenchment. Major Brown has took twelve wagons more, loaded with wine, rum, pork, &c. Every thing seems to prosper well. I have nothing more particular, only a party was fired on at Captain Hogan's house. We had three Canadians wounded. I have the command of the Green Mountain Boys, and a detachment of Colonel Hinman's Regiment.

I am, &c.,

TIMOTHY BEDELL.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Winter-Hill, September 23, 1775.

MUCH RESPECTED GENTLEMEN: I am sorry to inform you that your Troops from New-Hampshire have more reasons to complain, and actually do complain more, than any other Troops in the Army. General Washington gave it out in order that all the Troops should be paid up to the 4th of August. All the other Colonies have complied, though not strictly obliged thereto by the original contract; and why New-Hampshire should refuse, I can by no means conceive, as the men must be paid sooner or later. And as the money now emitted is not on interest, it can make no difference to the Province whether they are paid now or two months hence; but to the men the difference is very great, as their families are in immediate necessity, and can by no means do without it. All the money you advance to make your Troops comfortable will be repaid by the Congress, and therefore can be of no disadvantage to you. I wish you were acquainted with the complaints and murmurings of your Troops. They have long been kept out of their blankets, and now are kept out of coats or blankets. The officers who bore their expenses here have never received any pay. The Committee here seemed to have been employed the whole time in riding back and forth, to bring small sums of money to pay part of the soldiers, to make the others mutinous and uneasy.

This, gentlemen, has been the case respecting those Troops, which I venture to pronounce the very best in the Army. Gentlemen, I am sure there must have been a great defect somewhere; where it is, or to whom you will impute the iniquity, time alone must discover. It must be allowed that suffering the New-Hampshire Troops to remain in so wretched a situation, for such a length of time, will never redound to the credit of the Colony, or have the least tendency to enable us to raise another Army, after this is disbanded, but the reverse. I must therefore, as a friend to the Continent in general, and the Colony in particular, beg and entreat you to send some trusty persons here, with money sufficient to pay off the men, in order to have them as comfortable as the nature of the service will admit; and you will thereby much assist the common cause of America, and partially oblige, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

The Hon. the Committee of Safety in New-Hampshire.

INTELLIGENCE FROM HALIFAX, IN NOVA-SCOTIA, DATED SEPTEMBER 23, 1775.

The address which was some time past sent from this place, and presented to His Majesty, has given rise to all the disturbance in this Province. It was declared to be an address from the inhabitants of the Province of Halifax, in Nova-Scotia, when, indeed, it was only managed by about one-thousandth part of them, when most of the members of the House of Representatives were up in the country, superintending their estates; and when they came to town, and found in what manner the liberties of the House of Representatives had been invaded in their absence, they, together with almost all the inhabitants, declared themselves friends to the cause in which the whole Continent of America are engaged, and refused being any longer subservient to the mandates of Government; therefore, no duties have been paid here since the latter end of August last, of which the Comptroller of the Customs is gone home to give an account. Yesterday a schooner arrived, with two tons of tea, from Bristol; the liberty boys immediately committed it to the sea. They have strong assurances of assistance from the Provincial Army, therefore it is to be feared that His Majesty's yard, stores, and ammunition, in this Province, will be destroyed. The Tartar Frigate is here, to protect them; and the master shipwrights, caulkers, joiners, house-carpenters, smiths, bricklayers, and labourers, form a militia, and mount guard every night, for the protection of the yard, &c. The inhabitants begin to grow very warm, therefore suppose it will not be long before they find the Militia some military employment. Our Governour has wrote to Boston for assistance, but has received for answer, that they have more work cut out there than they have hands to complete, therefore no help can be expected from thence. We have been continually supplying the Army at Boston with fresh provisions, hay, corn, &c.; but the case is so much altered that nothing is suffered to be sent them from hence.

GENERAL GATES TO DOCTOR CHURCH.

Cambridge, September 24, 1775.

To Doctor CHURCH:

SIR: I am directed by his Excellency the General to inform you that his unwillingness to part with a good officer alone prevents his complying with your request, in your letter of the 20th instant. He desires you would stay with your family some time longer, and if there is then no prospect of its being in such a situation as to permit you to return to your duty, you will receive a discharge pursuant to your letter. Your very humble servant,

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

COLONEL VARNUM TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Prospect-Hill, September 24, 1775.

Colonel Varnum begs liberty to present his compliments to the Honourable General Sullivan, and informs him that when the invalids came to relieve him on Ploughed-Hill, Thursday night last, he gave the most particular directions to Colonel Woodbridge and the Lieutenant-Colonel, in what manner to dispose of the detachment, where to place every sentry. Sent Captain Martindale with two Captains of that party; showed them where to place the out-picket; and, in fine, had they sense to comprehend, and resolution to execute the plainest orders, your Honour would not have been troubled by them upon that head, which I have learned you were by Colonel Stark.

The Colonel is extremely sorry that General Sullivan should have any reason to suspect him of neglect of duty, and hopes this will be sufficient to remove any unjust impressions.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE CAMP AT CAMBRIDGE, DATED SEPTEMBER 24, 1775.

We are looking towards Canada for news; that will be the scene of action, at least for a while. They are employed at Boston in pulling down the south part of the Town, for two purposes: to make room for a set of new barracks, which they propose to build there, and to convert the former buildings into fuel. There was a very heavy cannonade all Saturday morning, at Roxbury. They fired one hundred and ten cannon shot, with no other damage than putting out a bullock's eye with a pebble stone, which one of them drove into it. On this side we had two men wounded with one shot; both are like to do well. The same ball beat off the hat of a Lieutenant McKinzie, of one of the Rifle Companies, and left him senseless for more than an hour; however, he is now perfectly recovered, and as well as ever.

We have heard this day that Colonel Arnold, who commands the detachment against Quebeck, was within a few miles of Kennebeck River last Thursday. Two men, who left Quebeck about twenty days ago, say it is in a very defenceless state, and that the French inhabitants, even of the City, are much in our favour.

The intercourse between the enemy's camp and ours, on both sides, Roxbury and Charlestown, has ceased some days, in consequence of the brutality of one of the Ministerial officers, who, with very abusive language, threatened to fire upon our flags if any more came down. They have deceived themselves very much as to Arnold's expedition. They will not believe but that it was destined against Halifax, and provided accordingly; so that telling your real design appears to be sometimes the best way of concealing it.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF COVENTRY.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Traders, and principal Inhabitants of the City of Coventry, presented to His Majesty by Walter Waring, Esq., and Edward Roe Yeo, Esq., their Representatives in Parliament.

Coventry, September 25, 1775.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Traders, and principal Inhabitants of the City of COVENTRY.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

It is with the deepest concern we have for some time observed the progress of those pernicious principles which the patrons of sedition have been industriously insinuating into the minds of your Majesty's deluded subjects, and which have at length produced an actual rebellion among the unhappy Colonies in America—a rebellion the most atrocious, because altogether unprovoked; the most unnatural, because excited and fomented by the false representations and encouragement of a desperate domestick faction.

At such an alarming crisis, silence, in the true friends to their Country, would be utterly inexcusable; not to condemn the guilty were, in some sort, to partake in their iniquity. Whilst, therefore, we deplore this error in our fellow-subjects, we cannot forbear to remark how very inattentive those persons must needs be to the welfare of the community, who can wantonly interrupt the publick repose by raising tumults and insurrections, from no other motive, and with no better view, than to promote the schemes of pretended patriotism, or to soothe the malice of disappointed ambition.

It might, indeed, and with the greatest reason, have been expected that the singular prudence and moderation, with which your Majesty hath ever held the reins of Government, would have effectually composed every animosity among your people, and secured a general acquiescence in a conduct so irreproachable. It might have been hoped, too, that the Ministry you have so judiciously made choice of, and who, on the late trying occasions, have acquitted themselves with the most consummate discretion, should not have experienced so base and ungrateful a return. The continued series of ill-treatment which your Majesty, the more immediate officers of the Crown, and the great Council of the Nation, have met with, at the hands of these nominal guardians of our rights and liberties, we sincerely lament; and it is our earnest request that this testimony of our abhorrence of such scandalous and unjustifiable behaviour may stand recorded to the latest posterity. Renouncing therefore, thus openly, all fellowship with the men of this complexion, permit us, Sire, with all humility, to approach your throne with our most faithful assurances of an unalienable attachment to your Majesty's person, and of our most hearty concurrence in the prosecution of such measures as, in your royal wisdom, you shall think proper to adopt, for the suppression of the present outrageous commotions abroad, for the restoration of peace and good order at home, for the maintaining a due regard to the authority of the Legislature, and for the support of our admirable Constitution, both in Church and State.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF EXETER.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of the City of Exeter, in Chamber assembled, presented to His Majesty by John Rolle Walter, Esq., and Charles Warwick Bampfylde, Esq., their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of the City of EXETER, in Chamber assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most faithful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of the City of Exeter, in Chamber assembled, beg leave to pay our humble duty to your Majesty, and to express our gratitude for the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's Government.

Convinced, as we are, of your Majesty's unwearied and impartial attention to the true interests of all your subjects, we cannot but behold, with infinite concern, the unhappy differences which subsist between this Country and many of your Majesty's Colonies in North-America, where a most unjustifiable resistance hath been made to your Majesty's arms, in open defiance of the legislative authority of Great Britain.

We had our hopes that this misguided people might, ere now, have been reduced to a proper sense of that duty and obedience, by which alone they can be connected with this Country. In what manner this great object is farther to be pursued, is a question on which we presume not to express our sentiments; but relying with confidence on the wisdom, justice, and prudence of your Majesty's counsels, we doubt not but your Majesty, zealous of the honour of your Crown, and deeply interested in the welfare of all your people, will act with firmness, and adopt such measures as may most effectually tend to the establishment of peace, consistent with the support of that general principle on which the declaratory act is founded.

Far be it from us, however, to circumscribe the bounty of Government; may every constitutional, every favourable indulgence be extended towards them. We are anxious that your Majesty's subjects should be all heartily and sincerely united in that dutiful obedience to your Majesty and the Legislature of Great Britain, which constitutes the true strength of this great Empire.

That a just and perfect reconciliation may soon take place, is our most ardent wish. But should the unhappy contest be farther prolonged, and America, still contending for independence, obstinately continue to reject all reasonable offers of accommodation, we conceive they will one day feel the loss they have sustained, when, from having been deluded by their seditious leaders, they shall become a prey to their Armies and their own intestine animosities; and shall then find, by sad experience, that peace, and happiness, and liberty, are only to be secured to them by the protecting power of this Country.

That your Majesty may long reign over a loyal, happy, and united people, is our most earnest and constant prayer.

Given under our common seal, this 25th day of September, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE MAGISTRATES, ETC., OF KIRKCUDBRIGHT.

Address of the Magistrates and Council of the Burgh of Kirkcudbright, presented to His Majesty by William Douglas, Esq., their Representative in Parliament.

Kirkcudbright, September 25, 1775.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Magistrates and Council of the Burgh of Kirkcudbright, deeply sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and just government, humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty of our abhorrence of that daring spirit of licentiousness, so much encouraged and fomented by wicked and designing persons in different parts of your Empire, hurtful to the State, and destructive of that true constitutional liberty, under which all good subjects live contented and happy. And that it is with concern and indignation we observe the baneful influence of this spirit upon many of your American subjects, now in a state of actual rebellion, and openly avowing a revolt from that natural connection and dependance, which all the Colonies ought necessarily to have with and upon the Parent State; a rebellion as wicked and flagitious as it is unprovoked and ungrateful. We therefore humbly request your Majesty's most gracious acceptance of this testimony of our affection and attachment to your Majesty's person, family, and Government, and pray that such measures may be pursued, by the wisdom of your Majesty and your Parliament, as may most speedily and effectually restore and support obedience to the laws, and peace, union, and prosperity, in your Majesty's wide-extended Kingdoms; over which, unimpaired by foreign or domestick foes, may your Majesty, and your illustrious house, reign glorious to latest posterity.

MATT. BUCHANAN, Provost.

London, September 26, 1775.

Yesterday, at Hicks's Hall, there were about thirty of the Justices present, Sir John Hawkins, Chairman. He declared the motive of calling them together was to consider of an Address to the Throne, expressing their loyalty and attachment to the present Government, and readiness to support whatever steps were thought expedient, for reducing the Colonies to a proper sense of their duty. The measure met with the approbation of all present.

The following is the Address, which was unanimously agreed to, and will be presented to His Majesty on Friday next.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

We, your loyal and dutiful subjects, resident in this opulent County, sensible of the blessings which we derive from your Majesty's mild and gracious Government, during which justice has been administered with an impartiality unknown to former ages, and under which every subject has felt himself protected in the enjoyment of all those benefits which are the ultimate end of civil institutions to ensure, humbly presume to address your Majesty at a crisis which we conceive to be a most important one, and such as is not to be paralleled in the history of this or any other Country.

We look back with awful reverence on that period, towards the end of the last century, when, by a revolution, from which it were impiety to exclude the interposition of Divine Providence, the bounds of regal authority, and the measures of civil subjection, were mutually adjusted and ascertained upon principles coeval with, and interwoven in the very Constitution of this Country.

To those genuine patriots and friends of religious and civil liberty, the actors in that noble cause, we at this day owe it, that persecution is banished to the realms of despotism; that illegal restraints of civil liberty are guarded against; that the ancient powers of Parliaments, over every part of the British Dominions, are recognised; and the supreme legislative authority, by a wise and happy temperate of various interests, declared to reside in the three estates, of King, Lords, and Commons.

Reflecting on the above auspicious event, and the numerous benefits that have followed from it, we seek in vain for the motives of that unnatural rebellion in North-America, into which the inhabitants of some of the Provinces thereof, not less by the artifices of a disappointed and impotent faction, than their own aversion to our religious and civil Constitution, have been precipitated.

To attain the ends of a lawless association, which aims at nothing less than an independence on the Mother Country, that would draw down destruction on their own heads, the legal government of the Colonies, now in rebellion, has been extorted by and transferred to those whose regard for the publick is absorbed in the hope of private gain, in the prosecution of their traitorous purposes. The hostilities originally commenced by the Americans have been continued in a manner practised only by savages; and, in the conduct of a war, in which, with unhallowed lips, they implore the Divine blessing, we behold, with equal amazement and horror, the violation of those rules of war to which humanity and the practices of all civilized nations have given a sanction.

Miseries greater, if possible, than those of a war thus conducted on the part of our enemies, have been denounced against the Mother Country by its rebellious sons, who, by resolutions of non-importation, have endeavoured to cut off the sources of our wealth, and, by the dread of famine, to stimulate the industrious manufacturers of this Kingdom to oppose the power which has been their constant support. But, thanks be to God, the flourishing condition of our trade, the quick circulation of wealth, the state of publick credit, and the amazing increase of buildings and mercantile improvements, which present themselves to our eyes in every part of this Country, are evident proofs of the futility of all such attempts, as they are of the flourishing state of the Kingdom in general.

With very little attention to the merits of the dispute, and without being able to controvert that fundamental principle of civil society, that protection and allegiance are reciprocal, the Colonies resist the payment of taxes which their preservation has made necessary—founding their pretended exemption, not on reason, equity, or natural justice, but upon the construction of those grants to which the Colonies owe their political existence. The rights, whatever they are, which the Americans claim, are founded in charters from time to time granted by your Majesty's royal predecessors, under proper limitations and restrictions, and with savings in favour of the legislative authority of this Kingdom. With the greatest professions of zeal for liberty do these insatuated people exalt the regal into arbitrary power; and from principles of law and logick, which are now for the first time advanced, contend that the acts of the aggregate legislative body are of less force to bind the subjects than those of an integral part thereof; and with all insidious arts of adulation, your Majesty is courted to accept of that absolute power which you have uniformly disclaimed, as well by the whole tenour of your conduct, as by refusing the means of preserving the supremacy of this Country over the Colonies, to the great council of the Nation.

For this singular instance of moderation, as for every other benefit which we derive from your Majesty's paternal care and watchful regard for our interests, receive, most gracious Sovereign, the sincere and humble acknowledgments of us, your Majesty's loyal and faithful subjects; and as the merciful forbearance, hitherto shown to the Colonies in rebellion, would, if farther extended, be injurious to the interests of the whole British Empire, accept also this tender of every assistance, which we are capable of rendering, towards establishing the authority of the British Legislature over its Colonies and dependencies; while, with unfeigned zeal, we supplicate the Supreme Disposer of all events for prosperity on the wise and lenient, but steady counsels which are resolved on, and we doubt not will be pursued, for effectuating this important and necessary purpose.

MEETING OF THE FREEHOLDERS OF MIDDLESEX.

London, September 26, 1775.

Yesterday, near five hundred Freeholders of the County of Middlesex met at the Mile End Assembly-Room, agreeably to notice from the Sheriffs, in the publick papers. About one o'clock, Mr. Sheriff Plomer took the chair, and, in a very sensible speech, told them they were convened at the request of some respectable Freeholders, to take into consideration the critical and alarming situation of this Country, and strongly recommended to them to proceed in their arguments with loyalty to their King, a love for the Constitution, and decency and respect to each other, as the surest way to give efficacy to their resolutions.

Mr. Mascall then stood up, and attempted to harangue on the miserable predicament Administration had brought this Country into, but was interrupted by Mr. Pell, a Middlesex Justice, who objected to the propriety of Mr. Mascall's speech. Mr. Wilmott, another Middlesex Justice, begged the Sheriff would declare the names of the Freeholders who requested that meeting; but it being reprobated by other gentlemen, the Sheriff put the question, whether he should declare the requisitors or not; which was carried in the negative, by a great majority. This leading question being determined, Mr. Mascall resumed his harangue, without interruption, wherein he declaimed against the Ministry, for their late acts respecting America; their sending armed legions of Englishmen there, to cut the throats of Englishmen; their endeavouring to subvert the Constitution; and concluded with making a motion to instruct their Members on the present alarming situation, and held a paper in his hand, which contained instructions to be read to that assembly, for their approbation or negation. Mr. Pell, with a good deal of ingenuity, acknowledged he loved to see the commendable warmth of an Englishman in the gentleman who spoke last; but, as the Parliament was very soon to meet, and he made no doubt with a disposition to hearken to all honourable accommodations with America, he could wish to postpone all instructions to their Representatives, till the sense of the Parliament was known; and observed, that the Right Honourable Member (the Lord Mayor) who was present possibly would not like to go shackled with additional instructions into the great Assembly of the nation; that his Lordship had before made those publick declarations, which he had most faithfully performed, and made no doubt of his Lordship's continuing the steady patriot on all occasions. In the course of his speech he gave oblique hints of the Lord Mayor's being acquainted with the intended Resolutions; and concluded with declaring that he was not in the secrets of Administration, neither was he influenced by any party; that though he was a Middlesex Justice, he defied any man to say he ever took a dirty shilling, or suffered his clerk to take one for him. Upon the whole, this gentleman spoke with a great deal of ingenuity, though mixed with a great deal of sophistry. On this, the Lord Mayor arose, and declared he had no hand in the intended instructions; but if they were carried in that assembly, he would most implicitly obey them, as he thought it his indispensable duty to support the sentiments of his constituents, even if they dissented from his own; and observed, the King called the Commons in Parliament, not to know the sentiments of the delegated Members, but that of their constituents, the people of the Kingdom at large. This declaration was received with bursts of applause; after which, the question was called, to know whether the instructions should be read; which was carried, by a great majority. The instructions were then read, and were as follows:

We, the Freeholders of the County of Middlesex, summoned here by publick advertisement of the Sheriff of this County, acknowledge our approbation and grateful sense of your conduct as our Representatives, during the last session of Parliament; and though we have no reason to doubt your steady perseverance in the true interests of your Country, yet we think it our indispensable duty to acquaint you with our sentiment at the present awful crisis, big with the fate of this great Empire, and the happiness, glory, and prosperity of the whole people.

We behold, with all the horror and grief natural to a free people, the fatal stab given to our excellent Constitution, by a majority of the last venal Parliament, whereby the most sacred and unalienable right of the Freeholders of this County, the right of election, was in the most impious manner wrested from the electors, and assumed by the elected, who placed a person as our Representative in Parliament, contrary to the sense and will of the County, expressed by a very great majority of legal votes, thereby establishing a precedent of the most dangerous tendency to the rights of all the electors of Great Britain; which injury has been again confirmed, by the malice of our inveterate enemies, in the present Parliament (chosen by surprise, under a national delusion) suffering that vote to appear in their journals, a standing record of the injustice, venality, and corruption, of their predecessors.

We are called upon to redouble our attention and zeal for the defence and preservation of all our constitutional rights, from seeing the iron hand of oppression extended to our fellow-subjects on the other side of the Atlantick; Popery, that bane of civil and religious liberty, established in an extent of country infinitely larger than all our possessions in Europe, thereby arming, as it were, many of our fellow-subjects, with a crucifix in one hand and a dagger in the other, against our Protestant brethren; a Popish Bishop appointed, and the greatest comfort and encouragement given to the clergy of that church, while the pastors of our pure and excellent faith are suffered to remain without support and provision, but what Romish priests and Romish councils shall deign to afford them; other cruel and oppressive acts passed against our fellow-subjects in America, wholly repugnant to the ancient just and generous proceedings of British Councils and British Assemblies; destructive of that glory of the English law, the trial by jury, and many other undoubted rights and privileges of English subjects; in violation of charters and royal covenants of the most solemn nature: which acts and oppressions, under the influence of the present Ministers, have been productive of a most impolitic, unnatural, cruel, and destructive civil war, against our suffering and much injured fellow-subjects in America.

We lament, as a commercial people, the inevitable injuries that must be sustained by the loss of a most valuable branch of our commerce, the decay of trade and manufactures, and consequent distresses of the industrious poor.

To remedy all these evils, the melancholy experience of past times evinceth how insufficient is the removal of a Ministry, while their maxims and views are entailed upon the Government. We desire that you will not only continue strenuously to oppose them, but endeavour to procure us such constitutional security, by shortening the duration of Parliaments, and enacting such other laws as may prevent the nation from suffering by the like errors and iniquities for the future.

And we instruct you to exert yourselves in procuring that vote of the late House of Commons to be rescinded, which, in the most injurious and unconstitutional manner, deprived the Freeholders of this County of their undoubted right of election.

We also instruct you to forward an inquiry into the expenditure of the publick treasure, so peculiarly necessary at this time, and in a nation burdened with taxes and oppressed with debts; that you will not suffer the people to be imposed upon by the flimsy artifices of a Minister, pretending to lessen, while he is in reality increasing, the publick burdens.

Should any additional land-tax or new imposts be proposed in the ensuing session, we expect that you will not assent to them without a previous redress of grievances; and that you will strenuously oppose all votes of credit, or taking any foreign troops into the pay of Great Britain, unless another attempt should be made by the Tories and Jacobites, against His Majesty's person, family, or Government.

The state of the Navy, that great bulwark, safety, and protection of the commerce of this nation, demands, and we hope will engage, your serious attention; and that you will inquire by what fatal mismanagement and corrupt influence, after such immense sums have been voted during a peace establishment, that it is in its present deplorable condition.

We particularly instruct you to exert yourselves in preventing the farther effusion of the blood of our innocent fellow-subjects in America, and to put a speedy end to the present unnatural and ruinous civil war.

We also desire you to use your unwearied endeavours to assist and support the Representatives of the City of London, for obtaining a repeal of every obnoxious and unconstitutional act, and in bringing to the justice of their Country the advisers of such nefarious measures as have been adopted during the last fourteen years, tending to subvert the Constitution of this Country, and which we are convinced will very soon effect the ruin and destruction of the British Empire.

This motion for instructing the Members being carried in behalf of Publick Liberty, it was then moved, "That a Letter should be addressed from the Freeholders of Middlesex to those of Great Britain." The Letter was read, and the motion "That it be addressed to the Freeholders of Great Britain" passed. The Letter is verbatim as follows:

A Letter from the Freeholders of MIDDLESEX to the Freeholders of GREAT BRITAIN.

The perilous situation of publick affairs, and the calamities which threaten the whole Empire, are the reasons, and we hope will be a sufficient apology for our addressing you.

The vote of the late House of Commons, by which a Representative was forced upon us, to the immediate violation of our rights, and the eventual injury of those of all the electors in the Kingdom, remains yet on record. It remains as a precedent against the most sacred and fundamental franchise of the people, to authorize the same violence, by Ministers as arbitrary and Representatives as corrupt.

We trust, Gentlemen, that you will not cease to co-operate with us till that dangerous and shameful record be condemned and done away in the most solemn and effectual manner.

The present state of America is such as ought to give the deepest alarm and concern to every man who regards the rights of human nature, the liberties of Englishmen, and the happiness and safety of the whole Empire. The arbitrary and inhuman conduct of the present Administration has driven our most affectionate American fellow-subjects into despair and resistance. Seven years' supplication for a redress of their grievances has been answered by an army to enforce them. Their petition last year to the King implored peace, liberty, and safety. In return they received acts of the most inhuman restraints and open hostilities, in the desolation of their Country, the destruction of their People, and the conflagration of their Towns. They have again besought His Majesty, in a late humble petition, "to stop the farther effusion of blood, and to direct some mode by which he would be pleased to receive the united proofs of their devotion, as most dutiful subjects and most affectionate Colonists." They declare their most ardent desire that the former harmony between them and the Parent State may be established upon the most lasting foundation. They expressly declare they do not "request such reconciliation as may be in any manner inconsistent with the dignity or welfare of this Country." We cannot conceive what can be offered fairer or fuller on their part.

But the Ministry, it seems, have advised His Majesty to give this petition no answer, and thereby to deprive the petitioners of every hope of redress and reconciliation. They are farther making the most open and extensive preparations for war. Even Roman Catholics are allured and incited to take up arms against our Protestant fellow-subjects. Thus we see these most pernicious measures prosecuted by the worst and most dangerous means.

The immediate injury of such a war to our commerce and manufactures, the consequence of that to the produce of the land, the additional taxes necessary for such distant and expensive operations, must sink this unhappy Country, already overburdened with the enormity of her debt, into unavoidable ruin. Upon the land must the whole expense ultimately fall. Upon the landholders, then, it is especially incumbent to use their utmost influence in stopping the course of this unnatural and fatal war.

The Americans have repeatedly appealed to the justice and humanity of their fellow-subjects in Great Britain. We hope such an appeal will never be made in vain. We lament the fate of those brave British soldiers who have been sacrificed in so inglorious and hateful a contest. We are persuaded our fellow-subjects in America are contending in the cause of liberty, and are cruelly oppressed. We will never willingly aid in urging the oppression, or trampling upon the rights of any part of the dominions. We cannot see any probable consequence from the prosecution of this Ministerial war, but misery, shame, and ruin to the whole Empire.

Upon these principles, we have instructed our Representatives in Parliament. Upon these principles, Gentlemen, we wish for your co-operation, in establishing liberty, peace, and harmony, through all His Majesty's Dominions.

The following Resolutions were then passed, and carried with loud plaudits of approbation:

That the thanks of the Freeholders assembled be given to the Right Honourable the Earl of Effingham, the soldier and citizen, for having refused to draw his sword against the majesty of the people and the rights of his fellow-subjects, in acting up to the principles which he professed.

That the thanks of this meeting be given to the Sheriffs, for their readiness in calling the meeting.

The meeting was then adjourned.

C. SHIRREFF TO MAJOR WILLIAM SHIRREFF.

St. Augustine, September 25, 1775.

MY DEAR MAJOR: By Captain Lain, who has just arrived from Virginia with another transport to carry the remainder of the Fourteenth to that part, tells me he forwarded my letters to you I sent by him, which I hope you received. He has now brought us news and letters from the officers of the Fourteenth, in Boston, to those here; and being informed you are wounded, and not having a line from you or any friend, causes me great pain, and I am distressed not a little about your welfare, &c. I wish myself often with my friends in the Forty-Fifth, who I hear are with you. As things have since fell out, I should have got a Company; and had I now my choice, I would sooner be in that station, and have a brush every day, than remain in oblivion here. And as we have been long threatened to be visited by our Georgia neighbours, it is now expected they will put their scheme into execution, take the powder, and burn the barracks and Town. And, in consequence of withdrawing the Troops from here, those people that fled here for protection, and all our merchants, intend not to trust to the lenity of a mob, but move off with their families and effects to the West-Indies. We are already distressed sufficiently; and, when this takes place, the Lord only knows what we shall do. This Colony will be knocked up. No sign of any Companies, as yet, from Pensacola; and as for the necessities of life, we shall fare bad; our planters minding their indigo, and neither raise corn nor rice; and this we used to have from Charlestown and New-York, but now is at an end. I sincerely wish these troubles were at an end, for they very materially affect every individual.

Your ever obliged and affectionate brother,

Major William Shirreff, Boston.

C. SHIRREFF.

C. SHIRREFF TO GENERAL ROBERTSON.

St. Augustine, September 25, 1775.

SIR: An opportunity now offering, I embrace it to acquaint you that on the first detachment going from this to Virginia, I delivered, by order of Major Furlong, to them, forty blankets; and these now going will also be supplied complete with bedding; but as the order will not come out till they just go on board, I shall not, in this, be able to tell you the quantity sent. I have, by order of the Governour, delivered him a return of all my stores; and, as my Brigade-

Major commission mentions, I am to follow such orders as I shall receive from him, &c., I imagine any thing he desires must be done; but this is the first instance I ever knew of a Governour interfering with a Brigade-Major's duty; and I shall be glad to know your sentiments on this head, and any directions you send me will be complied with.

Our neighbours in Georgia are now full as bad as any of the other Colonies; and our powder, &c., in the fort, they threaten us to come and take, destroy the garrison, and burn the barracks and Town. And it is much dreaded, as our Troops are to be removed from us, they will put their scheme in execution. And our merchants here, and all those that have come here for safety, the instant we have no Troops, will go off to the West-Indies; and those that remain will have a bad time of it, as our supplies are all out, and none allowed to come to us. And our planters here mind nothing but raising indigo and Indian corn, which used to be sold for two shillings and three pence, but is now seven shillings per bushel.

The Companies from Pensacola are not arrived, and not the least account of them yet. Candles we shall much want, having little more than one box.

I am in some trouble, at present, on account of my brother, whom I hear is wounded; and not receiving a line from you, or any friend with you, adds much to my uneasiness. And in this place you hear nothing; it is the most miserable hole I ever was in. A man should be well paid that lives in it. Could I have foreseen what has since happened, before I left the Army, I should at this day have been with my corps at Boston, and have had a Company, as I was so old a Lieutenant, which I should have liked much better than the office I now hold in its present state. But could I get paid as Fort Adjutant, I should then be happy; for at present my income barely serves half the demands absolutely necessary for sustenance. But I am in hopes, with your assistance and that of other friends, I may get my pay augmented, as there are many instances that a Brigade-Major has five shillings, and a Town Adjutant four shillings per diem.

This comes to you by a Mr. Cameron, who is esteemed here; and being ill-used in Charlestown, &c., is now determined to be at Boston, and offer himself to the Commander-in-Chief as a volunteer, in hopes of getting in time an Ensigny.

I hope you received my letters with the return sent you by the schooner that brought us here; and hope, when you favour me with a line, you will be pleased to inform me of those matters I wrote you about.

I have one favour to beg, viz: that you will particularly send me some instructions, that I may know how to act. At present, the orders from you and the Commander-in-Chief are so misconstrued, on account of a Sergeant being in office, that it will be necessary to have fresh instructions, with proper orders, that I may well understand the line I am to act in. One minute I receive orders from the Governour, the next from the commanding officer; that, in short, at present, I have a difficult card to play in order to please all, which I shall ever endeavour to do, if it is with propriety.

These commotions, at present subsisting in the Colonies, give me pain; and, believe me, particularly so when they are the cause of separating (those you must hold most dear) your family from you. My fervent prayers are, that these troubles may soon end, with honour to our most gracious Sovereign George the Third, and with every liberty that is consistent with reason his subjects should enjoy.

May this find you in health is my fervent prayer. Excuse all imperfections, as I am in a hurry to get this on board. Your friendship I value; and I have only time to add that I am, Sir, your very obedient and very humble servant,

C. SHIRREFF.

P. S. Since writing the above, I have received an order from Major Furlong for the following articles out of my stores; and, agreeable to Gov. Tonyn's orders, I waited on him to know whether I was to comply with it. After pressing a little, he desired me to let the Troops have them. And when the remainder go away they must also be supplied; and as they take nothing but what is fit for service, by viewing the return I sent you, you will see what is remaining fit for service. I have, by order, now delivered eighty-two beds, eighty-two bolsters, eighty-two pair of sheets, sixty-two pair of blankets, and twenty pair before, making eighty-two, and twenty iron pots. We are now extremely bad off for supplies; nothing to be had. I shall do my best about candles; unless some come speedily from you, I must buy some.

Return of Provisions in the King's Stores at St. AUGUSTINE, SEPTEMBER 21, 1775:

511 barrels of Flour; 407 barrels of Pork; 8 tierces of Beef; 4 tierces of Rice; 37 firkins of Butter; 193 bushels of Peas.

Return of Provision shipped with a Detachment of the Fourteenth Regiment ordered to VIRGINIA, SEPTEMBER 21, 1775:

59 barrels of Flour; 33 barrels of Pork; 11 firkins of Butter; 77 bushels of Peas.

ALEXANDER SKINNER,

Deputy Commissary of Stores and Provisions.

I imagined Major Furlong would have taken six months' provisions, but he has taken not near so much.

A Talk from the Honourable WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON, Esq., one of the beloved Men of SOUTH-CAROLINA, to the beloved Men, Headmen, and Warriours of the Cherokee Nation, at the CONGAREES, SEPTEMBER 25, 1775.

Friends and Brother Warriours:

I take you by the hand, in witness of the peace and friendship which has so long subsisted between your brothers, the white people of this country, and you and your people; and I hold your hand fast, in testimony that your brothers, the white people, wish that our peace and friendship with you and your people may continue.

I sent a talk to you, in your nation, to desire that you would come to see me at the Congarees, in order that we might talk together face to face. When I sent to you, I thought to have been here before you could have arrived; but some of our people did not understand the things about which I intend to speak to you, and to explain which to them I came into the country; my stay among those people was therefore longer than I expected. This being the case, I make no doubt but that you will readily excuse my absence, which I assure you was as disagreeable to myself as it could possibly be to you.

I sent to you to come to me, that I might explain to you the causes of the unhappy quarrel between a part of the people in Great Britain, and your brothers, the white people living in America; also, that I might tell you why our people have put on their shot-pouches, and hold their rifles in their hands.

The causes of this unhappy quarrel are very plain, as you will see as I go on with my talk; but in order that you may see them, and understand them clearly, I must first talk of the time before any of our white people came to this Country, and what was then done.

Before our forefathers left England, they made an agreement with the Great King, that when they came to America, they, and their children after them, should then continue to have and enjoy the same rights and privileges that the people of England, who you know were their own brothers, did actually enjoy; and to this agreement the Great King put his hand and seal, and declared that all the Great Kings after him should be bound by the agreement he had made.

Now, in consequence of this agreement, your brothers, the white people in America, say the money they have in their pockets is their own, and the Great King has no right whatsoever to send or to order any officers to take this money, or any part of it, out of our pockets, or to make any laws to bind us, but by our own consent, given by our wise men, whom we ourselves elect and appoint to make laws for us. And we say so for this plain and good reason: because the Great King has no right to send any officers to take any money out of the pockets of our brothers, the people of England, or to bind them by any laws but by their own consent, given by their wise men, whom they themselves elect and appoint to make laws for them; for as this is the right and privilege of our brothers in England, so this agreement declares we have the same right and privilege.

But, notwithstanding these things, the men about the Great King have persuaded him that he and the men in England, whom we never elected and appointed to make laws for us, have a right to take our money out of our pockets, without our consent, and to make laws to drag us away from our own Country, across the great water, and all this without asking us any thing about the matter, and violently against our consent and good-liking. And unjust and wicked as all this is, yet this is not the worst part of their usage to us. They have, by other laws, broken our agreement in whatever particular part they pleased; and these men about the Great King have so teased and persuaded him, that the Great King and the men in England, whom, as I told you before, we never appointed to make laws for us, have made one law which says the Great King and those men have a right to bind us, by laws of their making, in all cases whatsoever; which is as much as to say they have a right to treat us, and every thing belonging to us, just as they please; and this, you know, is as much as to say they have a right to take all our money, all our lands, all our cattle and horses, and such things; and not only all such things, but our wives and children, in order to make servants of them; and, besides all these things, to put us in strong houses,* and to put us to death whenever they please.

Friends and Brother Warriours:

Is it not now as plain as the sight at the end of your rifles, that these laws and proceedings are like so many hatchets chopping our agreement to pieces? Are not these unjust things enough to make us put on our shot-pouches? and especially when we find that our brothers over the great water will not only not hearken to the many good talks which we have sent them about these matters, but have really sent over people to take the hatchet up against us.

Oh, my brother Warriours, it is a lamentable thing that our brothers beyond the great water should use us in this cruel manner. If they use us, their own flesh and blood, in this unjust way, what must you expect; you who are red people; you whom they never saw; you whom they know only by the hearing of the ear; you who have fine lands? You see, by their treatment to us, that agreements, even under hand and seal, go as nothing with them. Think of these things, my friends, and reflect upon them day and night.

Having told you that the men about the Great King persuaded him that he and the men in England have a right to take our money out of our pockets, without our consent, I must now tell you the contrivances they have fallen upon to take this money, whether we will or not. In order to take this money from us, they have ordered that we must pay a duty upon this and that thing, that we are accustomed to purchase; which is as much as to say that upon those things we purchase, we must pay to the Great King, against our consent, a sum of money above the real value of those things. And, in particular, they ordered that if we drink tea, we must pay so much money to the Great King. I must tell you this tea is somewhat like your black drink. But as we know that this order is contrary to our agreement, and also as we know the evil consequences of our paying this money, so your brothers, the white people in America, have resolved that they will not pay it; and therefore the men about the Great King have persuaded him to send soldiers to Boston; and we are told some are coming here to force the people here to give their money without their consent, and thereby to give up their rights and privileges, which are mentioned in the agreement.

Some foolish people say it is better to pay this money for the tea, than to go to war about it. But I tell you it is not about this money alone that we quarrel, for the money itself we do not regard as two corn-stalks, but we are afraid bad consequences will follow if we pay the money, as I will show you directly.

We find that the men in England talk among themselves, that they intend to make us in America pay to them a great sum of money every year. The way they intend to raise this money is, as I have told you already, by making us pay a duty upon this and that thing that we are accustomed to purchase. Now, this duty upon tea brings in but a very small part of that great sum of money they want to make us pay to them; and, therefore, we refuse to pay this money for the tea, lest, if we paid it, they would be encouraged to go on, time after time, to lay duties upon a great many other things which we are accustomed to purchase, in order that they may at last get from us that great sum of money which they want, and which, perhaps, is all we have. By which means, as your brothers, the white people, will be obliged to give more money than usual for those blankets, strouds, checks, linens, guns, powder, paint, and rum, with which you are supplied, so, if money is thus taken out of our pockets, without our consent and against our agreement, it is plain and certain that you and your people must pay two and three deer skins for those goods which you used to purchase of the traders for one deer skin. And thus you see that we do not quarrel only upon our own account, but that we have put on our shot-pouches not only to preserve our money, but also to preserve your deer skins.

* Among Indians, strong houses mean prisons,

Friends and Brother Warriours:

I have now told you the causes of our unhappy quarrel with the men over the great water. I hope your eyes are now opened, and that you see plainly that your interest is as much concerned in this quarrel as our interest; and that you also see that we have put on our shot-pouches, and have taken up our rifles, only to defend our rights and privileges according to the agreement, and, by so doing, to defend your deer skins against those who wish to rob you of them. Therefore, as your people and our people were born upon and live in the same land; as we are old acquaintances, and have thereby contracted a regard for each other; as our interest in this quarrel is the same, for the men over the great water cannot take our money, against our consent, without taking your deer skins also; as you see that no agreement is kept with us, so you cannot expect to be better treated by men who want all that you and ourselves have. I say, as all these things show you, that if we are hurt, you must be hurt also; if we lose, you must lose also; so I tell you, in time, that you and ourselves ought to join together, in order to save all of us from being hurt, or from losing, or from falling. Let us, therefore, exert ourselves—you at your end of the chain of peace, and we at our end—in order that we may keep this chain bright and shining. So shall we act to each other like brothers; so shall we be able to support and assist each other against our common enemies; so shall we be able to stand together, in perfect safety, against those evil men who in the end mean to ruin you, as well as ourselves, who are their own flesh and blood.

I am informed that you have been told that your brothers, the white people in Charlestown, used you ill when they seized some ammunition which your traders intended to have sent you. It is true, my friends, that we did seize this ammunition; and I tell you that your brothers, the white people, seized it with great concern, because they knew their seizing it would in some degree distress you. But I tell you, also, the men about the Great King are the only persons to be blamed in this affair; for, as we found that these men persuaded the Great King to send soldiers against us, and to stop all kinds of ammunition from coming to us as usual, in order that we should not be able to defend ourselves, so these men about the Great King, by this proceeding, compelled us to seize such ammunition, for our defence, as came among us by accident; and accordingly we greedily seized the ammunition that was intended for your hunting, in order to have in our hands the means of defending our lives, our money, and your deer skins, as I told you before, against our oppressors. And this behaviour of ours was so natural and just, that we knew that when we came to talk to you on the matter, you would think we did nothing but what was just, and what you would have done had you been in our situation. However, the ammunition that was seized was intended to be sold to you; but, to show you that we regard you as brothers, we intend to make you a present of some. We wish we were able to give you as much as your occasions require; but as the Great King has so ordered it that we cannot get much for ourselves, and as we expect to fight our enemies, therefore we cannot afford to give you much of what we have. I know your good sense will inform you that this is perfectly reasonable, and that we ought not to give away so much ammunition as would leave us, and you also, exposed to enemies, who, as I told you before, cannot hurt us without hurting you also.

It is a concern to us when we reflect that the present quarrel occasions a scarcity of goods in your nation. But goods are scarce with us also, and we submit to this inconvenience cheerfully, rather than purchase those goods, which, if we did purchase, would strengthen the hands of our oppressors against us. We hope our example will encourage you to suffer this scarcity as patiently as we do. When the publick peace shall be restored, by our rights and privileges being restored to us; and when we can purchase goods, without any risk of paying for them more than they are worth, by paying duties upon them, contrary to our consent, contrary to our agreement, and contrary to our and to your interest, then will you, and your children after you, be plentifully supplied again as usual. In the mean time, we advise you to be patient. And to show you that we look upon you as brothers, and that we will give you all the friendly aid, assistance, and supplies, in our power, I say, as a token of this, I take the coat off my own back, and I give it to you. For my part, in this unhappy time, I will be content to wear an osnaburgh split-shirt.

I hear that one of your people has lately been killed, and that two others were at the same time wounded, by some of the white people on the ceded lands in Georgia. I feel great grief at this news. Mr. Wilkinson is just come from Esseneca, and has brought me a talk from the warriors and headmen, who were, nine days ago, assembled at that Town, in council, upon the occasion of this bad news. In this talk the warrior Sawney says, he and the other warriors remember that, in the last treaty of peace, it was agreed that if any white man should be killed by their people, the perpetrators of the murder should be put to death; and that the same satisfaction should be given by the white people, in case one of your people should be murdered by ours. Sawney also says that the warriors and beloved men will wait to see if this will be complied with or not; and in the mean time they will not think of resentment, or of saying any thing to lessen our friendship. The warrior Chenesto also sends a good talk, and says he does not desire to break the line of friendship which the beloved men, who are dead and gone, drew between us. These talks sound well in my ears; and, in return to these good talks, I tell you that this matter shall, with all possible speed, be inquired into; and if the white people have done wrong, and, without provocation, have killed your countryman, you may be assured that those white people, who were concerned in such a wicked and black affair, shall be punished, and thereby your people will have satisfaction according to the treaty. I desire you will tell the relations of the poor man who has been killed, how much I am concerned at their loss. I am told that he has left a widow and children. I give these presents, and I desire you will carry them to the unfortunate widow, in order to show her that all the white people in this country pity her misfortune.

Friends and Brother Warriors :

This talk I give to you as a talk of peace and friendship; as a talk to open your eyes; and as a good talk, from all the beloved men and white people of this country, to you and your beloved men, and all the red men of your nation. I give you this talk as so much oil, to keep the chain of peace and friendship between us bright and shining, like the sun. And as in the corn-planting season the sun warms the earth, and makes the corn to sprout and to grow for the good of the people, so I hope this talk will warm your hearts, and make thoughts of friendship and good-will sprout and grow in you and your people, for the mutual good of our people and of your nation.

SUSSEX COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of the County of Sussex, at the Court-House, the 25th day of September, 1775, Michael Blow, Esq., Chairman of this Committee, being charged with expressions inimical to the common cause of America, moved that he might leave the chair, to make his defence against so heavy a charge, which, by the unanimous consent of this Committee, he did; and Doctor Thomas Peete, by the unanimous vote of this Committee, was placed therein. Whereupon, the said Michael Blow, Esq., appeared, and with great candour informed this Committee, that true it is, that in private conversations with many persons, he had unguardedly, but with no design or intention to prejudice our most noble and just stand against the designs of a tyrannical, wicked, and vepal Administration and Parliament, expressed his disapprobation of some particulars of the proceedings of the late Convention held at Richmond, particularly in regard to the wages of the officers of the intended forces to be raised, and the resolutions that took place on the petition of certain Britons; but declared, upon his honour, that he had no intention, in his said conversations, any ways to inflame the minds of the people, and was extremely sorry to find it had been so construed. Whereupon, after mature deliberation,

It was unanimously Resolved, That this Committee, from a retrospective view of the conduct of the said Michael Blow, Esquire, and the zeal he hath shown in the common cause, are satisfied that the said Michael Blow, Esq., in his said conversations, had no intentions inimical to the good of the common cause, and therefore do recommend it to all persons to consider him as a zealous friend to American liberty; and that this resolution be published in the several Virginia Gazettes.

THOMAS PEETE, Chairman.

CHESTER COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, Chester County, September 25, 1775.

Whereas some persons, evidently inimical to the liberty of America, have industriously propagated a report, "That the Military Associators of this County, in conjunction with the Associators in general, intend to overturn the Constitution, by declaring an independency, in the execution of which they are to be aided by this Committee, and the Board of Commissioners and Assessors, with the arms now making for this County;" and as such report could not originate but among the worst of men, for the worst of purposes, this Committee have therefore thought proper to declare, and they do hereby declare, their abhorrence even of an idea so pernicious in its nature, as they ardently wish for nothing more than a happy and speedy reconciliation, on constitutional principles, with that State from whom they derive their origin.

By order of the Committee:

ANTHONY WAYNE, Chairman.

This Committee do recommend it to the inhabitants of each Township within this County, to meet at their usual place or places for holding elections in the same, on Wednesday, the 11th of October instant, at two o'clock in the afternoon, in order to choose one or more Committee-Men, to represent them in Committee for the ensuing year; and the Committee so chosen are desired to meet at the house of David Cowpland, in the Borough of Chester, on Monday, the 23d of said month, at ten o'clock, A. M.

The Committee then adjourned until Monday, the 2d of October, to meet in the Borough of Chester, at nine o'clock, A. M., at which time and place the members of this Committee are desired to attend.

By order of the Committee:

FRANCIS JOHNSTON, Secretary.

New-York, September 25, 1775.

On Tuesday evening, the Amboy stage boat, in returning to this City with passengers, was brought to by the Asia man-of-war's boat, and Captain Tiley, an officer belonging to General Wooster's Regiment, taken out and carried on board the man-of-war, with a box of papers in his custody; also, three guns, which were on board the stage boat. The pretence for this is said to be the detention of a suspected person, who is on his parole of honour in General Wooster's camp. This person having been observed to follow at a distance a load of powder, on its way to the camp at Cambridge, was taken into custody by the riflemen, and carried to General Washington, who, not finding any evidence against him, sent him to General Wooster, who, at his request, permitted Captain Tiley to go for him to Bordentown, for a box of papers, which he said would clear his character, and prove him to be a true friend to the liberties of America. It is imagined that on his intelligence Captain Tiley was detained. If so, it will be but justice to retaliate on him any ill usage Captain Tiley may receive.

COLONEL McDUGALL TO COLONEL LASHER.

New-York, September 25, 1775.

SIR: Last Saturday, several members of the Committee of Safety went to Queen's County, in order to obtain arms, agreeable to the enclosed resolution, without force. I have since been well informed that many persons in that County are in arms, to oppose the execution of the resolution. You are therefore, with your Battalion, to proceed, as soon as possible, to Jamaica, with two or three days' provisions; and if you find any opposition given to the execution of the resolution, by force, in that County, you are to repel force to force, and secure those in arms, and apprehend all such as you shall find, upon good information, have been leaders in opposing the measures of the Continental and Provincial Congresses. But you are to avoid, as much as possible, the effusion of blood; and not to destroy the property of any man, under any pretence whatsoever; nor to offer the least violence to such as shall peaceably submit to the resolution of the Committee of Safety; and in all other respects strictly to regard the said resolution as the rule of your conduct. I am, Sir, your humble servant,

ALEXANDER McDUGALL.

To Colonel John Lasher.

COMMISSIONERS AT THE HIGHLANDS TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Constitution Fort, Monday, September 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We received, last night, a letter from Mr. Berrien, informing us that the plan for building the fortifications, with the estimation of the expenses, was transmitted to the Continental Congress. We should have esteemed ourselves happy, had we been consulted on this subject before it had been sent forward; it was easy for one of our body to have waited upon the Committee of Safety, and have given them full satisfaction relative to the situation of the ground, which it is not possible for them to know by the plan. We conceive that an operation of this kind is intended for the defence of the Colony, and for the advantage of America in general. If we are right in our conjecture, Mr. Romans's plan is not sufficient; it will be only a temporary expedient, to prevent vessels going up the river; and should the fortification fall into the hands of the Ministerial Troops, it will prove the ruin of the Province. Therefore, it was not possible for him to give you any calculation relative to the whole expense, as it will be absolutely necessary to extend the works; and the place, we are convinced, may be made impregnable, and the expense not enormous. It appears to us that it would have been much better to have calculated the amount of what it would cost, than to be obliged hereafter to apply a second time to the Continental Congress. However, we submit our ideas to your judgment; it is our duty to be faithful to the important charge committed to our care. As we will not be answerable for measures we cannot conduct, therefore request the favour of you, gentlemen, to inform us whether we are under Mr. Romans's direction, or whether he is obliged to consult with us upon the measures to be pursued. You cannot blame us for this request, as the safety, honour, and interest of our Country, and its future welfare, depend upon this important post. We think it our duty to give you a hint, which seems to merit your consideration, viz: Governor Tryon, Mr. William Bayard, and Major Bayard, have been up in our neighbourhood. His Excellency did not say any thing, but both the Bayards examined Captain Palmer, our Captain, with great scrutiny, in the presence of his Excellency, about the fortification, the nature of the ground, the state it was in, how many guns were mounted, and how many men we had. This happened on Saturday, at Haverstraw. We shall keep a look out, for we expect them near to us. Will it not be prudent that we should have a guard? The Minute-Men at New-Windsor want powder; they are ready to come to our assistance, if they had it. We ought to have powder and shot for our guns, as we shall mount six this week, nine-pounders.

We are, with respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

SAMUEL BAYARD,
WILLIAM BEDLOW,
JOHN HANSON.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 5, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, September 25, 1775.

SIR: I did myself the honour to address you in a long letter of the 19th, which I hope will come safe to hand.

Last evening I was favoured with a letter from General Montgomery, (copy of which I enclose,) on the contents of which, and on the report of the Indian Deputies, I do myself the pleasure to congratulate the honourable body in which you preside.

I have made some explanatory notes on General Montgomery's letter, which I conceived might be necessary for you. I made a short speech to the Indian Deputies, gave them a present, and they left me in high good humour, and with a very good opinion of our Army.

The vexation of spirit under which I labour, that a barbarous complication of disorders should prevent me from reaping those laurels for which I have so unweariedly wrought since I was honoured with this command; the anxiety I have suffered since my arrival here, lest the Army should starve, occasioned by a scandalous want of subordination, and inattention to my orders in some of the officers that I left to command at the different posts; the vast variety of disagreeable and vexatious incidents that almost every hour arise in some department or other, not only retard my cure, but have put me considerably back for some days past. If Job had been a General in my situation, his memory had not been so famous for patience; but the glorious end we have in view, and which I have a confidential hope will be attained, will atone for all.

The urgent necessity of an immediate supply of gold and silver strikes me so forcibly, that Congress will pardon me if I seem importunate, and entreat them to send what can be got at Philadelphia by express, as none is to be had at Albany.

I have discharged or ordered to be discharged every man that was so ill as to be rendered unfit for farther service during this campaign, and that was able to return to the place of his abode; those that were not, I have sent to the hospital; the former already amount to seven hundred and twenty-six, as per enclosed return.

Should we render ourselves masters of Montreal, I beg leave to suggest that blankets and warm clothing for such Troops as must necessarily remain in Canada will be easier and much cheaper procured there than in any of the other Colonies; and if such an event should take place before I can be honoured with the commands of Congress, I shall take the liberty to order ten thousand pounds worth to be immediately purchased, as no loss can possibly be sustained by the publick, even should it not be wanted; there being, I dare say, a number of individuals in the Colonies that would readily take them.

I am, Sir, with the warmest wishes for your happiness, and that of Congress, your most obedient and most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To John Hancock, Esq.

RETURN OF SICK DISCHARGED BY GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Ticonderoga, September 25, 1775.

A Return of the Soldiers discharged, from the 20th day of July to the 25th day of September, 1775, both days inclusive: General Wooster's Regiment, 82; Col. Hinman's Regiment, 250; Colonel Waterbury's Regiment, 173; Colonel Parsons's Regiment, 58; Colonel Easton's Regiment, 116; Colonel McDougall's Regiment, 19; Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment, 11; Colonel Clinton's Regiment, 1; Lieutenant-Colonel Warner's Regiment, 16; total, 726.

Camp near St. John's, September 19, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I take the opportunity of Fulmore's (a) return with the Oneidas, to acquaint you of our arrival here on the 17th, in the evening. Yesterday morning I marched, with five hundred men, to the north side of St. John's, where we found a party of the King's Troops, with field-pieces; this party had beaten off Major Brown (b) a few hours before, who had imprudently thrown himself in their way, depending on our more early arrival, which, through the dilatoriness of our young Troops, could not be sooner effected.

The enemy, after an ill directed fire for some minutes, retired with precipitation; and lucky for them they did; for had we known their situation, which the thickness of the woods prevented our finding out till it was too late, there would not a man of them have returned. The old story of treachery spread among the men, as soon as we saw the enemy: we were trepanned, drawn under the guns of the fort, and what not. The woodsmen (c) were not so expert at forming as I expected, and too many of them hung back. Had we kept silence at first, before we were discovered, we should have got a field-piece or two. I have left the five hundred men at the joining (d) of the two roads; this day I have sent them intrenching tools. Things seem to go well among the Canadians. It is strongly reported that the King's stores are embarked at Montreal, in order to be removed. I have sent Colonel Allen to Chambly, in order to raise a corps. Send me money as fast as possible, my dear General. Guy Johnson and Claus have represented us as beggarly miscreants, who have nothing to give away to the Indians, nor to pay for what we get. Fulmore will give you an account of our council. I have great dependance on your presence at Ticonderoga, to administer to our many wants. I most earnestly hope this

(a) Fulmore, an Indian interpreter who attended the Deputies of the Six Nations to Caughnawaga.

(b) Major Brown I had sent, on the 14th, with one hundred of our men, and about thirty-four Canadians, towards Chambly, to keep up the spirits of the Canadians, and to join the Army at St. John's as soon as it should arrive there.

(c) Woodsmen, I suppose the New-Hampshire people and Green Mountain corps.

(d) Joining of the roads which lead to Chambly and Longueuil, opposite to Montreal.

may find you relieved from the acuteness of your pain; a perfect cure in so short a time can hardly be expected.

Believe me, my dear Sir, with the fullest esteem and respect, your most obedient servant,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

P. S. On the 17th, at night, Major Brown intercepted eight carts, going to the Fort, laden with rum and gun carriages for the vessels; those things were hid in the woods, and were not recovered by the enemy on Brown's discomfiture.

Ticonderoga, September 24, 1775.

The Deputies of the Six Nations sent to Canada returned this day, and made the following report:

That, by the unskilfulness of the pilot, they got lost when they set out from Isle-aux-Noix, and fell in with St. John's, from whence they retired undiscovered; that on the second day they got to within eight miles of Caughnawaga, and there met one hundred Indians, of different Nations, going to St. John's; that, in a conference with these, it was determined that they should return to Caughnawaga, to hear what the Deputies of the Six Nations had to say; that two of the party which they met went to those Indians that were with Colonel Johnson, who, upon this intelligence, quitted Colonel Johnson, and went to Caughnawaga. When the Indians were arrived at Caughnawaga, they met an emissary of Colonel Johnson's there, who, finding that the Indians would not fight against us, disguised himself and retired to Montreal. Colonel Johnson, on receiving the account, sent Colonel Claus, and Brandt, (a Mohawk), to invite them to come to him, and Claus gave a string of wampum to one of the Deputies. The Caughnawagas dissuaded the Deputies from going, lest they should be served like the Stockbridge Indians, and be made prisoners; upon which they returned the string, declaring that they were not sent to Johnson, but to the Caughnawagas; this answer pleases the latter; that when they delivered my message, to invite the Caughnawagas to come to me at Isle-aux-Noix or St. John's, the Mohawk, (Brandt), that attended Claus, exclaimed, "it is over with Johnson; all the Indians will quit him;" that the Caughnawagas were pleased with the message from the Six Nations, and with my invitation, and promised to comply with it; that the Deputies slept one night with them; that next day the Caughnawagas retired to a distant house with them, where they remained one night, for fear of an accident; and then seven of their principal men attended them to General Montgomery, at St. John's, where they declared "that the General might depend upon it, that they would not take a gun in hand against us, and pay not the least attention to Guy Johnson, and that they would remain neuter."

SUBSTANCE OF LETTERS FROM AMERICA, PUBLISHED IN THE LONDON GAZETTE.

Whitehall, November 4, 1775.

By advices lately received from His Majesty's Province of Quebeck, in North-America, it appears that, in the beginning of September, the Rebels, who had surprised the post of Ticonderoga, and had before made incursions into the Province of Quebeck, again invaded that country with a body of two thousand men, and proceeded to St. John's, upon Richelieu River, but were repulsed and driven back to the Isle-aux-Noix, by a party of Indians, who were assembled in the neighbourhood of St. John's; but the Rebels having made peace with the Indians, they afterwards penetrated farther into the country; and not being opposed by the inhabitants, were scattered about in parties throughout the District which lies between Richelieu River and the road leading from St. John's to La Prairie.

On the 18th of September, a body of the Rebels, consisting of about two hundred, was attacked and defeated by a detachment from the fort at St. John's, of half that number, consisting of some Troops and Canadian gentlemen, who served as volunteers, and who suffered very little loss.

In the night of the 25th of September, a party of the Rebels having crossed over the River St. Lawrence, from Longueuil to Long-Point, in the Island of Montreal, with an intention to surprise and plunder that Town, the inhabitants, joined by a few Troops, and commanded by Major Campbell, sallied out and met them about two miles from the Town; when, after a pretty smart engagement, the Rebels were defeated and fled, with the loss of about fifteen or sixteen killed, and between thirty and forty made prisoners; among the latter was one Ethan Allen, styling himself Colonel, and who commanded the party.

In this action, Major Carden, heretofore an officer of the Royal American Regiment, was mortally wounded, and died soon after. Mr. Alexander Patterson, a merchant of Montreal, was also dangerously wounded, and four or five soldiers and Canadians were killed and wounded.

* Early in the fall of the year, the little Army under the command of the Generals Schuyler and Montgomery were ordered to advance into Canada. I was at Ticonderoga when this order arrived; and the Generals, with most of the Field-Officers, requested me to attend them in the expedition; and though at that time I had no commission from Congress, yet they engaged me, that I should be considered as an officer, the same as though I had a commission; and should, as occasion might require, command certain detachments of the Army. This I considered as an honourable offer, and did not hesitate to comply with it, and advanced with the Army to the Isle-aux-Noix; from whence I was ordered, by the General, to go in company with Major Brown, and certain interpreters, through the woods, into Canada, with letters to the Canadians, and to let them know that the design of the Army was only against the English garrisons, and not the Country, their liberties, or religion; and having, through much danger, negotiated this business, I returned to the Isle-aux-Noix the fore part of September, when General Schuyler returned to Albany, and in consequence the command devolved upon General Montgomery, whom I assisted in laying a line of circumvallation round the fortress St. John's. After which, I was ordered, by the General, to make a second tour into Canada, upon nearly the same design as before; and withal to observe the disposition, designs, and movements of the inhabitants of the Country. This reconnoitre I undertook with reluctance, choosing rather to assist at the siege of St. John's, which was then closely invested; but my esteem for the General's person, and opinion of him as a politician and brave officer, induced me to proceed.

I passed through all the Parishes on the River Sorel, to a Parish at the mouth of the same, which is called by the same name, preaching politics; and went from thence across the Sorel to the River St. Lawrence, and up the river through the Parishes to Longueuil, and so far met with good success as an itinerant. In this round, my guard were Canadians, my interpreter and some few attendants excepted. On the morning of the 24th day of September, I set out, with my guard of about eighty men, from Longueuil, to go to La Prairie, from whence I determined to go to General Montgomery's camp; but had not advanced two miles before I met with Major Brown, who has since been advanced to the rank of a Colonel, who desired me to halt, saying that he had something of importance to communicate to me and my confidants; upon which I halted the party, and went into an house, and took a private room with him and several of my associates, where Colonel Brown proposed that, "Provided I would return to Longueuil, and procure some canoes, so as to cross the River St. Lawrence a little north of Montreal, he would cross it a little to the south of the Town, with near two hundred men, as he had boats sufficient; and that we would make ourselves masters of Montreal." This plan was readily approved by me and those in council; and in consequence of which I returned to Longueuil, collected a few canoes, and added about thirty English Americans to my party, and crossed the river in the night of the 24th, agreeable to the before proposed plan. My whole party, at this time, consisted of about one hundred and ten men, near eighty of whom were Canadians. We were the most of the night crossing the river, as we had so few canoes that they had to pass and repass three times, to carry my party across. Soon after day-break, I set a guard between me and the Town, with special orders to let no person whatever pass or repass them, and another guard on the other end of the road, with like directions; in the mean time, I reconnoitred the best ground to make a defence, expecting Colonel Brown's party was landed on the other side of the Town, he having, the day before, agreed to give three huzzas with his men early in the morning, which signal I was to return, that we might each know that both parties were landed; but the sun, by this time, being near two hours high, and the sign failing, I began to conclude myself to be in a premunire, and would have crossed the river back again, but I knew the enemy would have discovered such an attempt; and, as there could not more than one-third part of my Troops cross at one time, the other two-thirds would of course fall into their hands. This I could not reconcile to my own feelings as a man, much less as an officer: I therefore concluded to maintain the ground, if possible, and all to fare alike. In consequence of this resolution, I despatched two messengers, one to La Prairie, to Colonel Brown, and the other to L'Assomption, a French settlement, to Mr. Walker, who was in our interest, requesting their speedy assistance, giving them, at the same time, to understand my critical situation: In the mean time, sundry persons came to my guards, pretending to be friends, but were by them taken prisoners and brought to me. These I ordered to confinement, till their friendship could be farther confirmed; for I was jealous they were spies, as they proved to be afterwards: One of the principal of them making his escape, exposed the weakness of my party, which was the final cause of my misfortune; for I have been since informed that Mr. Walker, agreeable to my desire, exerted himself, and had raised a considerable number of men for my assistance, which brought him into difficulty afterwards; but, upon hearing of my misfortune, he disbanded them again.

The Town of Montreal was in a great tumult. General Carleton and the royal party made every preparation to go on board their vessels of force, as I was afterwards informed; but the spy, escaping from my guard to the Town, occasioned an alteration in their policy, and emboldened General Carleton to send the force, which he had there collected, out against me. I had previously chosen my ground, but when I saw the number of the enemy, as they sallied out of the Town, I perceived it would be a day of trouble, if not of rebuke; but I had no

Philadelphia, October 20, 1775.

By accounts from Canada, we learn that, on the 25th of September last, Colonel Ethan Allen,* prompted by ambition, had imprudently, without orders, crossed over from Longueuil, with thirty of his own men and fifty Canadians, in order to get possession of Montreal. Colonel Prescott, hearing of his coming, engaged a number of people from the suburbs, at half a joe per man, to join a party of Regulars from the garrison, and to go out against him. They met about two miles from the Town, when a smart engagement ensued, which lasted upwards of two hours. The enemy had two field-pieces. After a long engagement, chance to flee, as Montreal was situated on an island, and the River St. Lawrence cut off my communication to General Montgomery's camp. I encouraged my soldiery to bravely defend themselves, that we should soon have help, and that we should be able to keep the ground, if no more. This, and much more, I affirmed with the greatest seeming assurance, and which in reality I thought to be in some degree probable.

The enemy consisted of not more than forty regular Troops, together with a mixed multitude, chiefly Canadians, with a number of English who lived in the Town, and some Indians; in all, to the number of near five hundred.

The reader will notice that most of my party were Canadians; indeed it was a motley parcel of soldiery which composed both parties. However, the enemy began the attack from wood-piles, ditches, buildings, and such like places, at a considerable distance, and I returned the fire from a situation more than equally advantageous. The attack began between two and three o'clock in the afternoon, just before which I ordered a volunteer, by the name of Richard Young, with a detachment of nine men as a flank guard, which, under the cover of the bank of the river, could not only annoy the enemy, but at the same time serve as a flank guard to the left of the main body.

The fire continued for some time on both sides; and I was confident that such a remote method of attack could not carry the ground, provided it should be continued till night. But near half the body of the enemy began to flank round to my right; upon which I ordered a volunteer, by the name of John Dugan, who had lived many years in Canada, and understood the French language, to detach about fifty of the Canadians, and post himself at an advantageous ditch, which was on my right, to prevent my being surrounded. He advanced with the detachment, but, instead of occupying the post, made his escape, as did likewise Mr. Young upon the left, with their detachments. I soon perceived that the enemy was in possession of the ground which Dugan should have occupied. At this time I had but about forty-five men with me, some of whom were wounded; the enemy kept closing round me, nor was it in my power to prevent it; by which means my situation, which was advantageous in the first part of the attack, ceased to be so in the last; and, being almost entirely surrounded with such vast unequal numbers, I ordered a retreat, but found that those of the enemy, who were of the country, and their Indians, could run as fast as my men, though the Regulars could not. Thus I retreated near a mile, and some of the enemy, with the savages, kept flanking me, and others crowded hard in the rear. In fine, I expected, in a very short time, to try the world of spirits: for I was apprehensive that no quarter would be given to me, and therefore had determined to sell my life as dear as I could. One of the enemy's officers, boldly pressing in the rear, discharged his fusée at me; the ball whistled near me, as did many others that day. I returned the salute, and missed him, as running had put us both out of breath; for I conclude we were not frightened: I then saluted him with my tongue in a harsh manner, and told him that, inasmuch as his numbers were so far superior to mine, I would surrender, provided I could be treated with honour, and be assured of good quarter for myself and the men who were with me; and he answered I should; another officer, coming up directly after, confirmed the treaty; upon which I agreed to surrender with my party, which then consisted of thirty-one effective men, and seven wounded. I ordered them to ground their arms, which they did.

The officer I capitulated with then directed me and my party to advance towards him, which was done; I handed him my sword, and in half a minute after, a savage, part of whose head was shaved, being almost naked, and painted, with feathers intermixed with the hair of the other side of his head, came running to me with an incredible swiftness; he seemed to advance with more than mortal speed; as he approached near me, his hellish visage was beyond all description; snakes' eyes appear innocent in comparison of his; his features distorted; malice, death, murder, and the wrath of devils and damned spirits, are the emblems of his countenance; and, in less than twelve feet of me, presented his firelock. At the instant of his present, I twitched the officer to whom I gave my sword between me and the savage, but he flew round with great fury, trying to single me out to shoot me, without killing the officer; but by this time I was near as nimble as he, keeping the officer in such a position that his danger was my defence; but, in less than than a half a minute, I was attacked by just such another imp of hell. Then I made the officer fly around with incredible velocity, for a few seconds of time, when I perceived a Canadian, who had lost one eye, as appeared afterwards, taking my part against the savages; and in an instant an Irishman came to my assistance with a fixed bayonet, and drove away the fiends, swearing by Jasus he would kill them. This tragick scene composed my mind. The escaping from so awful a death made even imprisonment happy; the more so, as my conquerors on the field treated me with great civility and politeness.

The regular officers said that they were very happy to see Colonel Allen. I answered them, that I should rather choose to have seen them at General Montgomery's camp. The gentlemen replied, that they gave full credit to what I said, and, as I walked to the Town, which was, as I should guess, more than two miles, a British officer walking at my right hand, and one of the French noblesse at my left; the latter of which, in the action, had his eyebrow carried away by a glancing shot, but was nevertheless very merry and facetious, and no abuse was offered me till I came to the barrack-yard, at Montreal, where I met our party were obliged to retire. Colonel Allen and two or three of his men were taken prisoners, and about as many were wounded; the rest returned to their friends. By the best accounts, we learn that a considerable number of the enemy were killed and wounded.

COLONEL ETHAN ALLEN TO GENERAL PRESCOTT.

September 25, 1775.

HONOURABLE SIR: In the wheel of transitory events, I find myself prisoner, and in irons: probably your Honour has certain reasons, to me inconceivable, though I challenge an instance of this sort of economy of the Americans, during the late war, towards any officers of the Crown.

General Prescott, who asked me my name, which I told him. He then asked me whether I was that Colonel Allen who took Ticonderoga. I told him I was the very man. Then he shook his cane over my head, calling many hard names, among which he frequently used the word rebel, and put himself in a great rage. I told him he would do well not to cane me, for I was not accustomed to it, and shook my fist at him, telling him that was the beetle of mortality for him, if he offered to strike; upon which Captain McCloud, of the British, pulled him by the skirt, and whispered to him, as he afterwards told me, to this import: that it was inconsistent with his honour to strike a prisoner. He then ordered a Sergeant's command, with fixed bayonets, to come forward and kill thirteen Canadians, which were included in the treaty aforesaid.

It cut me to the heart to see the Canadians in so hard a case, in consequence of their having been true to me; they were wringing their hands, saying their prayers, as I concluded, and expected immediate death. I therefore stepped between the executioners and the Canadians, opened my clothes, and told General Prescott to thrust his bayonet into my breast, for I was the sole cause of the Canadians taking up arms—the guard, in the mean time, rolling their eye-balls from the General to me, as though impatiently waiting his dread commands to slue their bayonets in my heart; I could, however, plainly discern that he was in a suspense and quandary about the matter. This gave me additional hopes of succeeding; for my design was not to die, but save the Canadians by a finesse. The General stood a minute, when he made me the following reply: "I will not execute you now; but you shall grace a halter at Tyburn, God damn you."

I remember I disdained his mentioning such a place; I was, notwithstanding, a little pleased with the expression, as it significantly conveyed to me the idea of postponing the present appearance of death; besides, his sentence was by no means final, as to gracing a halter, although I had anxiety about it after I landed in England, as the reader will find in the course of this history. General Prescott then ordered one of his officers to take me on board the Gaspee schooner of war, and confine me, hands and feet in irons, which was done the same afternoon I was taken.

The action continued an hour and three-quarters, by the watch, and I know not to this day how many of my men were killed, though I am certain there were but few. If I remember right, seven were wounded; one of them, William Stewart by name, was wounded by a savage with a tomahawk, after he was taken prisoner and disarmed, but was rescued by some of the generous enemy, and so far recovered of his wounds that he afterwards went with the other prisoners to England.

Of the enemy were killed, a Major Carden, who had been wounded in eleven different battles, and an eminent merchant, Patterson, of Montreal, and some others; but I never knew their whole loss, as their accounts were different. I am apprehensive that it is rare that so much ammunition was expended, and so little execution done by it; though such of my party as stood the ground behaved with great fortitude, much exceeding that of the enemy, but were not the best of marksmen, and, I am apprehensive, were all killed or taken; the wounded were all put into the hospital at Montreal, and those that were not were put on board of different vessels in the river, and shackled together by pairs, viz: two men fastened together by one handcuff, being closely fixed to one wrist of each of them, and treated with the greatest severity, nay, as criminals.

I now come to the description of the irons which were put on me. The handcuff was of a common size and form, but my leg irons, I should imagine, would weigh thirty pounds; the bar was eight feet long, and very substantial; the shackles, which encompassed my ankles, were very tight. I was told by the officer who put them on, that it was the King's plate, and I heard other of their officers say that it would weigh forty weight. The irons were so close upon my ankles, that I could not lie down in any other manner than on my back. I was put into the lowest and most wretched part of the vessel, where I got the favour of a chest to sit on; the same answered for my bed at night; and having procured some little blocks of the guard, who day and night, with fixed bayonets, watched over me, to lie under each end of the large bar of my leg irons, to preserve my ankles from galling, while I sat on the chest, or lay back on the same, though most of the time, night and day, I sat on it; but at length, having a desire to lie down on my side, which the closeness of the irons forbid, I desired the Captain to loosen them for that purpose, but was denied the favour. The Captain's name was Royal, who did not seem to be an ill-natured man, but oftentimes said that his express orders were to treat me with such severity, which was disagreeable to his own feelings; nor did he ever insult me, though many others who came on board did. One of the officers, by the name of Bradley, was very generous to me; he would often send me victuals from his own table; nor did a day fail but that he sent me a good drink of grog.

The reader is now invited back to the time I was put into irons. I requested the privilege to write to General Prescott, which was granted. I reminded him of the kind and generous manner of my treatment of the prisoners I took at Ticonderoga, the injustice and ungentleman-like usage which I had met with from him, and demanded gentleman-like usage, but received no answer from him. I soon after wrote to General Carleton, which met the same success. In the mean while, many of those who were permitted to see me were very insulting.—Allen's Narrative.

On my part, I have to assure your Honour, that when I had the command, and took Captain Delaplace and Lieutenant Felton, with the garrison of Ticonderoga, I treated them with every mark of friendship and generosity, the evidence of which is notorious, even in Canada. I have only to add, that I expect an honourable and humane treatment, as an officer of my rank and merit should have; and subscribe myself your Honour's most obedient humble servant,
ETHAN ALLEN.

To General Prescott.

COMMITTEE OF ROCHESTER TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Rochester, September 25, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: The Town beg leave to make the following objections against Enoch Hammond being appointed one of the Justices of the Peace for the County of Plymouth:

Objection 1st. He refusing to serve the Town as one of the Committee of Correspondence.

Objection 2d. He refusing to act in Town-Meeting for the space of about one year last past, and having received a Justice of the Peace's place just before Hutchinson's departure.

Objection 3d. He refusing to sign the league and covenant which the inhabitants of this Town signed, and having used his influence to the contrary.

Objection 4th. Said Hammond affirmed that America, from Nova-Scotia to West-Florida, was a manless mob.

All of which hath given great umbrage and uneasiness to the inhabitants of this Town. Therefore humbly pray your Honours not to appoint him, as it will be very disagreeable to the inhabitants of said Town, and have unhappy consequences to the community. These things we beg leave to offer and prove, if called upon. Furthermore, the Town humbly beg leave to recommend Major Ebenezer White and Mr. David Wing to be Justices of the Peace in said Town.

By order of the Committee appointed for that purpose:

JOHN DOTY, Chairman.

To the Honourable the President of the Council of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay.

ADDRESS OF THE MAYOR, ETC., OF GREAT YARMOUTH.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Burgesses, and Commonalty of the Borough of Great Yarmouth, in Common Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by Charles Townshend, Esq., one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, Burgesses, and Commonalty of the Borough of Great Yarmouth, in Common Council assembled, beg leave, at this important juncture, to lay at your Majesty's feet the strongest assurances of our faithful and zealous attachment to your Majesty's royal person, and to the supreme Legislature of Great Britain.

We have observed the tender and humane reluctance with which your Majesty and the Parliament have entered upon measures of coercion against your Majesty's disobedient subjects in America, and at the same time we cannot but have remarked, with the deepest concern, that the demands of those deluded men have risen in proportion to the unwillingness they have seen in the Parent State to have recourse to measures of force, till at length some of your Majesty's Colonies have dared to enter into an open rebellion. Their Troops have taken the field, money has been raised to pay them, and an illegal assembly now sitting at Philadelphia has usurped, and is executing with a heavy hand, those powers which have been denied to the Legislature of Great Britain.

In this situation of affairs, we think it our duty to express our abhorrence of the rebellion now carrying on in America, and to make a tender of our lives and fortunes towards the suppression of it; beseeching your Majesty to take care that your Empire be not dismembered, nor the supreme authority of the British Legislature impaired. Exert, great Sir, your whole force, should it be necessary, in the support of those important objects; when they are secured, we know, from the experience we have had of the mildness of your Majesty's disposition, that you will restore peace to your misguided subjects in America, with as much pleasure as you have evidently had pain in entering upon hostile measures against them.

Given under our common seal, at our Guildhall, the 26th day of September, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF TAUNTON.

Address of the Mayor, Justice, Aldermen, Capital and Inferiour Burgesses of the Borough and Town of Taunton, in Common Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by Colonel Roberts, the Mayor.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

SIR: We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Justice, Aldermen, Capital and Inferiour Burgesses of the Borough and Town of Taunton, in Common Council assembled, truly sensible of the many blessings we enjoy, under your Majesty's mild and auspicious Government, beg leave most humbly to approach the throne with our unfeigned thanks for the happiness which, next under God, we owe to your Majesty's paternal care and tenderness, and which, under Divine Providence, have brought this Country to its present height of glory and power.

The wisdom of your Majesty's Councils, the benevolence and goodness of your heart, would have preserved a continuance of those blessings to the whole Empire, if unfortunately there did not exist, here as well as in America, men who, void of all principle, are hardened enough, at the expense of every duty they owe your Majesty and their Country, to become at once (under the mask of patriotism) disrespectful to your sacred person, and disturbers of the publick peace. Their machinations have driven headlong the Americans into a rebellion, which cowardice only prevents their joining in.

In this alarming crisis it is our duty, and we do most cheerfully offer your Majesty our lives and properties in support of your person, crown, and dignity; and we rely on your Majesty, that the indubitable rights of this Kingdom will be inviolably preserved, and the traitorous attempts to subvert its legislative authority in America will never be submitted to, nor a successful rebellion be suffered to sully the glory of your Majesty's reign.

Given under our common seal, this twenty-second day of September, 1775.

JOHN ROBERTS, Mayor.

ADDRESS OF THE PRINCIPAL INHABITANTS OF THE BOROUGH OF TAUNTON.

Address of the principal Inhabitants and Manufacturers of the Borough and Town of Taunton, in the County of Somerset, presented to His Majesty by John Cabbell, M. D., one of the Aldermen.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the principal Inhabitants and Manufacturers of the Borough and Town of TAUNTON, in the County of SOMERSET.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Truly sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and auspicious reign, permit us to approach your throne, and express our abhorrence of the deluded spirit which prevails in your Colonies of America, where most of the inhabitants are in arms and open rebellion against your crown and the laws of this Realm.

We beg leave to give your Majesty the most solemn assurances, that we shall be ready on all occasions to sacrifice whatsoever is dear and valuable to us, to enable your Majesty to bring your rebellious subjects in America to a just sense of their duty, to defend your royal person and illustrious family, and support our Constitution, both in Church and State.

PETITION FROM THE TOWN OF TAUNTON.

Petition from the Town of Taunton, signed by one hundred and fifty-four of the Inhabitants and principal Manufacturers, presented to His Majesty, at St. James's, by Mr. Popham, one of their Representatives.

To the King's Most Sacred Majesty.

May it please your Majesty:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, inhabitants and principal manufacturers of the Town of Taunton, in the County of Somerset, fully sensible of the blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's Government, beg leave to approach your Majesty with our most humble address and supplications.

We conceive that the Act of Navigation, which has been recognised by our fellow-subjects in America, secures all the wealth of the Colonies to this Country.

We are apprehensive that your Majesty's just prerogative may suffer some infringement by revenue laws being made in this Kingdom for the Colonies, which are not represented; because we conceive that your Majesty alone has the right of asking aids from the Colonies, in the same constitutional manner that your Majesty receives supplies from this Kingdom and from Ireland, and because your Majesty's sole power to give the force of laws to the acts of the Provinces is one principal bond of union between them and the whole Empire.

As we trust that your Majesty has not any subjects more firmly attached to your royal person and this Constitution than ourselves, or more ready to risk their lives or fortunes in support of both, so we think it consistent with our duty to say, that the occasion of a victory on either side, over any part of your Majesty's subjects, is always to be lamented, as diminishing the number of your people, and consequently detrimental to your Majesty's dignity, to the manufactures of this Town, and to the trade and navigation of this Kingdom.

And as we conceive that a happy reconciliation between Great Britain and the Colonies will save this Nation a great effusion of blood and expense of treasure, we therefore most humbly implore your Majesty's gracious consideration for obtaining these valuable purposes.

And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Taunton, September 26, 1775.

SUPPORTERS OF THE BILL OF RIGHTS.

London Tavern, September 26, 1775.

Stephen Sayre, Esq., in the chair.

Resolved, unanimously, That it be recommended to those Members of this Society who have seats in Parliament to use their utmost endeavours in putting a stop to the ruinous and unnatural war against our fellow-subjects in America.

Resolved, unanimously, That it be recommended to those Members of this Society who have seats in Parliament to endeavour to heal the unhappy divisions between this Country and America, and to establish a connection between the two Countries upon the glorious principles of equal liberty.

Resolved, unanimously, That it be recommended to those Members of this Society who have seats in Parliament to oppose the imposition of any additional taxes for carrying on the war against America; the people of this Country being already overburdened with taxes, and greatly affected by the suspension of their most valuable commerce with our much injured and oppressed Colonies.

Resolved, That the next meeting of this Society be on Tuesday, the 24th of October next.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, September 26, 1775.

SIR: Upon considering your letter of the 4th August, the following points appeared so exceedingly important, that I am directed to desire you will consult such of your officers as you think proper, upon the most prudent and effectual methods of accomplishing them. These are, the continuation of the Army now under your command in the service of the Continent, after the terms of the enlistment shall have been completed; the reducing the several corps of Provincials which at present compose your Army into one body of Continental Forces; what number will be necessary for the winter campaign; what rations shall be allowed the men; and what farther regulations may be necessary for the government of those Forces. Upon these heads the Congress wish to be favoured with the result of your deliberations as soon as possible, as the time of enlistment in Connecticut draws to a conclusion.

The Congress desire you will take the proper steps to provide your Troops with necessary cover and fuel for the winter, as it is highly probable that the service of the Army will be wanted during that whole season, at least; and that you lay before Congress an estimate of the expense which may be necessary for these services.

As making any alterations in the present appointment of the officers of different Colonies, and the reduction of those Regiments which cannot be completed to their full establishment, may create great jealousies and uneasiness, the Congress are of opinion, at present, no step should be taken therein, as the new modelling the whole is so soon expected, when those inconveniences may be remedied without danger.

The Congress desire you will give them your opinion, whether the pay of the private men, which is considered as very high, may not be reduced, and how much.

Agreeable to the order of the Congress, I enclose you a copy of a letter from General Schuyler, with sundry papers enclosed.

Application having been made to Congress for the discharge of Colonel John Fenton, at present confined at Hartford, they passed a resolution that he be allowed to proceed to New-York, and from thence to London, upon his giving his parole not to take up arms against the Continent during the present contest.

It is determined by Congress that you issue a commission to Mr. Gridley as Colonel only, and suspend the appointment of a Brigadier-General for the present. They recommend to you to grant commissions to Messrs. Bose, Scammell, and Samuel Brewer, as Brigade-Majors.

The memorial from Mr. Tudor, the Judge-Advocate, was laid before the Congress; and, upon consideration, it was resolved that he be allowed and paid fifty dollars per month, for himself and clerk, from the time of his appointment; and I transmit him, by this express, his commission, and the resolution of Congress.

Some difficulty having arisen in the settlement of the account of the several Rifle Companies, as to supplies of money, and particularly with respect to Colonel Thompson, and the Congress having, on the 29th of July last, advanced to Colonel Thompson five thousand dollars, for the service of his Battalion, I am directed to desire you will order Colonel Thompson to exhibit to you an account of the expenditure of the said five thousand dollars, which you will please to transmit to me, to be laid before the Congress, by which the several accounts may be easily accommodated.

I have nothing farther in charge to communicate. You will please to return Fessenden as soon as you conveniently can.

I have the honour to be, with great respect and esteem, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

To General Washington. JOHN HANCOCK, President.

P. S. I have sent you eleven bundles, containing five hundred and fifty commissions.

RICHARD HENRY LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, September 26, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Two days ago I arrived here, from Virginia, which the late short adjournment just allowed me time to visit and return from. I brought two letters from thence, for you, which come with this. Having some business with Colonel Mason, I travelled that road; and having sent to your lady, to know if she had any commands this way, had the pleasure to learn that all were well at Mount Vernon. As I suppose it will be agreeable to you to know what is passing in Virginia, I have enclosed you the proceedings of our last Convention, with two of Purdie's Gazettes. I am greatly obliged to you for your favour of August the 29th, and you may be assured I shall pay great attention to it. When I mentioned securing the entrance of the Harbour of Boston, it was more in the way of wishing it could be done, than as conceiving it very practicable. However, the reasons you assign are most conclusive against the attempt. I assure you that, so far as I can judge from the conversation of men, instead of there being any who think you have not done enough, the wonder seems to be that you have done so much. I believe there is not a man of common sense, who is void of prejudice, in the world, but greatly approves the discipline you have introduced into the camp; since reason and experience join in proving that without discipline armies are fit only for the contempt and slaughter of their enemies. Your labours are no doubt great, both of mind and body; but if the praise of the present and future times can be any compensation, you will have a plentiful portion of that. Of one thing you may certainly rest assured, that the Congress will do every thing in their power to make your most weighty business easy to you. I think you could not possibly have appointed a better man for his present office than Mr. Mifflin. He is a singular man, and you will certainly meet with the applause of all good men by promoting and countenancing real merit and publick virtue, in opposition to all private interests and partial affections. You will see, in the proceedings of our Convention, that they have agreed to raise the pay of our Rifle officers and men to the Virginia standard. It may, perhaps, encourage them to be told this.

We have no better accounts from England; but from what we have had, that can be relied on, it seems almost certain that our enemies there must shortly meet with a total overthrow. The entire failure of all their schemes, and the rising spirit of the people, strongly expressed by the remonstrance of the Livery of London to the King, clearly denote this. The Ministry had their sole reliance on the impossibility of the Americans finding money to support an Army, on the great aid their cause would receive from Canada, and consequent triumph of their forces over the liberties and rights of America. The reverse of all this has happened; and very soon, now, our commercial resistance will begin sorely to distress the people at large. The Ministerial recruiting business in England has entirely failed them. The ship-builders in the royal yards have mutinied; and now they are driven, as to their last resort, to seek for soldiers in the Highlands of Scotland. But it seems the greatest willingness of the people there can not supply more than one or two thousand men—a number rather calculated to increase their disgrace than to give success to their cause.

I beg your pardon for engaging your attention so long, and assure you that I am, with unfeigned esteem, dear Sir, your affectionate friend and countryman,

RICHARD HENRY LEE.

SAMUEL ADAMS TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Philadelphia, September 26, 1775.

MY DEAR SIR: I arrived in this City on the 12th inst., having rode full three hundred miles on horseback, an exercise which I have not used for many years past. I think it has contributed to the establishment of my health, for which I am obliged to my friend Mr. John Adams, who kindly offered me one of his horses the day after we sat off from Watertown.

I write you this letter principally to put you in mind of the promise you made me to give me intelligence of what is doing in our Assembly and the camp. Believe me, Sir, it is of great importance that we should be informed of every circumstance of our affairs. The eyes of friends and foes are attentively fixed on our Province, and if jealousy or envy can sully its reputation, you may depend upon it they will not miss the opportunity. It behooves our friends, therefore, to be very circumspect, and in all their publick conduct to convince the world that they are influenced not by partial or private motives, but altogether with a view of promoting the publick welfare.

Some of our military gentlemen have, I fear, disgraced us; it is then important that every anecdote that concerns a man of real merit among them, and such I know there are, be improved, as far as decency will admit of it, to their advantage, and the honour of a Colony which, for its zeal in the great cause, as well as its sufferings, deserves so much of America.

Until I visited Head-Quarters at Cambridge, I had never heard of the valour of Prescott at Bunker's Hill, nor the ingenuity of Knox and Waters, in planning the celebrated works at Roxbury. We were told here that there were none in our camp who understood the business of an Engineer, or any thing more than the manual exercise of the gun. This we had from great authority, and for want of more certain intelligence were obliged at least to be silent. There are many military geniuses at present unemployed and overlooked, who, I hope, when the Army is new modelled, will be sought after and invited into the service of their Country. They must be sought after, for modest merit declines pushing itself into publick view. I know your disinterested zeal, and therefore need add no more than to assure you that I am, with cordial esteem, your friend,

SAMUEL ADAMS.

Elbridge Gerry, Esq., Watertown.

THOMAND BALL TO JOSEPH SHIPPEN, JR.

Sunbury, September 26, 1775.

SIR: William Maclay, Esq., being at present so much indisposed as renders him incapable of writing, I have the honour, by his directions, to inform you that a party of the Connecticut intruders, supposed to be a detachment from Colonel Butler's Regiment, consisting, as nearly as can be conjectured, of three hundred men, arrived last Saturday night at Freeland's mill, on the Warriour's Run, about thirteen miles distance from this Town, where we are informed they immediately began to intrench themselves; and as they brought neither women nor children, but, instead of them, fortifying and intrenching tools, with the additional circumstance of some of the sellers of lands in this County, under Connecticut rights, being of the party, we cannot consider their visit as amicable. In consequence of which, a Company, consisting of about fifty men, left this Town at one o'clock yesterday, in order to join other Companies of the County, to meet and demand the reason of this intrusion and hostile appearance. This being wrote early in the morning, by a gentleman who is just setting off for Philadelphia, cannot at present gain farther intelligence, but in a few days shall transmit you an account of their and our farther proceedings. If the state of our County with regard to arms and ammunition will be satisfactory to you, Captain Hunter can inform you thereof, from a letter which the bearer carries, as well as his own knowledge.

I am, with great respect, your very humble servant,

THOMAND BALL.

To Joseph Shippen, Esq.

TO THE PUBLICK.

Morris County, New-Jersey, September 26, 1775.

DEAR COUNTRYMEN: In a day of publick calamity like this, arising from oppression, every benevolent mind ought to be engaged for the defence of the rights of mankind, and in particular should endeavour to remove all cause of oppression, complaint, and disunion, among ourselves, and to stop, as much as possible, the mouths of our adversaries, who will omit the use of no plausible argument against the justice of our cause, and the probability of its success; such is the design of this letter.

The honourable Continental Congress, and the late Provincial Congress of this Province, have adopted the old mode of electing Representatives, who have power to tax those Colonies from whence they are chosen. By this mode, many true friends to their Country, who are obliged to pay taxes, are excluded from the privilege of a vote in the choice of those by whom they are to be taxed, or even called out to sacrifice their lives. This is a real grievance, yet one that may easily be redressed; for many of the members of the present Provincial Congress begin to give a serious attention to the complaints of the people on this account, and all our Congresses know that one part of His Majesty's subjects have no right to tax another part of their fellow-subjects, without their consent, given by themselves or their Representatives. Nothing is therefore necessary, in order to obtain redress, but a number of petitions from several Towns and Counties in each Province for that purpose. They will undoubtedly resolve, that no one shall be taxed who is excluded from a vote in the elections; and will also resolve who shall for the future be esteemed proper electors; and by such resolves our enemies will be cut off from one of their most plausible arguments against us.

I am, my countrymen, yours,

Essex.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, September 26, 1775.

SIR: I did myself the honour to address you in a long letter of the 20th, which I hope will come safe to hand.

The day before yesterday I was favoured with a letter from General Montgomery, (copy of which enclosed.) on the contents of which, and on the report of the Indian Deputies, I do myself the pleasure to congratulate your Excellency. I have made some explanatory notes on General Montgomery's letter, which I conceived might be necessary for you.

I made a short speech to the Indian Deputies; gave them a present, and they left me in high good humour, and with a very good opinion of our Army.

The vexation of spirit under which I labour, that a barbarous complication of disorders should prevent me from reaping those laurels for which I have unweariedly wrought since I was honoured with this command; the anxiety I have suffered since my arrival here, lest the Army should starve, occasioned by a scandalous want of subordination and inattention to my orders in some of the officers that I left to command at the different posts; the vast variety of disagreeable and vexatious incidents that almost every hour arise in some department or other, not only retard my cure, but have put me considerably back for some days past. If Job had been a General in my situation, his memory had not been so famous for patience; but the glorious end we have in view, and which I have a confident hope will be attained, will atone for all.

I have discharged or ordered to be discharged every man that was so ill as to be unfit for farther service during this campaign, and that was able to return to the place of his abode. Those that were not, I have sent to the hospital. The former already amount to seven hundred and twenty-six, as per the enclosed return. My best wishes attend your Excellency and the gentlemen with you.

I am, dear Sir, with the most sincere esteem, your very obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 26, 1775.

SIR: In consequence of your letter of the 18th instant, we have sent out our small armed vessel, with orders to Capt. Whipple to relinquish the voyage to Bermuda, and to prolong his cruise for the packet to the 6th of October.

Agreeable to your advice, I have communicated the proposed adventure to Bayonne to the Congress, and most heartily wish it may be pursued, as the ability and integrity of Du Ville are perfectly relied upon here. The following extract from Governour Trumbull's letter to me, of the 18th instant, will inform you of his sentiments respecting the enterprise, and of his reasons for declining to take a part in it: "In mine of the 11th instant, in answer to your esteemed favour of the 9th, I acquainted you with my purpose to lay your letter before my Council, on Thursday, the 14th instant; which I did. They approve your proposition. The way appears to them promising. At the same time, we have advanced money so largely for that article, and have great reason to expect a supply in a similar method, that they judge it not expedient for us to proceed farther at this time. It is an article that requires our attention, and wish every method that appears probable to obtain it may be pursued. I hope General Washington will hearken to your application, and suitably encourage and promote your generous design."

The time for which the combined Army was enlisted being nearly expired, it is of great importance to provide some method for re-enlisting them, in order to keep up a sufficient force to restrain the enemy during the winter, and to take the field in the spring. My anxious concern on this head, which appears to me to be of the last importance, will excuse my suggesting to you the necessity of giving it the earliest attention, as I greatly fear difficulties may arise which will require time to obviate; and I can safely assure you of the concurrence of this Colony in every prudent measure for the effecting this most essential point.

I am, with great truth and respect, Sir, your Excellency's most humble and most obedient servant,

General Washington.

NICHOLAS COOKE.

P. S. Since the sailing of the small vessel, I observe in the New-York paper that a packet is arrived there from Falmouth, which I take to be the same that Capt. Whipple was sent after. If so, the opportunity is lost; but by extending his cruise a little longer, he may have a chance for the August packet.

HENRY WARD TO GENERAL GREENE.

Providence, September 26, 1775.

SIR: This letter waits upon you by Mr. Maxwell, who goes down to Cambridge upon a matter into which I think the strictest inquiry ought to be made. It is, in short, this: In July last, a woman, with whom Mr. Wainwood had an acquaintance in Boston, came to his house and wanted him to assist her in procuring an opportunity of seeing Mr. Dudley or Captain Wallace; and by all her behaviour showed that she had some secret of consequence. He artfully drew from her that she had been sent from Cambridge with a letter to be delivered to either of the persons above named, to be forwarded to Boston. It immediately occurred to him that the letter was probably sent from some traitor in our army. Upon which, he started every difficulty in the way of her seeing Dudley or Wallace, that he could think of, and finally prevailed upon her to intrust him with the delivery of the letter. He kept the affair to himself some time, being at a loss what step he should take in it; and at length imparted the secret to Mr. Maxwell, who, upon opening the letter, found it written in characters which he did not understand. Here it rested until very lately, when Mr. Wainwood received a letter from the woman, discovering great uneasiness about the letter she had intrusted him with, which naturally induced a suspicion that the writer of it still continued his correspondence in Boston, and had received information that the letter had never been transmitted. Mr. Wainwood and Mr. Maxwell, who are both of them friends to the cause of America, rightly judging that the continuance of such a correspondence might be attended with the most pernicious consequences to the interest of America, thought proper to come to Providence and consult me upon it, having prudently kept the matter entirely to themselves. By my advice, they proceeded to Cambridge, to lay it, with all the circumstances, before you.

I think it best to introduce Mr. Maxwell to General Washington, and for you and the General, with not more than one trusty person besides, to consider as to the most prudent measures to discover the traitor. Perhaps the first step should be to take up the woman, who is now at Cambridge, in so private a way as to create no suspicion; and it is probable that rewards and punishments, properly placed before her, will induce her to give up the author; in which case he, with all his papers, ought to be instantly secured. If the woman should be obstinate, some clew may be found from her connections, that will probably lead to a discovery. But I beg pardon for undertaking to give my advice in this case, when you, upon the spot, possessed of all the circumstances, will be so much better able to judge of the measures proper to be pursued. As Mr. Wainwood is well known to many of the inhabitants of Boston, I have advised him to go no farther than Dedham, where he may be sent for as soon as it shall be thought proper for him to appear. I will only add, that if they are happily the means of discovering a treacherous correspondence, carried on by any person of note and trust in our publick affairs, they will do a most essential service to their Country, and deserve an adequate reward.

I am, with great truth and esteem, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

HENRY WARD.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE WAGON-MASTER GENERAL.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 26, 1775.

1st. The Army being in three Divisions, Roxbury, Cambridge, and Prospect-Hill, under the Major-Generals Ward,

Lee, and Putnam, you are to have a sufficient number of Teams for the service of each Division.

2d. When any person applies to you for a Team, he must produce an order from the Commander-in-Chief, one of the Major-Generals for whose Division the service is to be done, or the Commissary-General, otherwise you are not obliged to pay any regard to it.

3d. Once a week, on any Saturday, you are to make a return to the Commander-in-Chief of the number of Teams in service, and what work they have been employed in the preceding week, taking special care not to put the publick to needless charge, by providing and keeping more Teams than are absolutely necessary.

4th. As to the manner in which the Teams are to be fed, it will be best they should find themselves, and be paid accordingly. The Carts or Wagons may be numbered, and the number, with the words Continental Army, on a board, put on some part of the Cart or Wagon most easily seen.

I am, Sir, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON,

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE AT HARTFORD.

Camp at Cambridge, September 26, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 18th instant, and one from Major French, on the same subject, have come safely to hand. From the general character of this gentleman, and the acknowledged politeness and attention of the Committee of Hartford to the gentlemen intrusted to their care, I flattered myself there would have been a mutual emulation of civility, which would have resulted in the ease and convenience of both. I am extremely sorry to find it otherwise.

Upon a reperusal of former letters and papers respecting these gentlemen, I cannot think there is any thing particular in their situation which can challenge a distinction. If the circumstance of wearing their swords had created no dissatisfaction, I should not have interfered, considering it in itself as a matter of indifference. But as it has given offence, partly, perhaps, by the inadvertent expressions which have been dropped on this occasion, I persuade myself that Major French, for the sake of his own convenience and ease, and to save me farther trouble, will concede to what is not essential either to his comfort or happiness, farther than mere opinion makes it so. On the other hand, allow me to recommend a gentleness, even to forbearance, with persons so entirely in our power. We know not what the chance of war may be; but let it be what it will, the duties of humanity and kindness will demand from us such a treatment as we should expect from others, the case being reversed.

I am, Gentlemen, your very obedient and most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR CHRISTOPHER FRENCH.

Camp at Cambridge, September 26, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 18th instant is now before me, as well as that from the Committee of Hartford, on the same subject. When I compare the treatment you have received with that which has been shown to those brave American officers who were taken fighting gallantly in defence of the liberties of their Country, I cannot help expressing some surprise that you should thus earnestly contest points of mere punctilio. The appellation of rebel has been deemed sufficient to sanctify every species of cruelty to them, while the Ministerial officers, the voluntary instruments of an avaricious and vindictive Ministry, claim, upon all occasions, the benefit of those military rules, which can only be binding where they are mutual. We have shown, on our part, the strongest disposition to observe them during the present contest. But I should ill support my Country's honour, and my own character, if I did not show a proper sense of their sufferings, by making the condition of the Ministerial officers in some degree dependant upon theirs.

My disposition does not allow me to follow the unworthy example set me by General Gage, to its fullest extent. You possess all the essential comforts of life; why should you press for indulgences of a ceremonious kind, which give general offence?

I have looked over all the papers sent me from Phila- delphia. I find nothing in them upon the present subject; nor do I know whether the liberty of wearing your sword was given or taken. But I flatter myself, that when you come to consider all circumstances, you will save me the trouble of giving any positive directions. You will easily conceive how much more grateful a compliance with the wishes of the people, among whom your residence may be longer than you expect, will appear, when it is the result of your prudence and good sense, rather than of a determination from me. I therefore should be unwilling to deprive you of an opportunity of cultivating their esteem by so small a concession as this must be.

As I suppose your several letters to me have been communicated to others, I cannot forbear considering your conduct in declaring, in a high tone, "that, had you joined your Regiment, you would have acted vigorously against this Country, and done all in your power to reduce it," as a deviation from the line of propriety and prudence which I should have expected to distinguish the conduct of so old and experienced an officer. Your being so entirely in our power may extinguish the resentment which a generous and enlightened mind would otherwise feel. But I cannot commend the conduct which puts such a mind to the trial.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL JOSEPH SPENCER.

Head-Quarters, September 26, 1775.

SIR: I have perused and considered a petition, or rather a remonstrance, directed to you, and signed by several Captains and Subalterns, on the appointment of Mr. Huntington to the lieutenantancy of Captain Chester's Company.

The decent representation of officers, or even of common soldiers, through the channel of their Colonel, or other superiour officers, I shall always encourage and attend to; but I must declare my disapprobation of this mode of associating and combining, as subversive of all subordination, discipline, and order.

Should the proper officers refuse or neglect to receive their complaints, an immediate application to their general officer would be proper. Much as I disapprove the mode of opposition to this gentleman, I disapprove the opposition itself still more. To yield to it would be in effect to surrender the command of the Army to those whose duty it is, and whose honour it ought to be, to obey. Commissions should be ever the reward of merit, not of age; and I am determined never to put it out of the proper power to reward a deserving, active officer, whatsoever may be his standing in the Army, or the pretensions of those who have no other merit than that of having been born or enlisted before him.

In an army so young as ours, the claims arising from real service are very few, and the accidental circumstance of obtaining a commission a month or two sooner, can, with no reasonable person, claim any superiour regard, or make such a scrutiny of any consequence. This Army is supported by the whole Continent; the establishment is entirely new. All Provincial customs, therefore, which are different in different Provinces, must be laid out of the question. The power which has established, and which pays this Army, has alone the right to judge who shall command in it, from the General to the Ensign. To put it into any other hands would be a high breach of my trust, and would give birth to such factions and cabals as must soon end in the dissolution of the Army, and the ruin of our Country.

As no objections are made to Mr. Huntington's character, nor any other reason assigned, than his not rising by gradation, I can make no alteration in his appointment. At the same time I declare, that I shall upon all occasions pay a proper respect to long service, and, as far as lies in my power, give it all the preference which is consistent with the welfare of the Army and the duties of my station. I make no doubt, therefore, when these and all other officers (who, in such cases, are both parties and judges) divest themselves of prejudice and partiality, they will cheerfully acquiesce in such appointments as are made, and manifest their sincere attachment to their Country, and the great cause in which we are engaged, by a ready and hearty obedience to all orders and rules judged necessary for the general interest.

I am Sir, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

CONFESSION OF TYLER DIBBLE.

Stamford, September 26, 1775.

Whereas I, the subscriber, have given offence to the publick, by opposing in publick Town-Meeting the appointment of a Committee of Inspection and Observation in this Town, and also by drawing a paper calculated to disunite its inhabitants; and being sensible of my misconduct and inadvertency, I do, in this publick manner, humbly acknowledge my faults in so doing, and ask forgiveness of my bleeding Country, and all whom I have offended, and do solemnly promise and declare, that I will exert myself to the utmost in defence of my Country, in opposition to the Ministerial Troops sent into this Country to dragoon us into slavery; and, furthermore, do promise to yield a strict adherence to the Continental Association, or any farther recommendations coming from that honourable body.

In testimony of my sincerity, I hereunto set my hand, consenting to have the foregoing confession inserted in the publick papers.

TYLER DIBBLE.

ORDER IN COUNCIL.

At the Court at St. James's, the 27th day of September, 1775—present:

The King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas His Majesty was pleased, by his Order in Council of the 23d day of August last, to prohibit the exportation out of this Kingdom into any parts beyond the seas, or carrying coastwise, any Gunpowder, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition, for and during the space of three months from the date of the said Order. And whereas His Majesty judges it necessary that the exportation of Saltpetre, or carrying the same coastwise, should be likewise prohibited during the said time: His Majesty doth, therefore, with the advice of his Privy Council, hereby order, require, prohibit, and command, that no person or persons whatsoever (except the Master-General, Lieutenant-General, or principal officers of the Ordnance for His Majesty's service) do, at any time during the term limited by His Majesty's aforementioned Order in Council of the 23d of August last, presume to transport into any parts out of this Kingdom, or carry coastwise, any Saltpetre, or ship or lade any Saltpetre on board any ship or vessel, in order to transporting the same into any parts beyond the seas, or carrying the same coastwise, without leave or permission in that behalf first obtained from His Majesty, or his Privy Council, upon pain of incurring and suffering the forfeiture and penalty inflicted by an act passed in the twenty-ninth year of his late Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to empower His Majesty to prohibit the exportation of Saltpetre, and to enforce the law for empowering His Majesty to prohibit the exportation of Gunpowder, or any sort of Arms and Ammunition, and also to empower His Majesty to restrain the carrying coastwise of Saltpetre, Gunpowder, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition." And the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, the Master-General of the Ordnance, and His Majesty's Secretary at War, are to give the necessary directions herein, as to them may respectively appertain.

STEPH. COTTRELL.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF BEVERLEY.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Town of Beverley, in the County of York, in Common Council assembled, transmitted to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Town of BEVERLEY, in the County of YORK, in Common Council assembled.

We, your Majesty's most loyal and faithful subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Beverley, in the County of York, should think ourselves wanting both in duty and gratitude to your Majesty, did we not take this occasion of joining with the rest of your Majesty's loyal subjects in giving this publick testimony of our utmost abhorrence of the present unnatural rebellion in some of your Majesty's Colonies in North-America, as well as of those factious and evil-minded men, both at home and abroad, by whose means the same hath been and still is principally promoted and abetted.

When we consider the many blessings we have enjoyed since your Majesty's accession to the Throne of these Realms, by the great extension of trade, and the consequent increase of wealth, by the many good and salutary laws which have been enacted, and, above all, by your Majesty's just and lenient government over us, we cannot sufficiently express our detestation of all those societies, or sets of men, who (contrary to the allegiance they owe and have sworn unto your Majesty) are now, by their inflammatory letters and publications, in a most daring manner, sowing the seeds of sedition among us, and thereby endeavouring, as much as in them lies, to involve us at home as well as abroad in all the calamities of a civil war.

We beg leave, therefore, in the most respectful and dutiful manner, to assure your Majesty, that we will, at all times, to the utmost of our power, be ready to support your Majesty, and the honour and dignity of your Crown, as well as the legislative authority of these Realms, in the defence of our most valuable Constitution, against all such attempts of your Majesty's seditious or deluded subjects, either at home or abroad.

Given under our common seal, this twenty-seventh day of September, in the year of our Lord 1775.

JO. MIDGLEY, Mayor.

MEETING OF MERCHANTS, ETC., BRISTOL.

Guildhall, Bristol, September 27, 1775.

At a numerous and respectable meeting of the Merchants, Traders, and others, interested in and well-wishers to American commerce, held at the Guildhall, at eleven o'clock this morning, Mr. Hayes, an eminent American merchant, in the chair, the following Resolutions were agreed to:

1. Resolved, That the trade with North-America is of very great advantage to Great Britain in general, and to this City in particular.
2. That any measures which contribute to the destruction of that trade are an essential injury to the internal commerce and manufactures of this Kingdom.
3. That the present unhappy contest between Great Britain and her Colonies hath a manifest tendency to destroy the commercial connection and political union which have for many years subsisted between the two Countries.
4. That the loss of our trade to America will deprive many thousand industrious poor of the means of procuring a daily subsistence; a melancholy fact, of which we have already ample experience in this City.
5. That the late importation of American grain into this City hath greatly contributed to lower the price of all the necessaries of life, and has been the means of preserving multitudes from the calamitous consequences of famine.
6. That an approbation of measures calculated to destroy the commercial intercourse between the two Countries, and spread the horrors of a civil war over a very considerable part of the British Dominions, would be highly disgraceful to the inhabitants of a City that depends solely upon trade for its support, and to every friend to humanity and the general happiness of society.

A motion was then made, that a petition be presented to His Majesty, praying his interposition to put a stop to a ruinous civil war, that our trade may thereby be restored to its former flourishing state. One person objected to it, on a supposed disinclination in His Majesty to receive petitions respecting the American dispute. He was replied to, and appeared to be convinced. A petition was then produced, read paragraph by paragraph, and passed without a dissenting voice. The petition was then signed by the gentlemen present, and afterwards left at the Bush Tavern, in Corn Street; and when the signatures are fully completed, it is to be presented to the King, by our Representatives in Parliament.

Bristol, September 28, 1775.

On Monday, the 18th instant, the following Letter was sent to the Right Worshipful Charles Hotchkiss, Esquire, Mayor:

SIR: A great number of respectable fellow-citizens being desirous that an address be sent to His Majesty, on the present situation of affairs, we take the liberty to request your Worship will call a House for that purpose; and are, with great respect, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servants,

THOMAS TYNDALL,	SLADE BAKER,
JOHN HOBHOUSE,	RICHARD MEYLER,
MICHAEL MILLER,	JOHN POWELL,
WILLIAM MILLER,	JOHN VAUGHAN,
WILLIAM HART,	NICHOLAS PERRY,
JAMES REED,	THOMAS WARREN.

In consequence of the above, summonses were sent to the members of the Corporation, to attend in the Council-House on Thursday, the 21st, but a sufficient number did not attend to make a House.

Upon this, many citizens applied to the Mayor for the use of the Guildhall on Thursday following, to assemble in, to address His Majesty on the situation of affairs between Great Britain and the American Colonies. The Hall was readily granted, and notice thereof was given in the publick papers.

On Monday, the 25th, Messrs. Samuel Brailsford, John Fisher Weare, and Richard Champion, applied to the Mayor for the Hall on Wednesday, that the American merchants, traders, and the well-wishers to American commerce, might meet there, to consider of a petition to His Majesty. They met accordingly on that day, to the number of about fifty persons. Mr. Hayes, a gentleman lately settled here, from New-York, was called to the chair. A petition was produced and read. A proposal being made for the Chairman to sign it for the whole, which he very prudently declined, it was then signed by those present, and is now industriously carried about, and every influence used to obtain names to it.

Though it was generally understood that this petition was merely set up in opposition to the address, yet not the least obstruction was made to it by any of the independent merchants and citizens.

Thursday, at twelve o'clock, Mr. Mayor went from the Council-House to the Guildhall, attended by the Sheriffs, with many members of the Corporation, and the greatest number of respectable citizens ever known on the like occasion, his Worship being in the chair. The business was opened in a manly sensible speech, by Geo. Daubeny, Esq., setting forth that he was directed to return his Worship the thanks of the citizens of Bristol, for his readiness in granting them the Hall, and was desired to express the grateful sense they entertained of the honour of his presence on this occasion. He then begged leave to lay before them an address, drawn up by a Committee of gentlemen appointed for that purpose, which, he hoped, would meet with general approbation:

To this the Mayor replied nearly as follows:

That he should always retain the most grateful remembrance of the honour this day done him, and should be glad of every opportunity to testify his real regard for the true interest and welfare of the City of Bristol.

A motion was then made for the address to be read. It was much approved, and desired to be read a second time. An attempt to oppose it was then made, by the persons who met to petition the preceding day. Their Chairman, Mr. Hayes, who was deputed by them to attend, was heard with candour, and, in reply, was informed that, as no interruption had been made to their proceedings the day before, it was expected they would not disturb this day's meeting. They, notwithstanding, continued to obstruct in a very indecent manner; but numbers soon prevailed, and they were silenced. The address was signed, and the Mayor, Sheriffs, with some principal citizens, were requested to present it to His Majesty in the most respectful manner.

The address was immediately signed by a great number of citizens, and we hear that it will be left in the Committee-Room of the Tailors' Hall till Monday next from eleven to two o'clock, for such as are disposed to sign it.

Narrative of Facts and of the Proceedings respecting an Address from some of the Inhabitants of BRISTOL.

A great number of the citizens of Bristol, as well as many country gentlemen, assembled at the Guildhall, on Thursday, the 28th of September, in consequence of a publick but anonymous advertisement, requiring their attendance, in order to address His Majesty on the present conjuncture of affairs between Great Britain and America. The Chairman, Charles Hotchkin, Esq., late Mayor, conducted himself in a most unprecedented and partial manner, by refusing a fair and candid discussion of the subject. In justification of the loyalty to His Majesty, the respect for all publick constitutional meetings, the hearty desire to see a happy reconciliation between Great Britain and her Colonies, and the earnest endeavours to accomplish so desirable an event of great numbers of merchants, traders, and manufacturers, and others who attended the said meeting, whose attachment to the illustrious house of Hanover has never been suspected, this account is published to the world of the proceedings of that day, and the part they intended to have acted.

In all questions to be determined at publick meetings, it has been always understood that the persons present have an undoubted right to determine who shall be Chairman; that whenever a meeting of the citizens is called on any publick occasion, the persons attending such meeting have an unquestionable right to canvass and discuss every measure which may be proposed; that it is the business of the Chairman to attend impartially to the arguments advanced by the contending parties, to state the whole with candour, and then, either by a fair show of hands, or by a division of numbers, to declare what is the determination of such meeting.

Impressed with these ideas, many gentlemen attended the meeting to hear this important affair discussed; when, to their astonishment, Mr. Hotchkin, the late Mayor, on the very last day of his mayoralty, and not acting in his corporate capacity, took upon himself the office of Chairman, and behaved in a most unbecoming, partial manner. Without putting the question, whether it was the resolution to address, an address was produced. The moment it was read, without asking the approbation of the meeting, he proceeded to sign his name. Many gentlemen present attempted to declare their objections, but were, by violent outrages, rudely interrupted. Mr. Hotchkin's inattention to these outrages was a tacit acknowledgment of his approbation. He took no pains to obtain silence, but, by the most barefaced partiality, convinced every unprejudiced mind that, having failed in his attempt to procure an address from the Corporation, he came there resolved to accomplish the purposes of his partisans, whether right or wrong, with a majority or without, and fully determined to put no one question.

After the address had been read, it was objected to, as not being founded on facts, and as leading to widen the breach between this Country and the Colonies. In support of these opinions, arguments were attempted to be offered with calmness, unmixed with party or party rage. A dutiful and loyal petition was prepared to be read to them, agreeable to a resolution of a very respectable meeting of merchants, traders, &c., held the preceding day, at the Guildhall, which had been unanimously agreed to after some debate, and after an ample discussion, paragraph by paragraph; also, several resolutions respecting the importance of the American trade. But the Chairman denied them the liberty of presenting the resolutions, or reading the petition, as well as prevented any objections being made, by an indecency never before experienced in any publick meeting in this City.

In justification, therefore, of the character of those gentlemen who were thus, as well as their friends and fellow-citizens, injuriously treated, these facts are stated to the publick at large, that the whole Nation may be acquainted with the surreptitious manner in which an address has been obtained from the citizens of Bristol, falsely dignified with the title of an "Address of the Mayor, Burgesses, &c., at Guildhall assembled"—the Mayor not being in his corporate capacity, and the address being, in a great measure, supported by country gentlemen, who are to be the bearers of it to His Majesty, and who have no trading connection, nor are even residents in a City, the far greater part of whose trade is dependant on the Colonies. It was not agreed to, but opposed; and if a division or a show of hands had been permitted, there is very little doubt but that the majority would have been against an address of the tenour and purport of that which has been thus partially and unjustifiably obtained, and which is evident from the refusal of the Chairman and the gentlemen about him to have the question put.

If any person should be disposed to controvert any part of the above narrative, it will be attested by several merchants and gentlemen who were present.

PETITION FROM THE CITY OF BRISTOL.

Petition presented to His Majesty on Wednesday, the 11th of October, from the City of Bristol, by Mr. Burke, one of the Representatives of that City.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Petition of the Merchants, Traders, Manufacturers, and others, citizens of BRISTOL.

May it please your Majesty:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the merchants, traders, manufacturers, and others, citizens of Bristol, humbly beg leave to approach the throne with the most respectful assurances of our unalterable attachment and affection to your Majesty's royal person and family, and of our unfeigned zeal for the support of your Government, the glory of your reign, and the peace and prosperity of your once united and flourishing, but now most unhappily distracted Empire.

It is with an affliction not to be expressed, and with the most anxious apprehensions for ourselves and posterity, that we behold the growing distractions in America threaten, unless prevented by the timely interposition of your Majesty's wisdom and goodness, nothing less than a lasting and ruinous civil war. We are apprehensive that, if the present measures are adhered to, a total alienation of the affections of our fellow-subjects, in the Colonies will ensue; to which affection, much more than to a dread of any power, we have been hitherto indebted for the inestimable benefits which we have derived from those establishments. We can foresee no good effects to the commerce or revenues of this Kingdom, at a future period, from any victories which may be obtained by your Majesty's arms over desolated Provinces and an exasperated people. From the consequences of a reverse of things, in the course of human events not impossible, we choose to avert our eyes. We apprehend that none can profit by the continuance of this war, and therefore we hope none can wish it, except those Nations who, envious of the diffusive liberty and consequent power and prosperity of your Dominions, are the natural enemies of Great Britain.

We owe a testimony of justice to your Colonies, which is, that in the midst of the present distractions, we have received many unequivocal proofs that our fellow-subjects in that part of the world are very far from having lost their ancient affection and regard to their Mother Country, or departed from the principles of commercial honour and private justice. Notwithstanding the cessation of the powers of Government throughout that vast Continent, we have reason to think, judging by the imports into this City, and by our extensive correspondences, that the commodities of American growth, enumerated by acts of Parliament, have been as regularly brought to Great Britain as in the most quiet times. We assure your Majesty, that the trade of this port, and the subsistence of a great part of your Kingdom, have depended very much on the honourable, and, in this instance, amicable behaviour of your American subjects. We have in this single City received, within one year from the first of September, 1774, more than one million bushels of wheat, to say nothing of the great quantity of other valuable commodities essential to our navigation and commerce. These circumstances we humbly beg leave, with the utmost deference, to submit to your Majesty's consideration; in order to show that, whenever your royal clemency shall exert itself in behalf of your Colonies, the dispositions on their part to peace and reconciliation are by no means so unfavourable as many persons, from passion or misinformation, may possibly suggest.

No part of your Majesty's subjects can wish more earnestly to preserve the constitutional superiority of the British Legislature over all parts of your Dominions than the citizens of Bristol. But they are convinced, from clear reason and severe experience, that this superiority can hardly be preserved by mere force, nor without acquiring the confidence and cultivating the affections of the great and numerous people who inhabit the British Plantations. We humbly conceive that this authority would suffer no diminution in the least prejudicial to it, by healing concessions, by the relaxation of penal statutes, which have been found ineffectual for their purposes, and by relinquishing the pursuit of an object, the possible attainment of which, under any circumstances of fortune, may admit of the most serious doubt. On the contrary, we have reason, although things have been carried to unfortunate lengths of hostility on both sides, to hope the most salutary effects from a return, under your Majesty's provident and sagacious direction, to the ancient indulgent and happy usage of this Kingdom, with regard to its Colonies.

We find ourselves under an indispensable necessity of making, with respectful plainness, this dutiful and most faithful representation of our sentiments to your Majesty, lest it might be supposed that, by our silence, we were consenting to the opinions and wishes for coercive proceedings, expressed in the late addresses to your Majesty. We assure your Majesty, that we are men of peaceful dispositions; that we detest the thought of obtruding on your Majesty's wisdom and clemency any sort of recommendation of force and rigour against any part of your people. That we who have long flourished by an amicable intercourse with the Colonies should call for coercive measures, as the probable means of future commerce, would not only be arrogant and presumptuous, but unnatural and ungrateful. No experience has hitherto taught us the good effects of such measures, and it little becomes us to recommend violent and hazardous proceedings. We must always look back with satisfaction and gratitude to that period of your Majesty's reign when a prudent concession restored tranquillity and commerce to all your Majesty's Dominions. We trust that, after having humbly entreated the exertion of your Majesty's wisdom for reconciling amicably the differences which unhappily subsist among your subjects, we have cleared ourselves to our own consciences, and acquitted ourselves in the eyes of Almighty God, of our Sovereign, and of our Country, from any share whatsoever in producing the calamities which the present proceedings, so inauspiciously begun, may yet bring upon this Nation.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF BRISTOL.

Address of the Mayor, Burgesses, Clergy, Freeholders, and Inhabitants of the City of Bristol, at the Guildhall assembled, presented to His Majesty by Charles Hotchkyn, Esq., late Mayor; John Durbin, Esq., late Sheriff; Richard Combe, Esq., one of the Representatives in Parliament for Aldborough, in Suffolk; James Laroche, Esq., one of the Representatives in Parliament for Bodmyn; Matthew Brickdale, Esq., Thomas Tyndall, Esq., John Harcourt, Esq., Isaac Elton, the younger, Esq., William Miles, Esq., John Crofts, Esq., George Daubeny, Esq., William Hart, Esq., John Powell, Esq., and John Taylor Vaughan, Esq.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful subjects, the Mayor, Burgesses, Clergy, Freeholders, and Inhabitants of the City of Bristol, at the Guildhall assembled, beg leave to address your Majesty on the present conjuncture of affairs between Great Britain and your American Colonies.

With gratitude we acknowledge the many and great blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and auspicious government; during which, the trade and commerce of this ancient and loyal City have increased to a degree unknown to former times, to be attributed only to the wisdom of your Majesty's Councils, and the many excellent laws lately passed for the encouragement of those inexhaustible sources of wealth.

Truly sensible of your Majesty's unwearied endeavours for the support of the religious and civil rights of all your subjects, we cannot but with astonishment behold the conduct of a few disappointed men, whose sophistical arguments and seditious correspondence have, in a great measure, been the occasion of deluding your American subjects into open rebellion.

As British subjects, we testify our abhorrence of this unnatural rebellion; and, though we deeply lament the misfortunes our American brethren have brought upon themselves, yet we cannot but express our warmest wishes for the success of those measures your Majesty hath adopted in support of the legislative authority of Great Britain over all your Dominions, which we trust will now be permanently established, and hope that the loyalty which prevails here will soon convince our fellow-subjects in America of their error, and bring them back to a just sense of their duty and allegiance; this, and this only, can restore them to your Majesty's favour, and to that flourishing state they so long have and still might have enjoyed.

May your Majesty's Councils ever prevail to the extirpating of licentiousness; and, by a firm establishment of real liberty, may you triumph over the enemies of our glorious Constitution, and long continue to reign over a free, united, and happy people. To obtain these great ends, we assure your Majesty of our utmost assistance and support, and declare, that a zealous attachment to your royal person and family, a veneration of the laws, and an ardent affection for order and good government, are the principles which direct and animate our conduct.

September 28, 1775.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON TO A FRIEND IN THE COUNTRY, DATED SEPT. 27, 1775.

My opinion is not a whit changed from what it was last winter. Ministers and Parliaments cannot alter common sense. A majority in both Houses is devoted to the Minister, and the Minister to the invisible power which rules in the cabinet. The landed interest are as ignorant as the trading interest are venal. Hence the desire of the country gentlemen to tax America, and hence the addresses of several Towns to pursue the war. The Ministers promote and receive, with a greedy pleasure, these addresses, as they equally assist in imposing upon the King, and keeping them in office. A few circumstances have happened, which the mass of the people do not understand, but which men of discernment say have lulled the Kingdom into a most fatal error. The loss of the American trade has not been felt, owing to the large orders from Spain for the fleet, from the Baltick and Germany, owing to the peace between Russia and the Porte, and the troubles in Poland having ceased. These orders came very opportunely, together with larger remittances from America than usual. The very considerable quantity of grain from America, and the advanced prices of oil and tobacco, have enabled the Americans (except those in Boston) to discharge their debts this year better than formerly. This prodigious influx of money has been placed in the stocks for a little temporary interest, (and this has kept up the funds,) in expectation that the American trade will, in a short time, be opened again. My opinion is, that the American trade will never be opened again; that the Colonies are lost. Owing to the temporary orders which I have already explained, some weak people persuade themselves, that if the American trade should be lost, we shall not suffer by it. How ignorant are those men! Is the consumption of three millions of people no loss? Such men deserve no notice. Time alone can undeceive them. Six months from this date, this Country will begin to awake, and not sooner. Disputes of another complexion will happen next summer, all of them originating in this ruinous American war. I am confident there will be no more petitions from America, and I am also confident that, as soon as the Delegates to the Continental Congress are informed of the treatment their petition has met with, a system of civil government, for that great Country, will make its appearance, that people here have no idea of; and that foreign assistance, which intelligent men know very well was offered to them a few months ago, will be accepted, on condition of granting to that foreign Power certain exclusive commercial advantages. From that instant Great Britain must date her decline, and I fear her downfall. America has offered to compromise this unhappy difference. She wishes most ardently for a reconciliation with Great Britain. But such is the false policy of this unhappy reign, no distinction seems to be made between the duty of subjects and the condition of slaves. America is ready and willing to submit to the absolute authority of Parliament to regulate and control her trade in whatever mode, channel, or restriction, Parliament shall think proper, if the idea of taxation is totally done away, and all the acts since 1763 are repealed. But if a revenue is insisted upon, fix a sum in proportion to what is raised here, and she will pay it, provided she may have an open trade, because she can buy the articles she has hitherto bought of us cheaper elsewhere, which will enable her to pay the required sum. In a word, she will give us either trade or revenue, but not both. She asks only to be put upon the same footing with ourselves. But it must not be. The resolution at St. James's is against her. Though the Court is not a little embarrassed by the failure of the Russian negotiation, application was made for twenty thousand Russians, to be sent to America in the spring. It has met with a negative at Petersburgh. The idea of the Bedford party is, to prosecute a littoral war in America next summer. The Fleet and Army must be supplied with provisions from England. Reflect for a moment on the extreme folly of making Smithfield the shambles of America. The Lord Mayor might prevent this. Every pound of mutton sent to America costs Government two shillings at least. How long can the landed interest support this expense? Every tax has been continued (except a small temporary diminution of the land tax) that supported the late glorious war. It was an increase of trade that enabled us to bear this continuation of taxes. But the Elector of Hanover may possibly get money by this American war. If five Regiments of his Troops are taken into British pay, their former pay out of the revenues of Hanover is saved of course, and goes clear into his pocket. He got a hundred thousand Pounds last year by the job of Somerset House. Parliament meets to grant money; the Ministers cannot go on without it; they have expended every shilling of last year's supplies. Therefore it was called so early that there might be no stop to carrying on the American war. Astonishing infatuation!

COLONEL HENRY LAURENS, PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY, TO WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON.

Charlestown, September 27, 1775.

SIR: On Sunday last we received your letter of the 17th, together with the sundry papers which you refer to; and if Captain Wilson is detained one day more, we will send by him the Declaration and Treaty, to be printed in London; but shall defer a publication here, until we have an opportunity of considering the propriety of such a measure in your presence; which, we suppose, will happen in the course of a few days.

The intelligence from the Cherokees, received in Mr. Wilkinson's letter, is very alarming. We hope you have sent away the Good Warriour and his fellow-travellers in good humour; and that they will influence their countrymen to remain quiet, and give us time to discover the perpetrators of the murder intimated by Mr. Wilkinson. In the mean time, we trust that you have taken proper measures for that purpose.

Le Despencer packet arrived here from Falmouth, with advices from London, to the 3d of August. Accounts in brief are, that Administration were sending more troops and ships to America, determined to persevere in the execution of their plan. General Gage, in his account of the Bunker Hill affair, on the 17th June, transmitted to Lord Dartmouth, owns about one thousand and fifty-six of the King's Troops killed and wounded; and his number of officers rather exceeds our early advices. We have heard nothing since the first of August from our Delegates.

By order of the Council of Safety:

HENRY LAURENS, President.

The Hon. William Henry Drayton, Esq., at the Camp, Ninety-Six.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MARYLAND.

Our Association is very generally signed, and still acts as a powerful emetick to our Tories. They always expressed a firm resolution never to submit to taxation by the Parliament of Great Britain. The spirit, the essence of our Association is to oppose the force employed by the Ministry to tax Americans, and to compel a submission to the power of Parliament to alter the essentials of our Provincial Constitutions. If the first be admitted, we have no property; if the latter be submitted to, we have no liberty. Our Tories, with liberty in their mouths and a profession of regard to their Country, and a denial of any right in Parliament to tax America, constantly opposed every measure adopted by this Province to obtain a redress of our grievances. No mode could meet with their approbation and concurrence. They found fault with every scheme proposed, but never offered a substitute. Our commercial opposition should have been confined only to a partial non-importation. Indeed, the head of them, The Author of the Considerations, was only for a petition to the King; every thing beyond that was, in his opinion, folly and madness. To withhold and delay payment of our debts to British merchants only till redress of grievances, was deemed by them dishonest and villanous. Such was the language of a celebrated protest drawn by Lloyd Dulany, and approved by The Author of the Considerations. The resolutions of our Convention last December, to arm and to prepare to defend our liberties, were likewise opposed; they were styled rash and violent; the advisers of those prudent and salutary measures were called weak, wicked, and designing men. The Author of the Considerations, and his brother Lloyd, the head of our protestors, refused to contribute any thing towards the purchase of arms and ammunition. Our Association has driven almost the whole family of the Dulanys from our Province. Lloyd took his flight in the Annapolis, the first of the month. The son of the Secretary deserted a few weeks before. The father, under pretence of a journey for health, is gone to the northward; and, it is probable, will not return to his native Province, where he is universally (except by Scotch factors and some of the officers of Government) despised and detested. You know he was the adviser and defender of a Proclamation issued by Government to regulate and establish the fees of office—the very fees which the Delegates of the people refused to continue. Though he wrote ably against the right of Parliament to tax this Country, and then it was his interest to prevent the exercise of a power which would certainly diminish, if not destroy, the emoluments of his office of Secretary, yet he obstinately persevered, against his better judgment, to justify a right in Government to establish the fees of officers. His duplicity of conduct, as to our clergy, will long be remembered. His nephew, Daniel Dulany, son of Walter, has also taken his flight. He affected a freedom of language, and even enrolled in our Militia; but appearances would no longer avail; he could not swallow our test. The few Scotchmen among us, who have acted with spirit and joined us, are in great esteem. Many are gone to Great Britain; the rest will probably take their residence in Virginia, since their exemption there from bearing arms. We will not censure, but we cannot imitate their conduct. Our common toast is, a free exportation to Scotchmen and Tories. Would it not be best to have one general test for all America? I make no doubt you have several enemies among you; pray find some mode to ferret them out, as we have done. We will not harbour your Tories. We wish ours may not be received amongst you.

ADDRESS OF THE MANAGERS OF THE UNITED COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA FOR PROMOTING AMERICAN MANUFACTURES.

To the Inhabitants of this Province:

The great reason that there was to apprehend that, through the infatuation and obstinacy of the British Parliament, the Non-Importation and Non-Exportation Agreement of these Colonies would continue for a considerable time, and the great distress that might consequently ensue, unless some means were devised to give employment to the necessitous, together with the advantage that would arise to the publick if manufactories could be established amongst us, were considerations which induced us to make the experiment; and although at first we met with difficulties, owing chiefly to our inexperience, we have now the pleasure to inform you, that we are thoroughly convinced of the utility of this institution; that it is practicable, and may be profitable, not only to the persons who are actually employed in labour, but to the contributors themselves; and, in order to render it still more extensively useful, we are extremely desirous that the company may be enlarged, and that every person who can conveniently spare the small sum of ten Pounds would become a proprietor. There are now upwards of four hundred persons in employment, which numbers are daily increasing; and nothing is now wanting but capital stock, to carry on a very extensive trade.

As the inhabitants of this Province are distinguished for humanity, if there was no other motive but the employment of the poor, it must be a strong incitement to join the company; but when private interest, charity to the poor, and the publick good, unitedly urge us thereto, who that has ability can refuse? Persons of experience in the linen branch assure us that our climate is much more favourable than either England or Ireland, and that nothing is wanting to carry on manufactories very extensively, but experienced workmen, and a disposition in the people to promote the design.

As the bleaching of linen is a material part of the manufacture, we may inform the publick that there is a gentleman now in this City, who has been bred to the business, a man of character and abilities, who, if sufficient encouragement should be given, will soon establish a bleach-field.

Such as incline to become subscribers to the manufactory are desired to call at the Factory-House, in Market Street, at the corner of Ninth Street or at the London Coffee-House, where articles will be left for them to sign.

Philadelphia, September 27, 1775.

Address generally agreed to by the Privates of upwards of thirty Companies belonging to this City and Districts, and presented to their Officers by the General Committee of the Privates of said Companies, being in consequence of an application from the Officers to know their reasons for refusing to sign the Military Articles delivered out by the Committee of Safety; which Address was presented by the Officers, this day, to the Honourable House of Assembly.

GENTLEMEN: At this time of difficulty and danger, when our privileges are attacked by a powerful enemy, and the best blood on the Continent is daily spilling in their defence, we deem any attempt to weaken or destroy the principles on which we have associated to be subversive of our liberties, and unbecoming any well-wisher to America, and are determined to the utmost of our power to oppose it. We therefore beg leave to assure you, that the objections we make to signing the rules of the Committee of Safety proceed from no such principle, but from a sincere desire to promote and encourage the Association.

We conceive it to be contrary to the true end and intention of legislation, for any body of men, claiming legislative authority, to make any laws which shall, under heavy penalties, oblige one part of the community to the performance of duties of the utmost difficulty and danger, while it exempts another part of the said community from the performance of them, though the party exempted is to reap equal advantages by the performance with those who are obliged to perform them. This principle, we conceive, is destructive of the end and design of civil society; for we have been taught to believe that, in a free State, no man is above the laws; but that even the Kings of free Countries are as much under the dominion of the laws as the meanest of their subjects; and that the true distinction between liberty and despotism consists in this: that in a free State every member thereof is subject to every law of the land; but in despotick States one part is bound, whilst the other is free, and by this means the party bound is always considered as slaves to the party which is free.

We conclude, therefore, that the law, which equally binds every member of the community, be it ever so severe, has its origin in freedom, and may safely be submitted to by freemen; but the law which bears hard upon or binds one part of the community to the performance of difficult and dangerous services, while it exempts another part, though both are to be equally benefited by said services, has its origin in despotism, and ought never to be submitted to by freemen.

This being premised, we proceed to lay before you our objections against the present articles, drawn up by the Committee of Safety.

1st. Because, as the Continental Congress has recommended that a General Association of all able-bodied, effective men, between sixteen and fifty years of age, in each Colony, should take place, so we judge it very imprudent to sign any military laws until that measure is come into. And we cannot help hinting, that the attempting to have such laws signed before the other takes place, looks as if there was a design to make the present Associators a kind of regular army of defence for the whole Province, as the gentlemen who made the rules seem to claim to themselves the right of calling out any or all of the present Associators, and of putting them on pay; which, if once submitted to, the rules will enable them to keep us in that condition as long as they please, or subject us to martial law in case of refusal. This, we apprehend, has a direct tendency to prevent a general association; as the present Associators, if the rules are once signed, must march forth, and, as long as they can stand, defend the whole Province. Let a general association take place, according to the resolve of the Congress, and then we pledge ourselves, that we will show a sufficient degree of readiness to join our brethren in every measure necessary for repelling every hostile invader, and establishing our inestimable privileges on the most lasting foundation.

2d. Because we look upon standing armies as dangerous to the liberties of mankind, we refuse to subscribe any laws which may put it hereafter in the power of any number of men to make use of us as such. Nevertheless, though we have expressed our dislike of standing armies, and are unwilling to put the Province to any needless expense, yet, as the present stoppage of trade will necessarily throw many poor people out of bread, and as we are bound in duty and humanity to provide for such, we should think the most decent and useful way of doing it would be to enlist such, on pay for six months, as will voluntarily offer, at the end of which they may be retained or discharged, as the state of our affairs may make it expedient, provided the persons so enlisted and continued have liberty, at the end of each year, to renew their enlistment, or demand their discharge, which shall be granted, unless they at the time are commanded or have notice to hold themselves in readiness to march against a common enemy.

3d. Because we know of no right which our Assembly has to invest any body of men with legislative authority; this being an unalienable essential right, belonging to the whole body of the freemen of which the society is constituted. We therefore conceive it to be a new and unheard of exertion of power, inconsistent with the trust reposed in them by their constituents, and erecting a dangerous precedent if submitted to, as the body thus invested is not subject to the control of, or liable to be called to an account by the people.

4th. Because, if on any emergency we should permit our Representatives to exercise such a power, while confined to their own body, yet we conceive that they have no right to invest any one not of their body with such a trust, unless by the express direction of the freemen at large.

5th. Because no representative body has a right to make, nor will we ever submit to the operation of any military law made by our Assembly, but such as equally extends to every inhabitant of the whole Province, except on the following condition, viz:

"If at any time an exemption from the operation of any law be judged proper and necessary, let the terms of exemption be fairly and fully expressed; let the mulct or fines, if any there be, be proportioned to each man's property, and then let every man have the liberty to submit to the law, or, by paying according to the terms of exemption, to be free of its operation."

Thus far, we apprehend, the partiality of the articles hath constrained us to object; and we should most certainly be wanting to ourselves, and to the rights of mankind in general, if we did not, with honesty, freedom, and sincerity, exhibit our inmost sentiments to the present legislators of Pennsylvania, men who, we trust, will ever rejoice to hear the voice of their constituents.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

The inhabitants of the several Townships in the County of Northampton met on the 27th of September, 1775, and elected, by ballot, the following persons as Committee-Men for their respective Townships, viz: Lewis Gordon, Abraham Arndt, Thomas Sillyman, Henry Lawalt, Christopher Wagner, John Beil, Jacob Morry, David Deshler, Peter Rhoads, John Greesemer, John Wetzel, Andrew Englemen, Daniel Knows, John Hartman, Thomas Everet, John Hunsacker, John Solt, George Gilbert, Niegel Gray, Peter Anthony, William Beck, Jacob Hubler, Benjamin Depuy, Godfrey Greenswich, Robert Levers, Nicholas Depuy, Jacobus Vangarda, and James Vanoken.

At the same time, the following persons were chosen a Committee of Correspondence, to wit: Lewis Gordon, Christopher Wagner, Jacob Morry, Thomas Sillyman, and Henry Lawalt.

New-York, September 27, 1775.

We hear from Dutchess County, that on Saturday, the 16th instant, James Smith, Esq., a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for that County, was very handsomely tarred and feathered, for acting in open contempt of the Resolves of the County Committee, as was Coen Smith, of said place, for the like behaviour; they were carted five or six miles into the country. The Judge undertook to sue for and recover the arms taken from the Tories by order of said Committee, and actually committed one of the Committee, who assisted at disarming the Tories, which enraged the people so much, that they rose and rescued the prisoner, and poured out their resentment on this villanous retailer of the law.

JOHN N. BLEECKER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Albany, September 27, 1775.

SIR: Having been informed that it was some time ago resolved, in Congress, that all those who had any demands for publick charges on that body, should lay a state of their accounts before them, or the Committee of Inspection appointed for the purpose of auditing accounts; in consequence of which, I enclose you an account of provisions, stores, baggage, &c., forwarded from Albany to Fort George, specifying by whom sent, and what kind of carriage; also, an account of stores and provisions purchased, and other expenses for services performed, &c., for which the particular accounts are likewise enclosed, which I request may be returned, after being examined, to Abraham Yates, Peter Sylvester, and Henry Glen, Esquires. You have also a general account, by which it will appear that a balance is due to wagoners, teamsters, &c., &c., of fourteen hundred and ninety-eight Pounds, fifteen Shillings and five Pence, for which sum I have this day drawn on you, in favour of Mr. Matties Arnest, and hope my draft will be honoured. Several persons, from whom the provisions, &c., have been bought, complain of a delay in payment, and often intimate that they are in want of money; that they could long since have had cash, had they sold their provisions to others; and the wagoners and teamsters also express their uneasiness at the want of their dues, and plainly say that they are and have been deceived with fair promises, which I have indeed often been forced to make use of, in order to induce them to load, by telling them that they would all be paid off before the end of August last. With respect to the carpenters, they are also in anxious expectation of being paid; some having large families to maintain, and nothing wherewith to purchase the common necessities of life.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN N. BLEECKER.

To Peter V. B. Livingston.

Dorchester, September 27, 1775.

To the Honourable Board of Counsellors and House of Representatives of the Province of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Assembly now sitting in WATERTOWN.

The Memorial of the Company of Foot raised in the Town of WORCESTER, and now in the Continental Army, in the Regiment whereof JONATHAN WARD, Esq., is Colonel, together with the principal part of said Regiment, being raised out of the County of WORCESTER, humbly sheweth:

That the said Town and County have been intolerably infested with a cruel and merciless set of Tories, who exerted all their wit, sophistry, and influence, to proselyte slaves to the supreme legislative power of the British Parliament, and to disconcert every method used by the wise and zealous friends of the free, happy, and most noble Constitution of the Empire, and discovered a most merciless, inimical temper towards our Provincial and Colony Charters, styling the sons of freedom, or friends to the Constitution, rebels and traitors, and menacing death and cruel tortures as their just and remediless portion.

That when the bloody era commenced, and the brave appeared in arms to defend their invaluable rights against Troops formed, posted, and ordered to massacre all that would not submit to their merciless decrees, and all America, with one heart and voice, cordially united to take up arms, as their dernier resort, for their defence, then these hardy wretches trembled; some confessed, and like vermin crawling among the roots of vegetables, endeavouring to secrete themselves, while they are a nuisance to the cause of justice and judgment; or in sheep's clothing secretly watching for prey to gratify their voracious appetites, or availing themselves of the good opinion of the prudent, ascend into places of power or profit, and rendered capable of acting their predecessor Judas's part, when opportunity favours their design, betray the good cause with all hail! and a hypocritical kiss.

That others fled to Boston, there to advise and act as open and avowed enemies to their brethren, encouraging the disheartened and chagrined Troops to all merciless acts of violence and bloody scenes, stimulating the British Ministry and all the tools of tyranny to pursue their bloody decrees with all vengeance upon us; by which means, in our humble opinion, they have forfeited all right to American property, and even their lives, with every aggravation of guilt, as did ever a bloody set of merciless robbers or desperate pirates.

That as some of those vermin, or worse, emissaries of tyranny, are crawling out of Boston to their forfeited seats at Worcester, there is reason to suspect that either their expectations fail, and therefore would gladly return to their former seats and profits, until a more favourable opportunity presents to carry their evil machinations into execution; or they are contriving by degrees to slide back to their seats, and there to avail themselves of the good opinion of the people, in order to play their parts to divide and subdivide, or by some methods weaken our union, or to form some diabolical plan for the Ministry to save the supremacy of Parliament, under some soft, sophistical, reconciliatory terms.

Wherefore, we, your humble memorialists, entreat your honours not to suffer any of those who return (however humble and penitent they may appear) to go at large or return to their former seats, or even to be so far favoured as to be confined within the limits of Worcester, but treat them as they deserve, enemies in a superlative degree; confine them close, and render them incapable of doing harm; or return them to Boston, their favourite asylum.

Your honours' petitioners cannot but flatter themselves with a most sanguine expectation of this so rational a request being fully granted, especially as we are risking our lives in our Country's cause. It must greatly dishearten us to hear our most notorious enemies are tolerated and winked at, while on the other hand we find no necessity to pray to our Commander-in-Chief for a detachment to apprehend and confine enemies, who are secured properly by our civil fathers, under whose jurisdiction they appear; and, thus encouraged, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JONATHAN WARD, Colonel,
EBEN. CLEVELAND, Chaplain,
SETH WASHBURN, Captain,
LUKE DRURY, Captain,
JOHN SMITH, Lieutenant,

In behalf of the Regiment.

And presented to the honourable Board, by Colonel Ward, Captain Washburn, and Captain Millen.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF WARWICK.

Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough of Warwick, presented to His Majesty by the Hon. Robert Fulke Greenvile, one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

May it please your Majesty:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough of Warwick, unbiased by party, unawed by faction, and not blinded by false patriotism, but actuated by a dutiful and sincere regard for your Majesty's person, arising from the clearest conviction of your Majesty's earnest wishes and endeavours to promote the prosperity of Great Britain, humbly presume to address your Majesty, with hearts replete with gratitude for the innumerable blessings which, through Providence, and the wisdom and mildness of your Majesty's Government, we now enjoy.

It is with the utmost concern we see the acts of the British Legislature contemned and opposed by many of your Majesty's subjects in North-America, through the incitement and misrepresentation of artful, designing, and seditious men, both at home and abroad; who, under the specious pretext of preserving the liberty of the people, are aiming at a total subversion of all law and good government, and consequently introducing the worst of tyrannies.

And we cannot but sincerely lament that they have so far succeeded, under the cloak of mock patriotism, as to incite numbers of your Majesty's American subjects to be guilty of open rebellion.

We therefore think we should but ill deserve the appellation of Englishmen, if we refrained from declaring, to our Sovereign and to the world, our utter abhorrence of the authors and abettors of such outrageous and traitorous proceedings.

And, at this alarming crisis, we consider ourselves obliged, as loyal subjects, and real friends to the true interest of Great Britain and its inestimable Constitution, to assure your Majesty, that, as the lenient treatment of your Majesty's infatuated and misled subjects in America has been insufficient to induce and prevail on them to return to their reason and allegiance, we apprehend compulsory and effectual methods are not only justifiable in law and conscience, but absolutely expedient to be exerted with vigour and resolution.

And we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we will, with alacrity and spirit, support, to the utmost of our ability, such measures as your Majesty shall think proper to pursue for enforcing and maintaining obedience to the laws in every part of your Majesty's Dominions; entirely confiding in your Majesty's goodness, because we are fully satisfied that, upon this important occasion, every plan which your Majesty shall adopt will be so judiciously concerted, and wisely directed, that it will preserve the freedom of the Constitution inviolate, and advance the honour and prosperity of this Kingdom.

Given under our hands, and the common seal of the Borough of Warwick, this twenty-eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

General Post-Office, London, September 28, 1775.

A mail will be despatched from hence on Wednesday next, for New-York, and also one for Charlestown; after which, there will be no regular conveyance for Letters from this office to North-America; but whenever a packet may be despatched to any part of the Continent, proper notice will be given.

HENRY WISNER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, September 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: By the first safe opportunity I send you the thirty-two articles of agreement for the due regulation and government of the Associators in the Colony of Pennsylvania.

I beg the favour of you to let me know, as quick as possible, whether the saltpetre has arrived from Connecticut, that your Committee of Safety informed me of a few days ago, when last in Town; also, if any accounts from that which was expected another way. I want to send to the workmen as quick as possible, but dare not send till I can get some saltpetre, at least a few hundred weight.

I am, Gentlemen, your assured friend and very humble servant,

HENRY WISNER.

To John Haring and John McKesson, Esquires.

Philadelphia, September 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed I send you the military articles delivered out by the Committee of Safety for the Colony of Pennsylvania. After I had wrote the enclosed letter, I found that the Associators generally refused signing, and that they had printed their reasons for so doing. I then thought best to wait till I could send both together, which I hope may apologize for my not sending sooner. It is some matter of doubt with me, whether our people will be prevailed on to sign them. I rather think they will not. However, you will be the best judges of that, and the propriety of so doing, if it may be done.

I beg you to send me an answer to that part of the enclosed letter that relates to saltpetre, as quick as possible. Direct my letters to the care of William Will, in the corner of Second and Arch Streets. If you deliver it to Henry Will, Pewterer, in New-York, he will send it, as he very frequently corresponds with his brother.

I am, Gentlemen, your humble servant,

HENRY WISNER.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Harlem, September 28, 1775.

SIR: This just serves to inform your Excellency that I returned to this place, from Long-Island, immediately upon the receipt of your favour of the 2d instant, and that, in pursuance of an order from the Continental Congress, I shall this afternoon embark, with all the Troops under my command, for Albany, there to wait the orders of General Schuyler.

I am, Sir, in haste, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

In the Committee of the County of Westchester, held at Lieutenant Bull's, at the White Plains, September 28, 1775:

Resolved, That notice be given in one of the publick newspapers of this Colony, that any of the inhabitants of Westchester County, who go to the Fort, now building at Martelaer's Rock, without a certificate from the Chairman, or two of the Committee of said County, of their being friends to the liberty of America, will be apprehended by the persons employed in building the Fort.

Extract from the Minutes:

GILBERT DRAKE, Chairman.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 3, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, September 28, 1775.

SIR: I am this moment honoured with your favour of the 20th instant. The honourable Congress have my warmest acknowledgments, and they may rest assured that nothing on my part shall be wanting to ensure that success they so earnestly wish, and I hope soon to congratulate them on it. Whilst I deprecate the untimely misfortune which prevents me from sharing in the immediate glory, it was perhaps inflicted, in such a critical hour, to serve the common cause; for if I had not arrived here, even on the very day I did, as sure as God lives the Army would have starved. The letters I have been obliged to write to several officers, I have been under the necessity of couching in terms that I should be ashamed of, did not necessity apologize for me. In twenty-two days, five hundred and thirty-eight barrels of provisions only had been sent across Lake George, and two hundred and sixty men, which take as many batteaus as would have carried two hundred barrels more, and not an ounce had been sent from this place, except twenty days' allowance for about two hundred and thirty men, who had left this after me, and before my return here. In six days, since my arrival, five hundred and forty-two barrels have been brought over Lake George, and two hundred men with only the same boats, and have sent to the Army three batteaus, with rum and artillery stores, two hundred and eighty-nine barrels of provision, and three hundred and ninety-five men, with twenty days' provisions each. The horrid anxiety I suffered, from this dreadful situation of the Army, is now abated, and I hope for so sufficient a restoration as to enable me to join soon.

I do not think I shall have occasion for General Wooster's Regiment, as I only wait for batteaus to send on five hundred New-Yorkers, that I now have here, and which I suppose will soon embark, as the wind is now favourable for craft to come from St. John's, and which I expect with impatience.

The Troops from Connecticut have not been mustered. They made objections which, though not satisfactory to me, I was under a necessity of yielding to. I foresee a variety of difficulties in settling accounts, not only with them, but with every other corps. They are, however, surmountable; and I believe that I have formed a plan which will answer the purpose, and which I shall do myself the honour to lay before Congress on a future day.

Enclose your honour a copy of my last, which, as I did not send by express, may be detained; that of the 19th I hope is come to hand. It is a pity that there is no post between New-York and Albany. I believe it would be no publick expense.

I am, honoured Sir, most respectfully, your obedient and very humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

Ticonderoga, September 24, 1775.

The Deputies of the Six Nations, sent to Canada, returned this day, and make the following report:

That by the unskillfulness of their pilot they got lost when they set out from Isle-aux-Noix, and fell in with St. John's, from whence they retired undiscovered. That on the second day they got within eight miles of Caughnawaga, and there met one hundred Indians, of different nations, going to St. John's. That in a conference with them it was determined that they should return to Caughnawaga, to hear what the Deputies of the Six Nations had to say. That two of the party which they met went to some Indians that were with Colonel Johnson, who, upon the intelligence, quitted Johnson and went to Caughnawaga. When the Indians were arrived at Caughnawaga, they met an emissary of Colonel Johnson's there, who, finding that the Indians would not fight against us, disguised himself and retired to Montreal. Colonel Johnson, on receiving the account, sent Colonel Claus, and Brandt, a Mohawk, to invite them to come to him, and Claus gave a string to one of the Deputies. The Caughnawagas dissuaded the Deputies from going, lest they be served like the Stockbridge Indians, and be made prisoners; upon which they returned the string, declaring they were not sent to Johnson, but to the Caughnawagas. This answer pleased the latter. That when they delivered my message to invite the Caughnawagas to come to me at Isle-aux-Noix or St. John's, the Mohawk, Brandt, that attended Claus, exclaimed, "It is over with Johnson; all the Indians will quit him." That the Caughnawagas were pleased with the message from the Six Nations, and with my invitation, and promised to comply with it. That the Deputies slept one night with them. That next day the Caughnawagas retired to a distant house with them, where they remained one night, for fear of an accident, and then seven of their principal men attended them to General Montgomery, at St. John's, where they declared that the General might depend upon it that they would not take a gun in hand against us, and pay not the least attention to Guy Johnson; that they would remain neuter.

QUEDOR, JAN JOST,
JACOBUS, CORNELIS.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Committee of Safety, Exeter, September 28, 1775.

SIR: Yours of the 23d instant we this moment received, and, in answer thereto, must observe we are equally sorry with you that the New-Hampshire Troops complain, or have occasion for complaint. The cause we think obvious. When our Congress raised their Troops, they promised them one month's pay, as soon as it could be emitted, and the remainder when they should be disbanded. The latter end of July last, a Sub-Committee from this waited on General Washington, to get information from him what was farther expected from the Colony, towards supplying and paying our Troops; who reported that the General told them he every day expected the appointment of a Commissary-General, and that as soon as that took place he should take charge of the whole Army as Continental, and provide for and (as they understood him) pay their whole wages except the first month's, which this Colony had advanced. Upon which report, our Congress voted to emit such a sum of money as they judged sufficient to pay for supplying our Troops, and some other contingencies, until the Commissary-General took charge of them, and then adjourned to the last day of October next.

This Committee never had an idea that it would be expected from the Colony to pay the Troops any more wages, nor ever received the most distant hint of the kind from any person whomsoever, until General Washington lately made a requisition for the payment of one month's wages to those soldiers of this Colony who were going to Quebeck with Col. Arnold, who, by the way, would have peaceably accepted one month's pay, agreeable to the requisition, had it not been for your postscript to Ichabod Rollins, Esq., "that those who had not been paid up to the month of August ought to be paid immediately," which they saw, and utterly refused to proceed without being paid accordingly; whereby we were obliged to pay them two months' wages, instead of the one General Washington had required.

Previous to this, we had sent two of this Committee to wait upon General Washington, and to inquire into some matters relating to the Army, who report that "when they arrived at the camp, they were told General Washington had given it out in general orders that the Troops should be paid by their respective Colonies up to August, and that our soldiers had been told they might daily expect this Colony to send the money for that purpose;" which surprised them very much, as it does all of us, that the soldiers should be made to expect what the Colony was ignorant of, and could not possibly perform. They waited on General Washington, and conversed with him on the subject. He informed them that Connecticut and one other State (which they supposed was Rhode-Island) had desired him not to pay their Troops; and that General Sullivan had told him New-Hampshire "could as well pay their Troops as not," which was the occasion of his giving said orders, at a time the military chest was almost empty, and the money long expected from Philadelphia was not arrived. That the Massachusetts Troops had, besides the month's pay advanced, received but one month's wages, and that out of the Continental money.

As to the blankets, we always understood that there was only a few but were supplied long ago; and those few we supposed the officers (as there was a constant intercourse) had received from the Selectmen of their respective Towns, the way directed by our Congress.

Ichabod Rollins, Esq., one of our Committee of Supplies, had orders, in July last, to provide a hundred coats for those persons who lost their clothes at Charlestown battle. And, previous to the reception of yours, we had provided for the payment of their whole loss, which was as early as the circumstances of the Colony would admit of.

And now, Sir, upon this state of facts, which we aver to be just, we would ask where the "great defect" has been, and to whom the uneasiness of the Troops ought to be imputed; whether, as circumstances turned up, the Colony could have done more, unless they could have divined into the determinations and consequent expectations in and about the camp. Certainly, if it became requisite for the Colony to have paid up their Troops to the 4th of August, it was necessary they should have been notified thereof, in order that they might have made the provision needful, before the soldiers were encouraged to expect the immediate payment thereof.

However, we are zealous of doing every thing in our power necessary for the good of our Troops, the Army, and the important cause in which we are engaged. But until a vote of Congress for striking off more money, we shall be unable to advance any for the payment of wages; we having scarcely enough to pay for the coats promised them, the loss at Bunker's Hill, &c., which on Monday last we ordered to be paid, which, with a month's wages that General Washington assured our Committee he would pay as soon as he received the money from Philadelphia, which he daily expected, will answer their present necessities until our Congress meets, the last of October next, and shall order money to be struck off, which we expect they then will, to settle the rolls to the 4th of August. And in the mean time we hope the officers of the several Regiments will endeavour to keep and maintain quiet and harmony in their respective corps, rather than raise difficulties themselves, and then instil them into their men.

In behalf of the Committee, I am, Sir, your humble servant,

MATTHEW THORNTON, Chairman.

Honourable John Sullivan, Esq.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO NATHANIEL TRACY.

Fort Western, September 28, 1775.

DEAR SIR: This will be handed you by Captain Clarkson, who will acquaint you with the particulars of our voyage, which has been very troublesome indeed. To Captain Clarkson I am under many obligations, for his activity, vigilance, and care of the whole fleet, both on our passage and since our arrival here, for which he may very possibly be blamed by some of the other Captains; but he has really merited much, and will always give me a sensible pleasure to hear of his welfare and success, as I think him very deserving.

I must embrace this opportunity to acknowledge the many favours received from you at Newbury; and am, with my best respects to Mrs. Tracy, your brother, and Mr. Jackson, &c., dear Sir, yours, &c.,

B. ARNOLD.

To Mr. Nathaniel Tracy.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO LIEUTENANT-COLONEL ENOS.

Fort Western, September 29, 1775.

SIR: You will forward on Captain Williams's and Captain Scott's Companies, with the remainder of Captain McCobb's, and any others left behind, as fast as possible. Order them to follow the route of the Army, and join at Chaudier Pond. You will bring up the rear, and order on all stragglers except those sick, which you will send on board the Broad-Bay, Captain Clarkson. Leave two or three men with the Commissary, to assist him, and hurry on as fast as possible without fatiguing the men too much. Bring on with you all the carpenters of Captain Colburn's Company, and as much provision as the batteaus will carry. When the Indians arrive, hurry them on as fast as possible.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Enos.

MEETING OF THE LIVERY OF LONDON.

At a Meeting of the Livery of London, in Common Hall assembled, on Friday, the 29th of September, 1775:

The Lord Mayor, Aldermen Bull, Sawbridge, Thomas, Lee, Hart, the two new Sheriffs, the Recorder, and other City Officers, met in the Council Chamber, Guildhall, went to St. Lawrence's Church and heard divine service, and a sermon preached by the Reverend Mr. Williamson, the Lord Mayor's Chaplain; they then returned to Guildhall. After some little stay in the Council Chamber, they came upon the hustings, when the Recorder coming forward, said it was the duty of his office to explain the business of the day. He remarked that the Livery were then called to the exercise of the most invaluable of all their privileges; that much depended on the choice of a Lord Mayor, who was elected for the preservation of the public peace, and whose duty consisted in the protection of the innocent and the repression of the guilty. He observed that the weight the metropolis possessed, throughout the Kingdom, would make the conduct operate as an example to other Corporations, and hoped that the Livery would return two such gentlemen to the Court of Aldermen; that on whichever their choice might fall, the generous views of the Electors would be fully answered. This speech was received with the applause it deserved.

The Lord Mayor and Aldermen now retired, and proclamation was made that all Non-Liverymen should depart the hall; but not a soul stirred.

Mr. Common Sergeant now read the names of the Aldermen in nomination to the office, and said, "If you are inclined to have the Lord Mayor added to the list, it must be signified in writing, signed by two Liverymen;" on which, such notification was handed up, and signed Samuel Cork, Richard Brewer, and Thomas Gorst.

The Common Sergeant proceeded to read the names in nomination, which were received in the following manner: Halifax, three hands, (loud laughing;) Eisdale, eight hands, (laughing and hissing;) Kennett, two hands, (laughing and hissing;) Sawbridge, almost every hand, (roar of applause and clapping;) Oliver, a hundred hands, (clapping and hooting intermixed;) Lewes, general clapping; Plomer, (much clapping;) Hart, (moderate clapping with hooting;) Lec, (general applause;) Wilkes, all hands, (three shouts, and general clapping.)

The Common Sergeant declared the Sheriffs' opinion that the election had fallen on the Lord Mayor and Mr. Sawbridge, to be returned to the Court of Aldermen for their choice of one of those gentlemen.

There not being a sufficient number of Aldermen, by four, to make a Court, there ensued a vacancy of business for an hour and a half, while messengers were despatched to rally the scattered forces; but the Court being at length complete, the business was soon done. All the Magistrates coming on the hustings, the Recorder said that the Sheriffs have returned the Lord Mayor and Mr. Sawbridge to the Court of Aldermen, and their choice had fallen on the latter; and, said he, "I hereby declare John Sawbridge, Esq., Lord Mayor for the year ensuing." This declaration was received with loud bursts of applause.

The Lord Mayor elect, being invested with the gold chain, addressed the Livery as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Livery:

"Permit me to return you my sincere thanks for this fresh mark of your approbation and confidence. The office which I have been elected to, by your suffrages, and the scrutiny in the Court of Aldermen, I think it my duty to accept. I will discharge it with assiduity and fidelity.

"The rights and franchises of the Corporation collectively, and of each of my fellow-citizens individually, I will defend at the risk of my life and fortune.

"The present crisis is likely to be productive of important and dangerous events. I wish my abilities may be equal to the occasion. You may depend on my integrity and resolution. I will assemble you in Common Hall as often as I find the occasion requires it, or a proper application is made to me for the purpose."

This speech was received with the merited applause.

The Lord Mayor now informed the citizens that he had received a letter from the Congress at Philadelphia, signed John Hancock, and addressed to the Lord Mayor and Livery of London, which was read, and is as follows:

"Philadelphia, July 8, 1775.

"MY LORD: Permit the Delegates of the people of the twelve ancient Colonies to pay your Lordship, and the very respectable body of which you are head, the just tribute of gratitude and thanks for the virtuous and unsolicited resentment you have shown to the violated rights of a free people. The City of London, my Lord, having in all ages approved itself the patron of liberty and the support of just government, against lawless tyranny and oppression, cannot fail to make us deeply sensible of the powerful aid our cause must receive from such advocates—a cause, my Lord, worthy the support of the first city in the world, as it involves the fate of a great Continent, and threatens to shake the foundations of a flourishing, and, until lately, a happy Empire.

"North-America, my Lord, wishes most ardently for a lasting connection with Great Britain, on terms of just and equal liberty; less than which generous minds will not offer, nor brave and free ones be willing to receive.

"A cruel war has at length been opened against us; and whilst we prepare to defend ourselves like the descendants of Britons, we still hope that the mediation of wise and good citizens will at length prevail over despotism, and restore harmony and peace, on permanent principles, to an oppressed and divided Empire.

"We have the honour to be, my Lord, with great esteem, your Lordship's faithful friends and fellow-subjects.

"By order of the Congress:

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"To the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor and Livery of London."

Mr. Stavely moved that the Letter should be entered on the Records of the City, and the motion was received with only about a dozen dissenting hands.

Mr. Deputy Piper then acquainted the Livery, that at a previous meeting of the Livery at the Half-Moon Tavern, in Cheapside, on Monday evening last, at which meeting he was Chairman, it was by them agreed that an Address to the Electors of Great Britain, on the present alarming crisis of publick grievances, be recommended from that meeting to the consideration of the next Common Hall.

And an Address being accordingly produced, a motion was made, and the question put, that the said Address be now read. It was resolved in the affirmative, and the said Address was read accordingly.

Resolved, That the Address to the Electors of Great Britain, now read, be entitled "The Address of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of London, in Common Hall assembled," and be entered in the City Records, and published in the papers, signed by the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, and countersigned by the Town Clerk; which Address follows in these words:

To the Electors of GREAT BRITAIN:

GENTLEMEN: The mischiefs which have already arisen, and the great calamities which are threatened from the unnatural war excited in America by the arbitrary and inexorable spirit of His Majesty's Ministers and advisers, have impressed our minds with alarms and apprehensions, which occasions this address to you.

As Electors, we are more particularly called upon to take into consideration these dangerous proceedings against our fellow-subjects in America, because the representatives of the people are unhappily made the instruments of these measures.

It is impossible we can see, without the utmost alarm, preparations making for the prosecution of an extensive and ruinous war with our own Colonies, from which so much of our commerce, and therefore the sources of our wealth, are derived. The inevitable consequence of this must be an increase of taxes, already too heavy, and an addition to the national debt, which presses us with intolerable weight. We beg you to consider what must be the situation of this Kingdom, under an augmentation of taxes, and a diminution of commerce; an increase of national debt, and an equal decrease of national resources.

These are the immediate and unavoidable consequences of this war. The probable ones are still more fatal. If our natural and inveterate enemies should fall upon us when we are exhausted of men and money, when our most valuable commerce is ruined, and our bravest and veteran troops sacrificed, what is it that can shield us from immediate ruin? If we involve ourselves, then, in this obstinate and expensive civil war, we must owe our safety to the forbearance of our enemies. Neither do we think it improbable, from the desperate valour with which the Americans defend their dearest liberties, that all our efforts will be unsuccessful, and that we shall at last be obliged to sit down under a grievous addition of debt, the shame of defeated armaments, and the fatal loss of our useful and affectionate Colonies.

The provision that is making for the introduction of Hanoverian and Hessian Troops, instead of removing, confirms our apprehensions; because we cannot have any confidence in the protection of foreign mercenaries, and feel at once the shame and folly of that policy which is to burden us with taxes for the payment of foreign protectors, while our own brave troops are slaughtered in an unnatural, unnecessary, inglorious contest.

For the certain expenses of this war we see no reparation, even in conquest. Desolated fields, and depopulated Provinces, are little likely to contribute to our necessities, either by revenue or commerce. No complaint from the merchants and manufacturers in Great Britain, of illicit trade and acts of navigation infringed, has called for these coercive measures. On the contrary, they have repeatedly petitioned against the principles upon which the war was founded. To secure our commerce, therefore, can neither be the aim nor the issue of this war. Neither can it be to settle a due subordination of the Colonies upon the Parent State, since they have repeatedly and solemnly acknowledged their subordination, and submitted to our control.

We cannot, therefore, discover any real object or possible event of this dispute, should we be successful, but that of establishing the arbitrary power of the Crown over our fellow-subjects in America, which must greatly endanger the Constitution here, and increasing the number of placemen and pensioners, already so enormous as to threaten the utter destruction of freedom and independence among us.

The people of the Colonies have appealed to their fellow-subjects in Great Britain, for the justice and necessity of their conduct. We are convinced of their having been injured and oppressed. We sympathize in their griefs, and revere their fortitude. Every motive of humanity, of justice, and of interest, call upon us to condemn the measures of which they complain, and to declare that we will never willingly contribute to urge their oppressions or abridge their liberties.

It has been our grief and our misfortune to see that the repeated petitions from His Majesty's subjects in America, supported by many in this Country, have not availed to prevent the dreadful extremities we now lament. The petitioners have been studiously driven to the last resources of despair, by a denial of redress, and an accumulation of grievances, too severe to be endured by a free people.

In the united petition last year, from all the Colonies to the King, they asked for peace, liberty, and safety. Did it become us to refuse such a request? or to persist in violating the peace, liberty, and safety of any part of our fellow-subjects? They pledged themselves that in time of war they will be ready and willing to demonstrate their loyalty to His Majesty, by exerting their most strenuous efforts in granting supplies and raising forces. What can we, in justice, require more from a part of the Empire, restrained, in points of commercial advantages, for our benefit, and labouring, in consequence of that restraint, under a heavy and accumulating debt? Can we expect success from a war founded in such flagrant injustice? "Appealing," say they, "to that Being who searches thoroughly the hearts of his creatures, we solemnly profess that our councils have been influenced by no other motive than a dread of impending destruction."

That dread has been realized. Famine, fire, and sword, have answered their reasonable requests and earnest applications. Utter destruction, or unconditional submission, is the only alternative left them by this imperious and intemperate Administration.

Yet still they were determined to try the force of fresh supplication. This they have done in their late petition to the throne, more humble, but still fruitless as the former. They say: "Knowing to what violent resentments and incurable animosities civil discords are apt to exasperate and inflame the contending parties, we think ourselves required, by indispensable obligations to Almighty God, to your Majesty, to our fellow-subjects and ourselves, immediately to use all the means in our power, not incompatible with our safety, for stopping the farther effusion of blood, and for averting the impending calamities which threaten the British Empire."

We feel these as the most amiable sentiments of men, cordially interested in our welfare, and earnestly aiming at peace and reconciliation.

In pursuit of these laudable purposes, they solemnly declare their most ardent desire that "the former harmony between the two Countries may be restored, and a concord may be established between them, upon so firm a basis as to perpetuate its blessings, uninterrupted by any future dissensions, to succeeding generations, in both Countries." They declare that "they do not request such a reconciliation as might, in any manner, be inconsistent with the dignity or welfare of Great Britain;" that "they are ready and willing, at all times, as they have ever been, with their lives and fortunes, to assert and maintain the rights and interests of His Majesty, and of their Mother Country." They therefore implore His Majesty "to take measures for preventing the farther destruction of the lives of his subjects; and that he will be pleased to direct some mode by which the united applications of his faithful Colonists to throne, in pursuance of their common councils, may be the improved into a happy and permanent reconciliation, and that the wished-for opportunity may soon be restored to them, of evincing the sincerity of their professions by every testimony of devotion becoming the most dutiful subjects and the most affectionate Colonists."

To this petition an answer has been refused. The unhappy petitioners are left to deplore the prospect of inexorable war and desolation, and to seek protection in those fatal resources which self-preservation suggests against impending destruction.

This, Gentlemen, is the alarming state of America, which fills us with anxiety and apprehensions.

We lament the blood that has been already shed. We deplore the fate of those brave men who are devoted to hazard their lives, not against the enemies of the British name, but against the friends of the prosperity and glory of Great Britain. We feel for the honour of the British arms, sullied, not by the misbehaviour of those who bore them, but by the misconduct of the Ministers who employed them, to the oppression of their fellow-subjects. We are alarmed at the immediate, insupportable expense, and the probable consequences of a war, which we are convinced originated in violence and injustice, and must end in ruin.

These are the sentiments, Gentlemen, which we take the liberty of communicating to you as the reasons upon which we have acted; trusting that if they meet with your approbation, you will co-operate with us in endeavouring to bring the authors of these evils to the justice of their Country.

Moved, That this Letter be entered on the City Records; that it be signed by the Lord Mayor and Livery, and countersigned by the Town Clerk.

Passed unanimously in the affirmative.

Signed in obedience to the order of the Common Hall.

Countersigned by order:

GOVERNOUR TONYN TO GENERAL GAGE.

St. Augustine, September 29, 1775.

SIR: Major Furlong put off the embarkation of the detachment, in the expectation of the three Companies arrival, of the Sixteenth Regiment, in which case intending to proceed with the whole of the corps that is now here of the Fourteenth.

As the Major does not know of my intention to remonstrate against the removal of the whole corps; or does that intention exist or take place, but on the most certain grounds that a preparation is absolutely making by the rebels, with a design positively to attack this Province. I advised the detachment to be sent away, on the little probability of the appearance of those Companies. If they did come, a vessel might be hired here to transport the remainder of the corps, in case the vessel that brought the three Companies was not sufficient.

So far it is fortunate they have not departed sooner, that I have this opportunity to send to Virginia, on his way to your Excellency, Colonel Kirkland, who I have desired the Earl of Dunmore to despatch, without the loss of a moment, to Boston. He arrived here, recommended by Lord William Campbell. A correspondence had been held with him, which Lord William will certainly inform your Excellency. Colonel Kirkland's endeavours to serve His Majesty have raised a warm side in my heart for him. His account of matters in Carolina will be satisfactory to your Excellency. He does not seem to be a man that would deceive or mislead. He has all the appearance of a most sanguine friend of the Constitution. He is fair and plain in the description of the state of matters. I apprehend he is very active in them. With these ideas, I beg leave to recommend Colonel Kirkland to your Excellency, entitled to the strongest introduction I can possibly imagine; his duty and loyalty to the King; and his perfect attachment to and for the British Constitution.

Waiting with eager impatience for good accounts from your Excellency, I beg leave to remain, with very great respect, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

PATRICK TONYN.

FREDERICK GEORGE MULCASTER* TO BRIG. GEN. GRANT.

St. Augustine, September 29, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I wrote you about six weeks ago, by Captain Leslie, of the Fourteenth, who was going to Virginia; it was to be forwarded from thence by the first opportunity. Another detachment of sixty men is now going to the same place, so that our garrison consists of the colours of the Fourteenth Regiment, the Major and five officers, and about eighty men. They are also to leave us as soon as three Companies of the Sixteenth arrive, who are ordered here from West-Florida; but as the order was dated so long back as last May, we are apprehensive it has miscarried. Tony did not want to part with this detachment, and he has told the Major if the three Companies do arrive he will detain him here. Tony intends to write to General Gage that he will do so; but I imagine Mr. Gage will not be pleased to have his orders contradicted.

The parson has asked leave to go to Boston, but the Governour refused him, telling him he had business of the utmost consequence to bring soon before the Council. This business we guess is about stopping the Major; he is mistaken if he thinks the Council will agree with him; and as the Major is determined to go, (in consequence of the orders he has,) there will be no way of stopping him but by laying an embargo on the vessels; and whether he can do that without the consent of Council, I don't know, but he is at present fully determined upon detaining them, should the Companies arrive.

At this distance we are surprised to hear of the Army being inactive, from the 17th of June, (the day of the dear-bought victory at Bunker's Hill.) to the 4th of August, which is the latest accounts we have from thence.

Our neighbours are exceeding riotous; William Henry Drayton and Parson Tennant, the leaders in Carolina, Laurens, President of the General Committee. The publick officers are disarmed, and confined to Charlestown. George Ronpell confined to his house, for having presumed to open the mail on board the man-of-war; and they had the insolence to go to Lord William Campbell and ask to see the contents of his letters from Lord Dartmouth. Captain Innes, his Lord William's Secretary, was ordered, with the others, to deliver his arms, and confine himself to Charlestown. He wrote the Committee word that he had no objection to confine himself to the Town, but he had then before him five commissions which he had received from his present Majesty and his late royal grandfather; and after such marks of favour, should he deliver up his sword to any person but such as was properly authorized to receive it, he should deserve to have it broke over his head; they therefore must excuse his compliance. In consequence of this answer he received letters acquainting him he had leave from the Committee to depart the Province; and it was expected he did so in twenty-four hours; however, his time was afterwards limited to four days. He then went on board the man-of-war. Lord William has dissolved the Assembly, and is also gone on board the Tamar.

The rebels have taken possession of Fort Johnson; and upon Lady William Campbell coming down in a boat to go to see her husband, these gentry fired at her and made her return to Charlestown. Georgia is as much inflamed as the other. Tarring and feathering, with every other act of violence, is daily committed. Lofthouse arrived here two or three days after I wrote you. The Governour sent his sloop out for some of the gunpowder which was come for the use of the fort; and the day after she came in, a sloop, with the rebels on board, came down to the bar, run alongside of Lofthouse, and took a hundred barrels of gunpowder from him, and carried it off to Carolina. We sent an officer and thirty men on board the Governour's sloop, as soon as we could get her out, after them, but they had too much start, and got into Georgia the day before. However, we have heard since, that they were so much alarmed, that the Georgia Troops all repaired to the place where the powder was, in order to defend it, and oppose the landing of Troops, which report had made to consist of one hundred and eighty; and being extreme hot weather, and lying out together, has killed several of them.

The people in the back country of Carolina have refused to sign the Association, but unluckily they had no ammunition, or else these people would, to a man, oppose the rebel party. The Militia of Charlestown was ordered against them to enforce it, but these heroes refused. They said they took up arms to defend their property in Charlestown, and did not understand being sent to the back country and leave it behind them. Some few, about fourteen, deserted from them, and entered on board the Tamar, in consequence of which the Committee published martial law, and directed that such of them as misbehaved should be punished, &c., in the same manner as soldiers. This gave offence to many, and some laid down their arms, declaring that they were free, and took up arms to maintain that freedom, and not to be made slaves of by their own Committee; so that they are but in a confused state. Three or four Regiments would completely settle these scoundrels. I hope sincerely that their Town may be served the same as its namesake has been near Boston; they richly deserve it, and are daily taking as much pains as possible to provoke General Gage to do it.

The Cherokee sloop-of-war, with Mr. De Brahm on board, arrived at Charlestown the 7th of September, after a passage of ten weeks. Mrs. De Brahm died fifteen hours after her arrival. The Captain of the Tamar has taken the Cherokee under his charge; so De Brahm will be already in a squabble, as she was sent out to assist him in his survey. This account is from De Brahm to Governor Tonyn. I suppose he will come here if he can get an opportunity, or else go to Providence.

I have heard the Cherokee is a fine sloop, but has only eight guns on board, although she can carry many more; she is as large as any of the sloops-of-war in the service. Governor Bule we hear nothing of. The Committees never trouble him; a good reason for it, for he certainly is as great a rebel in his heart as any of them. The Georgia people talk of attacking us; the fort, therefore, has been brushing up, the embrasures widened, &c., under the inspection of the Lieutenant-Governour. Tonyn applied to me, but I had no money; he then spoke to Moncrief, but he durst not draw on General Gage. The workmen, Hewitt, &c., would not strike a stroke till they knew who were to be their paymasters. They would work for any one who ordered them, except . . . . At last, Moultrie set them to work. Hewitt says he has no objection, for the Lieutenant-Governour is a good paymaster. Humbert, the carpenter, the other day asked me if you were coming here. I asked him why. He said he had been told you had wrote me word that you would be here in the fall. I told him you had intentions of that kind, but did not now expect you, as there was so much disturbance to the northward. He replied it was a great pity, as the tradesmen would be disappointed, for they had all resolved to make a large bonfire and illuminate their houses as soon as you came ashore. But for this man, he will absolutely ruin the Province; for he pays no one, either for publick or private work. Governor Grant's bills were good; he paid well; to be sure he sometimes made hard bargains, but then he always paid people. Ay, if he was here, some good might be done for the Province; but at present —. So much for Humbert.

Your furniture is in the same state; nor do I see a prospect of its being settled. He shoves off Yates with by and by, and time enough, &c. His Excellency gave a dinner yesterday to the Fourteenth, and some others. It is the only one he has given since the one he gave to John Stuart, on his arrival; and for this purpose he borrowed from Moultrie, his cook, Ned, and the mulatto woman, Hester. How he does when he is by himself, nobody knows. A very severe copy of verses appeared at Payne's corner lately about him, his lady, and their flogging the negroes, &c. The author no one can guess at; but there was great truth in them, and they were not very bad.

Poor Cummings died about a fortnight ago, after a short illness; we have had a sickly season. I, who am seldom sick, have had the fever, and, after getting almost well, relapsed, but am now quite recovered. The Provost-Martial, Dod, came in Lofthouse; he seems disappointed in his expectations; he says you told him it was worth three hundred Pounds a year; but he has been sick, and so have his wife and son, and therefore he cannot yet know much of the profits of his place. The old Levitts and the youngest son talk of going to England in Lofthouse, but the Governour is very averse to it, although no reason can be given for his being so, except his being fearful of Mr. Levitt's telling his relations of the life he leads. Frederick and Fanny go home in Lofthouse. Mrs. Ward is to go with them. As soon as they are inoculated, they are to go to school; a good education is what I intend to give them, that they may the better be able to help themselves when they grow up.

Skyner is, as usual, very attentive to your interests, and your crop is in a thriving way. I have not seen it for some time, owing to my late sickness. Moultrie has really made a crop of rice at the Musquito; but his indigo, as it used to be seven years ago, is lost for want of vats. The Doctor has plenty of provisions, and will have more indigo than he expected, but I cannot say how much. Mr. Southwell's plantation is doing very well. Poor Bissett, about ten days ago, had his barn, by accident, burnt, with all his corn, indigo, &c., to the amount of two hundred Pounds. Egan minds his planting; he also gets about thirty Pounds a year from the rebel Delegate, Lynch, for inspecting a plantation which he has upon Cumberland. He goes to it (being only seven miles from Amelia) once in ten days; therefore, he does not neglect the other by it.

There arrived here, about four days ago, a Colonel Kirkland, one of the back country settlers in South-Carolina. He refused to sign the Association, and was the occasion of many others doing so. William H. Drayton did his utmost endeavours to gain him over to their party, but in vain. They then offered a reward of two thousand Pounds sterling to any one that would apprehend him. He escaped at last from a party who was in pursuit of him, by getting between them and Charlestown, and took that road which they not in the least suspecting, he got safe, after a journey of two hundred miles, to Lord William Campbell's house, and from thence the next morning on board the man-of-war. He says the back settlers are two to one in number more than the rebel party. They got some powder, but when it came to be divided, they had only two rounds a man. He sails from hence in the transports to Virginia, in order to proceed to General Gage. He has an honest, open countenance, good natural understanding, and may be a man of infinite use, when Troops are sent to Charlestown, (which surely will not be long.) Even now, were a Regiment to be sent up Savannah River, these back settlers would meet them, and the two Provinces of Georgia and Carolina would be thrown into terrour. The Committee have prevented salt and other articles, which they cannot do without, from being sent to them. These circumstances inflame the back settlers, who only want ammunition to do themselves justice. Kirkland has undoubtedly great weight with those people. Since he came away, his plantation has been ransacked, five thousand weight of indigo destroyed, and his sixty negroes he knows not where. He has with him a son, about twelve or thirteen years old, who escaped by being dressed like a girl, for they used their utmost endeavours to get him, in hopes the seizing his child might bring him to terms. You will undoubtedly see him, and he will give you a true state of the Southern Provinces. The above particulars you may depend upon, and I write them that you may not be without intelligence in regard to a part of the world you have already served in with so much success. The Catawba Indians are with the rebel party, but they consist of a few; and as these back settlers are seated round their nation, they intend to seize their women and children the moment they hear they attempt violence.

John Stuart got some powder from Tonyn, and sent it by an interpreter and an Indian to the Creek Nation; but they were met by some Georgians on the north side of St. Mary's, who had got information from one Captain of this Province, who seized the ammunition and carried it to Savannah; however, the interpreter and the Indian proceeded to the nation. Stuart's Deputy wrote him word, some time since, if they did not get powder, he could not answer for the Indians, as he believed they certainly would go down to Savannah to demand it; so it is not unlikely they may have some of their red brethren upon their backs. Some of the gentlemen of Georgia still hold out, and have not signed the Association, but Governour Wright has no authority, nor has not had any for some time.

Lord Dartmouth has directed the Land Office to be opened for this Province, in order to grant lands to any persons who choose to take refuge here, and to be free of quit-rent for ten years. I do not know what to say about De Brahm; he certainly does not like to come here, and yet I think necessity will bring him; he has no other place to go to, unless Providence. If he comes, I should like it to be immediately, or else he will think I sent the children away on purpose to prevent his seeing them. Mrs. De Brahm being dead, he will hardly think of marrying, and Frederick and Fanny are the only real connections he has left, for I never heard him talk much of his German connections. I continue still junior General, as he does not yet make his appearance to be sworn in; and should he determine to reside at Providence, I do not think he would have much objection to my applying for the place, giving him the salary; but this is only conjecture, for you know what an odd being he is, and he might think even a resignation a feather lost from his plume. Before I heard of De Brahm's reinstatement, I unluckily was wrote to from England by a lady, to know if I could do any thing for a relation of hers. At that time, thinking there was a great probability of my being ordered to the northward, I told her she might send him out, and I intended to have made him the Deputy Surveyor-General, and given him the thirty Pounds a year, with such fees as his industry might make, and to take care of the office and live with me. He is now a burden upon my hands; he is just twenty, has a good education, speaks French, draws, and of a genteel look. His name is Samuel Roworth. If the Army makes a practice of despatching so many officers in the attack of intrenchments, they may probably want stout young healthy men to replace them. Should there be any prospect of that kind, without its being a favour, I should be glad. He is also recommended very strongly to Governour Tonyn, who would also give him a Lieutenancy. The Padre has not been ill, but I think he is far from well; he looks very bad, and has done so some time. Northern air would benefit him. Yates is in the height of practice, succeeds very well, and gives great satisfaction. Penman and Payne drive on furiously in their respective stores, but both very dear; therefore, the only way is to have as few wants as possible. Distress Gray has had the fever; he is better; his plantations do pretty well. Indeed, every one has plenty of provisions, which is a fortunate circumstance, as we have no connections with the other Provinces.

Doran and Wallace, with their vessels, are lying here, and do not know how to employ them. The latter talks of making a voyage to the West-Indies. Martin Jollie came lately from Granada, to settle in Georgia, with thirty odd negroes; but that Province being in the same state as the others, he has come to his one thousand acres on St. Mary's, and begun a settlement. He means to follow the lumber trade, and is now loading the vessel he came in for the West-India market. St. Mary's bar was lately sounded by Doran and Wallace, who both declare it is better than Charlestown.

Pray what have you done with Judge Owen? I hope he does not intend to turn volunteer. If he should be possessed of the rage militaire, I shall expect to hear of his being a Colonel at least. If you should be in the way of the Comptrollers of the Customs, a word from you might perhaps be of service for Counsellor Holmes, to succeed Cuming as Comptroller of the Customs. Holmes knows nothing of my mentioning this, for it but this instant came into my head; but it would be an act of charity. I have not yet heard of any person being appointed to officiate by the Governour. Moncrief, as usual, thrives; he has now near a hundred negroes. Catherwood and his lady live in state by themselves. They seldom see any one. You will wonder, in the course of so long a letter, to hear nothing yet of the chief. He wisely remains at home; his schemes have sunk; and being in general looked upon as not quite staunch, few people go there. Penman is in Town, almost his only friend, but his business finds him sufficient employment; besides, I don't think him quite so hearty in the cause as usual. The Carolínians and Georgians having ransacked his goods, detained them for three months, to his detriment and Payne's profit, gives him not so favourable an opinion of American liberty. He has at last, after many hair-breadth escapes, however, got there. (You may thank my pen for this thought, for the hair is evident in the last sentence.)

This letter is given to the care of Captain Charles For-dyce, of the Fourteenth Regiment. He has been here about two years and a half; he goes now to Virginia with the detachment; his own Company of Grenadiers is part of it. He has for these two years past been one of a cabinet junto, consisting of the Padre and myself, where the state of the Province and its welfare has been duly considered. He of course is well acquainted with the characters, and had he been here in your time, I am confident would have been a frequent guest in the Print room, and a no small sharer of the wicked bottle. When your friend General McKay was at Boston, he was his Brigade-Major. I have often mentioned to you the propreté of this Regiment, for which it is not a little indebted to this gentleman. It is not unlikely but you may meet before the American disturbances are quelled. I shall therefore not speak his praise as an officer, but leave it to your own judgment, which is superiour to mine in that as well as other respects. The real situation of your old Province, and your friends in it, you may learn from him every particular you wish to know, (for the junto has been seldom without pretty good intelligence.) As he is the particular friend of the parson and myself, I forbear to say so much as I wish and he deserves; but I may venture to assert, that should you ever meet, you will find in him that uprightness, honour, and sincerity, which constitute the character of a worthy man, and one you will be much pleased with. In regard to my young man and Holmes, I hope you know me too well to think I mention them with expectation or a presumption of recommendation.

My letter has got to a great length; I therefore conclude with sincere wishes for your health and happiness, and hope you will always believe me to be, very truly, dear Sir, your very obliged and obedient humble servant,

FRED. GEO. MULCASTER.

Brigadier-General James Grant.

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOUR TRYON.

By his Excellency WILLIAM TRYON, Esq., Captain-General and Governour-in-Chief in and over the Province of NEW-YORK, and the Territories depending thereon in AMERICA, Chancellor and Vice-Admiral of the same:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the General Assembly of this Province stands prorogued to the fourth day of October next, I have thought fit for His Majesty's service to prorogue, and I do, by and with the advice of His Majesty's Council, farther prorogue the said General Assembly to the first day of November next; of which all His Majesty's subjects concerned therein are required to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

Given under my hand and seal at arms, at Fort George, in the City of New-York, the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Third, by the grace of God of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, and so forth.

WILLIAM TRYON.

By his Excellency's command:

SAMUEL BAYARD, JUN., Dep. Secretary.

God save the King.

WESTCHESTER COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

White Plains, September 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We send you, by Mr. Daniel Winter, Godfrey Haines, a person who was accused and convicted before us of denying the authority and speaking contemptuously of the Congresses and the Committee of this County. He was ordered to be disarmed, and upon examining him respecting his arms and ammunition, he confessed that he has a gun, pistol, sword, powder, and ball, but refused informing the Committee where they are; and as Haines is a single man, the Committee think it highly improbable that his arms can be found. We enclose you an affidavit, which induces us to think him a very dangerous man, and therefore send him to you, to be dealt with as you think proper. After reading the affidavit, we think it needless to acquaint you that his conduct (by the best information we can get) has been very extraordinary; such as going armed, and giving out threats against some of the Committee, and the Connecticut Troops, &c.

The Committee think it extremely necessary, for the safety of the County, that the commissions for the Militia officers should be immediately forwarded.

We are, Gentlemen, your most humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

GILBERT DRAKE, Chairman.

To the Committee of Safety for the Province of New-York.

WESTCHESTER County, ss.

Eunice Purdy, of Rye, in the said County, Spinster, being duly sworn upon the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith: That on or about the 2d of September, instant, Godfrey Haines was at Daniel Purdy's, at Rye, and in conversation at that time said he understood that the Committee or Congress had made a law to oblige all to train under them; and that, "damn them, if they came after him, they should either kill him, or he would kill some of them;" and that, dead or alive, he would be revenged; and that he had enough in his pocket for five or six of them. That he also damned the Congresses and Committees frequently, and said that he had as lief be in hell as in the hands of the Congress or Committee; that they should see if they were not all cut down in a fortnight, at farthest; that he wished the men of war would come along the Sound, and that he would be one to show them whom to fire upon; and that he wished they had raised their Company three months ago, for then the matter would have been settled before that time. And farther this deponent saith not.

EUNICE PURDY.

Sworn the 28th of September, 1775, before me,

GILBERT DRAKE.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 9, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, September 29, 1775.

SIR: I am this moment favoured with a letter from General Montgomery, enclosing sundry papers, copies of which are enclosed.

Of the articles wanted by Captain Lamb, I can only furnish about five hundred pounds of powder, leaving not an ounce at this place, one thirteen-inch mortar, and about one hundred fuses; these to go to-morrow.

The money the Caughnawagas received was four hundred Pounds, which I desired General Montgomery to give them, for themselves and the other six Canadian tribes.

The prisoners mentioned in General Montgomery's letter are Neil McFall, Sergeant, and James Anderson, Corporal, of Captain Swan's Company, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment; Thomas Goone, Gunner, and Matthew Bell, John Boette, Osburn Frederick, and Robert Knox, Matrosses, of Captain Jones's Company, Royal Artillery; Thomas Donohue, Meshech Seers, William Elphinston, Pierre Marrasee, John Larue, Joseph Lamote, Jean Orilat, and François L'Ozeau.

Since the arrival of Easton's people, taken notice of in General Montgomery's letter, all the provision mentioned in my letter of the 28th instant is arrived at the Army, so that I beg you will not be under any apprehensions on that account. I foresaw that it would be the case immediately on my arrival here, and took every measure I possibly could to guard against it. Besides what was gone before, I have sent off four batteaus to-day; and nine, instead of ten, which General Montgomery has sent me, will return to-morrow—six with provisions, and the other three with artillery stores, and a re-enforcement of one hundred good men of the third New-York Regiment.

I beg the explicit directions of Congress on that paragraph of General Montgomery's letter marked (a,) and I most sincerely join him in the wish contained in the next.

I have sent to New-York and Albany, express, for powder; I hope some will be sent.

I am now drove to the disagreeable necessity of employing all my blacksmiths in making nails, as I cannot build a boat for want of them. Had I strength to get out of my room, I should not be tormented so much as I am by a parcel of scoundrel artificers, taken out of the troops.

I am too much indisposed to-day to enter upon the matters I promised in my last. I shall only observe that the pay of the officers is so amazingly low, that I fear few gentlemen will engage for the winter service.

I am, Sir, with the utmost esteem, your and the Congress's most obedient and very humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. I shall send the prisoners to Connecticut, except Elphinston whose parents are at New-York.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp south side of St. John's, September 24, 1775.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I take the opportunity of Mr. Trumbull's return to acquaint you that a succession of bad weather and our own feebleness have hitherto kept us back in our operations. However, I expect to set our mortars to work to-night; a gun battery I have not yet been able to think of.

This morning, the Caughnawagas received their money. They assure me that all the Western Indians and Six Nations are departed home. Philip Phelps, one of their headmen, was at Montreal the day before yesterday. He believes the Governour was on board ship, as he did not see him. He saw Guy Johnson, who told him he himself was going away.

Major Brown was lucky enough to take a quantity of stores designed for the Indians, who had been prevailed on to come to La Prairie, in order to march against us, by Mr. Carleton. That project is now at an end.

I send you the prisoners who have been taken. I have told them they were to go to Connecticut. Among them are two Canadian merchants, who made a desperate resistance. They were furnished with the Governour's proclamation, which I send you.

You have enclosed Colonel Allen's last letter to me, which will give you an idea of the inclinations of the people in that quarter. I have favourable accounts from La Prairie, where Brown now is.

Could I depend on the troops, I might venture to promise success; but, alas, I can say nothing pleasing on that head. The other night, Captain Motte, of the First Regiment of Yorkers, basely deserted the mortar battery, without ever having been attacked, came into camp, and made me a formal report that the enemy had rushed into the work, and that his men had left him. An hour after, his Lieutenant came in, with about half the party, brought in some tools which he had picked up after his Captain had ran away, and honestly told me there had been no enemy there. Were I furnished with powers for that purpose, he should not live an hour after his trial, if the court condemn him; but I must transmit the court-martial to you.

I have been obliged to go on half allowance of pork; I had but thirteen barrels when Easton's people arrived. I now send ten boats. Flour is six livres per bushel in Canada.

I believe we have had but one man killed; you know we take good care of ourselves.

(a) It is almost time to think of politics. I shall endeavour, if successful, to have Deputies sent from Canada to the Congress, giving them assurances that, before an accommodation takes place, Canada must have a free Government; that the Congress will as soon give up the Massachusetts Government to the resentment of the Ministry, as relinquish this point.

I could wish to have three members of the Congress as a council immediately, lest I should make any faux pas. Shall I not see you soon? I wish exceedingly to have the burden off my shoulders.

I believe I have touched on every point I had to communicate.

I am, my dear Sir, with the most earnest wishes for your recovery, your most obedient and respectful humble servant,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

To General Schuyler.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp near St. John's, September 24, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have acquainted the Caughnawagas that they may go to their hunting grounds, on the Lakes, whenever they please. I beg you will give orders that they be not molested. I have told them that, so long as these troubles continue, I should be glad they would take passes.

I am, Sir, with respect, your most obedient

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, September 29, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I am still confined with the remains of an inveterate disorder. I have this moment received a line from General Montgomery. He holds St. John's besieged; but the weak state of our Army and artillery cause the operations to go on slowly. The Canadians are friendly to us, and join us in great numbers; but unless we succeed against St. John's, all other operations in that quarter will avail little. We are in want of powder; and I send this by express, that you may forward me five tons, if you can. It should come in boats that can be rowed, that no delay may be made. Several rascals of the first Battalion have deserted to the enemy; and Captain Motte, of the same corps, shamefully ran away from our bomb battery, when not one of the enemy was near him.

Pray, let the powder be sent to the care of Colonel Van Schaick, at Albany.

We have taken fifteen prisoners, seven of which are soldiers, the rest unfriendly Canadians and Scotchmen, in the service of the Ministry.

I am, Gentlemen, with the most profound respect, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the New-York Provincial Congress.

P. S. Be pleased to forward the enclosed by express.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Lebanon, September 29, 1775.

SIR: I have your favour of the 20th instant. It gave me great concern to hear of your very severe fit of illness. It is very agreeable to hear that, after your return, you find yourself much better, and hope soon to be able to rejoin your Army, and give a favourable account of your operations. The savages retiring from St. John's is a good omen that they will not join against us.

I received, the 24th, a letter from Colonel Dyer, dated Philadelphia, September 15, instant, wherein he acquaints me with the account Mr. Lynch, one of the South-Carolina Delegates, who has been at Ticonderoga in the recess of the Congress, gives with respect to the Connecticut Forces under your command. He says that Colonel Hinman has not above one hundred soldiers with him; that he has suffered them to depart to their various homes, now, when their service (if ever) is wanted and required; Colonel Waterbury's partly full, but many of our soldiers without arms; that they all refuse to be mustered, or to come under the Continental regulations. A soldier to go to war without arms is a solecism. Why they should refuse to be mustered I cannot conceive, as no disadvantage to them can possibly arise from it. It appears to me Mr. Lynch must have been grossly misinformed. In yours of the 21st of August you inform that you have ordered off Colonel Hinman's Regiment, (excepting two Companies,) amounting to about five hundred men. In your last you mention the increase of the sick of our Troops, and your conduct with them, which is very good, but make no mention of any misconduct of Colonel Hinman. I cannot think it of him, or that any of our Troops were suffered or would go without any arms or ammunition. It is necessary this affair is set in a true light, that no damage may happen thereby to this Colony, to the Colonel, or his Regiment.

I can have no imagination that you or Colonel Hinman have or do suffer well and effective men to return home at this critical juncture. I write to Colonel Hinman upon it, requesting a true state of the facts, and desire the favour of your certificate upon the same. I was much surprised at Mr. Phelps's complaint and distress for money to pay the people he employed, and his application to our Pay Table for it, but more so at the application of your Commissary-General for one thousand four hundred Pounds, to buy beef for your Army. I am rejoiced to hear Major Hobby and Captain Mead are out of danger. I take the liberty, by this opportunity, to recommend to your kind assistance and countenance my son, who comes out your Paymaster-General. I trust he will discharge his duty so as to meet your approbation, and merit your recommendation to the honourable General Congress of the United Colonies in America, that he may receive a meet reward for his fatigue, risk, expense, and service.

Your accounts from General Washington render it needless for me to give intelligence of the occurrences among our Forces in these parts.

Trusting in the Supreme Disposer of all events to restore to you the great blessing of health, and of an opportunity to give a favourable account of your operations, I am, with great truth and sincerity, Sir, your very obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

The Hon. Major-General Schuyler.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 29, 1775.

SIR: I am to inform you that there are part of two Companies of the Rhode-Island Brigade, consisting of about seventy-four men, now upon Block-Island, who were sent there to secure the stock until it could be removed. If you think proper that these men should be ordered to the camp, please to let me know it, and I shall immediately give directions for their marching.

The packet sent out to countermand Captain Whipple's voyage to Bermuda cruised until the 27th instant, and then returned, without being able to see him. I think it probable that Captain Whipple had gained intelligence of the arrival of the packet at New-York, and pursued his voyage before the time limited for the expiration of his cruise.

We are informed that six transports, with some ships of war, are now in the Vineyard Sound, designed, without doubt, to procure another supply of fresh stock.

I am, with great esteem, Sir, your most humble and most obedient servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Cambridge, September 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Indian who accompanies Mr. Kirkland is an Oneida chief of considerable rank in his own country. He has come on a visit to the camp, principally to satisfy his curiosity; but as his tribe has been very friendly to the United Colonies, and his report to his nation, at his return, will have important consequences to the public interest, I have studiously endeavoured to make his visit agreeable.

Having expressed an inclination to pay his respects to the General Court, I thought it proper to let them know who he was, and upon what errand he came, not doubting but your honourable Board will join with me in showing him all proper civilities. I have directed a present to be prepared for him at his return.

I am, Gentlemen, with great respect and regard, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Hon. James Warren, Esq., Speaker.

PETITION OF THE FIELD-OFFICERS, WINTER-HILL.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety for the Province of NEW-HAMPSHIRE:

We, the Field-Officers of the several New-Hampshire Regiments stationed at Winter-Hill, beg leave to suggest that, among the New-Hampshire as well as the other Forces, vacancies are frequently occurring; to fill up which we are obliged to take the method of applying to the Province for an appointment before we can have those vacancies filled up, which not only gives great trouble, and creates expense, but sometimes leaves the Companies in some measure un-officered. To prevent which, as we have a Brigadier-General who we persuade ourselves will endeavour to put in such persons, to fill up those vacancies, as will be most agreeable to the Troops in general, we entreat that he may be supplied with a number of blank commissions for all officers under the degree of a Field-Officer, having particular regard to the sentiments of the officers in the Regiment where such an appointment is to be made; and your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO CAPTAIN FARNSWORTH.

Fort Western, September 29, 1775.

SIR: You will forward on all the provisions here, as fast as possible, to Fort Halifax, and such as the batteaus carry on order stored there. You will have two or three people left to assist you. The sick you will order on board the Broad-Bay, Captain Clarkson, to be returned to Newbury. The . . . . . at Colburn's secure, and leave until the event of this expedition is known. Forward on all the new batteaus, poles, oars, pitch, nails, &c., that are or shall be procured, and, as soon as you can, join the detachment. Leave particular directions with Mr. Howard to take care of the goods left. I am, Sir, your humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Captain Farnsworth.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF STIRLING.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the City of Stirling, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the City of STIRLING.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

At a time when a great part of your Majesty's deluded subjects in America have presumed openly to take up arms against your Majesty's Government, we, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your ancient City of Stirling, humbly beg leave to repeat our attachment to your Majesty's sacred person, family, and Government, and to express our abhorrence and detestation of such illegal, unconstitutional, and rebellious proceedings.

We reflect with the highest sentiments of gratitude on your Majesty's paternal care for the welfare of your subjects, in establishing a peace, equally conducive to the glory and to the commerce of all your Majesty's Dominions, and we sincerely regret that such a peace should ever have been disturbed by a part of our infatuated fellow-subjects; at the same time we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we will cheerfully contribute our utmost efforts in defence of your Majesty's sacred person and Government.

Confiding in your Majesty's prudence and clemency, and in the conduct and abilities of your Majesty's Ministers and officers, we trust that a speedy and honourable issue will be put to these disturbances, upon a solid foundation, and that your Majesty's Colonies will return to their duty and allegiance, and to that happiness which they have forfeited by their rebellion against the best of Princes.

We fervently implore Heaven to bless your Majesty's arms and councils with success, and that you may transmit the imperial Crown of these realms, and the dominions thereto belonging, in the most flourishing condition, to your Majesty's remotest posterity.

Signed by our Præses, in our name and by our appointment, in the Council Chamber of the said City of Stirling, the thirtieth day of September, 1775.

JAMES GIEB, Præses.

ADDRESS OF THE FIRST REGIMENT OF THE DEVONSHIRE MILITIA.

Address of the Officers of the First Regiment of the Devonshire Militia, presented to His Majesty by Colonel Acland, Lieutenant-Colonel Orchard, and Major Bassett.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Officers of the First Regiment of the DEVONSHIRE Militia.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the officers of the First Regiment of the Militia of your County of Devon, now assembled at Exeter, hope we shall not be esteemed presumptuous, if, in the name of the Regiment, we venture to approach your royal person with our unanimous assurances of that fidelity and attachment which a mild, just, and equal Government must ever produce in the minds of Britons.

Conscious that, under your Majesty's benign Government, and the influence of this happy Constitution, we enjoy every species of liberty compatible with the existence of society, we should think ourselves inexcusable if we did not take this opportunity of joining our uninfluenced voice to that of our countrymen, publicly to express the just abhorrence in which we hold every attempt to alienate the minds of your Majesty's subjects.

Fully persuaded that that constitutional body, of which we form a part, will be always found a firm support to your Majesty's Government, we should not have intruded on your royal presence, but that, in times like these, we think it as much the duty as we know it is the interest of every man of property, to show a more than negative allegiance to the best of Sovereigns.

None can hold in greater detestation than we do, the unnatural behaviour of your American subjects. The Constitution has prescribed to us our sphere of action; but we must beg leave to assure your Majesty that we shall at all times be as ready to exert our utmost efforts to suppress any internal enemies of your Majesty's Government and this Constitution, as our gallant countrymen have been in asserting the just rights of the British Empire in America.

May your Majesty's reign continue glorious. May the united efforts of a great, free, and loyal people, render your Majesty's endeavours to re-establish the violated supremacy of the British Legislature, over every part of your Majesty's Dominions, as effectual as they are just.

 PAUL ORCHARD, Lt. Col. SAM'L SAVERY, Lieutenant
 FRANCIS BASSETT, Major. and Adjutant.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF GREAT YARMOUTH.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, and principal Inhabitants of the Burgh of Great Yarmouth, in the County of Norfolk, presented to His Majesty by Charles Townshend, Esq., one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, and principal Inhabitants of the Burgh of GREAT YARMOUTH, in the County of NORFOLK.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We beg leave to approach your Majesty in the most loyal manner, to express the sentiments of our hearts in an undissembled duty and affection to your Majesty and our happy Constitution.

We cannot but lament the misery and abhor the conduct of many of our deluded fellow-subjects in parts of your American Colonies, who have plunged themselves into an open rebellion, by preferring the influence of seditious men to the mild government and tender protection of their Sovereign and the supreme Legislature.

We equally admire your Majesty's wisdom and goodness in taking the gracious means to avert their ruin. The measures now adopted, we trust, will speedily conquer the evils, and restore the general tranquillity; being agreeable to the spirit of our laws, and for the true honour and happiness of all your Majesty's dutiful subjects amongst whom we entreat your Majesty to believe none shall excel us in the most faithful and grateful zeal.

Given under our hands, the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN QUEBECK, TO HIS FATHER IN AYRSHIRE, SCOTLAND, DATED SEPTEMBER 30, 1775.

As this Colony is in some sort detached from the rest, we imagined ourselves in no danger of being involved in these alarming disputes that now prevail over this Continent; the contrary of which, however, I am now sorry to inform you of.

About the beginning of May last, as you would see in your newspapers, the rebels made themselves masters of all the forts, &c., on Lakes George and Champlain, which lie between this and the Southern Colonies; likewise, of the King's sloop and boats on said lakes. They have also, since that time, repeatedly attempted to invade, and consequently to plunder this Province; but have, as yet, been luckily prevented from putting their intended scheme into execution, by means of a few Troops and the British Militia. In the course of the summer, there have indeed been several slight engagements, in which the rebels were always defeated, but with very little loss to His Majesty's Troops.

Last post brought us advice from Montreal, that on Monday last, two or three hundred rebels, including some Canadians who have joined them, landed within a league of that place, and in expectation of a great number of Canadians to assist them, they intended to have taken the Town by surprise, and to have plundered it.

The inhabitants, however, directly upon their landing, took the alarm, and the drums beat to arms. Upon which, about three hundred gentlemen, merchants, and other inhabitants, together with forty soldiers, marched out, under the command of Major Campbell. They immediately attacked the rebels, who, after a brisk fire for the space of an hour, were obliged to give way and take to their boats, by which they escaped over the river, but with the loss of a considerable number killed and wounded; besides thirty-four taken prisoners, among whom is one Ethan Allen, Commander-in-Chief of that party. Only three men killed on the King's side, with three or four wounded. My uncle, who is at present at Montreal, was in the engagement, and came off safe. Some of the rebel prisoners, who are Canadians, inform us that Allen hired them at the rate of fifteen pence per day, and moreover promised them their share of the plunder of Quebeck and Montreal.

From the little expectation we had of being involved in this quarrel, we are left in a great measure defenceless, by reason of our Troops being all sent to Boston, except two Regiments, who only remain in this Province. Matters being in this situation, we are under the necessity of laying aside carrying on business as usual, and have been all obliged to take up arms, and form ourselves into a Militia, for the safety of ourselves and property. We are also very busy in putting this garrison into the best posture of defence we can, and are determined to hold it out to the last, in case of an attack.

The season of the year will, however, in a short time, oblige the rebels to leave the Country, and next spring we expect assistance from Great Britain, or some place else, so that the danger is not now so great as we imagined some time ago.

CHARLESTOWN (SOUTH-CAROLINA) GENERAL COMMITTEE.

In General Committee, Charlestown, South-Carolina, }
October 2, 1775. }

Ordered, That the Message from this Committee to the Right Honourable Lord William Campbell, of the 29th ult., his Excellency's Answer of the 30th, and the Letter from this Committee to Captain Thornborough, of His Majesty's Sloop Tamar, of the same date, be forthwith printed, and made publick.

PETER TIMOTHY, Secretary.

Message to his Excellency the Governour.

State-House, September 29, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: It is with great concern we find that, for some days past, your Excellency has been pleased to withdraw yourself from Charlestown, the seat of your Government, and have retired on board the King's ship. The inconveniences which must unavoidably arise to the people, deprived, by this step, of that easy access to your Excellency which is absolutely necessary for transacting publick affairs, are apparent; and we submit to your Excellency's consideration, whether the retirement of our Governour to a King's ship, in this general disquietude, when the minds of the people are filled with the greatest apprehensions for their safety, may not increase their alarm, and excite jealousies of some premeditated designs against them. We therefore entreat that your Excellency will be pleased to return to Charlestown, the accustomed place of residence of the Governour of South-Carolina. And your Excellency may be assured, that whilst, agreeable to your repeated and solemn declarations, your Excellency shall take no active part against the good people of this Colony, in the present arduous struggle for the preservation of their civil liberties, we will, to the utmost of our power, secure to your Excellency that safety and respect, for your person and character, which the inhabitants of Carolina have ever wished to show to the representative of their Sovereign.

By order of the General Committee:

HENRY LAURENS, Chairman.

The Governour's Answer.

Tamar, September 30, 1775.

SIR: I have received a message, signed by you, from a set of people who style themselves a "General Committee." The presumption of such an address, from a body assembled by no legal authority, and whom I must consider as in actual and open rebellion against their Sovereign, can only be equalled by the outrages which obliged me to take refuge on board the King's ship in this harbour. It deserves no answer, nor should I have given it any, but to mark the hardness with which you have advanced that I could so far forget my duty to my Sovereign and to my Country as to promise that I would take no active part in bringing the subverters of our glorious Constitution, and the real liberties of the people, to a sense of their duty. The unmanly arts that have already been used to prejudice me in the general opinion may still be employed by that Committee.

But I never will return to Charlestown till I can support the King's authority, and protect his faithful and loyal subjects. Whenever the people of this Province will put it in my power to render them essential service, I will with pleasure embrace the opportunity, and think it a very happy one.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

WILLIAM CAMPBELL.

To H. Laurens, Esq.

Letter to Captain THORNBOROUGH.

State-House, September 30, 1775.

SIR: This afternoon, one of your officers brought up a paper from on board the Tamar, addressed to Henry Laurens, Esq. It appeared to have been intended as an answer to a message from the General Committee to his Excellency the Governour. It had no signature;* but the officer declared he brought it from Lord William Campbell.

We find that, upon your officer's return to his boat, he was much insulted by some persons, at present unknown. We hereby express our concern at such a proceeding, which we absolutely disavow; and we assure you that all possible inquiry shall be made into this unwarrantable behaviour, in order that satisfaction may be obtained for the insult.

By order of the General Committee:

HENRY LAURENS, Chairman.

*The day following, the Governour sent another copy, with his signature annexed.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, September 30, 1775.

A company of gentlemen, of North-Carolina, having, for a large and valuable consideration, purchased from the Chiefs of the Cherokee Indians, by and with the consent of the whole Nation, a considerable tract of their lands, now called Transylvania, lying on the Rivers Ohio, Cumberland, and Louisa; and understanding that many people are desirous of becoming adventurers in that part of the world, and wish to know the terms on which lands in that country may be had, they therefore hereby inform the publick, that any person who will settle on and inhabit the same, before the first day of June, 1776, shall have the privilege of taking up and surveying for himself five hundred acres, and for each tithable person he may carry with him and settle there two hundred and fifty acres, on the payment of fifty shillings sterling per hundred, subject to an yearly quit-rent of two shillings, like money, to commence in the year 1780.

Such persons as are willing to become purchasers may correspond and treat with Mr. William Johnston, in Hillsborough, and Colonel John Williams, of Granville, North-Carolina, or Colonel Richard Henderson, at Boonsborough, in Transylvania.

This country lies on the south side of the Rivers Ohio and Louisa, in a temperate and healthy climate. It is in general well watered with springs and rivulets, and has several rivers, up which vessels of considerable burden may come with ease. In different places of it are a number of salt springs, where the making of salt has been tried with great success, and where, with certainty, any quantity needed may be easily and conveniently made. Large tracts of the land lie on limestone, and in several places there is abundance of iron ore. The fertility of the soil and goodness of the range almost surpass belief; and it is at present well stored with buffalo, elk, deer, bear, beaver, &c., and the rivers abound with fish of various kinds. Vast crowds of people are daily flocking to it, and many gentlemen of the first rank and character have bargained for lands in it; so that there is a great appearance of a rapid settlement, and that it will soon become a considerable Colony, and one of the most agreeable countries in America.

Norfolk, Virginia, September 30, 1775.

This day, between two and three o'clock, afternoon, an officer, with twelve or thirteen soldiers, and a few sailors, landed at the County wharf, in Norfolk, under cover of the men of war, who made every appearance of firing on the Town, should the party be molested, and marched up the street to Mr. Holt's printing office, from whence, without the smallest opposition or resistance, although there were some hundred spectators, they deliberately carried off the types, and sundry other printing implements, with two of the workmen, and, after getting to the water side with their booty, gave three huzzas, in which they were joined by a crowd of negroes. A few spirited gentlemen in Norfolk, justly incensed at so flagrant a breach of good order and the Constitution, and highly resenting the conduct of Lord Dunmore and the navy gentry, who have now commenced downright pirates and banditti, ordered the drum to be beat to arms, but were joined by few or none; so that it appears Norfolk is at present a very insecure place for the life or property of any individual, and is consequently deserted daily by numbers of the inhabitants, with their effects.

JOHN HANCOCK TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, September 30, 1775.

SIR: Your letters Nos. 4 and 5, and two other letters, not numbered, with the enclosures, have been duly received and laid before the Congress.

As there are sundry matters contained in your letters which are of great importance, and on which the Congress, before they come to a final determination, are desirous to have the advantage of your experience and knowledge, they have appointed three of their Members, viz: Mr. Lynch, Doctor Franklin, and Mr. Harrison, to wait on you, and confer with you, and the Governours of Connecticut and Rhode-Island, the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, and the President of the Convention of New-Hampshire, to whom I have wrote on the subject, by order of Congress, and such other persons as to the said Committee shall seem proper, touching the most effectual method of continuing, supporting, and regulating a Continental Army. They will set out as soon as possible, and expect to be with you by the 12th of next month.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem, Sir, &c.,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington.

JOHN HANCOCK TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Philadelphia, September 30, 1775.

SIR: The Congress have received sundry letters from General Washington, containing matters of great importance, touching the supporting and regulating the Continental Army.

As the Congress are desirous of the fullest light on these subjects, before they come to a final determination, they have appointed three of their Members, viz: Mr. Harrison, Mr. Lynch, and Doctor Franklin, to wait on the General, and confer with him, and with the Governours of Connecticut and Rhode-Island, and with the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, and the President of the Convention of New-Hampshire.

The Committee will set out as soon as possible, and expect to be at the camp by the 12th of next month.

Of this I am desired to inform you, and to request you will meet the Committee on that day. In case the business of your Colony will not admit of your personal attendance, it is the desire of the Congress that you appoint a proper person or persons to represent your Colony at the conference with their Committee.

I have the honour to be, honoured Sir, yours, &c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

[A letter, similar to the foregoing, was sent to the Hon. Lieutenant-Governour Cooke, of Rhode-Island; another to the Council of Massachusetts-Bay; and another to the President of the Convention of New-Hampshire.]

Instructions to the Committee appointed by the Congress to repair immediately to the camp at CAMBRIDGE, to confer with General WASHINGTON, and with the Governours of CONNECTICUT and RHODE-ISLAND, the Council of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, and the President of the Convention of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, and such other persons as to the said Committee shall seem proper, touching the most effectual method of continuing, supporting, and regulating a Continental Army.

That, upon the Committee's arrival at the camp, they cause proper measures to be taken for continuing the Connecticut Troops, now near Boston, in the Continental service, upon the same terms they are at present, until the last day of next December.

That, in the conference with the General, the Committee declare to him the sense of the Congress respecting an attack on the Ministerial Troops in Boston and on Bunker's Hill, viz: that if, before the last of December, his Excellency, upon consideration of all circumstances, shall think it practicable, and likely to defeat the enemy, and gain possession of the Town, it will be advisable to make the attack upon the first favourable occasion, and before the arrival of re-enforcements, which the Congress apprehend may be soon expected; the Congress having the most perfect confidence in the courage and good conduct of the General and his officers, and the spirit and bravery of the men under his command. That if the number of men which compose the present Army should be thought insufficient for the purpose, the General employ so many Minute-Men as he may apprehend to be necessary on the occasion, upon such terms as he shall think proper.

That if the attack should not be made by the time above-mentioned, it is the wish of the Congress that the number of the Army, for the remainder of the winter, should be reduced, and the pay of the men lessened to five dollars per calendar month, if this may be done with safety; but that the attack should nevertheless be made, under the foregoing circumstances, as soon as a favourable opportunity shall offer, with the Troops then in the service, and the assistance of the Minute-Men, as abovementioned.

That the Committee confer with the General, and whom else they think proper, on the subject of raising a Continental Army, and keeping it up for one year from the last day of December next, subject to be disbanded or reduced by order of the Congress within that time, upon being allowed one month's advance pay; and report to the Congress of what number it should consist; what should be the pay of the officers and privates, (that of some of the former in the present Army being, it is apprehended, too low, and that of the latter too high;) what number each Company, and how many Companies each Regiment, should contain; of what quantity and kind of provisions a ration should consist; the best method of providing arms, clothing, and provisions, for the Troops; what rules and regulations are necessary for their government; by whom the officers should be chosen or recommended; how the best officers and men in the present Army may be engaged for the next, making a complete arrangement of the whole, by putting all the Forces, in what Colony soever recruited, on one establishment in every respect, and thereby abolishing all Provincial distinctions; that the Committee report how, when, and where, the said Army may be raised and levied.

That they confer and consult, as above directed, on the several other matters mentioned in the General's letters to the Congress, upon which no order has been made, and the best methods of removing the difficulties or remedying the evils therein stated, and upon any other matters which, in the course of this business, may occur to the Committee relative thereto, and make report thereon to the Congress.

That the Committee, having made the necessary inquiries, report what number of effective men it may be expected that the Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Connecticut, and Rhode-Island, respectively, could and would furnish, if necessary, by the 10th day of March next, and on what terms.

That the Committee report an estimate of the expenses which will attend the measures they may recommend or submit to the Congress.

Additional Instructions.

That the Committee consider as included in their inquiries, not only the Forces necessary to be kept in the Massachusetts-Bay, but in the Northern Department; and that they obtain and report as exact an estimate as they can of the expenses which have been, and by the 31st of December next will be, incurred in pursuance of the Resolution of the Congress, for putting these Colonies into a proper state of defence.

To the Honourable the Delegates of the Thirteen United Colonies in General Congress assembled:

The Committee for the County of CUMBERLAND, in the Province of NEW-JERSEY, beg leave to represent:

That the good people of this County have ever showed themselves forward in the cause of liberty, being the first in (at least this part of it) the Province that took up arms in support of the common cause, ever since which they have been diligently engaged in learning the military art, and furnishing themselves with the implements of war; notwithstanding which, they have not been able to provide themselves with a sufficient quantity of ammunition, particularly powder, of which article they assure us they have not a sufficient quantity to enable them to defend their property, in case of any emergency, until a supply could be procured from Philadelphia. We cannot but think this circumstance truly alarming, when we consider that we lie open, defenceless, and exposed to the depredations of Ministerial robbers, should they think proper to enter our Bay. These considerations, joined to the probability we conceive there is that General Gage will, before the beginning of the winter, try every method, and ransack every place that may be in his power, to furnish his Troops with fresh provisions, will, we apprehend, fully apologize for this our application to your honourable Board for relief, especially when we assure you that we have taken every method in our power to furnish ourselves. We therefore earnestly beg you would take such measures for our relief in the premises as to you shall seem meet, assuring you that you may with the greatest safety rely on our taking every precaution necessary for securing any powder you may be pleased to order for our relief, and that none of it shall be used but in support of the rights and privileges of our countrymen. Signed by order of the Committee:

September 30, 1775.

THOMAS HARRIS, Chairman.

HENDRICK FISHER TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-Jersey, September 30, 1775.

SIR: As our Committee of Safety is at present not sitting, on receiving your favour of the 27th instant, by order of your Committee I immediately advised with some of our Committee members, who were of opinion, with me, that as our Provincial Congress is to meet on Tuesday, the 3d of October next, which is as early as our Committee possibly can be convened, to lay your request before them, which I shall do accordingly, as soon as they have formed a board, and doubt not, but they will do therein what is most proper.

I have the honour to subscribe myself your (and the other gentlemen of your Committee) very obedient and most humble servant,

HENDRICK FISHER.

To John Haring, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety for the Province of New-York.

JOHN McDONALD TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

The information of John McDonald, late Miner, and Clerk, from Scotland, who, on the 15th of September, 1775, was appointed to proceed to Mr. Palmer, at Newburgh, to examine his Lead Mines; and, according to my charge, have taken inspections of the state and value of the Mines, with all possible diligence, conformable to mining, which, as in the following, most humbly sheweth:

The principal and only valuable mines that I know of, and I make not the least doubt the best in this Continent, are on Judge Livingston's land, adjoining to Mr. Palmer's. The inclination of the mine vein is to the southwest and northeast, and of two feet breadth, mostly white spar, from which have taken a sample of the ore, &c.; may make you sensible, if it be worth your while to put it in execution, and from its advantageous situation for working is most likely to turn out to immediate profit, both for the owner and the Continent. The branch of Mr. Palmer's mine is about five feet breadth, consisting of different sorts of spar, and seems to me to be of likely quality, but at present free from the appearances of metals, till farther trials are made. And in case these mines be pursued, conform to its circumstances, requires the first necessary scheme, which driving a cross cut, in order to work out better discovery; if successful, the worker or overseer, providing being perfectly acquainted with lead mines, must fix upon driving an inset as low as level bearing, also sinking, cross cutting, and rising, where the appearances are best, so that the same were brought to a bearing, the better to indemnify damage or expenses. I would not launch out considerable sums of money upon uncertainty, in trials of this nature, but where there is a visible prospect; and how the above mines turn out, there's none can express till trials are made. It is my humble opinion, what may be for a national, publick good, should be rather bestowed upon, than lie dead and useless in the bowels of the earth.

Honourable Congress or Committee, this is most humbly offered to your serious consideration; and remain your honours' most humble servant,

JOHN McDONALD.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress, or Committee, now sitting in the City of New-York.

THOMAS PALMER TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Newburgh, September 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I received yours, per bearer, Mr. McDonald, respecting my lead mine. As to your offer of purchasing the lead, in case I opened it, I should be more obliged to you, in case lead was an article that was not vendible to any one else. However, to satisfy you and the bearer, I have caused the mine to be shown him, as also one on the land of Judge Livingston, in which I am part owner. A sample, per bearer, with his opinion on the matter, you will have. I think it an object worth your and the Continental Congress's notice. You may, if you please, work mine for a small profit to me; and Judge Livingston says you may have his free, during these troublesome times. I should be glad to say more to you on the matter, but am so indisposed at present I cannot write.

I am, Gentlemen, your most humble servant,

THOMAS PALMER.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety, during the recess of Congress.

P. S. The bearer has been, since here, to Judge Livingston's, and to see the mines. I have Judge Livingston's letter, informing me that you may work his free.

RETURN OF MINISINK COMPANY, IN GOSHEN PRECINCT, ORANGE COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Agreeable to the directions of the Committee of the Precinct of Goshen, we, the subscribers, attended the Minisink Company, on Saturday, the 30th day of September, 1775, for the choice of their Officers, at the house of Mr. John Wells, and the following gentlemen were duly elected, viz: Moses Cortright, Captain; John Van Tile, First Lieutenant; John Decker, Second Lieutenant; and Ephraim Medaugh, Ensign.

Witness our hands: DANIEL EVERIT, Chairman.
JAMES LITTLE,
JOSHUA DAVIS.

To Colonel William Allison, in Congress.

N. B. Sir: As there were some difficulties subsisting in the Minisink Company, which was the reason the officers were not returned before now, we request that commissions may be sent up for the above officers as soon as they conveniently can.

RETURN OF GOSHEN TOWN, NEW-YORK, MINUTE-MEN.

Goshen, September 30, 1775.

The Company of Minute-Men met, and, agreeable to the directions of the Congress, chose the following Officers, viz: Moses Hetfield, Captain; James Butler, First Lieutenant; William Barker, Second Lieutenant; William Carpenter, Ensign.

BENJAMIN GALE, } Committee.
ISAAC NICOLL, }

Goshen, October 16, 1775.

At a meeting of the Company of Militia of the Town of Goshen, the following gentlemen were chosen Officers in said Company, agreeable to the recommendation of the Congress: Isaac Nicoll, Second Lieutenant; William Thompson, Ensign.

BENJAMIN GALE, } Committee.
MOSES HETFIELD, }

The above are true copies of the returns made to me.

DANIEL EVERIT.

N. B. You are requested to send commissions to the above gentlemen, the Minute-Men, according to the date returned to me, so that the Company may take its rank, as it was chosen before Captain Wisner's.

RETURN OF NORTHEAST DISTRICT OF NEW-MARLBOROUGH PRECINCT, ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Ulster County, New-Marlborough, September 30, 1775.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York:

At an election of Officers at New-Marlborough, agreeable to the directions of the Congress, have chosen by the majority of votes in the Northeast District of the Precinct, beginning at Hudson's River, at Lewis Dubois's north line, running west to the mountains, thence north to the New-Paltz line, thence to the river: Jacob Wood, Captain; Juryan Mackey, First Lieutenant; Nathaniel Goodspeed, Second Lieutenant; John Knowlton, Ensign.

We, the Inspectors, being two of the Committee of the said District, being in Colonel Hasbrouck's Regiment.

JOSEPH MORY,
RICHARD CARPENTER.

To Colonel Hasbrouck.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM FAIRFIELD, CONNECTICUT,
DATED SEPTEMBER, 1775.

Wednesday morning.—I just now learned that there is a secret expedition on foot, of two hundred men, in order to take and disarm all the Tories in North-Fairfield and Ridgefield, but don't know whether it will succeed.

Thursday morning.—Ten o'clock, one hundred and fifty men, on horseback, have this moment entered the Town in triumph, attended with musick, and brought in eight criminals, together with their arms; also, the arms of a number of petty ones, whose persons they thought unworthy of notice. Half after ten, another entry of fifty men, equipped as the others, and brought in five more of the wretches, all of whom are carried up Town, where I shall repair as speedily as possible, to gain more intelligence.

Eight at night, and just returned; all I can learn is, that they are to take their trial before the Committee, who are now sitting for that purpose; and it is expected they will not break up before morning, when I shall march up to hear the conclusion. It is said some have been found guilty to-night, but I can't vouch for it.

The cause of our people's acting with so much resolution proceeded from the Tories having said that they intended destruction to Fairfield, by coming down in the night, and setting fire to the houses and barns, and destroying all before them. They were to be supported in their deeds of darkness by a number of regulars, who were to land in the night, and destroy till the two Companies met. It seems they have had a regular officer amongst them some time, to stimulate and assure them of Gage's assistance, whenever they should be disposed to begin. Gracious Heaven! how wonderfully do we escape the snares that are laid for us; when we lie down at night, if an Almighty Hand did not interpose, we should be destroyed before morning. What thanks are not due! They have never been able to put one of their bloody schemes into execution.

In our people's way up Town, they called on Mr. Whitear, who was absent, whether on purpose or not I cannot say. They then proceeded to Mr. Sayre's, and sent for him out; he waited on them, when Mrs. Sayre was immediately taken with fits; so they suffered him to return to her, without any molestation whatever, only assuring him they would call another time. He replied, he would wait on them. They intend to disarm him, but he says he cannot tell what they wanted! I have a mind he should guess. Poor Mrs. Sayre, I really pity her; but the people must not be blamed; they acted for the good of the whole.

I told Captain — I was extremely sorry for the wives and children of those traitors. He said, had I seen them, I would not say so; for the women went on most seriously, ten times worse than the men. Our people made them rise about three o'clock in the morning, when there was the greatest confusion imaginable. Some were taking an everlasting leave of their families, whilst others were crying ready to kill themselves, for they all expected to be hung immediately on coming down.

I can't help thinking but Heaven has deprived them of that resolution which men generally have, or else, knowing the use they would make of it, has not given them so large a share, or they would act with more spirit. One of them cried eight or ten miles without ceasing. There was but one who made the least resistance, and that but trifling.

Ten o'clock. I have just now heard that the Newtown people intend coming down to rescue these, but I fancy they will think better of it.

Friday, 12 o'clock.—I this moment returned from Town, with all the intelligence I could get; which is, that they have found some guilty, made others give bail, and disarmed them all; which must be a great mortification, I imagine. Yesterday they made them all sit down at table by themselves, with a guard over them.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 25, 1775.]

Camp at Cambridge, September 30, 1775.

SIR: The Reverend Mr. Kirkland, the bearer of this, having been introduced to the honourable Congress, can need no particular recommendation from me; but as he now wishes to have the affairs of his mission and publick employ put upon some suitable footing, I cannot but intimate my sense of the importance of his station, and the great advantages which have and may result to the United Colonies from his situation being made respectable. All accounts agree that much of the favourable disposition shown by the Indians may be ascribed to his labour and influence. He has accompanied a chief of the Oneidas to this camp, which I have endeavoured to make agreeable to him, both by civility and some small presents. Mr. Kirkland being also in some necessity for money to bear his travelling charges and other expenses, I have supplied him with thirty-two Pounds, lawful money. I cannot but congratulate the honourable Congress on the happy temper of the Canadians and Indians, our accounts of which are now fully confirmed by some intercepted letters from officers in Canada, to General Gage and others in Boston, which were found on board the vessel lately taken, going into

Boston with a donation of cattle and other fresh provisions for the Ministerial Army.

I have the honour to be, with great respect and regard,
Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Albany, September 5, 1775.

We, the Commissioners appointed by the Continental Congress, do hereby certify that we have only allowed Mr. Kirkland his expenses during his attendance at the treaty with the Six Nations, at the council fire held at the City of Albany.

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Proposals for casting the following Ordnance and Stores.
Three ten-inch mortars; six hundred ten-inch shells; one thousand twenty-four pound shot; one thousand eighteen pound shot; forty sets of garrison wheels; five tons of grape shot; four tons of hand grenades, for boats; ten tons of pots and kettles.

The furnace cannot be put into blast in less than one month; and if not determined upon and ordered directly, no furnace will be in blast till next March.

Also to provide—ten twenty-four pound cannon, and ten eighteen pound do., or twenty twenty-four pound do.; spare mortar beds; spare carriages; a quantity of three-inch plank and ten-inch timber, for platforms.

Submitted by your Excellency's most obedient servant,

RICHARD GRIDLEY, Chief Engineer.

September 30, 1775.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 22, 1775.

(Parole, Lynn.)

(Countersign, Marblehead.)

The undernamed prisoners, tried by a General Court-Martial for "mutiny, riot, and disobedience of orders," are severally guilty of the crimes wherewith they are accused; and the Court, upon due consideration of the evidence, do adjudge that the prisoner, Joseph Seales, receive thirty-nine lashes upon his bare back, and be drummed out of the Army; and that the prisoners, John Gillard, Jacob Smallwood, John Peltro, Samuel Grant, Hugh Renny, James Jeffery, Charles Alcrain, Samuel Hannis, Charles Pearce, James Williams, John Kelly, John Bryan, and Philip Florence, do each of them receive twenty lashes upon his bare back, and be drummed out of the Army. The prisoners, Lawrence Blake, Samuel Bodin, John Besom, Benj. Bartholomew, Francis Ellis, Joseph Lawrence, John Sharp, John Poor, Joseph Fessenden, John Foster, John Lee, Lawrence Bartlett, Philip Greatey, Peter Neivelle, Samuel Parsons, Jeremiah Daily, Francis Greater, Richard Pendrick, Robert Hooper, Anthony Lewis, Nicholas Ogleby, and Thomas Metyard, be fined twenty Shillings, lawful money, each. Joseph Foster, Joseph Lawrence, and Joseph Fessenden, being recommended by the Court-Martial as proper objects of mercy, the Commander-in-Chief is pleased to remit their fine, and to order the sentence upon all the others to be put in execution at guard mounting to-morrow morning. Those upon Prospect-Hill to receive their punishment there; the rest at the main guard.

John Gizzage Fraizer, Esq., being appointed Assistant to the Quartermaster-General, for the District of Prospect and Winter Hill, he is to be obeyed as such.

Colonel Stark, of New-Hampshire, having complained that, through mistake or inadvertency in the Court which was appointed to settle the ranks of the Regiments and Officers of this Army, he had not justice done him, even upon the principle which they themselves had laid down for their government in that matter, the General orders that the Brigadier and the six Field-Officers who composed that Court do sit to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, to inquire into the cause of this complaint; at the same time of Col. Doolittle, who has also expressed some dissatisfaction on account of his rank. If he can urge any thing new to the Court, he may be heard. The Court are desired likewise to settle the rank of the Officers of the Rifle Companies posted at Roxbury.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 24, 1775.

(Parole, Quebec.)

(Countersign, Richmond.)

Major Scarborough Gridley, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Brigadier-General Greene was President, for "being deficient in his duty upon the 17th of June last, the day of the action upon Bunker's Hill," the Court find Major Scarborough Gridley guilty of a breach of orders. They do therefore dismiss him from the Massachusetts service; but on account of his inexperience and youth, and the great confusion which attended that day's transaction in general, they do not consider him incapable of a Continental Commission, should the General Officers recommend him to his Excellency.

The General confirms the dismissal of Major Scarborough Gridley, and orders it to take place accordingly.

George Hamilton, a Soldier in Captain Dexter's Company, in Colonel Woodbridge's Regiment, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Nixon was President, for "stealing a blue great coat, the property of Solomon Lathorp." The Court find the prisoner guilty of the charge, and sentence him to receive thirty lashes upon the bare back, and be drummed out of the Army, and order his Captain to deduct ten Shillings and ten Pence, lawful money, out of his pay, and pay it to Mr. Penyer, for so much paid by him to the prisoner on the coat, and that the coat be returned to Mr. Lathorp.

Jonathan Sharpe, of Captain Loise's Company, in Colonel J. Phinney's Regiment, tried at the same Court-Martial, for "stealing cartridges from his comrades," is acquitted.

The General orders the sentence upon the prisoner, Hamilton, to be executed, and the prisoner, Sharpe, to be released.

The General directs the following Minutes, from the House of Representatives of this Colony, to be inserted in the General Orders:

"In the House of Representatives, September 23, 1775.

"Resolved, That the Speaker, Mr. Gerry, and Major Hawley, be, and they hereby are appointed a Committee to apply to his Excellency George Washington, Esquire, with a desire of this House that he will, as soon as may be, cause a return to be made of the names of the officers and men to each Regiment established by this Colony, and now in the American Army respectively belonging, including such of each Regiment as are deceased since its establishment, or as have been draughted for the detachment ordered to Quebeck; and specifying the names of the Towns and other places from which they were respectively enlisted, in order to enable the Court to rectify and prevent any error in accounts, which have been or may be rendered for payment of Blankets and other articles supplied the Soldiers according to the terms of their enlistment.

"A true copy from the Minutes.

"Attest: SAMUEL FREEMAN, Clerk."

The inquiry into the conduct of Doctor Church, Director-General of the Hospital, and the respective Regimental Surgeons, to be held to-morrow, in Colonel Frye's Brigade.

The General Court-Martial, whereof Brigadier-General Greene is President, is dissolved.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 25, 1775.

(Parole, Sandwich.)

(Countersign, Truro.)

As frequent applications to the Major-Generals for furloughs have become very troublesome, and take up much of their time, the following method of granting them for the future is to be observed, and under no pretence whatsoever to be dispensed with, until farther orders on this head, viz:

The Colonels or Commanding Officers of Regiments or Corps, when they find it really requisite, and not else, have permission to give furloughs to the Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers of the Corps they respectively command, provided they do not suffer more than two Privates to be absent at any one time from a Company, and not more than one Non-Commissioned Officer; nor allowing any person to be absent from his duty more than twenty days in six months. In extraordinary cases, a farther indulgence may be given by the General of Brigade, upon application from the Colonel. All Commissioned Officers are to apply for leave of absence through their own Colonel or Commanding Officer, to the General of Brigade to which they belong, who is desired never to suffer more than one Field-Officer, and four others, to be absent at any one time from a Regiment, nor for more than twenty days in six months. In extraordinary cases, a farther indulgence may be given by the Major-General commanding each Division, upon the application of the Brigadier of his Division.

As the Committee have settled the rank between Col. Stark and Colonel Jonathan Brewer, the General desires the Colonels of the Regiments Nos. 6, 7, and 8, will apply immediately for Continental Commissions for the Officers of their respective Corps; and that the three next Regiments in succession will apply to-morrow morning, and so three every morning afterwards, until the whole are served.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 26, 1775.
(Parole, Virginia.) (Countersign, Waltham.)
For the future, the weekly Returns on Saturdays are to be made in the old form. The Majors of Brigade will give printed forms, as usual, to the Adjutants of every Brigade, at orderly time, to-morrow.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 27, 1775.
(Parole, Yorkshire.) (Countersign, Amboy.)
Amos Brown, of Captain Wilder's Company, in Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Bridge was President, for "mutinous and abusive language." The Court are unanimously of opinion the prisoner is not guilty; therefore acquit the prisoner.
General Thomas's Brigade to be mustered on Monday morning, at seven o'clock, and General Spencer's on Wednesday morning, at the same hour.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 28, 1775.
(Parole, Bedford.) (Countersign, Chatham.)
The inquiry into the conduct of Doctor Church, Director-General of the Hospital, and the respective Regimental Surgeons, being finished in the four Brigades in and near Cambridge, conformable to the General Orders of the 7th instant, the same is to take place to-morrow in Brigadier-General Thomas's Brigade, and in Brigadier-General Spencer's Brigade on Saturday.
The General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Nixon was President, is dissolved. A General Court-Martial of the line to sit to-morrow, at nine o'clock, in Cambridge, to try such prisoners as shall be brought before them. All evidences and persons concerned to attend the Court. For the Court-Martial—one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, one Major, and ten Captains.

John Hawkins and Robert Higgins, of Captain Wyley's Company, in Colonel Sargent's Regiment, upon an appeal from a Regimental Court-Martial, tried by the late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Nixon was President, for "theft." The Court find the prisoner, John Hawkins, guilty of the charge, and do sentence that he restore the money stolen by him to the owner, Charles Caldwell, amounting to thirteen Pounds eight Shillings, lawful money; and that he receive thirty-nine lashes upon his bare back. The Court acquit the prisoner, Robert Higgins.
The General approves the sentence, and orders the prisoner, Hawkins, to be punished at the head of his Regiment; and the prisoner, Higgins, to be immediately released.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 29, 1775.
(Parole, Danvers.) (Countersign, Epsom.)
A Court of Inquiry to sit this afternoon, at three o'clock, to examine into the complaint of Lieutenant-Colonel Abijah Brown, of the Twenty-Fifth Regiment, against Colonel Ruggles Woodbridge. Colonel Glover, President; Colonel Bridge, Major Wood, Major Lee, and Major Duryee, Members.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, September 30, 1775.
(Parole, Fairfax.) (Countersign, Goshen.)
A Court of Inquiry ordered to sit this day in Brigadier-General Spencer's Brigade, in relation to the dispute between the Director-General of the Hospital and the Regimental Surgeons, is, on account of the indisposition of Dr. Church, to be postponed until farther orders.

PENNSYLVANIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Friday, September 1, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—
Robert Morris, President pro tem., Daniel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle, George Ross, Thomas Wharton, Junior, John Cadwallader, Robert White.
Delivered to Colonel Roberdeau, fifty of the Articles of Association and Rules for establishing rank amongst the Pennsylvania Association.
Delivered to Col. Cadwallader, — of each of the above.
Delivered to Captain Beach, 15 of each do.
Delivered to Colonel Ross, 12 of each do.
Resolved, That Mr. Hugh Montgomery be appointed Lieutenant of the Armed Boat to be commanded by Captain John Hamilton.
Whereas there are good reasons to suppose the Armed Boats may very soon be called into action, it is necessary to man the same with not less than thirty, nor more than fifty men to each Boat, officers included, who are to be shipped for two months certain, and from that time until discharged by orders from Assembly or this Board.

Resolved, That the following be the monthly Pay of the Officers and Men employed in the Provincial Armed Boats:
The Commodore, - - - - 30 dollars per month.
Every Captain of a Boat, - - - - 20 " "
Every Lieutenant, - - - - 12 " "
Surgeon of the Fleet, - - - - 20 " "
Surgeon's Mate, - - - - 12 " "
Every Steward of a Boat, - - - - 10 " "
Every Captain's Clerk, - - - - 8 " "
Every Mate and Gunner, - - - - 10 " "
Every Carpenter, - - - - 10 " "

Every Boatswain, - - - -	8 dollars per month.
Every Cook, - - - -	6 " "
Every Drummer, - - - -	6 " "
Every Private, - - - -	6 " "
Every Boy, - - - -	4 " "

Resolved, That every Man, Officers and Privates, employed in the Armed Boats, shall have the following weekly allowance of Provisions and Rum, or Malt Beer:

Seven pounds of Bread per week, or six pounds of Flour; ten pounds of Beef, Mutton, or Pork; the value of six Pence per week in Roots and Vegetables; Salt and Vinegar; three pints and a half of Rum, or Beer in proportion.

— Saturday, September 2, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Robert Morris, President pro tem., Daniel Roberdeau, George Ross, George Gray, Owen Biddle, Thomas Wharton, Junior, William Edmonds, Andrew Allen, Robert White.

Mr. Robert Morris is desired to pay to Captain Ord and Mr. George Thompson at the rate of fifteen Pounds per hundred for Powder they imported, and at the rate of four Pounds per hundred more, as an encouragement for the importation of Gunpowder; which encouragement is agreeable to a Resolve of the Committee for the City and Liberties.

Upon application of General Washington, as per Letter from Mr. Joseph Reed, dated Camp at Cambridge, August 24, 1775, for a supply of Gunpowder,

Resolved, That two tons of Gunpowder be immediately sent to his Excellency General Washington, and that William Jordan go with and take proper care of the Powder, until he has directions from the General.

That Robert Towers deliver the said Powder to Mr. Robert Erwin, who is to provide Wagons for the carriage of the same.

Agreeable to a Resolve of the 10th instant, Dr. Franklin wrote to General Schuyler, to know if any Lead could be had, for the use of this Province, out of a quantity that was at Ticonderoga. The General, in his Letter of the 23d of August, acquaints this Board that he will convey a considerable quantity of Lead immediately to this City.

Resolved, That Mr. Thomas Huston be appointed a Lieutenant on board one of the Armed Boats.

— Monday, September 4, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Daniel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle, John Cadwallader, Thomas Wharton, Junior, Robert White, George Ross, George Gray.

Fifty of the Rules and Regulations for the Associators, and the same number of the Articles of the Association, to be sent to the Colonels of the different Battalions in this Province.

Delivered to Colonel Dickinson, fifty of the Articles of Association and Precedency.

Delivered to Col. Hamilton, fifty of each of the above, per George Gray.

Delivered to Col. Miles, fifty of each of the above.

Sixty-six pounds Saltpetre, received from Mrs. Groves.

And reports his having delivered 4,012 pounds Gunpowder to Robert Erwin; which went yesterday in two Wagons, under the care of William Jordan, for General Washington, at the Camp in Cambridge.

— Wednesday, September 6, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Benjamin Franklin, Owen Biddle, Anthony Wayne,

Daniel Roberdeau, William Edmonds, Henry Wynkoop, John Cadwallader, George Gray, George Ross.

Mr. Clement Biddle made proposals to this Board to furnish the Officers and Men to be employed on board the Armed Boats with Provisions and Rum, or Beer in lieu of Rum, agreeable to the quality and quantity allowed them by a Resolve of this Board the 1st instant, at the rate of ten Pence half-penny per Ration, as one day's allowance for a man.

Resolved, That this Board accept the proposal of Mr. Biddle, and agree that he be appointed to furnish the Provisions and Rum, agreeable to the said Resolve, at the said rate of ten Pence half-penny per Ration.

Rowley Godfrey, Lieutenant of the Forty-Eighth Regiment of Foot, having come hither with an intention of joining his Regiment, quartered in the Island of Granada, this Committee thought proper that he should sign the following Parole, which he accordingly did:

"I, Rowley Godfrey, Lieutenant of the Forty-Eighth Regiment, now quartered in the Island of Granada, a prisoner in the power of the Committee of Safety of the Province of Pennsylvania, and being kindly treated and protected by them, and enlarged on parole, do hereby solemnly promise and engage, on the honour of a soldier and a gentleman, that I will not bear arms against the American United Colonies, in any manner whatever, for the space of twelve months, or until I may be exchanged; nor will I, during that time, take any measures to give intelligence to General Gage, or the British Ministry, or to any person or persons whatever, relative to American affairs. Also, in case this my parole is not accepted in exchange for any officer of equal rank in the American service who may be taken prisoner by the British Troops, I do hereby, in any such case, on notice, promise to repair to and give myself up to the said Committee of Safety, as a prisoner.

"R. GODFREY, Lieut. 48th Reg't.

"Philadelphia, September 7, 1775."

"I, George Ethrington, Major of the Second Battalion of His Majesty's Royal American Regiment, a prisoner in the power of the Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania, and being kindly treated and protected by them, and enlarged on parole, do hereby solemnly promise and engage, on the honour of a soldier and gentleman, that I will not bear arms against the American United Colonies, in any manner whatever, for the space of twelve months, or until I may be exchanged; nor will I, during that time, take any measures to give intelligence to General Gage, or the British Ministry, or to any person or persons whatever, relative to American affairs. Also, in case this my parole is not accepted in exchange for any officer of equal rank in the American service, who may be taken prisoner by the British Troops, I do hereby, in any such case, on notice, promise to repair to and give myself up to the said Committee of Safety, as a prisoner.

“GEORGE ETHRINGTON.

“Philadelphia, September 8, 1775.”

Agreeably to the request of Major Ethrington, he was furnished with a copy of his Parole and the following Certificate :

“These are to certify to all persons to whom these presents may appear, that the above writing is a true copy of the parole of honour given by the bearer, Major Ethrington, of the Second Battalion of the Royal American Regiment, to the Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania. It is therefore recommended to such persons, that the said Major Ethrington be permitted to pass where his business may lead him, without any hinderance or molestation.”

Ordered, That Mr. Towers, Commissary, attend Mr. Nicholson in proving the Firelocks; and that he furnish such quantity of Powder as is necessary for that purpose.

Resolved, That Captain White purchase of Mr. Binks thirty Cartridge-Boxes, for the use of the Armed Boats.

Monday, September 11, 1775.

Sent to Henry Wynkoop, for the use of the Associators in Bucks County, fifty Articles of Association and Recommendation; fifty ditto in the Dutch language.

The Board came to sundry Resolves, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that all Pilots of the Bay and River Delaware ought to use their utmost endeavours to avoid going or being taken on board British Ships of War, or Armed Vessels, during the present struggle for liberty.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that all Pilots of the Bay and River Delaware ought to lay up their Boats, on or before the 20th day of September, inst., and cautiously avoid going on any navigable water, or other place, on land or water, where they may probably fall within the power of British Men of War, Armed Vessels, or Boats, or within the power of men landed from such.

Resolved, That any Pilot, or other person, who shall conduct or bring any British Man of War, Armed Vessel, Boat, or other Craft, up the Bay of Delaware, shall, on being released from that service, forthwith repair to this Committee, there to prove, by such means as may be in his power, that he was compelled by force into that service. And such Pilot, or other person, not appearing at this Board within five days after his first landing, (unless put on shore at too great a distance,) shall be considered as having voluntarily performed the said service.

Resolved, That any Pilot, or other person acting as a Pilot, in Delaware Bay and River, who shall refuse or neglect to lay up his Boat or Craft, or who shall put himself in the way of being forcibly taken on board the King's Ships, or who shall voluntarily serve, or offer to serve or instruct them in the navigation of the said Bay and River, shall, on proof thereof made to this Board, be deemed an enemy to American liberty, a traitor to his Country, and as such published and held forth to the publick.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Pilots of the Bay and River Delaware should remain on shore, at Cape Henlopen or Cape May, until such Merchant Vessels as arrive send their Boats on shore for a Pilot, when one may repair on board, provided there is not any Man of War in sight, or in the said Bay and River; but if there is, the Captains of such Merchantmen must do the best they can for the safety of their Ships, as no Pilots must go on board in such case.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the owners of such Ships as are brought up during the time these Resolves remain in force, ought to allow such reasonable additional pilotage as the Board of Wardens may fix, towards bearing the Pilot's expense down to the Cape by land.

Resolved, That it is necessary for this Board to be constantly and early informed when any Men of War, Armed Vessels, Boats, or Craft, arrive at the Capes of Delaware; and, therefore, that Mr. Henry Fisher, of Lewistown, be appointed on this service, for which a reasonable reward, proportioned to his trouble, loss of time, and actual expense, shall hereafter be allowed him; and that the following be his Instructions: (f)

Instructions from the Committee of Safety at PHILADELPHIA, to Mr. HENRY FISHER, at LEWISTOWN.

You are immediately to repair down to Lewistown, and remain there constantly, (until discharged from this service,) for the purpose of giving advice to this Board of every British man-of-war, or armed vessel, that may arrive at the Capes of Delaware. We deliver you herewith an order from the Board of Wardens to the Keeper of the Light-house, directing him to make such signals, by day and night, on discovering any ship or vessel standing in for the land, as you and he may agree on, and you must immediately repair to the properest place for discovering what they are; and when you are convinced of the arrival of one or more men of war intending up this river, you are to send us advice thereof, either by land or water, as you conceive best, mentioning the number of the enemy's ships, and their force, and manner of proceeding, as nearly as you can ascertain these circumstances. When you send intelligence by water, you should avoid sending pilots, or persons that can serve as pilots to the enemy, lest they should fall in their power. (f)

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Buoys in the Bay of Delaware ought to be taken up immediately, and that the Wardens of the Port be desired to give orders for its being done, and to give orders to the Keeper of the Light to make such signals, by day or night, as Mr. Henry Fisher and he may agree on, upon seeing Vessels standing inwards. (f)

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that six six-pound Cannon be lent to the inhabitants of Lewistown and Pilotstown, near Cape Henlopen, with Ammunition for the same, to defend themselves from any hostile attacks; they giving security to return the Cannon on demand, and in expectation that the Committee of Safety for the three lower Counties will repay the quantity of Ammunition, or its value in money, in a reasonable time. (f)

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that if any Pilot or Pilot Boat should be wanted for especial or particular purposes, during the time these Resolves remain in force, application should be made to this Board, who will grant a Certificate to the Pilot or person employed, on finding the publick good is connected with his service.

Resolved, That Mr. White and Mr. Robert Morris apply to the Board of Wardens for the taking up the Buoys, agreeable to the preceding Resolutions.

Colonel Roberdeau and Colonel Cadwallader are requested to borrow six six-pound Cannon, and to give an assurance to the person who will lend them that they shall be returned in good order, or, in case they should sustain any damage or be lost, that this Board will pay such damage or loss; and that the said Guns be provided with a proper quantity of Ammunition—the whole being lent to the inhabitants of Lewistown and Pilotstown, for their defence.

The President gave an Order on Mr. Robert Morris, in favour of Robert Towers, for eleven Pounds eighteen Shillings and three Pence half-penny, for seventy-nine and three-quarter pounds of Saltpetre, which he has purchased and stored.

Resolved, That Colonel Dickinson and Colonel Cadwallader be a Committee to draw up a Memorial to the honourable House of Assembly, setting forth the necessity of their granting a farther sum of Money, and recommending the building Magazines in some convenient place.

Resolved, That Mr. Samuel Morris, and Mr. Robert White furnish an estimate of the cost of the Boats and Chevaux-de-Frise.

Resolved, That Mr. Robert Morris and Mr. Thomas Wharton furnish an estimate of the cost of Powder, Saltpetre, Fire-Arms, &c., that they have purchased and sent for.

Mr. John Ross, Merchant, made application to this Board to be appointed Muster-Master of the Officers and Men to be employed on board the Armed Boats, and informs this Board, that he will undertake, for the good of the service, to do the said duty of Muster-Master gratis.

Resolved, That Mr. Ross be appointed Muster-Master, agreeable to the preceding Minute.

The President gave an Order on Mr. Robert Morris, in favour of Mr. Duff, for three Pounds seventeen Shillings.

And an Order on Mr. Morris, in favour of Stocker & Wharton, for the sum of two hundred and sixty-one Pounds seventeen Shillings and nine Pence, for sundry Medicines.

Delivered Mr. Henry Fisher his Instructions from this Board, and the Resolves of this day, marked f.

— Tuesday, September 19, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—Robert Morris, President pro tem., John Cadwallader, Robert White, Samuel Morris, Jun., Thomas Wharton, Jun., Daniel Roberdeau, George Ross.

Resolved, That Captain James Blair be appointed to the command of one of the Armed Boats.

Resolved, That Captain Robert Eyres be appointed to the command of one of the Armed Boats.

Resolved, That the following gentlemen be appointed Lieutenants on board the Armed Boats: Jeremiah Simmons, John Chatham, James Allen, George Garland.

Robert Towers, Commissary, reports his having received and stored the following articles, viz: seven hundred and eighty-eight 18-pound Round Shot; one hundred and sixty-eight 24-pound Round Shot; seventy-seven 32-pound Round Shot—received from Mr. George Taylor, and stored at the State-House. Seventy-nine and three-quarter pounds Saltpetre, purchased of Meminger & Dorsey.

— Wednesday, September 20, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—Robert Morris, President pro tem., Daniel Roberdeau, Anthony Wayne, Michael Swoope, Andrew Allen, Thomas Wharton, Jun., John Cadwallader.

Resolved, That Richard Wells, Pilot, be permitted to go to the Capes with his Boat, with a caution to him to avoid going or being taken on board any Man-of-War, or other British Armed Vessel.

Resolved, That Daniel Murphy, Pilot, be permitted to take down the River and Bay of Delaware, the Brig Nancy, Captain Douglas, belonging to Messrs. Howell and Doug- las, and that the said Murphy avoid going or being taken on board any Man-of-War, or other British Armed Vessel.

Colonel Dickerson, agreeable to a Resolve of the Congress, applied to this Board for a state of the Account of Powder between this Board and the Congress, when he was furnished with the following Account:

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Daniel Roberdeau, Anthony Wayne, Benjamin Bartholomew, Thos. Wharton, Jun., Michael Swoope, John Montgomery, William Edmonds, Bernard Dougherty, Samuel Hunter, John Cadwallader.

Robert Towers, Commissary, reports his having received the following parcels of Powder, which is stored in the Powder-House:

Four half-barrels, weight two hundred pounds; six quarter-barrels, one hundred and fifty—three hundred and fifty pounds, from Oswald Eve. Three quarter-barrels, seventy-five pounds, from Oswald Eve, being part of the damaged Powder belonging to the Congress.

Friday, September 22, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Robert Morris, President pro tem., Owen Biddle, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Daniel Roberdeau, Michael Swoope, Anthony Wayne, George Ross, Andrew Allen, John Montgomery.

Resolved, That John Lamberth, Pilot, be permitted to pilot down the River and Bay of Delaware, from Newcastle, the Ship Peace and Plenty, Captain McKenzie, and he is warned by this Committee to avoid going or being taken on board any Man-of-War or other British Armed Vessels.

Resolved, That Luke Shields be permitted to take his Boat down to the Capes, and there to lay her up.

Resolved, That Mr. Towers, Commissary, keep the key of the Powder Magazine in his possession, and that he suffer no person to enter it but those that are necessary to employ therein; and that he desire Captain Spring to attend this Board, that he may be treated with for the hire of the Magazine.

Major Rogers having arrived here from England, and being on half pay in the British Army, this Board think it necessary that he should be taken prisoner. Colonel Roberdeau, at the request of this Board, accordingly gave directions to Captain Bradford, to take the said Major Rogers a prisoner, and bring him before them.

And Colonel Ross wrote to the Congress, to have their direction what they would have them to do with him.

Captain Bradford, according to directions, brought Mr. Rogers prisoner to this Board; but not having an answer from the Congress, it was thought proper that he should give his word of honour to appear before this Board tomorrow morning, at nine o'clock; which word he accordingly gave.

Mr. Samuel Slade, who lately came from England, was brought before this Board by Captain Loxley, and charged with his being frequently observed to take an account of the cannon and carriages in the State-House yard, and has made inquiries respecting the different constructions of machines, boats, &c., for the defence of this Province. This Board having examined him, and perused several of his papers and letters which he produced for his vindication, are of opinion that he had no bad intentions in making the above inquiries, therefore gave directions for his being released, with a charge to him that he inform this Board when he intends to leave this Province.

Resolved, That Captain Samuel Davidson be appointed to the command of one of the Armed Boats.

Resolved, That Mr. Thomas Savage be allowed seven Shillings and six Pence per day for his services, from the 18th July to this 22d inst., being sixty-six days, amounting to twenty-four Pounds fifteen Shillings, for which an order was drawn in his favour on Mr. Robert Morris.

Saturday, September 23, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—

Benja. Franklin, John Montgomery, Bernard Dougherty, Samuel Hunter, Andrew Allen, Michael Swoope, Benjamin Bartholomew, Robert Morris, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Owen Biddle, Daniel Roberdeau.

In answer to what Colonel Ross wrote yesterday to the Congress, respecting Major Rogers, this Board was furnished with the following Resolve, viz:

"In Congress, September 22, 1775.

"Resolved, That in case the Committee find nothing against Major Rogers except that of his being a half pay Officer, that he be discharged on giving his parole not to take up arms against the inhabitants of America, in the present controversy between Great Britain and America.

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

Major Rogers, agreeable to his word of honour yesterday, attended this Board, and, in consequence of the above Resolve of Congress, this Board took the following Parole, viz:

"I, Robert Rogers, Major on half pay in His Majesty's Army, a prisoner in the custody of the Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania, and being kindly treated and protected by them, and enlarged on parole, do hereby solemnly promise and engage, on the honour of a soldier and a gentleman, that I will not bear arms against the American United Colonies, in any manner whatever, during the present contest between them and Great Britain; and that I will not, in that time, attempt to give intelligence to General Gage, the British Ministry, or any other person or persons, of any matters relative to America.

"ROBERT ROGERS, Major."

Agreeable to the request of Major Rogers, he was furnished with a copy of his Parole, and the following Certificate, viz:

"These are to certify to all persons to whom these presents may appear, that the above writing is a true copy of the parole of honour given by the bearer, Major Robert Rogers, to the Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania; it is therefore recommended to such persons that the said Major Rogers be permitted to pass where his business may lead him, without any hinderance or molestation."

An Order was drawn, and signed by the President, on Robert Morris, in favour of Joseph Sims, for three Pounds fifteen Shillings, being for twenty-five pounds of Saltpetre.

Resolved, That Edward Chamberlain be appointed Master-at-Arms and Armourer for the Armed Boats, and that he be allowed fourteen Dollars per month for his services.

Delivered an Order to Captain Hamilton, on Robert Towers, Commissary, for two Cartridges for a twenty-four Pounder; twenty-four Cartridges for Muskets.

Resolved, That Colonel Cadwallader and Samuel Morris

be a Committee to examine the Cartridge-Boxes, Knap-sacks, &c., that are made for the use of this County, and, if they are made agreeable to the patterns, that they give orders to the Commissary to receive them into store.

Monday, September 25, 1775.

Delivered an Order to Edward Chamberlain, Master-at-Arms, on Mr. Robert Towers, Commissary, for twenty-eight Muskets, made by Nicholson, twenty-eight Cartridge-Boxes, made by Binks, and twenty rounds of Cartridges for each Musket.

Upon the application of the Committee of Correspondence of Westmoreland County, for a quantity of Powder and Lead for the defence of the Frontiers,

Resolved, That Mr. Michael Swoope and Mr. John Hay, of York County, do deliver to Captain Samuel Moorhead, of Westmoreland County, out of the publick stock, five hundred weight of Powder, and twelve hundred and fifty pounds of Lead, and that the same be placed in the hands of the Committee of Westmoreland, for the publick use of said County; and the Committee are requested to take particular care that the same be not expended but in the publick defence.

Resolved, That the Committee of said County be accountable to this Committee for the same, when called upon.

Resolved, That Orders be drawn on the Treasurer of this Board, in favour of the Commissioners and Assessors of each County in this Province, for the different sums as affixed to each County, being towards the payment of Arms and Accoutrements they are to furnish, respectively, viz: For Philadelphia County, £1,500; Bucks County, £300; Chester County, £500; Lancaster County, £600; York County, £300; Cumberland County, £300; Berks County, £400; Northampton County, £300; Bedford County, £100; Northumberland County, £100; Westmoreland County, £100.

John Philip De Haas having presented a Memorial to this Board relative to some dispute subsisting between Colonel Grubb, of Lancaster County, and him, respecting the division of said Colonel Grubb's Battalion; the Committee taking the same into consideration, do resolve that it be recommended to the Committee of Lancaster County to hear the matter in dispute between Colonel Grubb and Major De Haas, and determine it agreeable to the regulations published by this Board for establishing rank and precedence amongst the Pennsylvania Associators; and it is also recommended to those gentlemen to refer their disputes to said Committee, but subject to an appeal to this Board, if the parties think proper, who may agree upon a day to attend most suitable to them.

Wednesday, September 27, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—
Benjamin Franklin, John Cadwallader, Samuel Hunter, Bernard Dougherty, John Montgomery, Michael Swoope, Daniel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Andrew Allen, Anthony Wayne, George Ross.

Resolved, That Mr. Towers, Commissary, alter the Cartridges that he has made for the Cannon, by decreasing the quantity of Powder to one-fourth the weight of the Ball; and the Cartridges made for the Field-Pieces to be decreased to one-fifth or one-sixth the weight of the Ball, according to the strength of the Powder.

Resolved, That Doctor Benjamin Rush be appointed Physician and Surgeon to the Armed Boats, and that the Commanding Officers of the Boats be informed that they apply to him, for themselves and people, for assistance in case of need.

Friday, September 29, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—
Benjamin Franklin, Anthony Wayne, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Samuel Hunter, Bernard Dougherty, John Montgomery, Michael Swoope, Robert Morris, Daniel Roberdeau, Francis Johnson, Owen Biddle.

Agreeable to a Resolve of the 26th inst., the Orders therein mentioned to be drawn on the Treasurer of this Board, in favour of the different Commissioners and Assessors, was this day done, and signed by the President.

An Order was this day drawn on the Treasurer of this Board, in favour of the Commissioners and Assessors of York County, for one hundred and thirty-two Pounds sixteen Shillings, being towards the payment of Cartridge-Boxes, &c., made for the use of that County; which Order was delivered to Michael Swoope, Esq.

The Order drawn, agreeable to a Resolve of the 26th inst., in favour of the Commissioners and Assessors of Chester County, for five hundred Pounds, was this day delivered to Anthony Wayne, Esq.

The Order drawn, agreeable to a Resolve of the 26th inst., in favour of the Commissioners and Assessors of Cumberland County, for three hundred Pounds, was this day delivered to John Montgomery, Esq.

The Order drawn, agreeable to a Resolve of the 26th instant, in favour of the Commissioners and Assessors of Northumberland County, for one hundred Pounds, was this day delivered to Samuel Hunter, Esq.

A Memorial to the Assembly was this day drawn up, read, and agreed to, with an Estimate of the Moneys expended and to be expended for the use of this Province, and are as follows, viz:

To the Honourable the Representatives of the Freemen of the Province of PENNSYLVANIA, in General Assembly met. The Memorial of the Committee of Safety respectfully sheweth:

That the said Committee, in obedience to the orders of the House, have taken upon them the execution of the important trust committed to them, and have proceeded to such measures as appeared to them necessary to effectuate the purposes for which they were appointed. The minutes of their transactions, together with an estimate of the expenses incurred for the putting this Province into a proper state of defence, are with great deference submitted to the consideration of the House.

From these it will appear that the sum of money granted by the House, at their last sessions, has been either wholly expended or remitted for the purchase of Arms and Ammunition. That a considerable sum is still necessary to fulfil the engagements already made for the above purposes, and for the paying and victualling of the men in the service.

It must be obvious to the House that much yet remains to be done to accomplish their salutary intentions, particularly if the British Ministry should obstinately persist in their present arbitrary measures. Should this be the case, (which, from the present appearance of things, seems but too probable,) this opportunity may, perhaps, be the only one we shall be possessed of, to prepare the necessary means for the defence of our just rights; for there can be no doubt that vigorous exertions will be made to intercept future supplies. The Committee, therefore, apprehend it to be their indispensable duty earnestly to recommend to the House to grant such farther liberal aids, at their present sessions, as may, in their wisdom, be judged adequate to the exigencies of the Province at this very important crisis.

They beg leave, also, to represent to the House that there appears to be an immediate necessity for constructing a Magazine or Magazines to receive the Powder already in the Province, and such as may arrive hereafter; large quantities are shortly expected, and there is no place where it can be stored with safety, or any way guarded against accidents, which that article, from its nature, must be exposed to, and which it is of considerable moment to prevent.

The Committee having thus laid before the House the steps they have already taken, and their opinion of some measures which appear proper to be adopted, beg leave, before they conclude this report, to submit to the House a matter interesting to the publick welfare.

The Military Association, entered into by numbers of the good people of this Province, has received the approbation of the House, and undoubtedly deserves every encouragement; as a body of freemen, animated by a love of liberty, and trained to the use of arms, afford the most certain and effectual defence against the approaches of slavery and oppression. It is to be wished, therefore, that this spirit could have been more universally diffused; but the Associators complain, and with great appearance of reason, that whilst they are subjected to expenses to accoutre themselves as soldiers, (and their affairs suffer considerably by the time necessarily employed in acquiring a knowledge of the military art,) very many of their countrymen, who have not associated, are entirely free from these inconveniences. They conceive that when the liberty of all is at stake, every man should assist in its support; that where the cause is common, and the benefits derived from an opposition are universal, it is not consonant to justice or equity that the burdens should be partial.

The Committee, therefore, would submit it to the wisdom of the House, whether, at this time of distress and general danger, some plan should not be devised to oblige the assistance of every member of the community. But as there are some persons who, from their religious principles, are scrupulous of the lawfulness of bearing arms, this Committee, from a tender regard for the consciences of such, would venture to propose that their contributions to the common cause should be pecuniary, and for that purpose a rate or assessment be laid on their estates, equivalent to the expense and loss of time incurred by the Associators. A measure of this kind appears to be founded on the principles of impartial justice, calculated to appease the complaints which have been made, likely to give general satisfaction, and of course beneficial to the great cause we are engaged in.

Your Committee beg leave to represent that it will be necessary to appoint a Commodore or Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Boats, which has been delayed hitherto out of respect to your honourable House.

B. FRANKLIN.

September 29, 1775.

An Estimate of Moneys already expended, and to be expended, for the defence of the Province of PENNSYLVANIA. Submitted to the honourable House of Assembly by the Committee of Safety, SEPTEMBER 29, 1775:

Besides the money actually remitted for the purchase of Ammunition and Arms, credits are given to the Agents employed in that service, to draw on London and this place to the extent of ten thousand Pounds, if they can obtain the articles wanted; and remittances must soon be made to answer these credits, some Members of this Committee having pledged their private credits on behalf of the publick, - - - - £10,000 00 0

Freights of sundry Ships employed to bring the Arms and Ammunition, with the commissions of a Factor, sent in each Ship to make the purchase. This article cannot be exactly ascertained; but the quantity being considerable, may be reasonably supposed at - - - - - 4,000 00 0

£87,237 8 3

Expense of building a Magazine or Magazines, with other charges and expenses that may be expected to arise if this most unhappy contest continues.

N. B. It should be observed that the great expense appears by this estimate to be for Arms and Ammunition, and these are worth the full sum they will cost, or might at this time be disposed of to profit.

Samuel Slade having promised this Board that he would not leave this Province without their permission, he this day requested liberty of going to New-York, which request was granted.

Mr. Owen Biddle, by order, wrote this day to the Committee of York County, respecting the Associators there.

Resolved, That the Boat built by Wark. Coats be called the Burke; that the Boat built by William Williams be called the Hancock; that the Boat built by . . . Sherlock be called the Camden.

PENNSYLVANIA ASSEMBLY.

Monday, September 18, 1775.

Mr. Speaker, with seventeen Members, met pursuant to adjournment, on the 30th of June last; and a quorum not appearing, they adjourned to ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, September 19, 1775.

Mr. Speaker, with twenty-two Members, met this morning; and a number sufficient to proceed on business being yet wanting, they adjourned to ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, September 20, 1775.

Mr. Speaker, with the Members present yesterday, met again this morning; and several being still absent, adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

A quorum met pursuant to adjournment.

Ordered, That Mr. John Jacobs and Mr. Edmonds wait on the Governour, and acquaint him a quorum of the Representatives are met, pursuant to their adjournment, and ready to receive any business his Honour may be pleased to lay before them.

A Remonstrance from the Overseers of the Poor of the City of Philadelphia was presented to the House, and read, setting forth, that the sum of Money granted last year by the then Assembly, for the relief and support of such infirm, sick, and aged neutrals as are still residents among us, is nearly expended for the purposes for which it was granted, as by the Accounts herewith laid before the House will appear; that the Remonstrants therefore think it their duty to inform the honourable House, that there is now a considerable number of the said neutrals, who, from their age, sickness, or infirmities, are rendered incapable of supporting themselves, and must suffer in this time of general calamity, unless immediate and constant relief is afforded, in such a manner as their particular circumstances may from time to time require; that the Remonstrants therefore request the honourable House will take the premises into consideration and grant such relief as they in their wisdom shall think proper.

Ordered to lie on the table.

Saturday, September 30, 1775.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety: Present—Benjamin Franklin, Samuel Morris, Jun., Owen Biddle, Michael Swoope, Bernard Dougherty, Thomas Wharton, Jun., Daniel Roberdeau.

Resolved, That as the Boats of War are now equipped and partly manned for service, and there is a probability that we may be reduced to the unhappy necessity of using them in the defence of this City; and, on inquiry, it being found impracticable either to purchase or have made any Fire-Arms, in proper time, for our defence; it is therefore earnestly recommended to those Associators who have the Provincial Arms in their possession, to deliver them to our Commissary, Robert Towers, that they may be employed in that necessary service.

And it is desired that Colonel Dickinson, Colonel Roberdeau, and Colonel Cadwallader, apply to the Captains of the respective Battalions for a list of the names of all those Associators who have possession of the said Arms, in order that our Commissary may apply to them for the same.

Resolved, That the inhabitants of Lewis and Pilot Towns be supplied with the following quantity of Ammunition, which they are to repay when demanded by this Committee, viz: two hundred pounds of Gunpowder; six hundred pounds of Lead; twenty rounds of Grape-Shot; twelve rounds of Cannon Ball for Nine-Pounders.

Agreeable to the above Resolve, an Order was drawn on the Commissary, for the Ammunition therein mentioned, and delivered to Mr. Henry Neal.

A Letter was this day wrote to the Committee of Safety of Sussex County, and directed to John Lagworthy, Esq., informing that this Board has sent the Ammunition, agreeable to a Resolve of this day.

A Memorial from the Committee and principal Inhabitants of the County of York was presented to the House, and read, praying, that in the next appointment of Deputies for this Province, to serve in the Continental Congress, an inhabitant of the said County may be one of the number.

Ordered to lie on the table.

A Petition from the Commissioners of the County of York was presented to the House, and read, setting forth, that the honourable Assembly of this Province, on the 30th of June last, was pleased to direct that three hundred Muskets and the like number of Cartridge-Boxes should be made in the said County; that the Petitioners and the Board, in consequence of such direction, have set the Gunsmiths of the County to work at the said arms, and have induced them, with the assistance of the Committee, to lay aside all other business till the same be finished; that some of the said Gunsmiths cannot afford to purchase the necessary materials, and carry on the said work, without money advanced to them; that the Petitioners therefore pray the House to pay the sum of five hundred Pounds, or such sum as they may think proper, into the hands of Michael Swoope, Esq.; which sum the Petitioners will advance to the said Gunsmiths, in order to enable them to carry on the said work, and that the Petitioners will be accountable to the House for the same; that the Cartridge-Boxes are finished, (a bill for which is herewith sent,) and the Petitioners pray the House to order the Treasurer to pay the amount of them to the said Michael Swoope; that the Petitioners also beg leave to represent that there is now a quantity of Tin in the Town of York, sufficient to make a number of Camp-Kettles to supply the Minute-Men of this County, in case they should be called into actual service, and unless it be soon engaged for this purpose, will be worked up for other uses; that if the House should be of opinion such kettles are necessary, the petitioners will direct the same to be made, and charged to the Province; that the Petitioners apprehend, when the number of Militia (near four thousand) in this County is considered, the arms allotted for it is not a proper proportion, and therefore submit to the judgment of the House whether the number of arms ought not to be increased; that the Committee of the said County some time ago purchased a quantity of ammu-munition for publick use, (a bill for which is herewith sent,) and the said Committee advanced the money for the same; that the said ammunition is now lodged in Yorktown, to be made use of on any emergency, for the security and defence of this Province; that the Petitioners humbly conceive the said ammunition should be paid for by the Province, in order to take the burden from individuals, and therefore further pray the House to order their Treasurer to pay the amount of the said ammunition to the said Michael Swoope.

Ordered to lie on the table.

Ordered, That Mr. Hillegas, Mr. Pearson, and Mr. Ross, be a Committee to prepare and bring in a Bill for striking the sum of Twenty-Two Thousand Pounds in Bills of Credit, for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts.

Thursday, September 21, 1775.

The Members appointed to wait on the Governour with the Message of last night reported they had delivered the same according to order; and that his Honour was pleased to say he had no business to lay before the House at present.

Upon motion, the Remonstrance from the Overseers of the Poor of the City of Philadelphia was again read, and after some debate thereon,

Resolved, That the sum of One Hundred Pounds be allowed and paid to the said Overseers of the Poor, by the Provincial Treasurer, for the relief and support of such aged, sick, and infirm neutrals as remain in and about the City, and cannot provide for themselves.

And a Certificate for the said sum, being made out accordingly, was signed by the Speaker.

The Committee appointed to prepare and bring in a Bill for striking the sum of Twenty-Two Thousand Pounds, in Bills of Credit, reported an essay for that purpose, intituled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts," which being read the first time, was ordered to lie on the table for a second reading.

Friday, September 22, 1775.

The House resumed the consideration of the Bill intituled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts," which being read the second time, and debated by paragraphs, was ordered to be transcribed for a third reading.

The Speaker having reported to the House that Mr. Humphreys and himself, pursuant to the Resolution of the Assembly on the 30th of June last, had taken a Bond, with two sufficient securities, from Michael Hillegas, Esquire, Treasurer to the Committee of Safety, it is hereby directed that the said Bond be proved and recorded in the Rolls Office, and remain for safe keeping in the hands of the Speaker.

Upon motion, Ordered, That Mr. Dickinson, Mr. Brown, Mr. Rodman, Mr. Bartholomew, Mr. John Jacobs, Mr. Pearson, and Mr. Wayne, be a Committee to collect from the Journals of the successive Assemblies of this Province, since the year 1763, all the Petitions and Remonstrances presented by the said Assemblies to the Crown and both Houses of Parliament, for redress of American grievances.

Tuesday, September 26, 1775.

The Bill intituled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts," being transcribed according to order, was read the third time, and compared at the table.

Resolved, That the said Bill do pass.

Ordered, That Mr. Roberts and Mr. Chapman wait on the Governour therewith, for his assent to the same.

The Members return, and report they had waited on the Governour, and delivered the said Bill, according to order; and that his Honour was pleased to say, he would take the same into immediate consideration, and give it all the despatch in his power.

The House adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

A Petition from the Board of Commissioners and Assessors of the County of Chester was presented to the House, and read, setting forth, that by virtue of a resolve of the honourable House of Assembly, enjoining the Commissioners and Assessors of each County in this Province to provide a number of Arms, &c., for the uses and purposes in the said resolve mentioned, the Board have contracted with workmen, and advanced a considerable sum of money, which they borrowed from the Treasurer of the said County, amounting to Sixteen Hundred Pounds; and as that sum is not sufficient to complete the whole, they request the House to lend them the farther sum of Eight Hundred and Fifty Pounds, on the credit of the Board, to be repaid in Arms by them to be provided, in pursuance of the aforesaid resolve, for the use of said County.

Ordered to lie on the table.

The Committee appointed on Friday last presented to the chair a report, in writing, on the business committed to them, which was read by order, and follows in these words, viz:

Your Committee appointed to collect from the Journals of the successive Assemblies of this Province, since the year 1763, all the Petitions and Remonstrances presented by the said Assemblies to the Crown and both Houses of Parliament for redress of grievances, in obedience to your order, report, that they find upon the Journals of January the 14th, 1766, a Petition to the House of Commons concerning Paper Currency; June the 6th, in the same year, an Address of Thanks to the King, upon the Repeal of the Stamp Act; September the 22d, 1768, Petitions to the King and both Houses of Parliament, upon the Paper, Tea and Glass Act; and March the 5th, 1771, another Petition to the King upon the same subject.

BENJ. BARTHOLOMEW, JOHN DICKINSON,
JOHN JACOBS, WILLIAM RODMAN,
ISAAC PEARSON, JOHN BROWN.

September 26, 1775.

Upon consideration of the foregoing Report,

Ordered, That the Clerk do immediately make out fair copies of the several Petitions and the Address therein referred to.

Wednesday, September 27, 1775.

The Governour, by Mr. Secretary, sent down a verbal Message, requiring a list of the Orders and Certificates made payable out of the Supply Bill now under his consideration.

The Committee for Incidental Expenses reported a list of the Salaries and Accounts for the services of the past year, which being examined, and agreed to by the House,

Ordered, That a copy thereof be made out by the Clerk; and the same being done at the table accordingly,

Ordered, That Mr. Wayne and Mr. Montgomery wait on the Governour, and deliver the said copy for his consideration and concurrence.

A Memorial from the Officers of the three first Battalions of the Military Association within the City and Liberties of Philadelphia was presented to the House, and read, setting forth, that when the unhappy emergency of publick affairs required the said Association should be formed, the Memorialists found it indispensably necessary for carrying on the same, to advance money from time to time, to provide Drums, Colours, and other necessities, and to employ Adjutants, Fuglemen, Sergeants, Drummers, and Fifers, on account of the Association; that these efforts of the Memorialists have been attended with very considerable effects, which may be of great service in support of the common cause of America, there being three Battalions within the City and Liberties, regularly formed, and well disciplined for the time they have been established; that as the Memorialists were induced to incur the expenses abovementioned by no other motive than a desire to promote the publick security and welfare, and as the honourable House has approved their proceedings, they rely with a respectful confidence in the justice and equity of the representative body, that they will not allow a few individuals to remain any longer burdened with the charge of measures that were designed for and really tend to the benefit of the whole community: That the Memorialists therefore pray the honourable House will make such provision in the premises as in their wisdom shall seem proper; and beg leave to present an exact account of their expenses; that the Memorialists think it their duty to observe, that in order to keep up and give effect to the Association, it will be necessary to retain in pay the persons that are required in training the Battalions, an estimate of the expense whereof in future is herewith delivered; that the Memorialists cannot omit to mention to the House, that in pursuance of a recommendation from the Committee for the City and Liberties aforesaid, sundry sums of money were collected from a number of persons, who generously advanced the same towards the expense of the Association, until some publick and general mode of raising money should be fallen upon to discharge the debts the officers had already contracted; that the amount of the said collections is very inadequate to the purpose intended, as will appear by the account thereof annexed, and assurances were given to the subscribers that the said sums should be repaid as soon as sufficient publick moneys were raised by tax or otherwise.

Ordered to lie on the table.

A Memorial from the Officers of the Military Association for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia was presented to the House, and read, setting forth, that the Memorialists, with great concern, perceive that fatal mischiefs will arise to the Association from the lenity shown towards persons professing to be conscientiously scrupulous against bearing arms; that people sincerely and religiously scrupulous are but few in comparison to those who upon this occasion, as well as others, make conscience a convenience; that a very considerable share of the property of this Province is in the hands of people professing to be of tender conscience in military matters; that the Associators think it extremely hard that they should risk their lives and injure their fortunes in the defence of those who will not be of the least assistance to this great struggle; that the Memorialists therefore humbly conceive that some decisive plan should be fallen upon to oblige every inhabitant of the Province, either with his person or property, to contribute towards the general cause, and that it should not be left, as at present, to the inclinations of those professing tender conscience, but that the proportion they shall contribute may be certainly fixed and determined; that in order to give strength and permanency to the Association, the Memorialists thought it absolutely necessary that some general regulations should be formed, to be offered to the Associators for their government; that under this idea the Memorialists concurred with the Members of the Committees for the City, Liberties, and County, and the Officers of the County Battalions, in requesting the Committee of Safety, who appeared to be vested with extensive powers in the recess of the Assembly, to form rules and regulations adequate to the occasion; that those rules being formed, and recommended by the Committee of Safety, and by the Memorialists offered to the Associators, they refused to sign or agree to them, for the reasons contained in the paper herewith presented to the honourable House, in pursuance of their request; that the House will perceive the reason which pervades almost the whole of their objections is, the partiality and inequality of the Association, which being once obviated, the Memorialists respectfully offer it as their opinion, that the Associators will cheerfully put up with many inconveniences, and that all jealousies and suspicions about forms will cease; that the Memorialists therefore pray the honourable House will take the premises into their consideration, and fall upon some effectual plan to remedy the inconveniences attendant on their present situation, and to preserve together and properly direct the Associators, who express every wish to defend their Country in this season of difficulty and danger.

Ordered to lie on the table.

Friday, September 29, 1775.

The Members appointed to wait on the Governour with a list of the Orders and Certificates of the House, to be paid by the Supply Bill now before him, reported they had delivered the same according to order.

The Governour, by Mr. Secretary, laid before the House several letters from William Maclay, Esquire, Thomand Ball, and others, dated at Sunbury, Northumberland County, the 22d and 26th instant, acquainting his Honour "that a party of the Connecticut intruders, supposed to be a detachment from Colonel Bulter's Regiment, consisting, as it is at present conjectured, of nearly three hundred men, arrived last Saturday night at Freeland's Mill, on the Warriour's Run, about thirteen miles distant from the said Town, and that they immediately began to intrench themselves; from which circumstance, and that they brought neither women nor children, but instead of them fortifying and intrenching tools, and are accompanied by some of the sellers of lands in this County, under Connecticut rights, it is presumed their visit cannot be amicable."

Ordered to lie on the table.

A Memorial from the Committee of Safety, with an estimate of Moneys already expended, and to be expended, for the defence of this Province, were laid before the House.

Ordered to lie on the table.

The House resumed the consideration of the two Memorials presented on the 27th instant, from the Officers of the Military Association for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia; and, after some time spent therein, referred the same to the consideration of the succeeding Assembly.

Ordered, That the Paper addressed to the said Officers, from the General Committee of Associators, and presented to the House with the last of the said Memorials, do lie on the table.

Saturday, September 30, 1775.

The House taking into consideration the several Letters sent down yesterday by the Governour, acquainting him with the intrusion of a number of People into this Province, under a pretended claim of the Colony of Connecticut, to the great annoyance of the good people of this Province,

Resolved, That the Delegates for this Province be specially directed to lay the same before the Congress, with the mischievous tendency the pursuing such measures will have, and procure the aid of that Assembly to quiet the minds of the good people of this Province, and prevent farther intrusion or extension of settlements under the said claim, until the matter shall be determined by the King and Council, to whom both sides have submitted the dispute.

The Governour, by Mr. Secretary, returned the Bill intituled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and payment of the Publick Debts;" and acquainted the House that he should be ready to pass the same whenever presented to him for that purpose.

Ordered, That Mr. Gray and Mr. Parker wait on the Governour, and request to know at what hour to-day the House shall attend his Honour, to enact the said Bill into a law.

The House then taking into consideration the Governour's support,

Resolved, That the additional sum of Five Hundred Pounds be allowed and given to the Hon. John Penn, Esquire, Governour and Commander-in-Chief of this Province, for his support for the past year.

And a Certificate for the said sum being made out accordingly, was signed by the Speaker, to be presented to his Honour when the House shall wait on him with the Bill to be passed.

The Members appointed to wait on the Governour, reported that his Honour was pleased to say he would be in the Council Chamber immediately, to pass the Bill that has been agreed upon.

Ordered, That Mr. Gray and Mr. Parker do see the great seal affixed to the said Bill, after the same shall be passed into a law, and deposite the said law in the Rolls Office.

A Message by Mr. Secretary.

"SIR: The Governour is in the Council Chamber, and requires the attendance of the House, to enact into a law the Bill to which he has given his assent."

Then Mr. Speaker, with the whole House, waited on the Governour; and being returned from the Council Chamber, the Speaker resumed the chair, and reported they had waited on the Governour, and presented a Bill intituled "An Act for the support of the Government of this Province, and the payment of the Publick Debts," to which his Honour had been pleased to give his assent, by enacting the same into a law. The Speaker also reported that he had presented to his Honour the certificate of the House for the sum of Five Hundred Pounds; for which he was pleased to say he was obliged to the House.

The Members appointed to see the great seal affixed to the law just passed, and to deposite the same in the Rolls Office, reported they had performed that service according to order.

The House then taking into consideration the service of the Deputies for this Province in Congress:

Resolved, That the said Deputies be allowed each the sum of twenty Shillings per diem for their attendance on that service.

And a Certificate to Benj. Franklin, Esq., for £91 15 0
 To Thomas Willing, Esq., for - - - - - 74 15 0
 To John Morton, Esq., for - - - - - 59 15 0
 To Charles Humphreys, Esq., for - - - - - 85 15 0
 To George Ross, Esq., for - - - - - 62 15 0

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, during the recess of the Provincial Congress, September 4, P. M., 1775, Present:

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Scott, Mr. Beckman, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Sears, Mr. Brasher, Mr. Richard Yates.

For ALBANY, Mr. Robert Yates.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Livingston, Colonel Hoffman.

For KING'S, Mr. Williams, Mr. Remsen.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For TRYON, Mr. Sears.

For ORANGE, Mr. Haring.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Brasher.

For ULSTER, Mr. Roosevelt.

The Committee unanimously chose John Haring, Esq., Chairman.

A Letter from the Committee of Albany, of the 29th ultimo, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany Committee Chamber, August 29, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: We expected, when the Army was once organized, we should not be so frequently called upon about matters not in our province. But the situation of Colonel Cortlandt, and the men under his command, in a great measure obliges us to give him all the assistance in our power; not, however, that it is to be made a precedent of. The enclosed letter from Colonel Cortlandt will show you the posture he is in, and the necessity of a speedy relief. We fear we shall be able to afford him but little assistance. The hospital and barracks are filled with Indians attending the Congress; the barns about the Town loaded with the crops of the season, and the City crowded continually with a numerous concourse of people. The former and frequent applications for ammunition has drained us, in short, of almost every thing of that sort.

"We are, Gentlemen, your humble servants.

"By order of the Committee:

"ABRAHAM YATES, JUN., Chairman.

"Peter V. B. Livingston, President of the Congress."

A Letter from Philip Cortlandt, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fourth Regiment, dated at Albany, August 28, 1775, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, August 28, 1775.

"DEAR SIR: Agreeable to verbal orders received from Colonel Holmes, when last in New-York, made all the despatch in my power to this place, where I arrived the 26th instant, finding Captain Henry B. Livingston, with his Company, in a small house in Town. He wants many things, such as shoes, stockings, shirts, underclothes, haversacks, and cash, having advanced all himself that has been paid his men as yet. The day I arrived, came up the following Captains, with their Companies: Captain Herrick, Captain Palmer, Captain Horton, and Captain Mills, all without blankets, excepting Captain David Palmer; many of the men wanting shirts, shoes, stockings, underclothes, and, in short, without any thing fit for a soldier, except a uniform coat; and not more than thirty

And to James Wilson, Esq., for - - - - - £30 15 0
 Being made out at the table by order of the House, the same were signed by the Speaker, to be delivered to the said gentlemen, respectively.

The Clerk produced at the table, pursuant to the order of the House, sundry copies of Petitions to the King, Lords, and Commons, and of an Address to His Majesty, presented by the different Houses of Assembly of this Province, since the year 1763, dated respectively as follows, viz: A Petition to the House of Commons, January 14, 1766; an Address of Thanks to the King, June 6, 1766; a Petition to the King, September 22, 1768; another to the House of Lords, of the same date; another to the House of Commons, of the same date; and another to His Majesty, March 5, 1771; which several copies were committed to the care of Benjamin Franklin, Esq., to be sent to England by the first opportunity.

The House then rose.

guns, with four Companies, fit for service. They are now on board of the small boats that brought them up, having no place for them to go into, as there is not one tent that I can find for our Battalion, and three Companies without blankets, and none to be had at this place. I do not know how to act or what to do with them; they begin to ask for cash and better lodgings, being much crowded in the small boats in which I am obliged to keep them. I this morning made application to the Committee of Albany, who will do all in their power for me, which I believe is but very little.

"I shall be much obliged to the honourable Congress to send me, with all convenient speed, arms, blankets, tents, shoes, stockings, haversacks, and cash, by all means. I want to be going forward, where, by what I can learn, we shall be wanting, if we can go soon, or not at all. The men say, give us guns, blankets, tents, &c., and we'll fight the devil himself; but do not keep us here in market-boats, as though we were a parcel of sheep or calves. In short, nothing can give me more pleasure than the arrival of the aforesaid articles; until which, I shall do all in my power to keep the men together, and in as good order as clubs and canes can keep them, without arms to keep a proper guard, as I have orders from the General to collect all the arms together, and send as many men off directly to Ticonderoga, (and that without tents,) which will not be a full Company, unless I can purchase some arms here.

"I remain, dear Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

"PHILIP CORTLANDT,

"Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fourth Battalion.

"P. S. The cash I received I was obliged to pay to the mutinous men in the lower barracks; and I sent by Lieutenant Riker, to Captain Woodard, at Newtown, Long-Island, some part of it."

Ordered, That the Committee of the City of New-York be requested to search, or cause search to be made through the City of New-York, for spare Arms, with or without Bayonets, and cause them to be purchased, at such prices as they may be reasonably obtained, for the use of the Troops of this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. James Hallett deliver to Mr. Isaac Sears sixteen Wheelbarrows, or any less number which he has ready made; and that Mr. Hallett employ as many persons as may be necessary, and with all possible despatch replace the same number for Mr. Samuel Franklin.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall appoint a sufficient Guard, out of any of the Troops of this Colony now in this City, to attend upon and guard the Sloop with the Pork expected to arrive this evening or to-morrow from Connecticut; and that the said Guard be in such readiness as to attend, when Mr. Isaac Sears shall give him information that the Pork is arrived.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall give such orders as that the Guard at the Upper Barracks be ready to go immediately to the Jail to guard it, and to seize any prisoners that may be directed by Mr. Francis Child, at any time when Mr. Child, or any person by him sent, shall request the assistance of that Guard.

Ordered, That Mr. Gerard Bancker be requested to put in proper order one of the Rooms in the Upper Barracks, for the reception and storing of such Stores as are now in the Barrack-Master's Store-Room in the Jail; and that Mr. Bancker render an account of the expenses to this Committee, for payment.

A Letter from Egbert Benson, Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County, informing that Messrs. Lester, Doughty, and Berghs, are said to have enlisted men, and purchased supplies for the enemy, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Colonel Lasher detach a sufficient party of the Militia under his command, to apprehend Mordecai Lester, of Dutchess County, wherever he may be found, and keep him in safe custody, to answer before this Committee for certain misdemeanors against the liberties of America, charged against him; and for so doing this shall be a sufficient warrant.

Mr. Richard Yates, Mr. Roosevelt, and Mr. Van Zandt, dissent.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and delivered to Colonel Lasher.

Committee adjourned till nine o'clock, to morrow morning.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., September 5, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, James Beekman, Isaac Roosevelt, Isaac Sears, Mr. Brasher, Joseph Hallett, Col. McDougall.

For ALBANY, Robert Yates, Esquire.

For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston, Melancton Smith.

For WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.

For ULSTER, Isaac Roosevelt.

For KING's, Jeremiah Remsen.

For TRYON, Isaac Sears.

For CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

For SUFFOLK, Abraham Brasher.

Doctor Treat and Doctor Thomas Jones sent in an Inventory of the Medicines and Hospital Stores now in a room at the Barracks, with the prices annexed to the same; which is now filed.

A Petition of the Inhabitants of the Manor of Fordham and West Farms, setting forth the inconvenience of their being joined in one Company with those of the Borough of Westchester; and praying that they may be formed into one Company.

Ordered, That a Letter, enclosing a copy of the said Petition, be sent to the Committee of Westchester.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the Committee of Westchester County was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, &c., September 5, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We enclose you a copy of a petition from the inhabitants of the Manor of Fordham and West Farms. If the facts therein set forth are true, we think it reasonable they should be formed into a separate Company, and choose their officers. However, by the resolutions of our Congress, the division of the County into Beats or Districts is referred to you. But we must observe to you that each Company is ordinarily to consist of about eighty-three men, officers included; and by their representation it appears that there is a sufficient number to form a Company, and the Beat or District to which you have assigned them as part, far exceeds that number. We therefore recommend to you an inquiry into this matter. We are, &c.

To Gilbert Drake, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Westchester County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Dr. McClean, of the City, attending at the door, requested the sense of this Committee, whether he be at liberty to supply the Ship Asia with Drugs and Medicines, as he has heretofore done.

Agreed, That Dr. McClean be at liberty to supply the said Ship with Drugs and Medicines, in the same manner and under the like restrictions that Mr. Lott is directed to observe in supplying the said Ship with Beer and Water.

The Committee having ordered some of the persons now in custody, and who were taken on board of the Sloop commanded by one Dop, seized by order of the Provincial Congress last Sunday, by Colonel Lasher, proceeded to the examination of Daniel Rivers, one of them. Henry Acker, Jun., next examined; Abraham Freligh, next examined; Timothy Doughty, next examined.

A Letter from Augustus Van Cortlandt, Esq., informing the Committee that he had deposited the Records of his office in a dry arched cellar, in boxes; that he had intended, if this City should be invaded, to remove them to his brother's, at the Yonkers, in Westchester County.

Agreed, That the disposition Mr. Cortlandt has made of the Records of his office is satisfactory to this Committee, for the present, and that he be informed thereof.

Ordered, That the Letter of application from William McAdam, for a permit for the Sloop Jean to proceed to sea, and the inventory of her lading sent into Congress, and the short notes of examination of David Morris, the Pilot, be delivered to the Committee of the City of New-York, as a matter within their particular province, to which they are competent; and that the said Committee be informed that David Morris, a Pilot, is a material witness to be examined with respect to the Sloop Jean.

And Ordered, That the notes of examination of Alexander Bell, and the bill for fifty Pounds, found on him, be also delivered to the said Committee of the City of New-York.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., September 6, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, James Beekman, Joseph Hallett, and John Morin Scott.

For ALBANY, Robert Yates.

For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston and Colonel Hoffman.

For QUEEN's, Jonathan Lawrence.

For KING's, Jeremiah Remsen, John Vanderbilt, and Henry Williams.

For WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.

For CUMBERLAND, Major John Williams.

For TRYON, Isaac Sears.

For ULSTER, Isaac Roosevelt.

For SUFFOLK, Abraham Brasher.

Ordered, That Mr. Thomas Grenell be, and he is hereby appointed a Commissioner, in addition to the number heretofore appointed, to superintend the erecting and finishing the Fortifications on Hudson's River, in the Highlands.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., pay to Mr. William Bedlow, one of the Commissioners for erecting Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands, the sum of two hundred and fifty Pounds, on account, to be expended in preparing necessities and in erecting the said Fortifications.

A Letter from the Committee of Tryon County, of the 26th ult., was read and filed. They therein enclose a copy of sundry Resolutions of their Committee; as, also, a list of Officers of the Militia by them elected.

The Resolutions enclosed in the Letter from the Committee of Tryon County are as follows:

"In Tryon County Committee Chamber, August 26, 1775.

"Resolved and Agreed, unanimously, That the following new chosen Members, by the freeholders and inhabitants of Palatine District, adjoining the old Committee, agreeable to a late advertisement, dated the 12th instant, shall be admitted and sworn by the oath formerly prescribed by the General Committee, viz: John Eisenlord, Christian Nelles, William Fox, Jr., John James Clock, sworn this day.

"Resolved, That if any disputes, trespasses, or other misdemeanors, in civil matters, should arise among neighbours, freeholders, inhabitants and residents within our County, the same shall be determined and decided by three Members of the Committee of such District where the case shall exist, but if the Members are too distant, then by one of the Committee, and a jury of six freeholders, chosen by the parties themselves, or, if the parties cannot agree, chosen by said Member of the Committee, within such District, where the disputes and disorders arose—the case not exceeding five Pounds, New-York currency.

"Resolved, That the damages and forfeitures, as well as the costs of suit by such trials, shall be recovered by distraining goods and chattels, in manner as provided in the acts of Assembly; but in want of goods and chattels, the transgressor shall be brought before the Committee of his District, where and by whom he shall be sentenced."

"A true copy: JOHN EISENLORD, Committee Clerk."

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of Tryon County was read and approved of, in the words following, viz:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your letter of the 26th ult., together with the enclosed resolves, and list of the officers of the Militia in your County, agreeable to which we shall expedite commissions for those officers. By the directions of the Continental Congress, two Majors and a Quartermaster are to be appointed to each Regiment or Battalion. As you have only recommended one to each of your Battalions, and no Quartermaster, you will therefore with all convenient speed recommend to us four additional Majors and Quartermasters.

The Congress of this Colony have hitherto avoided interfering in the administration of justice in civil matters, or arresting the cognizance from the officers of justice; we cannot, therefore, approve of the resolve by you entered into respecting the trial of civil causes in your County, and find it highly expedient to recommend to you its repeal.

We are, Gentlemen, your humble servants.

By order of the Committee of Safety.

To Nicholas Herckheimer, Chairman, and the Committee of Tryon County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Ordered, That the Chairman and Deputy Chairman of the General Committee of the City and County of New-York be requested to cause an account of all the Moneys borrowed by them for the use of this Colony to be laid before this Committee, together with an account of the manner in which the several sums have been disposed of.

The Committee having ordered the Commanding Officer at the Barracks to cause the following persons, viz: Daniel Rivers, Abraham Freligh, Henry Acker, and Peter Dop, all taken on board the Sloop seized last Sunday, by Colonel Lasher, to be brought before this Committee to be examined; also, James Hicks and Thomas Carnes, who were taken by the City Guard last night, as they were landing from on board the Packet. Peter Dop, a lad of about fourteen years of age, was examined; Henry Acker, Abraham Freligh, and Daniel Rivers, were duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists, by Alderman Blagge, who came into the Committee for that purpose; and their examinations being taken in writing, they were discharged; and thereupon an order was made to Captain Beanman, requesting him to deliver one chest and one bed, belonging to him, which were taken out of a Sloop on last Sunday.

Ordered, That John Conner, now a prisoner in the Guard-Room in the Upper Barracks, be committed to the Jail set apart for the Prisoners of this Congress.

The Report of the Officer of the City Guard, who took James Hicks and Thomas Carnes, was read and filed.

James Hicks and Thomas Carnes, after they were examined by two of the Members, were ordered to be discharged.

A Letter from Samuel Van Vechten, dated the 17th ult., resigning his Warrant as a Lieutenant, was read and filed.

A Letter from Lieutenant-Colonel Cortlandt, of the 31st of August, was read and filed. He therein encloses Samuel Van Vechten's Warrant, returned, and requests some person may be appointed in his stead.

Die Mercurii, 4to ho. P. M., September 6, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Isaac Sears, Isaac Roosevelt, and James Beekman.

For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.

For ULSTER, Isaac Roosevelt.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III

For QUEEN's, Jonathan Lawrence.

For RICHMOND, Richard Lawrence.

For TRYON, Isaac Sears.

For CUMBERLAND, John Williams.

The Committee proceeded to the examination of other of the Prisoners taken on board the Sloop last Sunday, by Colonel Lasher.

Martin Simeon and Christian Deel were respectively examined, and after a severe reprimand from the Chair, and also particular advice from many of the Members, were respectively discharged.

A Letter from Samuel Bayard, Esq., Deputy Secretary of this Colony, was read and filed, and is in the words following, viz:

"New-York, Secretary's Office, September 6, 1775.

"SIR: I received the favour of your letter upon the subject of the publick records under my care, and am, with you, duly sensible of the great importance of them to the Province, and the fatal consequence to private property which would arise from their destruction.

"How far any such event may be probable at this time I cannot form any judgment; and you must be sensible, Sir, of the difficulty of my situation, when, if I should, in the exercise of my discretion, depart from the line of my duty, I might subject myself to very disagreeable consequences.

"Whenever the removal of the records is absolutely necessary, I shall not fail to continue my care of them, and hope my attention to their security will evince my desire to discharge the trust reposed in me with the strictest fidelity; and with respect to the place where they should in that case be deposited, I can only say, that as it is out of my power to tell from what quarter danger may arise, so it is impossible for me to assign any place where they will be free from danger.

"I have not the least preference for one place above another, but shall, at all times and at all places, use my best endeavours to preserve them from injury; and, that nothing on my part may be wanting, I shall provide proper boxes for the most important parts of the records, to be ready on any emergency.

"I am, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

"SAMUEL BAYARD, JR.

"To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq."

Ordered, That Mr. Bayard's Letter be deferred for further consideration.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., September 7, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Joseph Hallett, Mr. Abraham Brasher, Mr. Isaac Roosevelt, Mr. Isaac Sears, and Mr. John Morin Scott.

For ALBANY, Mr. Robert Yates.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For QUEEN's, Mr. Jonathan Lawrence.

For KING's, Mr. Polhemus and Mr. Henry Williams.

For CUMBERLAND, Major John Williams.

For RICHMOND, Mr. Lawrence.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Abraham Brasher.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Drake and Mr. William Paulding.

For ULSTER, Mr. Isaac Roosevelt.

For TRYON, Mr. Isaac Sears.

Mr. James Beekman brought into the Committee a Certificate, signed by Isaac Stoutenburgh, certifying that five hundred and twenty-two Muskets, belonging to the Corporation of this City, were taken out of the City-Hall, and twenty-eight Muskets left at Mr. Isaac Stoutenburgh's were also taken by sundry persons, at the time of receiving the account of Lexington battle. That each of the said Muskets, with their Accoutrements, were well worth three Pounds five Shillings. Also, that six iron Bullet Moulds were taken away at the same time.

A Letter from the Commissioners for erecting Fortifications in the Highlands, requesting the instructions of this Committee with regard to the plan and expense of the said Fortifications.

Mr. Bedlow, one of the Commissioners, attending at the door, was called in, and informed that it was the sense of this Committee to have a conference with the Commissioners and the Engineer, who is expected from Philadelphia, previous to the giving them any instructions.

The Committee having sent for the persons belonging to and taken on board the North River Sloop last Sunday, proceeded to their examination. After some time spent therein,

Ordered, That they be taken back to Jail, and there confined until farther orders.

Ordered, That the people called Quakers, residing in the City and County of New-York, be requested to deliver in to this Committee, without delay, a list of all the males belonging to their society, from the age of sixteen to sixty.

Ordered, That a copy of the foregoing Order be served on one or more of the most respectable of the society of people called Quakers.

A draught of a Commission to be given to the Officers of the Militia, Independent Companies, and Minute-Men, of this Colony, was read and approved, viz:

"In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, the . . . . day of . . . . , in the year of our Lord 1775.

"To . . . . ., Gentleman, greeting:

By virtue of the authority reposed in us by the Provincial Congress of the said Colony, we do hereby nominate authorize, constitute, and appoint you . . . . . of the . . . . ., hereby requiring you, before you enter into the exercise of your said office, to make in writing, and subscribe, in the presence of the Chairman of the Committee of the City, Town, District, or Precinct, wherein you reside, the declaration appointed and directed by the ninth section of the seventh resolve contained in the rules and orders for regulating the Militia of the Colony of New-York, recommended by the Provincial Congress the 22d day of August, 1775: and authorizing you fully to execute all the powers belonging to your said office, by virtue of the said rules and orders and the said declaration; and we do hereby require all persons under your command to pay due obedience to you, according to the said rules and orders, and such farther rules and orders as shall be made and recommended for the Militia of this Colony, by the present or any future Continental Congress, or Provincial Congress of this Colony."

Ordered, That one thousand copies thereof be immediately printed, for the use of this Committee.

The Committee then adjourned until four o'clock, this afternoon.

Thursday, four o'clock, P. M., September 7, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Isaac Roosevelt, Col. McDougall,

Mr. Hallett, Mr. Brasher, Mr. Isaac Sears, Mr. Scott.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. William Paulding.

For QUEEN'S, Mr. Jonathan Lawrence.

For RICHMOND, Mr. Richard Lawrence.

For KING'S, Mr. Polhemus.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Abraham Brasher.

For CUMBERLAND, Major John Williams.

For TRYON, Mr. Isaac Sears.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For ULSTER, Mr. Isaac Roosevelt.

Mr. Isaac Sears informed the Committee that, by an order from the General Committee, he had been, with several others, in quest of Captain Isaac L. Winn, who sailed in a Sloop bound to the eastward, and was suspected of a design of furnishing the Army and Navy with necessities. That they overtook the said Sloop above Hellgate, and that Captain Winn requested to be examined by this Committee. Whereupon, Mr. Scott and Mr. Livingston were appointed to examine Captain Winn, who reported that Captain Winn had given them such sufficient satisfaction of his friendly disposition to the liberties of America, as induced them to believe the suspicions against him to be entirely groundless.

Captain Winn informed the Committee that a paragraph had appeared in Mr. Holt's Journal of this day,* to his prejudice, and requested that a certificate be given to him, certifying the sense of this Committee with respect to his conduct. Thereupon, a certificate was prepared, read, and approved of, and ordered to be signed by the Chairman, and delivered to Captain Winn.†

Mr. Sears having brought into the Committee a number of Letters, taken from Captain Winn, and directed to Gentlemen of the Army, and others in Boston,

Ordered, That Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Sears be a Committee for opening and examining the said Letters, and that they report immediately.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Sears reported that they had examined the said Letters, and that they were all on private business; but that an anonymous Letter, directed to Major Moncrief, at Boston, which, from the handwriting and other circumstances, they believe to be wrote by Mr. Theophilact Bache, of this City, Merchant, which Letter being read and filed, is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, September 3, 1775.

"DEAR MAJOR: I wrote to you a few days ago, by the transport which sailed from hence. I hope you have received it. It is now decreed by the Congress criminal to speak, and as it would be equally so to write, not knowing into whose hands this may fall before it reaches you, I am determined not to transgress, as I wish to remain in the Country as long as I can, and not to do any thing that may cause a banishment, or the punishment of being sent to the mines of Simsbury, which are punishments daily inflicted on those poor culprits who are found or even supposed to be inimical. Don't think of returning here while this unhappy contest continues; you will be ferreted and exposed to insults I would wish you to avoid. I will take care of your wife as much as a brother or friend can do. She is well, and as happy as can be expected. I expect that she will lie in at Flatbush, as I think it would be dangerous to bring her to Town. The late firing of the Asia has been fatal to many women in her situation. The family join me in love to you; and believe me to be, dear Moncrief, yours.

"To Major Thomas Moncrief, Boston."

Mr. Beekman moved, seconded by Mr. Sears, that Mr. Bache be ordered to attend this Committee, to be examined respecting the said Letter. On which debates arose; and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, to wit:

* Yesterday afternoon, two Sloops, Captains Hollay and Hazard, from New-Fields or Pequanock, loaded with grain, flour, provisions, and live stock, came down the Sound to this City, and having no clearance or other necessary papers to produce, were taken into custody, on suspicion of being intended for Boston, or to fall into the hands of the men of war. In their defence they said, that the Committee of Fairfield knew of and did not disapprove their design; and that the reason of their want of a clearance, &c., was that they could not obtain them in Connecticut, by reason of an embargo there upon all vessels; and that they came to New-York to clear out.

The same evening, information was given by two sailors, that the Sloop Hannah, Captain Winn, lying here some time, but not entered, lately from the West-Indies, via Philadelphia, where it is said he was not allowed to enter, had just sailed with a West-India cargo for Boston. The Committee was immediately called, but we have not yet heard the result of their deliberations.

† In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, during the recess of } the Provincial Congress, September 7, 1775. }

Whereas the necessities of the times have rendered it prudent to detain Captain Isaac L. Winn and his vessel for examination, and whereas an article has been inserted in Mr. Holt's New-York Journal of this day, that may be prejudicial to Captain Winn's reputation,* it is hereby certified that, after full examination, this Committee is entirely satisfied that he still maintains his former well known friendly sentiments to the liberties of America; and that he is therefore fully and freely permitted to prosecute his intended voyage, without any interruption or molestation whatsoever; of which all the friends of America are requested to take due notice, and govern themselves towards him accordingly. By order: JOHN HARING, Chairman.

Attest:

ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

* As by the manner of expression in the above certificate, it may possibly be thought, by strangers to the transaction, that the article inserted by the printer in his paper was the ground of the suspicion raised against Captain Winn, and occasioned the pursuit, detention, and examination of him and his vessel; the printer, therefore, who thinks his reputation of as much importance, both publick and private, as Captain Winn's, finds it necessary to inform the publick that the information against Captain Winn was given by one or two sailors who had belonged to the vessel; and the circumstance of his risking a vessel, loaded with a West-India cargo, to Philadelphia, New-York, and Newport, when she was bound to London, and especially when it was notorious that the men of war in America usually detained all the vessels they met with loaded with West-India goods, gave credibility to the information, and strengthened the suspicion against Capt. Winn. Measures were taken to bring him and his vessel back, and they were actually in custody long before the printer had published the article above referred to, which was a simple short account of the affair, as it was publicly reported at the time; and surely he could not be blameable for mentioning in his paper a report which the Committee thought sufficiently credible to authorize their proceeding upon it; and as, after examination, it appeared to them that Captain Winn's character had received no blemish by the facts that had caused him to be suspected, neither could it be injured by mentioning those facts in a publick paper.—Holt.

For KING's, Mr. Williams, Mr. Polhemus.

For TRYON, Mr. Sears.

For ULSTER, Mr. Roosevelt.

For RICHMOND, Mr. Lawrence.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. James Beekman, Mr. Sears, Mr. Roosevelt.

Ordered, That Mr. Gabriel W. Ludlow deliver to Mr. Samuel Tudor one quarter-cask of Gunpowder, for the purpose of proving the brass Field-Pieces made by order of the Provincial Congress, and charge the same to this Committee.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay unto Lieutenant William Crane, of Captain Palmer's Company, in Colonel Holmes's Regiment, the sum of thirty Pounds, for the purpose of paying off the Billeting Money, and paying the men under his command, that he may be enabled to join his Regiment; and that the said William Crane do give a receipt to the said Peter Van Brugh Livingston, and an order on the Deputy Paymaster-General, for the repayment of the said sum.

Ordered, That Mr. Watkeys, Gunsmith, provide for William Marriner a Musket equal in value to and in lieu of the Musket lent to the Provincial Congress of this Colony by the said William Marriner, as a pattern Musket; and that the said Watkeys charge the same to this Committee or the Provincial Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Hallett be empowered to engage Mr. John Griffiths to go to the neighbourhood of Goshen, or any other part of this Colony, and examine into the nature of the Lead Mines there, and that he return and make report to this Committee with all convenient speed; and that this Committee will provide for the payment of his services.

A Memorial, signed by Peter Bogert, William Hardenbrook, Charles Phillips, Guilliam Varick, Andrew Bell, Theodore Hardenbrook, George Stanton, Isaac Mead, and William J. Ellsworth, the officers or foremen of the Firemen of the City of New-York, praying that they may be excused from being drawn out in the military service, except in case of a general attack, was read and filed.

Ordered, That a copy of a Resolution of the Provincial Congress, which exempts the Firemen from certain military duty, be served on one of the memorialists.

A Letter from William Smith, Chairman of the Committee of Suffolk County, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Suffolk County, August 31, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 25th of this instant we have received, wherein you recommend that we place two Companies of Minute-Men at Montauk, and one at or near Shelter-Island. There are no Companies of Minute-Men yet formed in this County; and, when formed, we on to be stationed at those places, as those persons at the are of opinion that such Companies cannot be prevailed east end of the County, who could be spared from their families, are already enlisted in the service of the Continent, and the western part of the County are unwilling that any persons should go from them, on account of the danger of the enemy and the people in an adjacent County. We are exceedingly sorry that we shall be unable to protect the stock at the east end from the ravages of our enemies, when the Troops are all gone from us. The stock is taken from Gardiner's and Plumb Islands. The hay on Gardiner's Island we judge will be of no service to General Gage, if they cannot get stock, as they took no more than just sufficient to keep the stock to Boston, and said they wanted no more. We beg leave to observe to you, that this County is under considerable disadvantages, on account of having no Post that rides through Long-Island, and should be exceedingly glad if a Post might be established, in such manner as your honourable House shall direct.

"We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servants.

"By order:

WILLIAM SMITH, Chairman.

"To the Honourable P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

Ordered, That the Prisoners now in Jail, and who were taken from on board the Sloop last Sunday, be brought to the bar of this Committee this afternoon.

The Committee adjourned until three o'clock, this afternoon.

Die Veneris, 3tia ho. P. M., September 8, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Joseph Hallett, Isaac Roosevelt, Isaac Sears, Abraham Brasher, James Beekman.

For ULSTER, Isaac Roosevelt.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

For KING's, Mr. Polhemus.

For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.

For TRYON, Mr. Sears.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For RICHMOND, Richard Lawrence.

For QUEEN's, Jonathan Lawrence.

A Letter from Joseph Johnson, an Indian Preacher, of the Mohegan Tribe, was read, setting forth his having been among the Western Indians, for the purpose of influencing them in favour of the cause of American liberty; that he is in necessitous circumstances, and praying some relief from this Committee; and that a Letter of safe conduct and Passport may be given to him.

Ordered, That a Passport and Letter of safe conduct be made and delivered to the said Joseph Johnson; and that an order be made on the Treasurer, for the sum of fifteen Pounds, to assist him to defray the expenses of his journey.

Ordered, That Colonel Lasher collect the Accounts of the expenses attending the watching for and taking of the Sloop from Dutchess County, which was lately taken near Speyt den Duyvel, and lay them before the Committee.

The Committee having, from the examinations of George Nicholson, good reasons to believe that George Bethune, now of Jamaica, in Queen's County, late of Boston, in Massachusetts-Bay, has been carrying on a correspondence with His Majesty's Army and Navy, against the liberties of America, Ordered, therefore, That the said George Bethune, with such Letters and Papers as may be found in his house, be taken and brought before this Committee; and that the method of taking him, and direction of that matter, be committed to Mr. Sears.

Mr. Roosevelt dissents.

The Committee adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Saturnii, 9 ho., September 9, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, James Beekman, Isaac Sears, Colonel McDougall.

For ULSTER, Isaac Roosevelt.

For SUFFOLK, Abraham Brasher.

For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.

For WESTCHESTER, William Paulding, Lewis Graham.

For KING'S, Mr. Polhemus, Henry Williams.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

For TRYON, Isaac Sears.

For QUEEN'S, Jonathan Lawrence.

It being represented to this Committee, that Mr. William Becker, a citizen of this City, is confined in irons, on board the Asia, Ship-of-War,

Ordered, That Messrs. Roosevelt and Beekman wait on his Worship the Mayor, and request him to demand the immediate discharge of the said William Becker, and to assure Captain Vandeput, that unless such discharge be immediately made, this Committee will take proper measures for resenting the indignity offered to this City, and the injury done to one of its inhabitants.

This Committee being informed that Abraham Lawrence, of Queen's County, was taken into custody some days ago, by some of the new levies, and is now confined in Jail, thereupon an order was made out to the Commanding Officer at the Upper Barracks, to cause the said Lawrence to be brought before this Committee.

A Letter from General Washington, dated at Cambridge, August 30th, requesting Ammunition, was read and filed.

David Hawley, Master of the Sloop Sally, and Aaron Jennings, Master of the Sloop Lady, who arrived here with their Vessels, laden from the Colony of Connecticut, bound for the West-Indies, finding it impracticable for them to proceed on their voyage, requested of this Committee a Passport for them and their Vessels to return to Connecticut.

Ordered, That Passports be given to the said Captains David Hawley and Aaron Jennings to return to the Colony of Connecticut with their Vessels, and that the Chairman do sign the same.

Abraham Lawrence, being brought to this Committee, was (after being reprimanded from the Chair) discharged.

A draught of a Letter to his Excellency General Washington, was read and approved of, and is in the words and figures following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 9, 1775. }

SIR: In the recess of the Provincial Congress, it is the duty of the Committee of Safety to answer your favour of the 30th ult., to our President. We perfectly agree with you, that the instances of collusion you mention are such instances of avarice, at such a time and in such a cause, as call for a severe scrutiny and exemplary punishment. Be assured, Sir, that we are vigilant for the discovery of such delinquents, and that those who may fall in our way will not escape their just deserts.

The gentleman who informed you of the arrival of a large quantity of powder, and five hundred stands of arms, perhaps did not know, that though they were landed on the east end of Long-Island, they were immediately transported to New-London, and did not belong to this Colony or any of its inhabitants. We have had, indeed, about thirty-six thousand weight of powder brought in, and before its arrival we had not a barrel in the Colony, except what was most sparingly distributed among the individuals. We deplore the situation of the Army under your command, and were our abilities equal to our wishes we should not fail to contribute to your immediate assistance and supply. We are heartily sorry that your poverty in the necessary article in question prevents you from availing yourself of the advantage of situation you have lately gained. But be assured, Sir, we have not powder enough for the necessary defence of this Colony, especially if any disaster should happen to General Schuyler, which would render it requisite to give additional strength and security to the northern parts of this Colony, the inhabitants of which, at this juncture, are most sparingly supplied with arms and ammunition. We shall immediately forward a copy of your letter to the Continental Congress, and write to them on the subject. The quantity of powder transported from Long-Island to New-London was eight tons, as we have been informed. Perhaps an application to that Colony might prove successful.

We are, Sir, most respectfully, your most obedient humble servants. By order.

His Excellency General Washington.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman pro tem., and, together with a copy of the Letter from General Washington, to be transmitted.

A draught of a Certificate to Robert C. Livingston was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
New-York, September 9, 1775. }

Robert C. Livingston, of this City, Esquire, several days ago informed this Committee of his intention to go to Britain for the recovery of his health, at present very much impaired. The Committee, firmly persuaded of his attachment to the liberties of this Country, approve of his intended voyage, wish him the restoration of his health, and a happy return to his native Country.

By order of the Committee.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and attested by the Secretaries, and delivered to Mr. Livingston.

The Committee adjourned till Monday afternoon, four o'clock.

Monday Afternoon, four o'clock, September 11, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment, but, for want of a sufficient number of Members, adjourned till tomorrow morning, at nine o'clock.

Tuesday Morning, nine o'clock, September 12, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Beekman, Colonel Lispnard, John Van Cortlandt, Mr. Scott.

For KING'S, Mr. Williams, Mr. Vanderbilt.

For QUEEN'S, Mr. Tom.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Livingston.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.

For ULSTER, Mr. Roosevelt.

For TRYON, Mr. Sears.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

The Committee proceeded to the examination of the Letters and Papers of George Bethune, Esq., who is now at the door, in custody of the persons employed by this Committee to seize his person and papers, agreeable to the order of this Committee of the 8th instant.

A Letter from Robert Donkin, Aid-de-Camp, of the 8th of October, 1775, directed to Colonel Cleveland, was read. He thereby directs Mr. Bethune may have liberty to go into the South Battery and mark his own ten pieces of Cannon, and that they may be placed in such order as he shall direct.

A Letter from Jocelyn Felthausen, Lieutenant, Twenty-Sixth Regiment, to Samuel Waterhouse, Esq., was read and filed. He therein applies for the purchase of a Horse and Sulky, for Mr. Stephens, of Amboy.

A Letter of the 11th August last, from Mr. Brimmer to George Bethune, was read.

A Letter of the 19th August last, from the said George Brimmer to the said George Bethune, was read. He therein mentions that Bills are at fifteen per cent. discount, and that he will transmit him a Bill of Exchange.

A copy of a Letter from the said George Bethune to Mr. Samuel Waterhouse, of the 8th of July last, was read. He therein mentioned that he is well settled at Jamaica, and that the whole Country are remarkable for their attachment to good government.

A copy of a Letter from George Bethune, of the 10th July last, to Mr. Samuel Prince, mentioning several Bills of Exchange, and that he had sent a Bill to Billy Simpson, to be negotiated, was read.

A copy of a Letter from George Bethune, of 27th July last, to Messrs. Lane, Son, & Frazer, of London, relating to Money in the publick funds, was read.

A Letter from George Bethune, to Messrs. Lane, Son, & Frazer, of the 12th May, 1775, was read.

Another Letter from George Bethune to Joseph Waldo, of the 14th May, 1775, was read and filed.

Mr. George Bethune being called in and heard, gave his promise parole on his honour to return and deliver himself up to the Congress of this Colony, or the Committee, on notice, when requested; and he is discharged for the present.

Major Ethrington, attending at the door, was called in. He produced a certificate of his parole of honour, as a gentleman and soldier, that he will not take arms for twelve months, or give any information to the Army or Navy; which was read.

Major Ethrington declared that he is going immediately to Philadelphia; thereupon, Major Ethrington was discharged.

Captain William Kelly, of the Second Battalion of His Majesty's Royal American Regiment, attending at the door, was brought in. He was asked if he would give the like obligations to this Committee, which Major Ethrington gave to the Committee at Philadelphia. Mr. Kelly agreed to give the like engagement, and deliver it in writing this afternoon, on which he is permitted to go at large till the afternoon.

Mr. Kelly delivered in his engagement, by him signed; which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"I, William Kelly, a Captain in the Second Battalion of His Majesty's Royal American Regiment, a prisoner in the power of the Committee of Safety for the Province of New-York, and being kindly treated and protected by them, and enlarged on parole, do hereby solemnly promise and engage, on the honour of a soldier and a gentleman, that I will not bear arms against the American United Colonies, in any manner whatever, for the space of twelve months, or until I may be exchanged; nor will I, during that time, take any measures to give intelligence to General Gage, or the British Ministry, or to any person or persons whatsoever, relative to American affairs; also, in case this my parole is not accepted in exchange for any officer of equal rank in the American service, who may be taken prisoner by the British Troops, I do hereby, in such case, on notice, promise to repair to and give myself up to the said Committee of Safety, as a prisoner.

"New-York, September 12, 1775." "WILLIAM KELLY."

A copy thereof, with a Certificate signed by the Chairman, was delivered to Captain Kelly; which Certificate is in the words following, to wit:

These are to certify to all persons to whom these presents may appear, that the above writing is a true copy of the parole of honour given by the bearer, Captain Kelly, of the Second Battalion of the Royal American Regiment, to the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York. It therefore is recommended to such persons, that the said Captain Kelly be permitted to pass where his business may lead him, without any hinderance or molestation. By order of the Committee of Safety.

New-York, September 12, 1775.

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates for the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, concerning George Bethune, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 12, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: Mr. George Bethune, a gentleman from the Town of Boston, has resided with his family in Queen's County, on Long-Island, since some time in May last. He has long been suspected as friendly to Ministerial measures. We have had him before us, but the evidence not being sufficiently full to enable us to proceed judicially against him, we have dismissed him for the present, upon his parole to be ready at our call, and given him leave to write to you for a certificate in his favour, if he can obtain it. We informed him also of our intention to write to you for his true political character, which we beg you will be pleased to give us without delay, as it may be the means of enabling us to deal properly with him, if we should think it necessary to summon him before us again.

We are, Gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient humble servants. By order.

To the Gentlemen Delegates in Congress for Massachusetts-Bay.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

A Proposal from James Byers, of this City, Brass-Founder, for making any number of Brass Field-Pieces for the use of this Colony, at the rate of four Shillings per pound, being read,

Resolved, That this Committee do agree with the said James Byers, to take of him such Brass Field-Pieces, six-pounders, and of good proof, to the number of five, as he shall make at the rate of four Shillings per pound, provided the weight of each piece does not exceed six hundred and fifty pounds.

Ordered, That the Captains Rutgers, Tudor, and Dennis, be requested to superintend the casting and proving of the said Field-Pieces.

Ordered, That the Doorkeeper wait on Mr. Theophilact Bache, and request him to attend this Committee without delay.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay unto Abraham P. Lott, Esq., or his order, the sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds, on account, towards defraying the expenses of removing the Cannon from this City to Kingsbridge.

Ordered, That Samuel Wells, Esquire, of Cumberland County, be requested to attend before this Committee of Safety, at five o'clock, this afternoon.

The Committee adjourned till four o'clock, this afternoon.

Tuesday, 4 ho. P. M., September 12, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Scott, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Colonel McDougall.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Foster.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Livingston.

For QUEEN'S, Mr. Tom, Mr. Lawrence.

For KING'S, Mr. Williams.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

For TRYON, Mr. Scars.

Samuel Wells, Esq., according to order, attending at the door, was called and examined: says that no Arms were sent to Cumberland County by Government; did hear that Governour Colden applied to General Gage for Arms, and heard the Arms came; but the affair at Lexington put an end to it. Of the one thousand Pounds granted for Cumberland County, two hundred Pounds of the money has been received. It was applied to reimburse the Sheriff and Mr. Gale the expense of themselves and the other prisoners and expresses. Heard the Arms were put on board of the Kingfisher; has forgot how he heard it, and does not know how they were disposed of.

A Letter from Gilbert Drake, Chairman of the Committee of Westchester, of the 11th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"White-Plains, September 11, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: None of the inhabitants of the Manor of Fordham or West-Farms having appeared to support the allegations of their petition, the consideration of which you referred to us, we have appointed a Sub-Committee to inquire into the matter, and report to us at our next meeting how they find the case circumstanced.

"Complaints having been made to this Committee, that an Independent Company is now forming in this County, and that the person who is most active about raising the Company expects a commission from the Committee of Safety this week, we are induced to request that no commissions for Independent Companies may be given out for this County, as it will make the raising of Minute Companies exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, and put the County into great confusion.

"We enclose you the affidavit of Mr. William Hadley, one of our Committee, a man of unblemished character, respecting the conduct of John Cock, who was chosen a Captain by the inhabitants of the Yonkers. Affidavits will also be forwarded, as soon as possible, of Mr. Cock's speaking very disrespectfully of the Congress.

"If the Committee of Safety are of opinion that it is improper to give Mr. Cock a commission, we submit whether it will not be necessary to acquaint those of our body who live in the Yonkers therewith, that they may proceed to a new election.

"We enclose a list of the Field-Officers nominated by the Committee of this County, which we beg leave to recommend to the Provincial Congress as persons properly qualified for the several places for which they are nominated.

"We are, Gentlemen, your most humble servants.

"By order of the Committee:

"GILBERT DRAKE, Chairman.

"To John Haring, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York."

An Affidavit of William Hadley, therein enclosed, was also read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"WESTCHESTER County, ss.

"William Hadley, of the said County, Yeoman, personally appeared before the Committee of Safety for the County abovesaid, and being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, saith, that he, the deponent, being appointed one of the Sub-Committee for the superintending the signing of the General Association of this Province, carried the same to one John Cock, of the Yonkers, in said County, and asked the said John Cock to sign the same. He, the said John Cock, taking the pen in his hand, uttered the following words, viz: 'I sign this with my hand, but not with my heart, for I would not have signed it, had it not been for my wife and family's sake;' and this he several times repeated, in the hearing of him, the deponent. And farther the said deponent saith not.

"WILLIAM HADLEY.

"Sworn the 11th of September, 1775, before me,
"GILBERT DRAKE."

A list of the Field-Officers for the different Regiments in Westchester County, sent in by the Committee of Westchester County in the said Letter, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Messrs. Jacobus Van Zandt, Henry Remsen, and Lewis Pintard, be a Committee to employ a Vessel, and despatch her with proper directions, to purchase Gunpowder and Arms; and Ordered, That those gentlemen be supplied with Four Thousand Pounds, by Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., Treasurer of the Congress of this Colony, for that purpose; and that a certified copy of this entry be a sufficient warrant to the said Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., Treasurer as aforesaid, to deliver to the gentlemen above named the sum of Four Thousand Pounds, for the purpose abovementioned.

Ordered, That Mr. Gabriel W. Ludlow be requested to deliver one hundred pounds of Gunpowder to Colonel Lasher, for the use of the Minute-Men of his Battalion, to be by Col. Lasher distributed and delivered to his Minute-Men gratis, in such quantities, and at such times when they are ordered on service, as Col. Lasher shall think necessary.

The Committee then adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., September 13, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Joseph Hallett, James Beckman, Isaac Sears, Isaac Roosevelt.

For ALBANY, Francis Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.

For TRYON, Isaac Sears.

For CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

A Letter from the Committee of Southampton and Easthampton, dated at Easthampton, on the 9th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Easthampton, September 9, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 25th of August we duly received, and note the contents. We would cheerfully comply with your request in respect to raising two Companies of Minute-Men for the defence of the stock at Montauk, but we think it entirely out of our power, as we are but a small number of people here, and a considerable part of our strength is already gone in the service. We have called a meeting of the Joint Committee of South and Easthampton this day, and have voted to call our Militia together in the Second Battalion, in order to enlist a Company, if possible, to send directly off to Montauk, as it is at present without even a soldier to guard it; and we are fearful we shall not have sufficient ammunition amongst us to fix out one Company; and should General Gage's Troops come upon us in this destitute condition, we shall be absolutely under the disagreeable necessity of complying with their terms. Therefore, gentlemen, we must beg the favour that we may have two Companies sent here as soon as possible. It is the opinion of General Wooster that we are in the most defenceless condition of any part of this Continent.

"By order of the Committee:

"DAVID PEIRSON, Chairman."

A draught of a Letter in answer to the Committees of Southampton and Easthampton was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

New-York, September 13, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 9th current, in behalf of the united Committees of East and Southampton, came to hand this morning; in answer to which we advise, that a number of men, not exceeding twenty-five, be placed upon Montauk, with orders to drive the cattle off, in case a fleet from Boston should arrive to rob at that end of the island again. We recommend it to you to be diligent in embodying your Minute-Men, that, should an attack be made upon any part of your County, they may be ready to march immediately. You will see, by the Regulations which the Congress have published for the Militia, that the Minute-Men, when called out to service, will be upon Continental pay. We can say nothing to you on the subject of ammunition, farther than we are not able to supply you with any. We are your humble servants.

By order of the Committee of Safety.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

William Ritchie requests permission from the Committee of Safety to employ a small Vessel, commanded by himself, in carrying Provisions and such articles as may be wanted at the Camp, from this Port, to be landed at Dartmouth, Sandwich, or Southport, as he may find most safe and convenient.

Ordered, That Mr. William Ritchie be at liberty to employ a small Vessel, commanded by himself, in conveying such articles (except Provisions) as may be wanted at the Camp at Cambridge, to be landed at Dartmouth, Sandwich, or such other port as he may find most safe and convenient.

A Letter from Capt. John Hulbert, dated at Southampton, on the 9th of September instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Southampton, September 9, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I would inform you that I marched with my Company from Montauk, the 7th instant; am preparing to march, and shall set off by the middle of next week. My Company will want a number of guns, as the inhabitants that supplied them will not let them go away, pleading the want of them themselves. I give you this timely notice, that the Company may not be detained long when we come to New-York, &c.

"I am, Gentlemen, your humble servant,

"JOHN HULBERT.

"Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq."

Ordered, That P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer, pay to Henry Roome three hundred and twenty-five Pounds for his account, as audited, for Pork bought by order of the Committee of the City of New-York, and forwarded to Ticonderoga.

Ordered, That General Wooster be requested to order a full Company of the Troops under his command to proceed to the Fortifications erecting on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands, to be there employed in erecting and guarding the same, in obedience to the order of the Continental Congress; and to be under the directions of the Agents appointed for that purpose by the Provincial Congress at New-York.

Adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., September 14, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For SUFFOLK, John Foster, John Sloss Hobart.

For TRYON, Isaac Sears.

For CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

Ordered, That Mr. Gabriel W. Ludlow deliver to Mr. Ebenezer Platt one hundred pounds of Gunpowder, for the use of the people in Suffolk County, on receiving the cash for the same.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay unto Messrs. Henry Remsen, Lewis Pintard, Thomas Marston, Jacobus Lefferts, and Gabriel W. Ludlow, or either of them, the Sub-Committee appointed by the General Committee of the City and County of New-York, for the purpose of borrowing Money for defraying the publick exigencies of this Colony, the sum of One Thousand Seven Hundred and Sixteen Pounds Three Shillings and Eight Pence, to enable the said Sub-Committee to discharge the Moneys borrowed of several of the inhabitants of the said City for the purpose aforesaid; and that the said Treasurer take a receipt from the said Sub-Committee, or either of them, for the same.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Congress of this Colony, pay to Mr. Robert Ray the sum of seventy-eight Pounds, to be applied to pay and discharge the Cartmen and others for carting Guns to Kingsbridge; that being the amount of an account now brought in audited, on which a copy of this Minute is entered.

A Letter from Richard Woodhull and Samuel Thompson, Committee-Men at Brookhaven, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Brookhaven, September 11, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN OF THE CONGRESS: We beg the favour of you to send us a few lines from under your hands, to let us know whether it is our business to attend to the choosing the non-commissioned officers by the Military Company, or whether it is the prerogative of the commissioned officers to appoint, from time to time, such persons as they shall think most proper to serve in the Militia as Sergeants, Corporals, Drummer, Fifer, and Clerk.

"RICHARD WOODHULL, } Committee-Men.
"SAMUEL THOMPSON, }

"To the Congress at New-York."

A draught of a Letter to Richard Woodhull and Samuel Thompson was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

New-York, September 14, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In answer to yours of the 11th current, we can only inform you that the Resolution of the Congress directs that all the officers of a Company, as well commissioned as non-commissioned, are to be chosen by the men who compose the Company. We are your humble servants,

By order of the Committee.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

The Resolutions of the Committee of Cambridge, Hoosack, and Bennington, on the 3d and 7th days of August last, were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"At a meeting of the Committee of the District of Cambridge, Hoosack, and Bennington, held at Mr. Waite's, in Wallumscock, on Thursday, the 3d of August, 1775:

"Voted, 1st. Chose Mr. Nathan Clark, Chairman.

"2d. Moses Robinson, Clerk.

"3d. Voted, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the Civil Law be continued as heretofore, and that they will do what they can to encourage the same, by assisting officers to officiate in their respective offices, as circumstances may call for, until the Continental or Provincial Congress shall see fit to advise otherwise.

"4th. To adjourn this meeting till Monday, the 7th of this instant, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to the house of Mr. John Rensselaer, in Sancoyock.

"Being met at the time appointed:

"1st. Chose Captain John Wood, Chairman.

"2d. Having taken into consideration the alarming affair that lately happened in this place, which occasioned the death of one man, and another wounded, we find that certain wicked and vicious persons, to gratify their revenge of a certain private quarrel, seduced others, under a pretence of defending the Country's liberty, to join them in night-walking, house-breaking, and assaulting men's persons in a violent manner; and on mature deliberation had on the premises, came to the following Resolutions:

"1st. That we disapprove and protest against all such unlawful assemblies on any such occasion, unless judged necessary by the major part of the Committee of the said Town or District.

"2d. That the Law have its full power against all such offenders, as heretofore.

"3d. That we will assist Magistrates and Constables in the due execution of their offices, as occasion may call for or require, until the sense of our Continental or Provincial Convention can be obtained, whose advice and direction in this important affair we most earnestly implore.

"4th. That if any person is suspected to be a Tory, or an enemy to his Country, they are to be complained of unto the Committee of the District or Town in which such person or persons may reside; and that said Committee cite said person or persons to come before them; and the complainant, also, is then to appear with his evidence for trial.

JOHN WOOD, Chairman.

"Sancoyock, August 7, 1775."

A Letter to the said Committee of Cambridge, Hoosack, and Bennington, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, during the recess of the Congress for the } Colony of New-York, September 14, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: We have received your Resolutions of the 3d and 7th of August, and are very glad to observe your determination to assist and support the Civil Magistrates in the execution of their offices. We are firmly persuaded that you will exert yourselves to prevent all unlawful riots, and protect all those who have signed the Association in their persons and properties, and the Courts in the full exercise of their powers in the administration of justice. We are, Gentlemen, your humble servants.

By order.

To the Committee of Cambridge, Hoosack, and Bennington.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

The Committee adjourned till four o'clock, in the afternoon.

Die Jovis, 4to ho. P. M., September 14, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment: Present: John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Joseph Hallett, James Beckman, Colonel McDougall, Jacobus Van Zandt.

For ALBANY, Francis Nicoll.

FOR DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.
 FOR RICHMOND, Aaron Cortelyou.
 FOR QUEEN'S, John Foster, John Sloss Hobart.
 FOR TRYON, Isaac Sears.
 FOR CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

Mr. Elias Nixon, of the City of New-York, Merchant, having occasion to go into Boston to obtain payment of Moneys due to him, has requested our permission to proceed there.

The Committee hereby signify their consent to Mr. Nixon's going to Boston; and the Committee being by several of their present Members well informed and assured that Mr. Nixon has, on all occasions, shown himself a warm and zealous friend to the liberties of his Country, and approved himself a good citizen, do recommend him accordingly.

The residue of this afternoon spent in considering and examining sundry Accounts on which the Committee of Accounts desired advice, and in filling up some Military Commissions.

The Committee adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., September 15, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Van Zandt, Colonel Lispenard, Colonel McDougall, Mr. John Van Cortlandt.

FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.
 FOR DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.
 FOR WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.
 FOR RICHMOND, Aaron Cortelyou.
 FOR KING'S, Henry Williams.
 FOR SUFFOLK, John Sloss Hobart.
 FOR CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

Ordered, That Adolph Waldron, at Brooklyn Ferry, deliver to John Cornell the Horse of the said Cornell, left at Mr. Waldron's stable by George Nicholson.

And Ordered, That the said John Cornell and George Nicholson attend on this Committee immediately.

Mr. John Griffith, by reason of the indisposition of his family, having declined going to view the Lead Mines, Ordered, That John McDonald be furnished with five Dollars, to enable him to proceed to Thomas Palmer's, at Newburgh, to examine the Lead Mines claimed by the said Palmer, or belonging to him, and report the value and state of said Mines to this Committee, and account to this Committee how the said money shall be expended, and pay the balance to this Committee, or their order, when demanded; and that a Letter be wrote to the said Thomas Palmer on that subject.

And Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., advance forty Shillings to the said John McDonald, and take his receipt for the same.

A draught of a Letter to the said Thomas Palmer was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
 September 15, 1775. }

SIR: We have been informed that you are proprietor of a lead mine, which you esteem valuable, and that you wanted a proper person to work, manage, and direct the same. In confidence that our information is true, we send to you the bearer, Mr. John McDonald, who came here well recommended as a good artist in lead mines, and a proper judge of the appearances and value of such mines. If your mine is valuable, and you should think fit to open and work it, we will contract with you for a considerable quantity, at such price as may be reasonable.

We are, Sir, your humble servants.

By order of the Committee.

Mr. Thomas Palmer.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman of the Committee, and transmitted.

John Cornell and George Nicholson, attending at the door, were called in and heard.

Ordered, That John Cornell's Horse be delivered to him, but that he shall not be entitled to any horse hire or pay for the use of his Horse.

And Agreed, That Mr. Waldron ought to be paid for keeping the said Horse; and that Mr. Henry Williams call on Mr. Waldron, and pay him, and bring in the account to this Committee.

Mr. Hobart moved, and was seconded by Mr. Henry Williams, that Commissions be immediately issued to Captain Anthony Rutgers's Company of Artillery. The question being put thereon, was carried in the negative.

Ordered, That Colonel Lasher be requested to cause a Return to be made and delivered to this Committee, of the Officers of his Battalion, with all convenient speed, in order to be commissioned.

A Letter from the Friends, or people usually called Quakers, was read and filed. They thereby allege that they cannot make a return to this Committee of all their males from sixteen to sixty, consistent with their religious principles.

Ordered, That the said Letter be reserved for the consideration of the Provincial Congress.

The Committee adjourned to four o'clock, in the afternoon.

Die Veneris, 4to ho. P. M., September 15, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. John Van Cortlandt, Mr. Beekman.

FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.
 FOR WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.
 FOR RICHMOND, Colonel Cortelyou.
 FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Hobart.
 FOR CUMBERLAND, Mr. William Williams.

The Committee unanimously agreed to consider their Order of the 12th instant, appointing a Committee to procure Gunpowder and Arms; and after some time spent therein, they agreed to continue the said Order, with the following amendments, to wit:

Ordered, That Messrs. Jacobus Van Zandt, Henry Remsen, and Lewis Pintard, be a Committee to employ a Vessel, and despatch her, with proper directions to purchase Gunpowder and Arms.

And Ordered, That those Gentlemen be supplied with Four Thousand Pounds, by Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., Treasurer of the Congress of this Colony, for that purpose.

And Ordered, That those Gentlemen give directions to purchase Muskets, and not more than seven hundred, if Powder can be obtained, and to invest the residue of the money in Gunpowder; and if Muskets are not to be obtained, then to lay out the whole money in Gunpowder; if no Gunpowder is to be had, that they direct the whole money to be laid out in Muskets; if neither Gunpowder nor Muskets are to be obtained, that they direct the whole money to be laid out in Saltpetre; if Saltpetre cannot be purchased, that they direct twenty tons of Lead to be purchased, and the residue of the money invested in two and one-half and three-point Blankets, fit for a Soldier to cover himself with and wrap himself in; and if Blankets cannot be procured, that they direct the money to be invested in such coarse Woollens as are fit for Soldiers' coats—the Cloths to be blue, brown, or drab colours.

And Ordered, That a certified copy of this entry be a sufficient warrant to the said Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer as aforesaid, to deliver to the Gentlemen before named the sum of Four Thousand Pounds, for the purposes abovementioned.

The Committee then resumed the consideration of their Resolve or Order of the 12th instant, for making of five Brass Field-Pieces; and after some time spent therein, and on examination of the accounts of the sundry charges of the Brass Gun already made, the Committee conceived four Shillings per pound too high a price for Brass Guns.

Ordered, That Mr. Van Zandt treat with James Byers on that subject.

George Nicholson having requested that this Committee might apply to Thomas Johnson, William Paca, and Samuel Chase, Esquires, Delegates from Maryland, for his character,

A draught of a Letter was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit :

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 15, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: A stranger, who calls himself Dr. George Nicholson, is now in this City. He has given some important intelligence, which has raised him some enemies here. He tells us, gentlemen, that you are acquainted with him, and he has requested us to write to you for his character. As we would choose to be well informed with respect to this gentleman's character, that his information may have its proper weight, we therefore pray you to let us know, by a line, his true political character, and what dependance we may have on his veracity.

We are, Gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee.

To Thomas Johnson, William Paca, and Samuel Chase, Esquires, Delegates from the Colony of Maryland, at Congress, Philadelphia.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman of the Committee, and transmitted.

The Committee adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., September 16, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment: Present:

John Haring, Esq., Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. McDougall, Mr. Roosevelt.

For ALBANY, Major Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For ULSTER, Isaac Roosevelt.

For RICHMOND, Colonel Cortelyou.

For KING'S, Henry Williams.

For SUFFOLK, John Foster, John Sloss Hobart.

For CHARLOTTE, David Watkins.

For CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius call on Captain Beauman, and receive from him five Small-Arms, which were taken from on board of the North River Sloop seized by Colonel Lasher; that he have them valued, and put in proper order for the use of the Troops raised by this Colony.

A Letter from Brigadier-General Wooster, of this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit :

"Camp at Harlem, September 15, 1775.

"SIR: I have before me the order of the Provincial Congress of the 13th instant, directing me to order a full Company of the Troops under my command to proceed to the Fortifications erecting on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands, to be employed there in erecting and guarding the same. In obedience to the order of the Continental Congress, &c., I have lately received instructions from General Washington, consistent with which I cannot disperse my Troops, unless ordered by him or the Continental Congress; therefore, think it necessary that the order of the Continental Congress, upon which yours is predicated, should be sent to me, before I can determine whether to order a Company to the Highlands or not. I have no objections to employing my Troops in any service that shall be judged of publick utility, consistent with my orders.

"I am, Sir, with truth and regard, your most obedient humble servant,

"DAVID WOOSTER.

"To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq.

A draught of a Letter to Brigadier-General Wooster was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit :

In Committee of Safety, during the recess of the Provincial } Congress, New-York, September 16, 1775. }

SIR: In answer to your favour of yesterday, we enclose you the order of the Continental Congress respecting the marching of the Troops under your command into this Colony, and the dispersion of them after their arrival; by which you will see that it was expected that those Troops should occupy such posts in the Colony as the Provincial Congress should judge necessary to be taken.

We are, with great respect, Sir, your most humble servants.

By order of the Committee of Safety.

To Brigadier-General Wooster.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and, together with a certified copy of the Resolutions of the Continental Congress of the 16th of June last, be delivered to the General's Secretary, now in waiting.

Whereas a great number of the men enlisted in the Continental service in this Colony are destitute of Arms, and, in order to carry into execution the Resolutions of the Continental Congress, it is absolutely necessary to have those Troops armed; and whereas every method to hire or purchase Arms, hitherto attempted, has failed to procure a sufficient number of Arms for the said Troops, and the only method remaining is to impress Arms for their use :

Resolved, therefore, That all such Arms as are fit for the use of the Troops raised in this Colony, which shall be found in the hands or custody of any person who has not signed the General Association in this Colony, shall be impressed for the use of the said Troops.

And Ordered, That the person or persons who shall have the charge of the carrying this Resolution into execution in each County, shall direct all the Arms, that shall be so impressed, to be collected at some place in the County where they are impressed, and there valued and appraised by three indifferent men of reputation of the County; any two of whom agreeing, shall be sufficient to ascertain the price. That an account be kept from whom every Musket, Gun, or Firelock, so impressed, shall have been taken, and each such Gun, Musket, or Firelock, caused to be marked with the initial letter of the name of the County where it is impressed, and numbered—the numbers follow each other successively; and that the same be entered in a book provided for that purpose, with the name of the owner opposite to the number marked on each Musket, Gun, or Firelock, respectively.

And Ordered, That a Certificate, specifying the value and the mark of the Musket, Gun, or Firelock, so impressed, appraised, and marked, shall be signed by the appraisers and impressers, which shall entitle the owner thereof to receive the appraised value from the Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony; provided the same be not returned at or before the conclusion of the present unhappy controversy between Great Britain and the United Colonies. And that an Account, signed by the said appraisers and impressers, of all such Muskets, Guns, and Firelocks, so impressed, shall be sent forthwith to the Secretaries of the Provincial Congress, or either of them, to be filed; and that all the Muskets, Guns, and Firelocks, so impressed, on Nassau-Island, be delivered, without delay, to Peter T. Curtenius, the Commissary of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, and those that shall be impressed in the other Counties of this Colony, to be deposited with their respective Committees, subject to the order of the said Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety.

And Ordered, That the said Captains of the respective Companies of the Third Regiment of the Troops of this Colony, who are now in Suffolk County, be authorized to carry these Resolutions into execution in Queen's County. That Col. Lasher be requested to send two or more Companies of his Battalion, to give such assistance in Queen's County as may be necessary, at such time, and to such place or places, as Colonel McDougall and John Sloss Hobart, Esq., shall direct or advise.

And Ordered, farther, That the Chairman of the Committee and Captain Dutcher, with such draughts from the Militia as he shall think necessary, or with the assistance of some of General Wooster's Troops, be enabled to carry the said Resolutions into effect in Westchester County; and that these Resolutions be carried into execution in every other County by the Chairman of the County Committee, with the assistance of the Militia Officers, who are hereby ordered to be aiding therein with such parts of the Militia as each such Chairman shall think necessary.

And Ordered, That the several persons who shall be disarmed by virtue of the above Resolutions, shall be exempted from doing duty in the Militia, as ordered by the Provincial Congress of this Colony.

And farther Ordered, That in case any of the Non-Associators aforesaid, shall resist those persons authorized to put these Resolutions into execution, they (the persons hereby authorized to put in execution the above Resolves) are hereby authorized to repel force by force, and to take into custody such person or persons, so resisting, and cause him or them to be brought before this Committee, or the Provincial Congress of this Colony.

The Committee adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Solis, 9 ho. A. M., September 17, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Colonel McDougall.
FOR ALBANY, Mr. Nicoll.
FOR DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.
FOR WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.
FOR KING'S, Mr. Henry Williams.
FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Foster.
FOR CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.
FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

The Chairman being absent, Mr. Henry Williams was chosen Chairman pro tempore.

Mr. William Remsen, of the City of New-York, Merchant, and Mr. John A. Remsen, of the said City, Merchant, each of them a Lieutenant in a Militia Company in this City, intending to proceed to Cambridge, applied for Certificates from this Committee. A draught of a Certificate for that purpose was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 17, 1775. }

To all to whom these presents shall come or may concern:

These are to certify that the bearer, Mr. John A. Remsen, of the City of New-York, Merchant, who intends to proceed as far as the camp at Cambridge, is a gentleman of good character and reputation, and lately elected an officer in one of the Militia Companies in the City of New-York, in pursuance of the regulations of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, and is esteemed a son of liberty among the friends to their Country in this place.

By order of the Committee.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and attested by one of the Secretaries, and delivered to the said John A. Remsen; and that another Certificate, mutatis mutandis, be made and signed by the Chairman, and attested by one of the Secretaries, and delivered to William Remsen.

A Letter from the Chairman of the Committee of Rombouts Precinct, in Dutchess County, and copies of sundry Certificates relating to Arms procured for the Troops raised in this Colony by the Committee of Dutchess County, were read and filed.

Ordered, That the same be postponed till to-morrow morning.

Return of Officers chosen for Beat No. 29, to wit: Captain, Sampson Benson; First Lieutenant, John Meyer; Second Lieutenant, John Sickles, Jun.; Ensign, Abraham Bussing—was read.

Ordered, That Commissions issue.

The Committee then adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Lunæ, 9 ho. A. M., September 18, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.
FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. John Van Cortlandt, Colonel McDougall.
FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.
FOR DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.
FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.
FOR KING'S, Mr. Henry Williams, Mr. Covenhoven.
FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster, Mr. Hobart.

FOR CUMBERLAND, Mr. William Williams.
FOR CHARLOTTE, David Watkins.

A Report of the Resolves of the Committee of Kingston, in Ulster County, of the 5th inst., and of the Report made thereon to the said Committee on the 6th inst., were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"At a meeting of the Committee of the Town of Kingston, on Tuesday, the 5th day of September, 1775:

"Mr. Egbert Dumond reported to this Committee that he was credibly informed that Christian Bergh, Jun.'s, Sloop, of Dutchess County, now lying near the east shore of Hudson's River, is now taking a freight on board, in order to supply the King's Troops or the Men of War now lying at New-York.

"Resolved, That it be recommended, and it is hereby accordingly recommended, that Captain John Elmendorph, with a sufficient number of men, belonging to his Company, or any other, go and take the said Sloop, and bring her to the landing of this Town, at the Roundout Creek.

"At a meeting of the Committee of the Town of Kingston, on Wednesday, the 6th day of September, 1775:

"Captain John Elmendorph reported to the Committee that he, and the men who went with him, had taken the abovesaid Sloop Sarah, of Christian Bergh, Junior, and brought her safe to the Esopus Landing, agreeable to the above Resolve; and also delivered an inventory of what they found on board the said Sloop, to wit: two anchors and two old cables; one old main sheet; one old main jib sheet; one small feather bed; three old blankets; one small fire tongs; one small iron pot and trammel; six ropes, belonging to her sheets, &c.; one small auger; one sheet block.

"Ordered, That the above Sloop be laid up, and that her rigging and goods, above specified, be under the care of Mr. Tunis Hoghteling, until such time as it shall be otherwise ordered by the Provincial Congress, the Committee of Safety, or this Committee; and that the above proceedings be transmitted to the Committee of Safety, now sitting at New-York.

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"JOSEPH GASHERIE, Clerk."

A Letter from the said Committee of Kingston, in Ulster County, covering their proceedings relating to Bergh's Sloop, was also read and filed.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of Kingston, in Ulster County, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, September 18, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Resolves of the Committee of Kingston, of 5th current, are before us. In answer to the letter accompanying the same Resolves, all we can say is, that as the evidence relating to the fact of Bergh's Sloop loading, or intending to load, to supply our enemies, must lie with you, we shall leave the matter entirely to your direction.

We are, Gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order.

Johannes Slegt, Chairman of Committee of Kingston.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

A Letter from General Wooster, of the 17th inst., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Camp at Harlem, September 17, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I received your favour of yesterday, enclosing the order of the Continental Congress, and say, in answer, the order was given the 16th June, which was before the Continental Forces were properly organized. Since that time, the Congress have ordered about two-thirds of my Troops to the northward; and should I divide the remaining few into detached parties, scattered about the country, and any disagreeable consequences should follow from it, (as my orders from General Washington are to be here,) it might, possibly, be difficult for me to vindicate my conduct.

"I have authority to say that no Provincial Congress can, with any propriety, interfere in the disposition of Continental Troops, much less control the orders of any General Officer. If the Continental Congress, or the Commander-in-Chief, think proper to employ the whole or a part of the Troops under my command in erecting and defending batteries at the Highlands, or elsewhere, I shall expect their orders direct, and no man will with greater alacrity obey the lawful summons.

"I am, Sir, with great respect, your most obedient humble servant,

"DAVID WOOSTER.

"To the Committee of Safety, New-York."

Ordered, That certified copies of all the Letters between General Wooster and this Committee, relative to his sending up an hundred of his men to assist in erecting the Fortifications in the Highlands, and a certified copy of the Resolve of the Continental Congress, and that a Letter be wrote to the Continental Congress on that subject.

Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius be desired to purchase, immediately, one hundred pair of Pistols and two hundred Cutlasses, and forward the same to Ticonderoga with all possible despatch.

The Petition of Daniel Dean and others, of Yonkers, praying that John Cock may be appointed their Captain, was read and filed.

The Committee adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

4 ho. P. M., Monday, September 18, 1775.

The following Members met pursuant to adjournment, viz:

John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Colonel McDougall.

For ALBANY, Major Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Foster.

For CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

No other Members appearing, and not having a sufficient number to form the Committee, they agreed to meet here to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock; and the afternoon was spent in filling up commissions for the Militia, and in examining the plans and estimate of the expenses of the Fortifications in the Highlands.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., September 19, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beckman, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Scott.

For ALBANY, Major Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For KING's, Mr. Henry Williams.

For QUEEN's, Colonel Blackwell.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster, Mr. Hobart.

For CUMBERLAND, Mr. Williams.

For CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

Ordered, That the following Captains in the Third Regiment, to wit: Daniel Griffin, John Hulbert, and John Grennell, do respectively send such Arms of their respective Companies, as need repairs, to the Gunsmiths in this City, to be repaired; and that each of the said Captains do sign an account, certifying the particular repairs made to each Gun, Musket, or Firelock, in their respective Companies, and send the same to this Committee of Safety, or deliver it to the respective Gunsmiths who shall have made such repairs.

A Letter from the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., of the 16th instant, received by express yesterday afternoon, covering a Commission for Colonel Flemming, and accompanying four hundred blank Commissions, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, September 16, 1775.

"SIR: Herewith I transmit you a commission for Mr. Flemming, Deputy Adjutant-General, with the rank of Colonel, agreeable to the recommendation of your Congress, which I have dated the day of his appointment. I also forward you four hundred commissions for the officers of your forces, under the command of General Schuyler, which you will please to have regularly filled up with the names of those gentlemen who were appointed by your Congress, and transmit them to General Schuyler, to be delivered them. You will observe they are not dated. You will please to supply the dates according to the time of the appointment of each, as their pay should commence from that time; and as I was not furnished with the list of the names nor the time, was obliged to give you the trouble of completing the commissions; you will please to acknowledge the receipt of them.

"I have nothing in charge from Congress to communicate; when I have, you shall be early acquainted therewith.

"I have the honour to be, with much esteem, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"Hon. P. V. B. Livingston, Esq., &c."

A draught of an answer to the Honourable John Hancock was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted by the express from Philadelphia, now in waiting.

The estimate of the expenses of erecting Fortifications in the Highlands, delivered in yesterday, P. M., by Bernard Romans, was read and filed.

A draught of a Letter to the honourable the Continental Congress, to cover three plans and estimate of the Fortifications erecting at the Highlands, and the copies of the correspondence between this Committee and General Wooster, on that subject, was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted with the copies there mentioned.

His Worship the Mayor of the City of New-York, attending at the door, was called in, and informed the Committee that his Excellency Governour Tryon sent for him yesterday, and informed him that he received a letter from Lord Dartmouth, informing him that orders had been given to the commanders of His Majesty's ships in America, that in case any more Troops should be raised, or any fortifications erected, or any of His Majesty's stores taken, that the commanders of the ships of war should consider such Cities or places in a state of rebellion.

A draught of a Letter to Beverly Robinson, Esq., was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, September 19, 1775.

SIR: By order of the Continental Congress, founded on the necessities of the present times, the Provincial Congress of this Colony has undertaken to erect a fortification on your land, opposite to the West Point, in the Highlands. As the Provincial Congress by no means intend to invade private property, this Committee, in their recess, have thought proper to request you to put a reasonable price upon the whole point of dry land or Island, called Martelaer's Rock Island; which price, if they approve of it, they are ready to pay you for it.

We are, Sir, your humble servants.

To Beverly Robinson, Esq., at his seat in the Highlands.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

The Affidavits of Isaac Green and George Hadley, sworn before Gilbert Drake on the 14th instant, were read and filed.

The said Affidavits prove that John Cock, lately elected Captain of a Company of Militia, at the Yonkers, in Westchester County, had damned the Provincial Congress of this Colony, and spoke disrespectfully of them. The Committee, considering these Affidavits, and the former Affidavit of George Hadley, and the Letter of the Committee from Westchester on that subject, are of opinion that it is very improper to give John Cock a commission, and that a new election should be held for the Officers of that Company.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the Committee of Yonkers was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, September 19, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Having considered your report, and also the report of your County Committee, concerning the election of John Cock as a Captain of the Company of Militia at Yonkers, we have determined him to be disqualified for a commission, not only because at the time of his signing the Association he declared it to be an involuntary act, but also because he has spoke most contemptuously of the Provincial Congress. And in order that the other officers in the Company may have a chance of promotion, which cannot be done according to the letter of the Militia regulations, you are hereby desired to cause a new election to be made of all the officers of the Company, pursuant to the said regulations, taking care to give publick notice that the said John Cock cannot be admitted to any office whatsoever.

We are, respectfully, Gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee of Safety.

To Frederick Van Cortlandt, Benjamin Drake, Stephen Sneden, Thomas Emmons, William Betts, and William Hadley, at Yonkers, Westchester.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

The Committee adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

Die Martis, 4 ho. P. M., September 19, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present :

For ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Scott, Mr. Beekman, Colonel McDougall.

For ALBANY, Major Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster, Mr. Hobart.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

Commissions were made and delivered for the following gentlemen, as Officers of the Company of Light-Horse in King's County, on Nassau-Island, to wit: Captain, Adolph Waldron; First Lieutenant, Rem A. Remsen; Second Lieutenant, William Boerum; Quartermasters, Thos. Everit and Jacob Sebring, Jun.

Pursuant to a Return of Elisha Mervin and Archibald Little, Inspectors, which is now filed, Commissions were made out and transmitted for the following gentlemen, as Officers for the Company of Minute-Men in the Precinct of Cornwall, in Orange County, to wit: Thomas Moffat, Esq., Captain; Seth Mervin, First Lieutenant; James Little, Second Lieutenant; and Nathan Strong, Ensign.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress, pay to Thomas Pettit, as Doorkeeper, twenty Pounds, and take his receipt for the same, on account of his pay as Doorkeeper of the Provincial Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Joseph Hallett apply to James Byers, and inform him that the Committee will agree with him for five Brass Field-Pieces, at the price of three Shillings and nine Pence per pound; each Field-Piece to be a six-pounder, and not to exceed six hundred and twenty pounds weight—Mr. Byers to run all risks, and to deliver the Field-Pieces well proved.

Ordered, That Messrs. John Sloss Hobart and Gilbert Livingston be a Sub-Committee to wait on his Excellency the Governour, to inform him that his Worship the Mayor signified to this Committee, this day, that his Excellency told him he had received a Letter from Lord Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, informing him that orders had been given to the Commanders of His Majesty's Ships in America, that in case any more Troops should be raised, or any Fortifications erected, or any of His Majesty's Stores taken, the Commanders of the Ships of War should consider such Cities or places in a state of rebellion, and to acquaint his Excellency that the terms of their information from Mr. Mayor are extremely ambiguous, and require an explanation; and that, therefore, his Excellency be requested by the said Sub-Committee to furnish this Committee with an extract of that part of Lord Dartmouth's Letter, and, in case he should not be willing to give such extract, that he would be pleased to furnish the said Sub-Committee with the exact purport of that part of the said Letter which relates to the above-mentioned subject.

The Committee adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., September 20, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

For ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beekman, Colonel McDougall.

For ALBANY, Major Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

For KING'S, Mr. Henry Williams.

For QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster and Mr. Hobart.

For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

For CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

Mr. Joseph Hallett reported that James Byers is ready to agree to make five Brass Field-Pieces, six-pounders, of good proof, and deliver them, at three Shillings nine Pence per pound.

Resolved, That this Committee does agree with James Byers for five Brass Field-Pieces, six-pounders, to be made of the best metal and full proof, at the rate of three Shillings nine Pence per pound, provided the weight of each Field-Piece does not exceed six hundred and twenty pounds.

And Ordered, That the Captains Rutgers, Tudor, and Dennis, be requested to superintend the proving the said Brass Field-Pieces.

A Letter from Walter Livingston, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General, at Albany, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, September 6, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I lately received a number of gun barrels, which were sent, by Major-General Schuyler's orders, from the garrisons above, to be stocked, locked, and made fit for the service. As many of them as could be repaired in this City and in Schenectady I have delivered to the armourers. One hundred and eighty are sent to Connecticut; the remainder were ordered to be sent to the Provincial Congress. They shall be sent down, and consigned to Mr. Peter T. Curtenius. Those repaired in this City and Schenectady I cannot, with propriety, pay for. I must therefore request the Congress will give orders for it. I know of no body to whom I can apply for that purpose; it being, in the General's opinion, a Provincial charge, ultimately to be paid by the associated Colonies.

"I am, Gentlemen, with great respect, your obedient humble servant,

WALTER LIVINGSTON,
Deputy Commissary-General.

"To the Provincial Congress.

"P. S. The number of barrels sent are two hundred and thirty-seven."

A Letter from the Committee of Tryon County, bearing date the 7th current, was read and filed. They thereby inform, that it would greatly oblige the freeholders of the County if his Excellency the Governour would be pleased to grant the Sheriff's Commission to John Frey, Esq., for the ensuing year; and they also complain of the insolence of about two hundred Highland settlers in that County.

An Affidavit of William Biddle was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Caughnawaga, May 24, 1775.

"Then personally appeared before me, the subscriber, being one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace in the County of Tryon, William Biddle, and then and there made solemn oath, on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that about the 17th of this instant, being in company with Alexander White, Sheriff of the County, that he profanely swore that he would protect and defend all slaves and negroes that would resort to him and put themselves under his protection.

"Sworn before me:

JOHN MARLATT, Esq."

Three of the Members of the Committee at Smithtown made a Return of the Militia Officers of the Company at Smithtown, and Commissions, bearing date the 13th current, were issued to them accordingly, to wit: To Philetus Smith, Captain; Edmund Smith, Jun., First Lieutenant; Daniel Tillotson, Second Lieutenant; and Richard Smith, Ensign.

The Committee adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., September 21, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.
FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beekman, Colonel McDougall.
FOR DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.
FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.
FOR ULSTER, Mr. Roosevelt.
FOR KING'S, Mr. Remsen.
FOR QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell.
FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Foster.
FOR CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.
FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

The Petition of David Purdy and John O'Connor was read, and is in the following words, to wit:

"New-York, September 20, 1775.

"To the Gentlemen of the Committee of Safety.

"The humble Petition of DAVID PURDY and JOHN O'CONNOR sheweth:

"That the said David Purdy and John O'Connor have been long confined, and have now nothing to subsist upon, and far from their friends; that they can have no help from them, and for want must now greatly suffer, or else live by the charity of charitable people. Your petitioners, therefore, pray that they might be brought to an examination soon; and said Purdy has a family, a wife and eight children, which have no subsistence only by the industry of said petitioner; and said O'Connor has been confined now these nine weeks, and knows not for what reason. Therefore your petitioners humbly pray that they may be heard and discharged.

"JOHN O'CONNOR,
"DAVID PURDY."

Ordered, That Col. McDougall direct John O'Connor, David Purdy, and Alexander Bell, to be brought before this Committee.

Ordered, That the Sloop Francis, William Ritchie, Master, belonging to Mr. William Lowther, bound for Edenton, in North-Carolina, be permitted to sail with her lading on board, as reported to this Committee.

Ordered, That Mr. Isaac Day be permitted to go on board of the Ship Asia, to deliver a Letter to Captain Van-deput.

Alexander Bell being called in and severely reprimanded for his past ill conduct and bad company, and charged to avoid such practices as are or may be deemed to be injurious to this Country or its liberties, on penalty of such punishment as he may deserve, was thereupon discharged.

David Purdy being called in and examined, was reprimanded for his conduct, and charged to conduct himself well for the time to come, and was discharged.

John O'Connor was examined, and recommitted till the afternoon.

The Committee adjourned to four o'clock, in the afternoon.

4to ho. P. M., September 21, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.
FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Beekman.
FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.
FOR DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.
FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.
FOR KING'S, Mr. Remsen.
FOR QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell,
FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.
FOR CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.
FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

John O'Connor being brought in and examined, says, that three Indians were hired to guide him through the woods; that he went with White to Montreal, to get some money of one Bennet, who went with Guy Johnson; that he knew Bennet went with Guy Johnson, and expected he was at Montreal; that he has a brother at Montreal; that he was the person who carried Sir John Johnson's letter to White, on a Sunday evening; that a negro of Sir John's went with him to White; that no person at Johnstown, or in Tryon County, ever asked him to sign the Association, or threatened him in any manner; that he did tell Sir John Johnson that he was threatened, and wanted to leave the place; that he told Sir John so to answer his own private ends; that Clement and Cone carried the provisions to White; that he never threatened Mr. Gilleland.

The said John O'Connor was thereupon discharged.

The Committee adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., September 22, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.
FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Beekman, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Brasher.
FOR ALBANY, Mr. Nicoll.
FOR DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.
FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.
FOR KING'S, Mr. Remsen, Mr. Williams.
FOR QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell.
FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.
FOR CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.
FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

Major Nicoll informed the Committee that the Commissioners for Indian Affairs, at Albany, having occasion for Gunpowder to make presents to the Indians, the Committee of Albany had, on application of the said Commissioners, spared to them the Gunpowder which was lately ordered for the County of Albany; and Major Nicoll informed, that Albany is entirely destitute of Powder:

Ordered, That two hundred weight of Gunpowder be supplied to Major Nicoll, or his order, from the Powder-Mill in Rhinebeck Precinct, to be delivered to the Committee of the City and County of Albany; and that the said Committee pay for the said Gunpowder, to the manufacturer thereof, at the rate of twenty Pounds per hundred.

A Letter to the Hon. Robert R. Livingston, Esq., was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 22, 1775. }

SIR: The Committee of Albany have spared their small supply of gunpowder to the Commissioners for Indian affairs, and earnestly requested of us an order for two hundred pounds. We have given an order for two hundred weight, on your mill, to Major Nicoll, or his order; the Committee of Albany are to pay for it, to you or your order.

We are, most respectfully, Sir, your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee.

To the Hon. Robert R. Livingston, Esquire, at his Seat, Manor Livingston.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Ordered, That the Brigantine Elliott, William Hallock Master, now nearly ready to put to sea, be permitted, and is hereby permitted to proceed on a whaling voyage.

A Letter of John Weatherhead, dated the 17th of September, put under cover, directed to this Committee, was read and filed. He therein mentions sundry reports which, he says, have been propagated, and are injurious to his character, and declares that said reports are not true.

A Certificate of Captain Vandeput, dated the 3d instant, certifying that John Weatherhead did not give him the intelligence that the Guns were to be removed from the Battery on the 23d ultimo, was read and filed.

A Letter from David Pye, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Clarkstown, September 21, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: By the bearer hereof, Mr. Fairchild, the Committee here have information that several of Captain Johnson's men have deserted, and some of them have already returned here. The Committee will be glad of your advice how to proceed in apprehending them, and sending them again to Albany; and if any provision will be made to defray the expense that will accrue in so doing. I have furnished the bearer with a horse, and you may furnish the Committee with an answer when he returns again.

"I am, Gentlemen, in behalf of the Committee, your humble servant,

DAVID PYE.

"To the Committee of Safety, New-York."

The Committee adjourned until to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., September 23, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:
 For NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Lispenard, Colonel McDougall.
 For ALBANY, Mr. Nicoll.
 For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.
 For KING'S, Mr. Henry Williams.
 For QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell.
 For SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.
 For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.
 For CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

The Chairman being absent, Colonel Blackwell was unanimously elected Chairman pro tempore.

A Letter from the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress, dated the 20th instant, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Mrs. Hingston, now residing at Hallet's Cove, on Nassau-Island, be permitted to depart this Colony, with her wearing apparel and household furniture, unmolested.

A Letter from the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress, dated the 20th instant, was read and filed.

A Letter from Thomas Johnson, Jun., Samuel Chase, and William Paca, Delegates for the Colony of Maryland, dated the 20th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, September 20, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: George Nicholson came a stranger into Annapolis, in Maryland, about two years ago, in the character, we believe, of a doctor, in a ship which imported servants. He remained in Annapolis and its neighbourhood till lately; he was amongst the first to enrol himself into a Company of Militia last winter, and has uniformly, as far as we have ever understood, expressed himself friendly to the cause of American liberty. As to his veracity or moral character, though he is personally known to each of us, neither of us know of any thing remarkable or particular on either side.

"We are, Gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servants,

"THOS. JOHNSON, JR.,

"SAMUEL CHASE,

"WILLIAM PACA.

"P. S. Be pleased to have the enclosed letter delivered by a safe hand; it is an answer to his to Mr. Johnson."

The Petition of Christian Bergh, Jun., Adam Bergh, David Dop, John Dop, and Timothy Doughty, praying to be discharged, was read and filed, and is in the following words, to wit:

"To the Gentlemen of the Committee of Safety.

"The humble Petition of CHRISTIAN BERGH, Jun., ADAM BERGH, DAVID DOP, JOHN DOP, and TIMOTHY DOUGHTY, sheweth:

"That the abovesaid petitioners have been confined almost these three weeks, upon their own expense, and their families at home being unable to maintain themselves, because of their infancy, and in consequence must suffer. Then their maintenance depends entirely upon your petitioners' industry, whereof you cannot be entirely unacquainted. We, your petitioners, have likewise understood that the gentlemen of the Committee have waited for evidence from our parts, to prove a crime against us. But we are sensible none cannot be brought in truth; and, besides, it seems to us, if there was any, they might have been here before now, for which reason we pray to be discharged.

"Supposing we had committed a crime against your resolves, it was before the resolves came in force, and we were likewise unacquainted of it; and, also, we think we have been sufficiently punished for it, according to your resolves; for the first offence is three months' imprisonment; and Dop's sloop they have burned, and Bergh's sloop the Esopus people fetched and sold at vendue, for the use of the Congress, as we have been credibly informed.

"New-York, September 22, 1775."

William Deane, of this City, about to proceed to Williamsburgh, in Virginia, applied to this Committee for a Certificate for himself and John Newport, his assistant; whereupon, a Certificate was given to him, in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
 September 23, 1775. }

To all to whom these presents shall come or may concern:

These are to certify, that William Deane, the bearer hereof, who is about to proceed to Williamsburgh, in Virginia, is a citizen of New-York, of good character and reputation; that he was the first who signed the General Association in this Colony; and that he is generally esteemed amongst us a son of liberty, and a friend to the rights of this Country. The said William Deane proposes also to take with him, as an assistant in his present business, James Newport, who is a clerk to Mr. Richard Deane, of this City, distiller.

By order of the Committee of Safety.

A draught of a Letter to the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., was read and approved.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

A Letter from David Pye, Esq., was read and filed.

Resolved, That any Soldier belonging to the Continental Army, who shall be absent from his corps in this Colony, without a furlough or discharge from the Commanding Officer of the Regiment or Company to which he belongs, shall be deemed a deserter. And the Committee of every County, City, Town, and Precinct, within this Colony, are hereby respectively directed to cause each and every such Soldier, who shall be found in their respective Districts, to be apprehended, and sent to his or their Regiment or Company. But if they cannot be informed to what Corps such Soldier belongs, they are to publish his name, and the place where he shall be apprehended, in the newspapers, to the end that the Captain from whom he deserted may be informed where he may be found; and the Committees abovementioned are also directed to transmit to the Congress, or the Committee of Safety of this Colony, without delay, an account of the expenses incurred in apprehending, securing, and sending such Soldier to his Corps.

Resolved, That if any person in this Colony shall knowingly harbour or conceal any Soldier, belonging to the Continental Army, without his having a furlough or discharge from his Commanding Officer, or neglect to inform the Committee of the District where he resides of the appearance of such Soldier in it, he shall be deemed and treated as an enemy to his Country, and be subject to pay all the expenses that shall accrue in apprehending and sending such Soldier to his Corps.

It being represented to this Committee, that Captain John Hulbert, of the Third Regiment of the Troops raised in this Colony, and Captain Daniel Griffin, of the said Regiment, with their respective subaltern officers, are all in the City of New-York, and unable to proceed to Ticonderoga, for want of money to defray their expenses,

Resolved and Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Captain John Hulbert thirty-seven Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence, for two months' pay, for himself, and John Davis and William Havens, his two subalterns, to enable them to proceed to Ticonderoga, or elsewhere, to join the Army under the command of General Schuyler; and that Mr.

Livingston take Captain Hulbert's receipt for the same sum, on account of pay.

And Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., pay to Captain Daniel Griffin the like sum of thirty-seven Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence, for two months' pay, for himself, and Benjamin Marvin and Nathaniel Norton, his subalterns, to enable them to proceed to join the Army aforesaid. And that Mr. Livingston take Captain Griffin's receipt for the same, on account of pay.

And Ordered, That Captain John Hulbert and Captain Daniel Griffin do respectively, without delay, give information, in writing, of the moneys by them respectively received, by virtue of this order, both to Colonel James Clinton, of the Third Regiment, and to Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., Esq., Deputy Paymaster-General.

The Committee adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Solis, 9 ho. A. M., September 24, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

As no business appeared so necessary as to require the Committee to go to business, they adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Lunæ, 9 ho. A. M., September 25, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beckman, Mr. Brasher.

For ALBANY, Mr. Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For ULSTER, Mr. Roosevelt.

For KING'S, Mr. Henry Williams.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. John Foster.

The Chairman being absent, Mr. Henry Williams was chosen Chairman pro tem.

Francis James, one of the Pilots sent out by order of the Congress, to observe any Fleet that might be approaching any part of this Colony, being returned, gave information that, on the 21st instant, they saw several Ships, which came out of Boston Harbour, steering westward; and the journal kept on board was delivered in and filed.

Thereupon, a Letter to the Committee of Easthampton and Southampton was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 25, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: One of our boats employed to watch the motions of the Fleet and Army at Boston is just arrived from the eastward, and informs us, that on the 21st instant, in the morning, off the harbour of Chatham, near Cape Cod, they saw a large ship of war standing to the westward, and about three hours after they saw four ships, one brig, and one schooner, all standing the same course, over the shoals. Our boatmen could not with any safety go near enough to make a perfect discovery, but we apprehend they are part of a fleet destined for Suffolk County, for the purpose of getting more stock. We give you this notice, to the end that you may be prepared to protect the stock, and prevent their being taken off, if possible. It is expected by this Board that all the Militia Officers, as well those in nomination as those in commission, will attentively obey and execute the orders of the Chairman of the Committee, and use all their influence in spurring the men in protecting the stock, and repelling by force any hostile acts of the Ministerial Army and Navy.

The Colony Troops raised in your County being ordered by the Continental Congress to join the Army to the northward, without any excuse or delay, you will therefore be under the necessity of acting with redoubled vigilance and resolution. Please send copies of this, by express, to the Committees of Southold and Shelter-Island.

We are, Gentlemen, yours, &c.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Southampton and Easthampton.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

A Letter from Robert Boyd, of the 23d instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-Windsor, September 23, 1775.

"SIR: Your favour of the 15th instant came safe to hand. Think the honourable Congress have reason to wonder that no samples of gun barrels, &c., are as yet produced. When I contracted, thought I would have had a number made before this time, but as yet cannot say I am altogether fixed; however, hope in a few days to furnish the Congress with some, and if can be conveniently spared, shall attend: at which time hope to give all the gentlemen satisfactory reasons why none have been produced sooner.

"I am, dear Sir, with all due obedience, your and the honourable Congress's most obedient humble servant,

"ROBERT BOYD, JR.

"Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt, Merchant, New-York."

The Petition of George Nicholson was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"To the honourable the Provincial Congress.

"The humble Petition of GEORGE NICHOLSON sheweth:

"That whereas your petitioner has done all that was in his power for the good of America, in the present struggle against tyranny and oppression, which your Honours are sensible was attended with great risk and expense; and your petitioner being resolved to render himself as serviceable as possible, takes this method to inform your Honours, that he has had experience, from a youth, both as a surgeon and an officer, having had the honour to be a Lieutenant in the Eighty-Fourth Regiment, commanded by Sir Eyre Coote, in the East-India service, and has been in several engagements; flatters himself he may be serviceable in the Army now under General Schuyler, not only from his military knowledge, but his being well versed in the French language; he would immediately go a volunteer, would his circumstances admit; but as it is not in his power, begs of your Honours, if there is any vacancy, and your Honours think he can be any way serviceable in any of the above capacities, that you would vouchsafe to employ him. But rather than be neuter in so glorious a cause, is willing to go a cadet, provided your Honours will favour him with such recommendations as you think be merits, and allow him a necessary support. Your petitioner begs your Honours will take this into consideration, and hopes that any place your Honours may think meet to intrust him with, he shall acquit himself with honour; and your petitioner will forever pray.

"GEORGE NICHOLSON.

"Committee of Safety, New-York.

"New-York, September 25, 1775."

The Petition of Timothy Doughty, John Dop, and others, dated this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, September 25, 1775.

"Gentlemen of the Committee of Safety:

"SIRS: Our petition of the 21st of this month, wherein was contained our grievances, we fear is not come to your hands, wherefore we take this opportunity to acquaint you, gentlemen, of our distress. We have already been confined three weeks, and the reason of it is, we hear, that you have sent for evidence to our parts, which we think is a sufficient time for such evidence to have been here, if there was any. Gentlemen, we beg you would consider our case as your own, and do by others as you would be done by, for therein a man fulfilleth the law of God. We will endeavour to set forth the unhappy condition we are in, confined to a room, which indeed we think a great hardship; spending our money at a great rate, more than our ability will allow; deprived from our business and our families, and our children are not yet capable of maintaining themselves; there are no less than twenty-one children belonging to three of us here confined, and the eldest not exceeding twelve years. Besides, the Esopus people have took Christian and Adam Bergh's sloop from their landing, and, as we are credibly informed, have sold her for the use of the Congress, and God knows whether they have not stripped their families of all; Dop's sloop is burned, with a great many of our wearing apparel; all which has been done before we are brought to trial, and before it is known whether we are guilty of any crime; and, farther, we all have taken very bad colds. If the witnesses have not yet come, we beg you would bring us before you as soon as these shall come to your hands; possibly we may give you satisfaction ourselves.

"From your humble servants,

"CHRISTIAN BERGH, JR., ADAM BERGH,
"TIMOTHY DOUGHTY, DAVID DOP.

"JOHN DOP,

"To the Committee of Safety at New-York."

A Letter from Ebenezer Hazard, dated this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, September 25, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: The importunity of the Eastern post-riders obliges me to take the liberty of reminding you of their accounts, and praying your attention to them. These persons were accustomed to punctual payment while in the service of the other office, which leads them to expect it now; and, indeed, the narrowness of their circumstances is such, that if they are not paid very soon they will be unable to continue riding, and be obliged, through dire necessity, to quit the service.

"I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,
EBENEZER HAZARD.

"The Honourable the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York."

The Committee adjourned until three o'clock, in the afternoon.

3 ho. P. M., September 25, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

For ORANGE COUNTY, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Verplanck, Mr. Brasher, Mr. McDougall.

For ALBANY, Mr. Nicoll.

For ULSTER, Mr. Roosevelt.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

Abraham Skinner informed the Committee that the persons sent to Jamaica had collected a few Arms; that he saw several people in Queen's County mustering and in arms, and apprehends that those gentlemen will meet with opposition; and that they wish to have a Battalion sent up from New-York, to their assistance.

Colonel McDougall showed his directions to Colonel Lasher, with relation to sending his Troops to Queen's County; which were read; and Colonel McDougall requested the direction of the Committee, whether he should deliver those instructions.

A difference of sentiment appearing, as to the advice to be given by the Committee, the question was put, whether Colonel McDougall shall deliver the said orders to Colonel Lasher.

For the Affirmative.

2 Dutchess,

2 Suffolk,

4 New-York.

8

For the Negative.

3 Albany,

2 Ulster.

The Committee therefore advised Colonel McDougall to carry the Resolution of the Committee of Safety into execution; but that he defer the sending over Colonel Lasher's Battalion until the Committee hear further advice from Major Williams, and the gentlemen sent to Queen's County.

And Ordered, That Mr. Benson, one of the Secretaries, proceed to Jamaica, to know the true state of the proceedings of the gentlemen who are there to collect Arms.

The Committee then adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., September 26, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

For ORANGE, John Haring, Esquire, Chairman.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Thomas Smith, Mr. John Van Cortlandt, Mr. Richard Yates.

For ALBANY, Mr. Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For KING's, Mr. Henry Williams.

For SUFFOLK, John Foster.

For CUMBERLAND, Mr. Williams.

For CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

Mr. Benson returned from Jamaica, reported that he had seen Major Williams, and the other gentlemen at Jamaica; that to prevent mistakes, he had obtained the report of Major Williams in writing; which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Jamaica, September 25, ten o'clock, P. M.

"SIR: I have endeavoured, in the Towns of Jamaica and Hempstead, to carry the resolutions of the Congress into execution, but without the assistance of the Battalion shall not be able to do it to any good purpose. The people conceal all their arms that are of any value; many declare they know nothing about the Congress, nor do they care any thing for the orders of the Congress; and say that they would sooner lose their lives, than give up their arms, and that they would blow any man's brains out that should attempt to take them from them.

"We find there are a number of arms, that belong to the County, in the hands of the people; some persons are so hardy and daring as to go into the houses of those that are friendly, and take away by force those County arms, that our friends have received from the clerk of the County. We are told that the people have been collecting together, and parading in sundry places, armed, and firing their muskets by way of bravado.

"We also have it from good authority, that Governour Colden yesterday sent his servant round to some of the leading people, advising and directing them to arms, and defend themselves, and not deliver their arms, in consequence of which, a number of people collected themselves this morning to retake the few arms we collected yesterday; for some reason did not proceed.

"Captain Hulet, of Hempstead, told us he had his Company together last Sunday, and said, had your Battalion appeared, they should have warmed their sides.

"On the whole, had we the Battalion, we believe we should be able to collect a very considerable number of good arms, and support the honour of the Congress, but without it shall not; and think that if the Battalion is sent up, the sooner the better.

"Some of the leading men of Hempstead, whom we this day had together, proposed to call the Town together on Monday next, and consult on the matter, and return some answer or other on Tuesday next, and seemed desirous to put off the matter till the whole Congress met. Whether they mean, by this put off, to gain time to arm and prepare, or what else, we know not.

"I am, Sir, your humble servant,

"WILLIAM WILLIAMS."

On reading the above Report of Major Williams, it is Resolved and Ordered, That the Committee appointed to collect Arms in Queen's County be desired to send to this Committee all the Arms already collected; and that they proceed in collecting all the Arms they can, and return with them to this City on or before Friday next. That Samuel Verplanck, Thomas Smith, David Clarkson, John Vanderbilt, and Benjamin Kissam, Esquires, be a Committee to proceed on Friday next to Queen's County, and use every prudent measure in their power to collect Arms in the said County; and that they attend a meeting of the inhabitants intended to be held at Hempstead on Monday next, and endeavour to prevail on them to comply with the former Resolutions of this Committee; and, also, that they report to this Committee or the Provincial Congress the names of all such as have or do oppose the measures of the Continental or Provincial Congress or of this Committee.

The Committee then adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., September 27, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

For ORANGE, John Haring, Esquire, Chairman.

For NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Thomas Smith, Mr. John Van Cortlandt, Colonel McDougall.

For ALBANY, Mr. Nicoll.

For DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.

For KING's, Mr. Williams, Mr. Vanderbilt.

For QUEEN's, Colonel Blackwell.

For SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.

For CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

A number of Letters, taken from on board of the Rhode-Island Packet, were brought into Committee. Several of them, which were directed to different persons of the Customs and to other persons, were opened and inspected, and nothing inimical to the Colonies being discovered, they were resealed, put into a wrapper, with an endorsement that they had been examined by the Committee of Safety, and, together with all the other Packets and Letters, returned to the Captain of the Packet.

Mr. Robert Rogers, commonly called Major Rogers, according to directions for that purpose, attended on the Committee. He assured the Committee that he was a prisoner on his parole of honour to the Committee of Safety at Philadelphia; that he received from the said Committee a certified copy of his parole, with a certificate thereto, signed by Benjamin Franklin, which he unfortunately lost; and Mr. Rogers declared to this Committee, upon his honour as a soldier and a gentleman, that he will not depart from this City, without leave of this Committee, until he shall have recovered the said certified copy of his parole, or another certified copy thereof, and produced the same to this Committee; and that, in the mean time, he will, on request, attend upon this Committee. Mr. Rogers informed the Committee that he lodges at Doctor Harrison's, in Broadway.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Jersey was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 27, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: We are informed that a number of men from your Colony, who enlisted in the Regiments raised in this Colony for the Continental service, have deserted, and are now lurking in New-Jersey. We submit it to your consideration, whether proper steps should not be taken to apprehend them, and whether it will not be proper for your Committee to adopt measures similar to those we have taken, for apprehending deserters, which are printed in the publick papers. We request that you would direct such deserters as may be taken in your Colony to be forwarded immediately to this City, that they may be sent to the Regiments to which they respectively belong.

We are your humble servants.

By order of the Committee.

The Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Jersey.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

The Committee sent for Mr. Watkeys, and had a conference with him in respect to the procuring Locks for Muskets; and the residue of the morning was spent in the preparing Continental and Provincial Commissions, and auditing accounts.

The Committee adjourned till to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., September 28, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:
FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Esquire, Chairman.
FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. John Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Van Zandt, Colonel McDougall.
FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.
FOR DUTCHESS, Mr. Gilbert Livingston.
FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.
FOR KING's, Mr. Henry Williams.
FOR QUEEN's, Colonel Blackwell, Mr. Joseph Robinson.
FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.
FOR CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.
FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

A Letter from Thaddeus Burr, Sheriff of Fairfield County, in the Colony of Connecticut, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fairfield, September 26, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: It is now thirteen weeks since Angus McDonald was committed to the jail in this place, as I suppose by your order, but of this I have no certainty, nor do I know where my jailer is to get his pay for boarding and attending upon him in close jail. If you mean to do it, I should be glad to know it. I think it very unreasonable that I should have the trouble of him any longer, considering you have very good jails in your City. I hope, therefore, you will take him off my hands. I have wrote to you twice, before this, concerning this man, and have had no answer. If I have none to this, shall dismiss him without any ceremony.

"I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
"THADDEUS BURR, Sheriff of Fairfield County.

"To the Committee of Safety, New-York."

Ordered, That Mr. Andrew Moodie be appointed, and is hereby appointed, Adjutant of the Third Regiment of Troops raised in this Colony, as part of the Continental Army, in the stead and place of Adam Schroter.

And Ordered, That the Pay of the said Andrew Moodie commence on Monday, the 25th instant, when he engaged in the service and left his other employment, and that he proceed to join the Army under the command of General Schuyler, with all possible despatch.

A Letter from Egbert Benson, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County, enclosing fifteen Affidavits sent as testimony against Timothy Doughty, Adam Bergh, Christian Bergh, Jun., and others, was read and filed.

The Affidavits enclosed in the said Letter were as follows.*

Ordered, That Samuel Avery, Foster Lewis, Christopher Duyckinck, Captain James Alner, and Henry Tiebout, be requested to attend this Committee to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock, to be examined on oath as to the particular persons who opposed their obtaining Arms in Queen's County, and the opposition given to them, and the insults offered to the Congress of this Colony, and by whom.

Mr. Berrien applied to the Committee with sundry Letters from the Commissioners at the Highlands, by which it appears they want labourers.

Ordered, That Mr. John Berrien be authorized to procure fifty able-bodied men, good labourers, at wages not exceeding fifty Shillings per month each, besides their provisions, to proceed immediately to assist in erecting the Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands; that he procure as many of them who have and will take arms with them, as he conveniently can. That he order and direct at least twelve carriage guns to be mounted there immediately, and provided with shot, carriages, rammers, sponges, and every other necessary for the use of the said guns.

And Ordered, That Mr. Gabriel W. Ludlow deliver to Mr. John Berrien two hundred weight of Gunpowder, for the use of the people at the said Fortifications.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay to Major Francis Nicoll the sum of forty-eight Shillings, to reimburse the said Major Nicoll for so much money advanced by him to a poor Indian, by order of this Committee.

The Committee adjourned till four o'clock, in the afternoon.

Die Jovis, 4 ho. P. M., September 28, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:
FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.
FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Brasher, Mr. John Van Cortlandt, Colonel McDougall.
FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.
FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.
FOR QUEEN's, Colonel Blackwell.
FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.
FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

A Letter from the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress, dated September 21, 1775, was read and filed.

A Letter from Samuel Bayard and others, dated 25th September, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Constitution Fort, Monday, September 25, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: We received last night a letter from Mr. Berrien, informing us that the plan for building the fortification, with the estimates of the expense, was transmitted to the Continental Congress. We should have esteemed ourselves happy, had we been consulted on this subject, before it had been sent forward. It was easy for one of our body to have waited upon the Committee of Safety, to have given them full satisfaction relative to the situation of the ground, which it is not possible for them to know by the plan. We conceive that an operation of this kind is intended for the defence of the Colony, and for the advantage of America in general. If we are right in our conjecture, Mr. Romans's plan is not sufficient; it will only be a temporary expedient, to prevent vessels going up the river; and should the fortification fall into the hands of the Ministerial Troops, it will prove the ruin of the Province. Therefore, it was not possible for him to give you any calculation relative to the whole expense, as it will be absolutely necessary to extend the works; and the place, we are convinced, may be made impregnable, and the expense not enormous.

"It appears to us that it would have been much better to have calculated the amount of what it would cost, than to be obliged hereafter to apply a second time to the Continental Congress. However, we submit our ideas to your judgment. It is our duty to be faithful to the important charge committed to our care, as we will not be answerable for measures we cannot conduct; therefore, request the favour of you, gentlemen, to inform us whether we are under Mr. Romans's direction, or whether he is obliged to consult with us upon the measures to be pursued. You cannot blame us for this request, as the safety, honour, and interest of our Country, and its future welfare, depend upon this important post.

"We think it our duty to give you a hint, which seems to merit your consideration, viz: Governor Tryon, Mr. William Bayard, and Major Bayard, have been up in our neighbourhood. His Excellency did not say any thing, but both the Bayards examined Captain Palmer, our Captain, with great scrutiny, in the presence of his Excellency, about the fortification, the nature of the ground, the state it was in, how many guns were mounted, and how many men watched. This happened on Saturday, at Haverstraw. We shall keep a look out, for we expect them near to us. Will it not be prudent that we should have a guard? The Minute-Men at New-Windsor want powder. They are ready to come to our assistance if they had it. We ought to have powder and shot for our guns, as we shall mount six this week, nine-pounders.

"We are, with respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

"SAMUEL BAYARD,
"WILLIAM BEDLOW,
"JOHN HANSON."

A Letter from Captain John Plenderleath, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, September 28, 1775.

"SIR: I arrived this day from England, and am sorry to find the country in its present unhappy state. That my arrival may not afford anxiety to any person, nor I be exposed to any inconvenience, I take the liberty to assure you that the purpose of my voyage is barely to visit my family, and not to act in any military capacity; and propose, when my leave of absence is out, to return to England. You will therefore do me the favour to declare the contents of this letter, in such a way as you think best, for preventing any trouble from the jealousies of the people, relating to, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

"JOHN PLENDERLEATH."

Ordered, That Monsieur N. Perree, Esq., an elderly gentleman, an invalid, now in New-York, who came from Guadaloupe for his health, be excused from serving on the night watch, and doing military duty in New-York.

A Letter from Doctor George Nicholson was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"September 28, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I waited on Doctor Treat, who advises me to go up a Cadet, by all means, in preference to Doctor's Mate; hope, gentlemen, you will favour me with commendatory letters to the Generals, which recommendations I shall endeavour to do honour to by my behaviour. I have likewise met an intimate friend, who promises, provided I go, to recommend me to Doctor Stringer, who I have some acquaintance with; and as he is head Surgeon to the Army, make no doubt that I shall be well received, provided you grant me an order. Colonel McDougall has consented to my going with Captain Johnson; I hope, therefore, you will grant my request, as I act from principle.

"I have the honour to be, Gentlemen, your humble servant,
GEORGE NICHOLSON.

"The Committee of Safety of New-York."

A Letter from Mr. William Powell was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, September 28, 1775.

"SIR: Being very desirous of my wife's inoculating for the small-pox, in order to put her out of danger of that fatal disorder in the natural way, (as I purpose, and my business calls me this fall amongst the West-India Islands,) but was informed that there had been a resolution of the honourable Congress of this Province, not to inoculate in it; but not being certain whether it extended to the whole or a part, I applied to Mr. J. Seares, in New-Haven, for better information, who told me he thought it only respected this City and County, and was in consequence of the Connecticut Forces being so near this City, and advised our going. Whereupon I hired a vessel, and carried with me my wife and four others, (ladies,) to Brookhaven, and applied to Doctor Muirson to inoculate them; he then turned to a resolution of your honourable Congress, of the 15th June last, which respected the whole Province, and told me he should by no means act contrary to them; but, taking my situation into consideration, and my wife's extreme dread of catching it the natural way, he thought it best for me to make application to you, with assurance of his utmost diligence and care of its not spreading, as his hospital is detached ten miles from the country road, and remote from any other house or road that can cause alarm; but as it has been suggested to me here, that it might cause uneasiness to the inhabitants, Doctor Muirson had not the least doubt but that it would be agreeable to them. Should that be any bar, I firmly promise to drop the thought of it, but hope that my prayer may be granted.

"I am, Sir, with great respect, your humble servant,
"WILLIAM POWELL.

"To Commissioner Haring, Esq, Chairman of the Honourable Committee of Safety."

On perusing the Resolve of the Congress of this Colony, against inoculation for the Small-Pox, the Committee informed Mr. Powell that they could not give any permission for that purpose.

The Committee then adjourned till nine o'clock, tomorrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., September 29, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

For ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.
For NEW-YORK, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. James Beekman, Mr. Verplanck, Mr. Kissam, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Smith.
For TRYON, Isaac Sears.
For CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.
For CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.
For ALBANY, Francis Nicoll.
For QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell, Mr. Robinson.
For DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.
For SUFFOLK, John Foster.
For WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.
For KING'S, Mr. Williams.

A Letter from Gilbert Drake, Chairman of the Committee of Westchester County, dated White Plains, September 29, 1775, enclosing an Affidavit of Eunice Purdy, of Rye, in the said County, whereby it appears that Godfrey Haines (who is sent down by the said Committee, under a guard, to this City) is guilty of having opposed the resolutions of Congress and Committees, and threatening the lives of several persons.

Ordered, That the said Godfrey Haines be sent back to the Committee of Westchester, under the care of the persons who brought him to this City; and that Mr. Paulding, a Deputy for the said County, be requested to write a Letter to the said Committee, informing them that it is the opinion of this Committee, that, agreeable to the resolutions of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, the County Committees are altogether competent for punishing and confining persons guilty of a breach of the said resolutions, or either of them.

Samuel Avery, Foster Lewis, Henry Tiebout, and Christopher Duyckinck, attending at the door, were called in and examined relating to the conduct of the people at Jamaica and Hempstead, at the time they went up for Arms. After some time spent therein, they were respectively directed to deliver their testimony, in writing, to-morrow morning.

Samuel Burling, by order of the Committee, was called in and charged with advising John Dunbar to refuse delivering one of the Colony Arms, in his custody, to the Committee sent to Jamaica for that purpose. Messrs. Foster Lewis and Samuel Avery, present, gave their testimony on that subject. Samuel Burling was heard what he had to say in his defence. Thereupon, Ordered, That the farther consideration thereof be deferred until the testimony of the witnesses, who attended this morning, is delivered in writing.

A Petition of Colonel Lasher, and a number of other gentlemen, Militia Officers in the City of New-York, was read and filed. They thereby pray that the Militia in this City may be ordered to train at least once a week for three months.

Mr. Bernard Romans, attending at the door, was admitted. He delivered in Proposals to contract for erecting the Fortifications begun on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands; which were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"I will propose to undertake that the whole work be done by me for five thousand Pounds, the ordnance only excepted; that I may have the whole management under my direction, and accept the work, already done, at the rate expressed in my own estimate, and the tools necessary already purchased at the cost; that the Commissioners only have the trouble of supervising my execution, and answering the orders I draw from time to time in favour of the workmen and furnishers of materials; and that one hundred and fifty or two hundred Pounds be advanced, to be applied to such incidental matters as are immediately wanted, and do not occur directly to the memory; and especially to furnish the people with articles they may want, as blankets, &c., and perhaps some small advance to encourage them to enter into the service."

Ordered, That the consideration of the said Proposals be postponed till to-morrow.

A Letter from Walter & Thomas Buchanan was read and filed. They inform that the Snow Georgia, Captain Bolton, is at Sandy Hook, where she has discharged forty passengers; that she is bound to Georgia; that on the 11th inst., in a gale, she had lost her mainmast, and all the sails and spars belonging thereto, and cannot proceed without repairs; and that the Captain has applied to them to furnish the necessaries, if agreeable to the Committee.

Ordered, That the Snow Georgia, Thomas Bolton, Master, be permitted to come up into the East River, at New-York, to be refitted in such manner that she may proceed again to sea; and that she be repaired under the inspection of such guard as may be put or ordered to be put on board by this Committee, at the expense and charge of the Master or Consignee of the said Snow.

The Committee adjourned until four o'clock in the afternoon.

Die Veneris, 4 ho. P. M., September 29, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Chairman.
FOR NEW-YORK, Colonel McDougall, Thomas Smith.
FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.
FOR DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.
FOR WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.
FOR QUEEN'S, Colonel Blackwell.
FOR SUFFOLK, John Foster.
FOR CUMBERLAND, William Williams.
FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

The Committee being informed that the Second Surgeon's Mate of the First Regiment, now at the Barracks, is ordered to join the Regiment to which he is appointed, and that there are several sick Soldiers at present in the Barracks, Ordered, That Doctor Treat be requested to take the care of the said sick Soldiers as soon as the Surgeon's Mate departs; and that Doctor Treat, from time to time, take care of any sick Soldiers in the Barracks, or such as may stand in need of a Surgeon or Physician, when they have no Surgeon or Surgeon's Mate present.

The Petition of Colonel Heyer was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"To the Honourable the Committee of Safety for the Colony of NEW-YORK:

"The Officers of the Battalion commanded by Colonel Heyer, in this City, with great deference, humbly beg leave to represent that experience points out to them a material imperfection in the act for regulating the Militia of this Province; they mean that article of their being subject to appear only once a month. The Associated Companies in this City are particularly affected thereby; many well-disciplined men, taking the advantage of the law, decline appearing in the Companies, which have been formed and trained with much trouble, and at a considerable expense to their officers. They would also take the liberty to suggest that the Militia cannot be disciplined, to any useful degree, unless the officers are directed to call the Companies out at least once a week, and each Battalion together once a month. This, they conceive, may very easily be done in the Cities and Towns of this Province; as to the dispersed Companies in the Counties, the case may be different. They doubt not but the attention of the honourable Committee will readily be paid to a matter which so nearly concerns the advantage and safety of this Province.

"Signed in behalf of the Officers of the Battalion:

"WILLIAM HEYER."

The Committee adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., September 30, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

John Haring, Esquire, Chairman, and Commissioner for Orange County.

FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Smith, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Bra-sher.

FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

FOR ALBANY, Major Nicoll.

FOR DUTCHESS, Mr. Livingston.

FOR QUEEN'S, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Lawrence.

FOR KING'S, Mr. Williams.

FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.

FOR CUMBERLAND, Major Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

FOR TRYON, Captain Sears.

It being represented to this Committee by Daniel Winter, the person who had the charge of conducting Godfrey Haines from Westchester County to this City, by order of the Committee of the said County, that the taking the said Godfrey Haines back will be attended with danger of his being rescued by persons inimical to the cause of liberty, the Committee thereupon reconsidered their order of yesterday, and resolved and ordered that the said Godfrey Haines be committed to the Jail in this City till farther order of this Committee or the Provincial Congress of this Colony.

George Nicholson having been on board the Asia, Ship-of-War, the Transport Ship, and other Vessels employed in the Ministerial service, for the purpose of procuring intelligence, and discovering the intentions of our enemies; and he having rendered himself useful and of service to the cause of American liberty, by his intelligence, Resolved and Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Congress of this Colony, pay to George Nicholson the sum of twenty Pounds, as a reward for his services and intelligence brought from on board the Asia, Man-of-War.

Mr. Andrew Moodie, appointed Adjutant of the Third Regiment, having given three Orders of one tenor and date, in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, September 30, 1775.

"SIR: Please to pay to Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, or his order, the sum of five Pounds per month, out of my pay as Adjutant to the Third Regiment of the New-York Forces, in the Army of the United Colonies, and charge the same to my account; this being the first order of this tenor and date.

“ANDREW MOODIE.

“To the Paymaster-General of the Continental Forces, his Deputy, or the Paymaster of the said Third Regiment.”

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Andrew Moodie, on account of pay, the sum of ten Pounds; and that the said Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., pay to Margaret Moodie, the wife of the said Andrew Moodie, five Pounds per month, as part of his pay as Adjutant of the Third Regiment, computing his pay to commence on the 25th instant; and that the said ten Pounds, now to be advanced to him, be considered as the advance, or five Pounds per month, hereby ordered, for two months.

And Ordered, That the Colonel, or whoever else shall be Paymaster of the said Third Regiment, take care to retain five Pounds per month, of the pay of the said Andrew Moodie, in such manner as that the same may be accounted for and repaid to the said Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq.; and that a copy of this Order be forwarded to the Colonel of the said Third Regiment, and that Andrew Moodie inform his Colonel of this Order.

Mr. Bernard Romans, attending at the door, was called in. The Committee conversed with him on the subject of his being an Engineer at the Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands; and Mr. Romans withdrew. After some time spent therein, Mr. Romans was called in, and the Chairman, by order of the Committee, informed Mr. Romans that the Committee would not contract with him for building the said Fortifications; that he should be paid for his services as an Engineer; that as the Continental Congress was sitting, and the Provincial Congress to meet in a few days, the Committee could not make any proposal of, or any answer to establishing him as an Engineer, during the unhappy controversy in America; but that if his merits in the present business should appear to be such as to recommend him, it would be an advantage to his reputation; and that, should the controversy unfortunately continue long, it was probable his future services might be wanted. That the Committee had been informed that twelve Shillings a day, sterling, and not twenty Shillings sterling, (as he alleged,) was the value of the pay and perquisites of an Engineer on the British establishment; but that the infancy and present circumstances of the Country will not admit of allowing pay equal to that given in old settled States. That the Committee could not encourage him to expect more than the pay of a Colonel in Continental Army, and that only for the present; but that this proposal shall not stand in the way of any better provision for him, if the Continental Congress should think proper to make any better; and that, as he stood in need of cash, he should have an order on the Treasurer of the Congress of this Colony for some money. Thereupon,

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Bernard Romans, as Engineer at the Fortifications in the Highlands, the sum of twenty Pounds on account.

A draught of a Letter to the Agents for erecting the Fortifications in the Highlands was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
September 30, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: We are favoured with yours of the 25th instant. In answer thereto, we beg leave to observe, that Mr. Romans was brought to assist in planning and directing the fortifications by your advice and request. The estimate and plans he delivered to us we sent to the Continental Congress, with a letter mentioning, that at least fifteen hundred Pounds, beyond the estimate, might be necessary for incidental charges, exclusive of cannon. Mr. Romans is now to proceed to you, and give you his best advice and assistance, as an engineer. The Congress of this Colony will meet next week; we also soon expect directions from the Continental Congress, and, in the mean time, we hope the works may be carried on with all your joint wisdom, advice, and assistance.

We are, Gentlemen, your very humble servants. By order of the Committee.

To Messrs. Samuel Bayard, William Bedlow, and John Hanson, at the Highlands.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Die Lunæ, October 2, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK, James Beekman, Richard Yates, Col. McDougall, Mr. Van Zandt.

FOR ALBANY, Francis Nicoll.

FOR DUTCHESS, Gilbert Livingston.

FOR WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.

FOR RICHMOND, Richard Lawrence, Colonel Cortelyou.

FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster.

FOR TRYON, Isaac Sears.

FOR CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE, David Watkins.

Thomas Henderson, attending at the door, was called in and examined, relating to the Snow Georgia; says, that Captain Cole and another gentleman, who came to this port with the said Captain Cole, informed him that a letter, for the Captain of the Asia, was sent on board of the Brig Juno, the vessel they were in, from the Snow Georgia; that a boat from the Asia afterwards came near, and then the letter was sent for on board of the Georgia; that soon after some trunks were taken out of the Snow Georgia, and sent off in the Asia's barge; that he, the examinant, has interrogated Captain Bolton, of the Snow Georgia, who, after some conversation, acknowledged that he had brought over a gentleman, who went from his vessel on board a boat from the Asia, with his baggage; and that Captain Bolton said that he believed that passenger belonged to the Army, and that he did not know his name.

Miss Janet Clark, being also examined, says, that she was a passenger in the Snow Georgia; that she understood that John Buchanan, Jun., of Greenock, was owner of the Snow; that she paid her passage to him; that from hearsay she understood that Walter & Thomas Buchanan were owners, but does not certainly know it; that a man-of-war's barge came on board of the Snow Georgia; that she did not see any passenger leave the Snow Georgia in that barge; she understood that John Buchanan, Junior, was owner of part of vessel and cargo; that a passenger came in the Snow, who was called Captain—his name is Thomas Peters; she supposes he is in the King's service; that Mr. Archibald Lunde and Mr. Spence were cabin passengers, and one Mr. Campbell and one Mr. Gordon, a parson; heard in Greenock that Mr. Lunde owned part of the cargo of the Snow Georgia, and that they were to be landed in Georgia; she understood that Spence was a merchant, and Mr. Campbell a lawyer.

A Letter from David Pye, Esq., of the 30th ultimo, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Charlestown, September 30, 1775.

“SIR: Enclosed is the account of the expenses attending the taking up deserters belonging to Captain Johnson's Company; the money, when paid, is best to be sent to the Committee, as it is to be paid to several persons; the pay of the Officers and Minute-Men is not charged that matter to be left to the Committee of Safety, or the Congress.

“Sir, your most humble servant,

“DAVID PYE.

“To John Haring, Esq.”

The Account of expenses of apprehending Deserters, therein enclosed, was also read and filed.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Colonel McDougall the sum of two hundred and seventy-seven Pounds one Shilling and nine Pence, to enable him to pay off the two Companies of the First Regiment, now here.

And Ordered, That the said Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer as aforesaid, pay to Colonel McDougall the farther sum of one hundred Pounds, to enable him to advance money, as part of their husbands' pay, to the wives of such soldiers of his Regiment as remain here, and have powers of attorney from their husbands.

The Committee adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., October 3, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR ORANGE, John Haring, Esq., Chairman; William Allison, Jesse Woodhull, Colonel Lent.

FOR NEW-YORK, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ALBANY, Abraham Yates, Peter Silvester, Henry Glenn.

FOR WESTCHESTER, William Paulding.

FOR RICHMOND, Col. Cortelyou, Mr. Richard Lawrence.

FOR KING'S, Mr. Henry Williams.

FOR SUFFOLK, John Foster, Mr. Tredwell.

FOR TRYON, Mr. Sears.

FOR CUMBERLAND, William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

Captain John Hamilton, from Liverpool, being called in, gave the following information, to wit: That he sailed from Liverpool the 8th of August last, and arrived here last night; says, that it was reported and believed at Liverpool, and that he saw it in the London papers, that thirty Battalions and four Squadrons of Dragoons, in all ten thousand men, were to embark at Embsen, for Boston; that a part of their baggage was already at Embsen; that some transports were already arrived at Embsen; that by the common report they were to sail the middle of August; that they were to be commanded by a General Officer of their own Country.

Extract of a Letter, dated Falmouth, July 26th, 1775:

"It is confidently said that ten thousand Hanoverians, and some Regiments from Great Britain, are to be sent out to Boston, as re-enforcement to General Gage's Army; that General Gage is to be recalled, at his own request, and Sir Jeffery Amherst is to succeed him."

Ordered, That a copy thereof, and also a copy of the extract of a Letter from Falmouth, be transmitted to the Continental Congress.

A Letter from Shearjashub Bourn, Chairman of the Committee of Inspection for Bristol, in the Colony of Rhode-Island, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Bristol, September 29, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: MESSRS. Charles De Wolf, Anthony De Wolf, Josiah Finney, and Stephen Smith, charterers of the Sloop Hannah, bound to New-York, informing us, the Committee of Inspection for Bristol, in the Colony of Rhode-Island, of their intention to purchase a load of flour, for the use of the inhabitants of this place, and requesting our approbation of their design, and a recommendatory letter from us to you, we, considering the great scarcity of flour in this Town, do approve of their undertaking as aforesaid, and recommend the said Charles De Wolf and Company as true friends to the liberty of America; and, from their well known firm attachment to the rights of their Country, we are confident to assure you, that if they obtain leave from you to purchase said load of flour, all possible care will be taken to convert it to the use aforesaid, and secure it from the piratical seizure of our common enemy.

"In the name of the Committee:

"SHEARJASHUB BOURN, Chairman.

"To the Committee of Inspection for the City of New-York."

Thereupon, an order for liberty to purchase one hundred and eighty barrels of Flour was delivered to Messrs. De Wolf, in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York, }
October 3, 1775. }

Ordered, That Messrs. Charles De Wolf and Anthony De Wolf, of Bristol, in the Colony of Rhode-Island, be permitted to load on board the Sloop Hannah one hundred and eighty barrels of Flour, for the use of the inhabitants of the said Town of Bristol; that the said Charles De Wolf and Anthony De Wolf take every precaution that the said Sloop, with her cargo, be not taken by any of the Armed Vessels employed by General Gage for the purpose of procuring Provisions for the use of the Army and Navy at

Boston; that the said Charles De Wolf and Anthony De Wolf stop at the Port of New-London, and take the advice of the Committee there, or at Stonington, whether it will be safe for them to proceed with the said Sloop and Cargo to Bristol.

Ordered, That the Committee at Albany be requested to have the Barracks or Hospital at Albany, or both, as the Committee shall think proper, repaired with all possible despatch, in the cheapest and least expensive manner, so as to make them fit for the reception of the Troops of the Continental Army; and that the said Committee be farther requested to direct such a quantity of Fire Wood to be procured, for the use of the said Barracks, as they shall think necessary; and that the said Committee send an account, with the most authentick vouchers, of the expense and disbursements occasioned by making such repairs and procuring Fire Wood, to the Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony, that the same may be audited and paid.

Captain Thomas Bolton, Master of the Snow Georgia, being at the door, was called in and examined. He produced the Register of the Snow: says, that the greatest part of the cargo belongs to the owners of the ship; that Archibald Lunde is on board, as a factor, and Spence, as he thinks, came out to take care of his own goods. Captain Bolton also produced a manifest of his cargo—that one Mr. Peters, from Glasgow, was a passenger on board of his vessel, and went on board of the Asia; that Peters is about twenty-six years of age; that he does not know his business. Captain Bolton also produced copies of the bills of lading and his instructions from his owners. Captain Bolton was ordered to withdraw.

After some time spent in consideration of the Papers and Information received about the Snow Georgia, Ordered, That Mr. Thomas Buchanan, Mr. Archibald Lunde, and Mr. Spence, attend this Committee, at three o'clock this afternoon; and that Mr. Thomas Buchanan be requested to bring with him the seven Letters mentioned in the list of Letters, from on board of the said Snow, directed to him and his partner.

The Committee adjourned until three o'clock, in the afternoon.

3 ho. P. M., October 3, 1775.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR NEW-YORK, Mr. Hallett, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Richard Yates.

FOR ALBANY, Mr. Abraham Yates, Junior, Mr. Silvester, Mr. Henry Glenn.

FOR WESTCHESTER, Mr. Paulding.

FOR ORANGE, Mr. Lent and Mr. Allison.

FOR RICHMOND, Mr. Paul Micheau, Colonel Cortelyou, Mr. Richard Lawrence.

FOR SUFFOLK, Mr. Foster, Mr. Tredwell.

FOR TRYON, Mr. Sears.

FOR CUMBERLAND, Mr. William Williams.

FOR CHARLOTTE, Mr. Watkins.

John Haring, Esq., Chairman, being absent, Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., was unanimously chosen and appointed Chairman.

Mr. Thomas Buchanan attended, with seven Letters to himself and company, and to the co-partners severally; six of them, at his request, were read publicly, and the other read by a Committee of two gentlemen.

Mr. Archibald Lunde, attending at the door, was called in and examined, and produced the Invoice of his Goods.

Declares that he does not know of any Gunpowder on board; that he knew Thomas Peters, a merchant in Virginia; that after the Asia's boat came to the vessel, he declared he was an Ensign in one of the Regiments at Boston.

Mr. Walter Spence, attending at the door, was called in and examined, and produced the Invoice of his Cargo; declared that he did not know of any Gunpowder on board.

A Letter from Walter Livingston, of the 24th ult., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, September 24, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: The enclosed for the Continental Congress I received this morning from Major-General Schuyler, requesting me to forward it to the Provincial Congress of New-York by some very safe hand, with an intention that it should be sent from thence in such manner as it may be least liable to miscarry. The General is extremely ill with a complication of disorders; notwithstanding every effort he has made to bear up against the severity of them, he was reduced to the distressing necessity of leaving the Army at the Isle-aux-Noix, and repairing to Ticonderoga, to try, if possible, to get a re-establishment of his health.

"I am, with due respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

"WALTER LIVINGSTON.

"To the Provincial Congress of New-York."

The Petition of Elizabeth White, wife of Alexander White, Sheriff of Tryon County, praying that her husband may be discharged from Albany Jail on his parole of honour, or be heard before the Committee of Albany, was read and filed, and is in the following words, to wit:

"To the Honourable Members of the Committee of Safety convened in the City of New-York during the recess of the Provincial Congress.

"The Petition of ELIZABETH WHITE, the wife of ALEXANDER WHITE, Esquire, High Sheriff of the County of TRYON, most humbly sheweth:

"That your Petitioner in the most respectful manner thus presents herself to this honourable Board, deeply distressed both in mind and circumstances from the misfortunes and unhappy confinement of her husband, the said Alexander White, in the jail of Albany, upwards of five weeks past: That the first cause of his confinement proceeded from a charge of expressing himself unbecomingly, and as an enemy to the liberties of America, and thereon had left his place of abode to go for Canada; whereas the cause, as your Petitioner humbly apprehends and has reasons to believe, was her husband's having arrested one John

Fonda by a lawful authority, whereupon great disturbances arose, insomuch that many shot were fired at your Petitioner's husband, who was greatly in danger of his life, and glad to get out of the way till the unhappy difference could be settled: That your Petitioner does not presume farther to enter into the particulars of any charge laid against her husband, but hopes they will appear false, and trusts that the members at this honourable Board will sympathize with the Petitioner's real distress, and grant this her earnest and humble prayer: That the said Alexander White, her truly unfortunate husband, may be discharged by the order of this honourable Board, upon his parole of honour not to act or do any thing that can give the least offence; or, otherwise, that this honourable Board will be pleased to refer whatever charge may be against her husband to the Committee at Albany, that he may, in the most convenient time, be heard thereon, in order to obtain his enlargement; or that this honourable Board will use such measures for the relief of the Petitioner and her husband, as in their humanity and tender consideration shall be thought expedient.

"And your Petitioner, as in humble duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

"ELIZABETH WHITE."

"City of New-York, October 2, 1775."

A Letter from Henry Wisner, Esquire, at Continental Congress, dated 28th September, enclosing the Articles of Agreement for the due regulation and government of the Associators in Pennsylvania, and also as to Saltpetre, was read and filed.

A Letter from Henry Wisner, Esquire, dated the 30th September, was also read and filed.

The Military Articles of Pennsylvania therein mentioned, and the reasons of the Associators against signing them, also therein mentioned, were respectively read and filed.

The Committee then adjourned.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN WILLIAMSBURG,
DATED NORFOLK, VIRGINIA, OCTOBER 1, 1775.

Yesterday came on shore about fifteen of the King's soldiers, and marched up to the printing office, out of which they took all the types and part of the press, and carried them on board the new ship Eilbeck, in presence, I suppose, of between two and three hundred spectators, without meeting with the least molestation; and upon the drums beating up and down the Town, there were only about thirty-five men to arms. They say they want to print a few papers themselves; that they looked upon the press not to be free, and had a mind to publish something in vindication of their own characters. But as they have only part of the press, and no ink as yet, it is out of their power to do any thing in the printing business. They have got neither of the compositors, but I understand there is a printer on board the Otter.

Mr. Cumming, the bookbinder, was pressed on board, but is admitted ashore at times. He says Captain Squire was very angry they did not get Mr. Holt, who happened to be in the house the whole time they were searching, but luckily made his escape, notwithstanding the office was guarded all round. Mr. Cumming also informs that the Captain says he will return every thing in safe order to the office, after he answers his ends, which, he says, will be in about three weeks. It was extremely melancholy to hear the cries of the women and children in the streets; most of the families are moving out of Town with the greatest expedition; the carts have been going all this day.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER AT ST. JOHN'S, DATED OCTOBER 1, 1775.

I will give you a short sketch of the different skirmishes we have had in this Northern Army. After we arrived at the Isle-aux-Noix, Colonel Waterbury with his Regiment proceeded down the Lake, and began an intrenchment at the distance of one mile and a half from St. John's, from whence he sent a small party into the woods, who were attacked by a number of Regulars and Indians. In this engagement, Colonel Waterbury had eight men killed and six wounded; on the side of the enemy, twelve killed and several wounded, chiefly Indians: Major Hobby wounded in this battle. After this encounter our people returned to the Isle-aux-Noix. In the next place, a party of five hundred set out in the night, to go by St. John's to Chambly. We proceeded as far as the aforesaid intrenchment, where we were attacked by the enemy, when a hot fire ensued for the space of six or eight minutes. At length the enemy fled, and we took possession of the intrenchment, where we tarried till morning; and as the Fort was alarmed, we thought it not safe to proceed, and so returned to our old encampment at the Isle-aux-Noix. In this engagement we had none either killed or wounded; the enemy, we are credibly informed, had eleven killed and three wounded.

September 16th, we again left the Isle-aux-Noix, in order to lay siege to St. John's. We had before sent a party of one hundred to Chambly, who, hearing that some Regulars were transporting provisions to St. John's, attacked them, took two prisoners and a considerable prize, and then began to fortify about two miles distant from St. John's, in order to cut off communications, expecting soon a re-enforcement from our Army. But being discovered by the enemy at St. John's, a party of two hundred Regulars sallied out with field-pieces, and our men, being but half their number, and poorly fortified, were obliged to retreat to the woods. In this action, Capt. John Watson, in Col. Hinman's Regiment, was badly wounded, but is like to recover. We were then on our march through the woods for their relief, but too late. When we came up to the place where the battle was fought, we found the enemy in possession of our breastwork. They gave us a very heavy fire, and then retreated back to the Fort. Col. Allen, with a party, hath since had a battle near Montreal, and is taken a prisoner, with fourteen more. We have shut up St. John's, and expect soon to be in possession of that place: we are constantly playing on them with our cannon and bombs. The Canadians are chiefly on our side. The Indians are for us.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON,
DATED QUEBEC, OCTOBER 1, 1775.

The Governour and Legislative Council of this Province have been assembled, but after several meetings have not been able to agree upon any ordinances. Monsieur St. Luke La Corne, and others of the Counsellors, would not hear of Juries, but insisted on following the letter of the Quebeck Act. The Governour suddenly broke up the Council, and set off for Montreal. On his way there, every attempt was made to induce the Canadians to join him. Arms for two thousand men were sent up by land, and ammunition in proportion, to arm those Canadians who should join him on the road; and reports came down to this place that he had not arms enough for the numbers that had joined him. But all this would not make the Canadians about Quebeck stir. At one time St. John's was said to be invested by five thousand Provincials; then it was said they were retired; then the River Chambly (that is, Richelieu or Sorel) was said to be full of them, and that they were sending circular letters about the country; then Montreal was said to be surrounded by them; in short, not a single report could be depended on. We, however, learnt at last that Jeremiah Duggan and young Livingston, who are settled on the River Chambly, (that is, Richelieu or Sorel,) had joined them with a hundred and fifty Canadians, and that he had nearly taken the Governour prisoner, as also Lord Pitt. And soon after, unexpectedly and all on a sudden, Lady Maria Carleton's passage was taken on board one of the vessels in the harbour, and she set off in two days, with her family, for England. The fortifications of this Town were ordered to be put into an immediate state of defence; a barrier-gate built on the hill which divides the upper Town of Quebeck from the lower; every avenue stockaded; several large vessels taken into the Governour's service, pierced, and mounted with cannon; an embargo laid on all shipping by Proclamation; the sailors taken to man the ships of war, and for other services, such as erecting batteries and the like; and Lord Pitt and others took their passage for England. This struck every one with amazement, as we did not know which way to look for the attack, every motion made by the Provincials being kept a secret from us. In this general apprehension, many fell to packing up their goods, others made preparations to move out of Town; some talked of making a good defence, others a good capitulation. However, just in the midst of this desponding situation (when the communication between St. John's and Montreal was cut off, and the enemies had appeared about La Prairie, and even at La Chine) the last post brought us news from Montreal, that Jeremiah Duggan had crossed the river at Long Point, with some of that banditti, and Colonel Allen at the head, and some Canadians, and had marched towards Montreal; but that the people of Montreal had by some chance received intelligence of their approach, and that thereupon the English inhabitants of that Town, with a few Canadians, had immediately turned out to oppose them; and that Major Campbell had headed the party, and that they had met with the others, and given them battle near Colonel Christie's farm. Duggan's people were pretty stiff, but the Canadians who were with them left them, and took to a barn. Our people, however, got the better, and took Allen prisoner, with thirty or forty of this banditti; but Duggan set off before the rout, and made his escape. Captain Cardon was wounded, and soon died of the wound; Alexander Patterson was wounded in the belly. Duggan had given his followers reason to expect that when they had crossed the river, all the Canadians would join them. He promised them one shilling three pence per diem, and the plunder. It is lamentable to think of the Province being thrown into this distracted state, with an entire stop to trade.

EXTRACT OF ANOTHER LETTER FROM QUEBECK, DATED
OCTOBER 1, 1775.

After the taking of Ticonderoga and Crown Point by the Provincials, by surprise, about May last, and the subsequent incursion into the Province, near St. John's, by a small party of the Provincials under one Allen, Governour Carleton, who was then at Montreal, sent forward all the Troops that he could spare, to intrench themselves at St. John's, in the strongest manner they could, under the direction of Mr. Marre, Engineer. He at the same time sent down to Quebeck for all the ship-carpenters that could be got; and a number of them went up, under the direction of Captain Zachary Thompson, to build vessels and craft to replace those that were lost upon Lake Champlain; and it was expected by every one, that they could be ready to be launched about the end of August; and that, if the Canadians could be raised, an expedition would be attempted to retake those forts. Upon this occasion, every invention that could be imagined was made use of to get the Canadians to rise; but the appointment of several officers that had formerly been in the pay of the French King, and of some very young men, mere striplings, to the command of the Militia, was so disagreeable to them, that none of them would enlist. They well remembered the treatment they had received from such gentry before the conquest, and therefore desired that Englishmen might be appointed to command them, and upon these youths threatening them to return with the soldiers to force them to a compliance, they rose in bodies of twelve and fifteen hundred men, armed with all kinds of instruments, and were determined to be cut to pieces rather than submit; and the Governour was obliged to appease them.

The two Frasers, Captain Nairne, and Captain Ecuyer, were employed to prevail on them to rise about and below the Town of Quebeck, but to no purpose; so fixed was the determination of neutrality throughout the Province.

Colonel Claus and Colonel Johnson arrived at Montreal, by the way of Oswego, with some Mohawk Indians, who, with some other Nations of Indians who had been sent for, and came down about the same time, made up the number of about fifteen hundred persons, men, women and children, of whom about three hundred were fighting men. Upon the arrival of these Indians, the Canadians were tried again, and sundry and terrible false alarms were spread. This occasioned some few of them to turn out as volunteers, with some Indians, to reconnoitre, and they fell in with other reconnoitring parties, and skirmishes ensued, which were magnified to an incredible degree. At last, some Indians, who had taken an empty batteau while the people were ashore, got wounded as they were getting away with it. That sickened them. However, they shot one of the party ashore, and then, waiting at some distance till the rest of the party were gone, they went ashore and cut his head off, and brought it to Montreal. By the papers in his pocket, it appeared to be Captain Baker. It was then reported, that he had instructions from General Schuyler to give no quarter to Canadians or Indians; but that appearing so impolitick, it was soon contradicted. Some time after, a skirmish happened, but the circumstances of the Canadians having taken arms was not true. At last, the Indians began to be troublesome, and were entirely useless.

The Governour, therefore, finding all his efforts to be in vain to enable him to fulfil his engagements, and give proof of his influence over the Canadians through his friends, the noblesse of the Province, was obliged to have recourse to the English, who had been represented as few in number, of little consequence, and not worthy of even the notice, and much less of the protection of Government.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE CAMP AT CAMBRIDGE,
OCTOBER 1, 1775.

We have just received an account, that Colonel Arnold had got safe fifty miles up the Kennebeck River, found all the batteaus ready, and proceeded six days ago, his men in good spirits, and with every encouragement. The Captain of this vessel says, if he gets to Quebeck before Carleton can get down from St. John's with the Troops, it will surrender without a shot being fired. That there is the greatest collection of arms and ammunition that has been in one place in America for a long time. He says, he saw not less than ten thousand quarter casks of powder in the magazine, and that there is all other ammunition in proportion.

The General has directed three vessels to be armed and manned, to intercept the transports daily arriving at Boston, with provisions, &c. The people of this Province, particularly on the coast, are much pleased with it, and we expect to derive no small advantage from it. There has been no movement in either camp here for several days, and scarcely a gun fired, except about five or six days ago, a cannon shot from our lines, passed through the barrack on Boston Neck, took off the leg of a Captain of the Forty-Fourth, which brought on a heavy firing from them for some time, but with no effect. Our lines are now extended very near, within point blank musket shot of their sentries. It is proposed to drive them quite within their lines, which may be easily done this week. Two deserters yesterday, but brought no news.

GENERAL GAGE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Boston, October 1, 1775.

MY LORD: I was honoured with your Lordship's separate letter of the 2d of August, on the 26th ultimo, in which you are pleased to inform me of the measures that are taken by His Majesty's command to re-enforce his Army in North-America, and to state certain questions concerning the operations the most advisable to be carried on. After taking these into consideration, it remains to give your Lordship my opinion thereupon, viz:

1st. Whether we should push the war with our whole force the next campaign on the side of New-England.

I am of opinion that no offensive operations can be carried on to advantage from Boston. On a supposition of a certainty of driving the Rebels from their intrenchments, no advantage would be gained but reputation; victory could not be improved, through the want of every necessary to march into the country. The loss of men would probably be great, and the Rebels be as numerous in a few days as before their defeat; besides, the country is remarkably strong, and adapted to their way of fighting.

2d. Whether, viewing the whole state of America, it would not be more advisable to make Hudson's River the seat of war, and for that purpose immediately take possession of the City of New-York with a part of our force, leaving at Boston what is necessary to secure that post, and keep up a diversion on that side.

It has always appeared to me most advisable to make Hudson's River the seat of war; its situation between the eastern and western Colonies is advantageous, besides being commodious in transporting the necessities of an Army. We are made to believe, also, that many friends in that Province would appear in arms, and the Troops receive many supplies they are in want of. A communication with Canada might be better secured from thence than any other part; and during the winter, when Troops cannot keep the field, attempts might be made upon the Southern Provinces, by embarking in the transports. I am, however, of opinion, that the force now in Boston cannot be divided, and is too weak to hold Boston and New-York at the same time.

3d. Whether, if it should be judged unsafe or unadvisable to take post at New-York, it may not be expedient to endeavour, with a part of the force under your command, embarked on board the transports, to make an impression on other places, which, if it answered no other purpose, would enable you to collect a large supply of live stock and provisions, which is no trifling object in your present circumstances.

It would undoubtedly be of great use to make impressions on several places, were there Troops sufficient to land in force, so as to be enabled to stand their ground. Small enterprises of the kind we have found beneficial in collecting live stock, and may be continued whenever transports are not otherwise employed.

And, lastly, whether, if neither of the two last propositions can be effected, and if even Boston should not be tenable in the winter without hazard, (as many here think,) it might not be advisable that your whole Army should be posted in proper divisions at Halifax and Quebeck, until the events of the winter shall point out the best place of operation in the spring.

I am of opinion that Boston will be tenable in the winter, without hazard.

Having answered your Lordship's questions, I will take the liberty to add, that it appears to me most necessary, for the prosecution of the war, to be in possession of some Province where you can be secured, and from whence you can draw supplies of provision and forage, and that New-York seems to be the most proper to answer those purposes. There the foundation of the war should be laid, by having Troops in force, large magazines of military stores of all kinds, and the whole well fortified and secured.

The possession of Boston occasions a considerable diversion of the enemy's force, and is so far of use; but is, at the same time, so open to attacks on many sides, that it requires a large body to defend it.

Castle William defends the channel, a circumstance of no use to us, but would be greatly prejudicial, should the Rebels find means to get that fortress in their hands; on which accounts, I have caused the sea-battery to be destroyed, and have ordered the fort to be mined, in order to be blown if the Troops should be ordered from Boston.

Could our Troops be numerous enough to multiply our attacks, my opinion is much in favour of seizing Rhode-Island. I conceive it to be easy defended, with the aid of a frigate or two, and a few small vessels of war; and is so situated as to have an easy communication with New-York, and from thence the whole coast of Connecticut, the north side of Long-Island, and the western parts of Massachusetts-Bay, may be attacked.

By letters lately from Halifax, Governour Legge informs me that upwards of four hundred persons have associated themselves there, in defence of Government. The Fowey, ship of war, is ordered there, and takes Lieutenant-Colonel Goreham, with some recruits of his own and Mr. McLean's corps, and two Companies of the Fourteenth, under convoy; so that I hope, with the Associators, a body will be formed of about six hundred men at Halifax, exclusive of the Somerset and Fowey, ships of war. I wrote there long since, about intrenching the heights above the dock yard and the Citadel-Hill, but have no account what has been done in it.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

THOMAS GAGE.

Salem, October 1, 1775.

When the civil and political rights of a free people have been daringly invaded, by open violence on one hand, and basely deserted and betrayed by treacherous friends on the other, against whom no prudence can guard, no courage can defend; when their indignation has increased in proportion to the wrongs they have suffered, and they are roused to resistance by repeated insults, their situation is really alarming. Every measure they pursue for obtaining peace and security is important, and may be fatal. Their vigorous exertions are marked with the opprobrious term of rebellion, and if they fail in the cause, their death will be doubly ignominious. There is such a period of difficulty and danger in the history of almost every nation. There may be such a one in the annals of this Country. Let us suppose it arrived. On one side the rights of the Colonies have been repeatedly, flagrantly violated. They have petitioned and remonstrated in vain. They have been stigmatized, they affirm, by a venal Parliament, as factious and discontented. The best of Princes has descended to share the narrow views and interests of his servants. He has adopted their impotent menaces, and the fatal malignity of their passions. He has taken a decisive personal part against his Colonies, and rejected their humble petitions with contempt. They have followed the glorious example of other States, and ceased to confine their resentment to a submissive representation of their wrongs. They have renounced the forms of the Constitution, and appealed to that high Being who confers the rights of humanity, whose gifts it were impious to surrender. They are now ready to meet their Sovereign in the field, in defence of that liberty which they received from their fathers, which is the support of his throne and the birth-right of his subjects. The circumstances to which they are reduced will not admit of a disgraceful compromise. They despise those indecisive qualifying measures which render his Government ridiculous, and will reject them with contempt. They have too much understanding and spirit to be intimidated by the frowns of a King or the insignificant threats of his favourites. Nothing less than a formal repeal of the acts which strike at the vital principles of the Constitution, together with ample satisfaction for the havoc of his friends, can heal the wounds they have received, nor will any thing less be accepted.

On the other hand, I am convinced that His Majesty's heart and understanding have been so biased in favour of the abilities of his worthy servants, that nothing less than his own misfortunes can undeceive him. Even this dernier resort of his subjects to arms, this resolution, which despair alone could dictate, has failed to flash conviction upon minds blunted by prejudice, impenetrable to truth. When a man is resolved to believe, the very absurdity of the doctrine confirms him in the faith. Contracted understandings can draw proofs of victory from a defeat, and find an earnest of future prosperity in the absolute ruin of their affairs. The King's friends, as his favourites emphatically style themselves, to convert the stain of former rebellions, resolve to pursue that system which has reduced them to a situation so miserable that they cannot do wrong without ruin, nor right without affliction. They still resolve to see the liberties of America at their feet. That Constitution which their ancestors failed of subverting at Culloden, they attack more securely at St. James's, under the patronage of the best of Princes. In these circumstances, it is important to inquire in what manner a brave and a free people should improve their advantages; in what manner they ought to resent the insults they have already received, and guard against future indignities.

The condition of this Country, whatever light it is viewed in, merits attention. It is not to my purpose, nor is it my province, to consider it minutely. As the circumstances are difficult and dangerous, we feel them; as they are favourable, I wish they may be improved. On this subject I mean to communicate my sentiments more fully than I have hitherto attempted. I have been charged with representing the best of Princes in a contemptible light, with encouraging principles of independence, and endeavouring to cut off the possibility of an honourable compromise. I have a claim to the candid interpretation of my Country. I speak to the collective body of the people; upon the most obvious principles of policy and prudence, we ought to adopt and pursue decisive, vigorous measures: we ought to do it instantly. The members of the community should be directly employed as their various inclinations dispose them, for the advantage of the common cause. By serving their interests, they essentially serve us.

No man condemns more sincerely than I do, that wretched plan of policy which has exasperated the people, and alienated their affections from the Sovereign. His Majesty is undoubtedly possessed of many private good qualities; but his private virtues have been the source of his misfortunes. With the greatest benevolence, and the best intentions, his throne, through the folly and treachery of his servants, has been constantly surrounded with the reproaches and complaints of his subjects. I am far from suspecting His Majesty of any design upon the liberties of the people. If he has been persuaded to take an unworthy, personal part against his Colonies, I attribute it to that inoffensive simplicity which guards the King against a thousand daggers. I impute his own disgrace, and the wretched situation of his affairs, to the pernicious principles he imbibed in his youth, and the fatal influence of designing favourites. These worthy men have given him many singular proofs of their abilities; I am not, therefore, surprised at his peculiar attachment to the avowed enemies of the House of Hanover. But by advancing them to the first posts in Government, he has unfortunately elevated the mark at which his people direct all their contempt and detestation. Though His Majesty has made a publick surrender, a solemn sacrifice, in the face of the whole world, not only of the interests of his subjects, but of his own personal reputation, by abandoning the duties of a Monarch to a set of men whom the people have long since discarded as unworthy their confidence; though he is satisfied with the wretched formalities of a King, and has sullied the dignity of that Crown which his predecessors have worn with honour; though his life has been a uniform course of shameless obedience to his servants, and a gross neglect of the complaints of the people, still I wish to consider him as the first Magistrate, and separate the virtues of the man from the vices of his Government. I would make a due allowance for the prejudices of education. There has been something most singularly unfortunate in the life of our most gracious Sovereign. Accustomed, from his earliest infancy, to despise his own understanding, and rely on that of his friends, he seldom presumes to comprehend the depths of their policy, and implicitly confirms what they, in their profound wisdom, dictate. Does the cunning Lord

Mansfield pronounce the Colonies in rebellion? the King gracefully echoes the same language. Does the amiable Lord North blusteringly declare in the House of Commons, "that he will not treat with America till he sees her at his feet?" the best of Princes steps forward and delivers the same important doctrine from the throne. Does the faithful and trusty Wedderburne cry havoc? I am sorry, says the best of Princes, that the times require it, but the refractory Colonies must be subdued. Thus, whatever be the language and views of his servants, however absurd and impracticable, His Majesty adopts them with all their blunders. They have now reduced him to the most deplorable of all situations, that of choosing out of a variety of difficulties; but whatever way he turns himself, he is sure to meet with perplexity and distress. Let them go on as they have begun, and I think simplicity itself cannot much longer be misled. At present I regard the King as the creature of the Constitution; I would pay him the personal tribute of allegiance. But if he persists to shelter himself under the forms of his Parliament, and sets his people at defiance; if he is determined to support the Ministry who have almost ruined his affairs, the time may not be far distant when he will cease to be considered even as the nominal Sovereign of America. His Majesty seems to have forgot that period of our history, (if he ever knew it,) when the New-England Colonies refused to issue legal process in the name of one of his predecessors. Should that period return in the reign of the best of Princes, it would endanger his establishment, and ruin his peace of mind forever. His security is that of his people in every part of his Dominions; they are all equally entitled to the liberties of Englishmen and the protection of the Sovereign. When he withdraws the one, and his friends attack the other, they should be informed that three thousand miles of ocean lie between them and us; that they cannot govern as they please; that it is the eternal condition annexed to great empires, that to govern at all, the extremities should be held with a loose rein; strain the cord, and the band of empire is broken. Nature has said it, and experience confirms it. And though they can send their thunder to remotest worlds, we despise the plan which must be widely separated from the execution, which the furious elements conspire to defeat.

The country we are in possession of, for the dominion of which we are now contending, was purchased, cultivated, and subdued by our ancestors. I know of no one that possesses more internal resources, is more happily situated for trade, or blest with a serener sky, a kinder soil, more striking prospects, or larger or more fertile plains. We have crowded the desert with inhabitants; men and flocks now cover the sea-coasts like leaves in autumn. We have stretched back upon the hills out of the reach of the eastern breeze. We have ascended the highest mountains; from thence we behold immense plains before us, vast, rich, level meadows extending beyond the reach of human eye. Over these we wander without restraint. Under mild and equal Governments, these boundless tracts must soon become the happy residence of thousands and tens of thousands of families yet unborn, who, by sober industry, shall feed the hungry and clothe the naked; turn the channels of wealth to their Country, and support her fame, her peace, and prosperity. We see our coasts formed into the noblest harbours, at convenient distances; vast navigable streams pervading immeasurable tracts, through impassable forests and luxuriant plains, by which the various produce of nations may be transported to the remotest inland quarters with ease and despatch; pines and firs that reach to heaven, naval stores and iron mines in such abundance, that we may build a navy for our defence, independent of every country upon earth. Our seas swarm with fish, and the soil almost spontaneously produces all those capital articles which are the sources of opulence, of independence, and of safety. We have improved the natural advantages of our situation; we have prosecuted our agriculture with spirit and success. Besides plentifully supplying the wants of our growing multitude, our annual export of grain has long since exceeded a million in value of the last harvest. The new world bids fair to be the granary of the old. The scarcity felt by the Parent State would have often been a desolating famine, if the exuberance of the Colonies had not been applied to satisfy the cries of her starving millions. The rapid growth of the West-India Islands can be accounted for upon no other principle; they have arrived to their present wealth and importance in the scale of commerce, by means of our constant, regular exports of various provision.

Our commerce is out of all proportion to our numbers. I do not exceed the bounds of the strictest calculation, when I affirm that it is nearly equal to that which England (pre-eminent to all trading States, either ancient or modern) carried on a single century ago with the whole world! when she subdued nations, established her liberty, and rode mistress of the seas! From her we receive one-half of all she exports. The annual profits of her trade with the Colonies do not fall short of three millions, according to the most moderate computation. This enormous sum has been raised by impositions and regulations of trade, which have overwhelmed us with intolerable debts. We have consented to them, not from their equity or justice, but from affection to the Parent State, from the generous spirit of Englishmen, from motives of mutual peace and mutual tranquillity. The channels by which riches have flowed through the Colonies, have been so turned, that they all discharge into the lap of the Parent State; not like eastern torrents, but in salubrious, various, placid, and copious streams, augmenting her influence, refreshing industry, and supporting her grandeur. We form the firm basis of Ireland, and supply those materials which invigorate the springs of national activity, happiness, and splendour. The spirit with which we have prosecuted our fisheries has excited admiration and envy. Look at the manner in which the people of the Northern Colonies have carried on the whale fishery; follow them through tempestuous seas, in their dangerous enterprise, among mountains of ice, beneath the arctic circle. While we are looking for them in the frozen recesses of Hudson's Bay, we hear they have pierced the opposite region of polar cold, and are engaged under the frozen serpent of the south. They are upon the coasts of Africa; they endure the intense heats that rage under the burning line; they strike the harpoon and draw the line on the coasts of Brazil; Falkland Island is but a stage in the progress of their hardy industry. There is no sea that is not vexed by their fisheries; no climate that is not witness to their toils. The persevering obstinacy of Holland, the activity of France, the fierce spirit of Russia, and the firm sagacity of English enterprise, combine to form a species of men whom no dangers can daunt, no difficulties subdue. Above all, we are witnesses of that spirit of liberty which pervades and animates the whole, supporting, confirming their courage, and extending their views. This, Americans, is a general description of the Country you have undertaken to defend; and these are the advantages of your situation.

Let us see in what manner they may be improved for the general welfare of the community, and the peace and happiness of every individual. I lament the unhappy necessity, whenever it arises, of providing for the safety of the State by a temporary invasion of any of the rights of the most profligate citizen. Would to God it were possible to reconcile these important objects in every situation of public affairs. I regard the legal liberty of the meanest American as much as my own, and would defend it with as much zeal. I know we must stand or fall together. But I never can doubt that the community has a right to command the service of its members, and deprive them of the benefits of society, if they are improved to injure the people at large. I see that right founded originally upon necessity, and included in the first principles of Government. I conclude there can be no remedy, in the nature of things, for the grievance complained of. There are situations, too, when a resolution to remain neuter may be highly criminal. Such determinations commonly proceed from timidity, and not from principle. The man who adopts them generally means to be determined in his conscience by the event of the dispute, and to join the victorious party. I do not mean that the strict rights of the community should be called forth upon common occasions; they should be exerted only upon great emergencies, when the interests of society, the lives or liberties of the people, are immediately in question. Great allowance should be made, even then, for passion and prejudice. In violent convulsions of the State we find many timid men, and many who seriously differ from the sentiments of the publick, and from each other; but I would not generally reject the friendship or services of any man, because he differs from the general faith in a particular opinion. Every man may contribute something to the common stock, and no man's contribution should be rejected. Let us employ the men who affect, on all occasions, to take a moderate part for the advantage of the common cause, as far as their inclinations will permit; let us profit by their assistance, and place them, if it be possible, in the post of danger, to prevent desertion; let us discard those little personal resentments that have directed some of us in our conduct, and address these men with the spirit of Americans, and in the language of gentlemen. The part they have to act is an honourable one. If they are really attached to the cause, as they pretend, and differ from us only in the mode of defending it, they may surely be induced to exert themselves in some way to promote it. It is not a time to trifle with their fortune; they, with the rest of their fellow-subjects, must risk their all in support of the civil Constitution, of that legal liberty which every Englishman professes to defend at the hazard of his life.

Our security and success depend, in a great degree, upon the publick credit—upon the faith that every man has in the ability of the State to reward him for his service. Money is the standard by which we measure the value of that service, and of all the necessities of life. For want of gold and silver, the community is sometimes necessitated to establish a paper currency; this is meant to supply the place of those valuable metals; and so long as it is received and paid without depreciation, it answers all the purposes for which it was designed; it constitutes the basis of publick success, and is our only security. I consider the man who undermines this solid foundation, as the worst of assassins, and the confirmed enemy of his Country; his conduct ought to be held forth in its genuine colours, and branded with infamy. A lady's chastity, a soldier's honour, and the publick faith, should be free, not only from guilt, but suspicion.

Inconveniences will undoubtedly attend a paper currency, unless we guard against them by establishing funds, or by adopting other measures that may be as effectual. And those selfish men who have no other god but riches, who make profit of honour, conscience, and virtue, should be informed that they may be secured in their property, if they condescend to support the publick credit. Private credit is wealth; publick honour is security.

Such is the situation of this Country; and so unfavourable is every prospect of an honourable compromise, that we shall deserve to suffer the dangers we have reason to apprehend, unless we instantly open all the ports upon the Continent, establish a free trade, and fit out a Navy sufficient, in some measure, to protect it. I would have all the members of the community employed, that the Country, instead of sinking into poverty, may be enriched by the gains of individuals. The publick stock is increased by private profit. The poor are employed, and the farmer receives his proportion of the gain. The country gentlemen may think that they have little to do with commerce, but they are the first who feel the loss of it, "and are (says Mr. Locke) as much concerned in it as the merchant himself." It may be objected, that we cannot open a trade; that we shall be obliged to encounter the maritime force of Great Britain; and that we are unequal to the contest. There are some men beyond the reach of conviction, who answer all the proposed efforts of a free people with smiles and contempt. These I do not mean to persuade. But I inquire why we cannot establish a naval power sufficient to answer our present purposes at least? Have we not naval stores in abundance? Do we want men, or are they destitute of courage? Are we not supplied with every necessity for the design? "But we shall have to cope with Great Britain, and we are unequal to the conflict." Were not the Hollanders, when they revolted from Spain, in the same situation? Did the seven United Provinces, at that time, contain as many inhabitants as this single Colony? We know they did not. Had they any fleet? Was not the naval power of Spain supposed, at that time, to be invincible? But we know that in spite of all these disadvantages, and ten thousand others, they engrossed the whole spice trade, and prosecuted their commerce with such industry and resolution, that Holland became the magazine of all the valuable commodities of the East, in the midst of a bloody war. We know, too, by what means they arrived to this importance. They sent out multitudes of vessels, with publick or private commissions, and infested the seas. Are we in a worse situation than Holland then was? "Never contest," says Mr. Hume, "seemed at first more unequal; never contest was finished with more honour to the weaker party. On the side of Spain were numbers, riches, authority, discipline; on the side of the revolted Provinces were found the attachment to liberty, and the enthusiasm of religion. By her naval enterprises the Republick maintained her armies; and, joining peaceful industry to military valour, she was enabled, by her own force, to support herself, and gradually rely less on those neighbouring Princes who, from jealousy to Spain, were at first prompted to encourage her revolt." Our situation is infinitely preferable. We have every advantage that the Hollanders were destitute of. Yet we patiently suffer our trade to be destroyed, and our merchantmen to be insulted and plundered with impunity. I deny that it is in the power of Great Britain to destroy our trade, if we exert ourselves. She has not ships to spare to guard a sea-coast of fifteen hundred miles in length. She cannot prevent smuggling upon her own coast, though surrounded by her Navy, and armed with all the terrors of sanguinary laws. Besides, one-half of her maritime force rests upon her American foundation. Take this away, and you strip the royal bird of the plumage that supports his flight; you fix him on the earth. Let armed vessels be instantly fitted out, to open a trade with the neighbouring Colonies at least. Let us make the trial. Let them be well acquainted with the coasts. Let them be of sufficient force to attack the numerous tenders that swarm upon the seas. From what we have already experienced, I pledge myself for their success. We shall then be supplied with provision and fuel at a moderate expense. We shall be enabled to endure the severities of winter and the burdens of war.

Let our sea-ports be fortified without delay, and the people constantly used to arms. In the choice of Magistrates, let us consider the various abilities of the candidates for the publick favour, as well as their integrity and attachment to the cause. There are posts where even integrity alone, though not an useless virtue, is certainly a recommendation that may be fatal to the publick tranquillity. A general attachment to the common weal, distinct from party prejudices and private animosities, which comprehends the whole body of the people, though individuals may differ in some speculative points of their political creed, is a virtue of the first magnitude, and an essential qualification. But publick virtue and patriotism are commonly to be found in the shades and solitudes of life. Let us draw silent merit from obscurity, and distribute the virtues and abilities of individuals according to the offices they are calculated to fill with honour. When they quit the service, let us supply their places with better men than we have lost.

I have explained my sentiments at large. I have supposed that the Colonies have resolved to persist, and that His Majesty's faithful Ministers are determined to see the laws and liberties of America at their feet. I have answered the charge of representing the gracious Prince upon the throne in a contemptible light, by a full declaration of my opinion. I have given a general description of the Country and its advantages. Upon this foundation I have ventured to point out a mode of defence, which I am persuaded is supported by all the principles of policy and prudence. I am equally convinced that if it is not adopted at present, it must be finally; and we exhaust our strength, to no purpose, by delay. War is just, when necessary. Pursue it with vigour; the event will be success.

DAVID HARTLEY, ESQ., TO HIS CONSTITUENTS AT HULL.

Sodbury, October 2, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have not been resident in London since July, having only spent one day there in my return to this country from Kent, where I have been upon a visit to Lord Camden and some other friends. I hope and believe that my absence from London cannot be any material loss in presenting the Address of the Corporation.* I am much obliged to them for their candid consideration of my situation on the subject of American measures. As I have not seen the Address, I cannot speak as to its contents; but I shall always think it my duty to consider any opinions or information from my constituents with the utmost attention and deference.

I agree that the situation of affairs in America is truly alarming. My object in Parliament has always been to soften animosities, and to restore peace. In all disputes whatsoever, anger begets anger, offences are aggravated by misapprehensions, and, if not soothed or composed in an early stage, run headlong to distraction. I thought it my duty, last winter, to throw in my mite, and drew up terms of accommodation conformable, as near as I could judge, to reason, and to the old Constitution of the Colonies. By the late Petition of the Congress to the King, I conceive they have declared their readiness to comply with such terms, and therefore I much lament that the Petition was dismissed without an answer. It is a general opinion that the Americans are in an anxious suspense for the event of their Petition, and therefore I fear that the disappointment will drive them to still greater distraction.

In this unhappy contest, we have ingrafted one dispute upon another. The origin was upon a novel act of taxation, having left the old accustomed and productive mode by requisition. That the assumption of this right was novel and speculative, is universally known. The inexpedience and impolicy of it have likewise been acknowledged, even by the warmest advocates for the right itself.

Now, see the next step. If the Colonies, galled by unremitted grievances, should glance but a word against authority, however confessedly misused, it is caught at instantly; the aggressor shifts from the untenable innovation of taxing, in preference to requisition, and picks a fresh quarrel upon a hasty phrase, produced by the soreness of repeated grievances. If they remonstrate, over and over, that their utmost wish is to return to the happy state of peace and cordiality existing in 1763, a deaf ear is turned to such parts; but a hasty phrase, of which advantage can be taken to irritate and to exasperate all parties, is registered in the black book of offences, and, upon mere suspicions and groundless inferences, a fresh cause of war is declared, under the unsupported accusation that the Colonies mean a general independence. For what are the proofs? There are no proofs of any preliminary steps towards this supposed independence. The very phrases upon which this suspicion is grounded come, in consequence of the heat of previous disputes, from those who are sore with repeated grievances; while every petition for redress has been rejected with contempt. An original spirit of independence is not passive; it does not wait to be driven. Yet the Colonies have never been the first movers or innovators. Let us examine, in the next place, whether their interest leads them to independence. Nothing less; for without their connection with this Country, the cultivation of the land of America, which is the primary object of all settlers, must come to a full stop. Not to mention that any plan of Continental empire, among such various interests, tempers, religious persuasions, and forms of government, would bring on as many Provincial wars amongst them as there are Colonies; therefore, I conclude that the charge of an original plan of independence is unwarranted and groundless.

It is the infallible way to prevent peace and reconciliation, if every word produced by grievance, and uttered in anger, is to be indelibly fixed, and all retreat cut off. Men, in anger, use phrases which ought to be forgotten. Drive them a little farther, and cut off their retreat to peace, and they will find no alternative but to realize every passionate suggestion at all hazards. The maxim for peace is, to give the contending party a golden bridge, and not to hunt them into a corner. All that the Colonies require is to contribute in the accustomed way, by constitutional requisitions, and to be restored to the condition in which they stood at the termination of the late war. That I call the golden bridge of peace; but, says jealousy, in the heat of this dispute, they have denied our authority. Jealousy is not the handmaid of peace; yet even jealousy itself cannot deny that they have recognised to this Country, in the same breath, the utmost of all the claims and pretensions; restoration to the happy epoch of 1763, being the summary of their utmost wishes, and sole object of all their petitions. They lament the loss of their then condition, cordially and pathetically. I fear that our turn will come when it is too late. When we have thrown away the pearl of peace, we shall lament our passion and folly with unavailing regret.

Under these impressions, I can think and speak of nothing but for peace. I have devoted my whole attention to this important subject, not only in Parliament, but in the interval of the sessions, with labour, anxiety, and scrupulousness; nor have I presumed, on a subject of such importance, to stand on my own single opinion, but have endeavoured to obtain lights from the counsels of the best and wisest men of this or any other nation or age. For the foremost of this description I need not remind you of our friend Sir George Savile; a name well known and approved, not only by your Corporation, but by the whole Kingdom, for his integrity, impartiality, and disinterested zeal for the publick good.

These are a few of the disconsolate sentiments which occur to me upon this unhappy subject. I grieve to see all things running headlong to the extreme of fury. The fatal example of Spain is before our eyes. History tells us that the loss of the seven United Provinces cost Philip the Second two hundred and fifty millions sterling in those days, besides involving that country in domestick and foreign wars for near a century. I did not think to have said so much, but the subject has drawn me on, and I have no thoughts or views to conceal. I think my constituents have a full right to the explanation of my sentiments upon matters of such infinite publick concern, especially such of my constituents to whose friendship I am so deeply indebted.

D. HARTLEY.

ACCOMACK COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Accomack County, at the Court-House, October 2, 1775: It having been represented to this Committee, at a former meeting, that Arthur Upshaw, of this County, Gentleman, and a Member of this Committee, had sent out a vessel, loaded with grain, for the West-Indies, since the 10th of last month, contrary to the Resolves of the Continental Association; this day the said Upshaw sent a letter by his son, acknowledging the notice, and confessing that his said vessel had sailed since the 10th of last month. And upon reading and considering the said letter, and hearing several witnesses upon oath, it appears that the said Upshaw has been some months past forwarding the said vessel for the sea; that he cleared her out the 20th of July last, for the British West-Indies, with grain, long before she was finished; that by sickness of his workmen afterwards, and other unexpected delays, he found he could not get her ready time enough, but that he was determined, at all events, she should sail; that after the 10th of last month, and before she did sail, sundry of the inhabitants of this County (one of them a Member of this Committee) waited on him, and cautioned him against sending out his vessel, as a step exceedingly disagreeable to the people; that he promised that company she should not sail till the Committee met, and he would wait on them. A day being accordingly appointed, sundry Members met, but not a sufficient number to form a Committee; that the said Upshaw having that day attended, according to promise, said he expected his vessel was then sailed, as he had given his master orders to sail the first fair wind.

Resolved, unanimously, That the said Upshaw, by sending out the said vessel, has violated the Continental Association, and that his case be published in the Virginia Gazette, agreeable to the Resolve of the Eleventh Article of the said Association.

SOUTHY SIMPSON, Chairman.
JOHN POWELL, Clerk.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE DELEGATES TO MATTHEW THORNTON.

Philadelphia, October 2, 1775.

SIR: Agreeable to your desire, that we should write as often as may be, have taken this opportunity, though little or nothing to communicate.

Before this comes to hand you will receive a letter from our President, desiring your attendance at Head-Quarters, to consult with a Committee from this Congress, relative to the Army. Doctor Franklin, Mr. Lynch, and Col. Harrison, are the Committee.

We humbly beg leave here to suggest whether it would not be a good opportunity to mention the convulsed state of our Colony, and the absolute necessity of Government, and also to forward them a petition from our Convention to take up Government. We have consulted many of the Members on the matter, and as soon as Colonel Bartlett is able to attend the House, (which will be in a few days, as he is almost well of the small-pox,) shall motion for leave to take the same Government as Massachusetts-Bay. You will also give us leave to urge the forwarding of our accounts against the Continent immediately; otherwise, there may not be money in the Continental Treasury, as great sums are daily drawing from thence; the consequence of which will be, shall be obliged to wait for another emission.

There has nothing been transacted in Congress, as yet, that we are at liberty to communicate. The journals are not yet printed, though ready for the press, but will be soon.

You will give us leave to repeat our desire that our Convention or Committee of Safety will forward a petition for Government, setting forth the absolute necessity of it; the impossibility of taxing without, which is a thing that must be done, as it would ruin us to be emitting paper on every occasion. You will pardon us for throwing out these hints.

We are your most obedient servants,

JOSIAH BARTLETT,
JOHN LANGDON.

Honourable Matthew Thornton, Esq.

NEW-MARLBOROUGH (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

New-Marlbrough, October 2, 1775.

At a regular election, held this day, in the Southeast District of New-Marlbrough Precinct, in Ulster County, agreeable to the resolves of the Provincial Congress, were chosen by a majority of voices of the soldiers of the Militia Company of said District, commanded by Colonel Jonathan Hasbrouck, the following Officers:

Caleb Merrith, Captain; Abijah Perkins, First Lieutenant; Stephen Case, Second Lieutenant; and Matthew Wygant, Ensign.

Which choice was made in the presence of us, the subscribers, two of the Committee of said Precinct.

We are, Gentlemen, your very humble servants,

JOHN WOOLSEY,
MICHAEL WYGANT.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of New-York, or, in their absence, to the Grand Committee of Safety.

WALKILL (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Walkill, October 2, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to the recommendation of the Provincial Congress, the Committee of the Precinct of Walkill, in the County of Ulster, met and divided said Precinct into four Companies of Militia, in the following manner, viz:

All that part of the Precinct that is on the east side of the Walkill to be in one Company, who have by plurality of voices, agreeable to the directions of the Congress, chose Samuel Watkins their Captain, David Crawford First Lieutenant, Stephen Harlow Second Lieutenant, Henry Smith Ensign.

All that part of the Precinct on the west side of the Walkill, between said Walkill and Little Shawangonk Kill, to the northward of a line from the house of Isaiah Veal to the house of John Brown and the houses of Peter McGloughlin, Archibald Brown, Jun., Archibald Brown, Sen., John McCarter, John Hill, and Daniel McVeay, to continue the last course to Little Shawangonk Kill, to exclude the inhabitants of the place mentioned in said line, to be in one other Company, who have chose, in the manner aforesaid, William Faulkinder, Jun., for their Captain,

Edward McNeal, First Lieutenant; John Wilkin, Second Lieutenant; and John Faulkinder, Ensign.

All that part of the Precinct between the Walkill and Little Shawangonk, to the southward of the line mentioned to run from Isaiah Veal's to John Brown's, &c., to include the inhabitants that live in said line, to be in one other Company, who have, in manner aforesaid, chose Isaiah Veal for their Captain; Israel Wickham, First Lieutenant; John Dunning, Second Lieutenant; and Jonathan Owen, Ensign.

All that part of the Precinct to the northwest of Little Shawangonk Kill to be in one other Company, who have, in manner aforesaid, chose William Deuniston for their Captain; Benjamin Veal, First Lieutenant; Joseph Jillet, Second Lieutenant; and David Carwin, Jun., Ensign.

The election of all the above Officers was carefully inspected by two Committee-Men in each Company.

Signed by order of the Committee:

HENRY WISNER, JUN., Chairman.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Cambridge, October 2, 1775.

SIR: Pursuant to the declaration I had the honour of communicating to you and the other gentlemen last Saturday, from his Excellency, he has directed three vessels to be immediately equipped. But as he gave the several captures to the disposal of the General Court, it may be necessary for them to signify, in some proper way, that these vessels are to be at the direction of the General, or such as he shall appoint, with other persons with whom the management of the business is intrusted.

I am, most respectfully, Sir, your obedient and very humble servant,

J. REED.

The Hon. James Warren, Esq., Speaker, &c.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO MR. SIMON PEASE.

Cambridge, October 2, 1775.

SIR: I am directed by his Excellency the General to acknowledge your favour of the 18th ultimo. Due inquiry has been made as to the vessel and cargo which it respects. The latter will be wanted for the use of the Army, for which the Commissary-General will pay a reasonable price, and with whom you can negotiate it. The sending money to you, for Mr. Winslow, is objected to by several creditors of the estate of Mr. Winslow, who have prayed the money arising from these sales may be retained, to answer their demands. If you can remove this difficulty, I believe there is no other to prevent your request being fully complied with. But this need not prevent your settling the price, &c., with the Commissary, to whom you are referred for the future transaction of this business.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

J. REED.

To Mr. Simon Pease, at Newport.

MEETING OF THE COMMITTEES OF WALTHAM, NEWTOWN, WATERTOWN, WESTON, AND SUDBURY, MASSACHUSETTS.

The Committee of Inspection for the Town of Weston, being applied to by complaint sundry times, and by sundry persons, against Eleazer Bradshaw, of Waltham, as being inimical to his Country, and who has for some time past employed himself in going to Albany, under pretence of purchasing Fur, also purchased a quantity of Tea. Whereupon, the Committee of Waltham, with the Committee of Newtown, Watertown, Weston, and Sudbury, being met on the 2d day of October, instant, to examine into the matter, and having sent a messenger for said Bradshaw, he appeared, and frankly confessed he had purchased and sold a quantity of Tea, and had signified to one of said Committee that he would do as he thought fit, in spite of said Committee or any person whatever, and would be the death of any person that should molest him. Therefore, determined by this joint Committee, that Eleazer Bradshaw, by his conduct and behaviour, has proved himself inimical to his Country; and that all persons be cautioned to withhold commerce and dealing with said Bradshaw, until there appears a reformation in said Bradshaw.

The above to be published in the Watertown and Cambridge papers.

By order: JONATHAN PARMENTER, Chairman.

I, David Townsend, by the desire of the wife of Dr. John Clark, of Newtown, to buy some Tea for her, and I applied to Eleazer Bradshaw, of Waltham, and had six pounds, which I sold to said Clark's wife and others, which I am heartily sorry for, that I had any thing to do with said Tea; and I hope the publick will forgive me, for I did it without consideration, and I promise to have no more to do with Tea till allowed by the Continental Congress.

This is to the acceptance of the Committee.

DAVID TOWNSEND.

ADDRESS OF FREEHOLDERS, ETC., OF DUMBARTON.

Address of the Freeholders and Justices of the Peace for the County of Dumbarton, presented to His Majesty by Sir Archibald Edmondstone, Bart., their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Freeholders and Justices of the Peace for the County of DUMBARTON.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Freeholders and Justices of the Peace for the County of Dumbarton, being deeply impressed with the innumerable blessings we and all within your Majesty's Dominions have constantly enjoyed during your most auspicious reign, feel our minds sensibly affected with just indignation and abhorrence of the bold and repeated instances of disloyalty and rebellion amongst your Majesty's subjects in America, who, unmindful of all the sacred ties which ought to connect them to the Parent State, have impiously dared to raise the standard of rebellion, covering the most lawless anarchy and licentiousness with the specious veil of the love of liberty. Since experience has convinced us that the tender lenity hitherto exercised towards them by your Majesty's natural humanity and love of your subjects has rather tended to provoke these deluded people to more violent attacks upon the British Constitution, we, with dutiful submission, though with the deepest regret, humbly apprehend more vigorous measures are become absolutely necessary to correct and punish their rebellious spirit; in the prosecution of which, we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we are ready to sacrifice our lives and fortunes.

By order and in presence of the meeting.

JOHN HAMILTON, Præses.

Dumbarton, October 3, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF ST. ANDREW'S.

Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of St. Andrew's, in Common Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by Henry Dundas, Esq., Lord Advocate of Scotland.

Unto the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of ST. ANDREW'S, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, the Magistrates and Town Council of your Majesty's ancient City of St. Andrew's, beg leave humbly to approach the throne, with sentiments of unfeigned affection and loyalty to your Majesty's sacred person, family, and Government.

Deeply impressed with a grateful sense of the many blessings which we, and all the subjects of this extensive Empire, enjoy under your Majesty's mild and gracious administration, we have beheld with indignation the arts by which factious and turbulent men have endeavoured, for some years past, to alienate the affections of your Majesty's subjects, and to disturb the tranquillity of your Government. We lament that your Majesty's American Colonies have been so far deluded and misled by these arts, as to abandon their connection with their Parent State, by which they had been reared and protected; and we wish, in this publick manner, to testify our abhorrence of that unnatural spirit of rebellion, which, notwithstanding all the lenity and forbearance they have experienced, has at last broke forth in acts of open hostility, and has led them to take up arms against the best of Sovereigns, who, through his whole reign, has shown himself the father of all his people, and the guardian of their rights.

We have entire confidence in the wisdom and rectitude of your Majesty's counsels; and we trust that, under God, they will speedily prove effectual for subduing the rebellious Provinces, and for restoring peace and tranquillity, upon terms becoming the dignity of the supreme legislative authority of the Empire.

At a time when some of those, who even aspire to a seat in the British Senate, are accused of treasonable practices and conspiracies, permit us, great Sir, who live in a distant part of your Kingdom, to express our respectful submission to your Government, our veneration for the Constitution of Great Britain, and our firm resolution to support and defend it at all times to the utmost of our power.

Signed by our Præses, in our name, in our presence, and by our appointment.

CHRISTIANUS ADAMSON, Dean of Guild.

St. Andrew's, October 3, 1775.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Middlesex, on Tuesday, the 3d of October, 1775—present, fifteen Members.

It being proved to the Committee that John Morgan, an inhabitant of this County, had made use of expressions highly inimical to the liberties of America, have thought it their duty, in order to distinguish friends from foes, to hold him forth to publick censure.

Resolved, That the above be printed in the Virginia Gazette.

By order of the Committee:

LODOWICK JONES, Clerk.

AUGUSTA COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee for the County of Augusta, in Staunton, October 3, 1775:

Whereas it has been reported to the Committee of this County, by sundry persons, that Alexander Miller, at various times and places, and in divers assemblies of people, hath held forth, that the opposition made to the unjust, despotick, and tyrannical acts of the Parliament of Great Britain, relative to America, is rebellion; by which the lives and fortunes of those concerned in such opposition are forfeited, as traitors to the King; that the Members of the General Congress are seditious, aiming at their own interest, at the expense of this Country; that at the same time they live at free cost at the Congress in Philadelphia, they receive large sums to defray those pretended expenses; and wickedly charging the Convention of this Colony with the same seditious and similar designs; and that the levies ordered to be made by the Committee of this County, (by order of the Convention of this Colony,) for procuring Ammunition and paying other incidental charges, were to be applied to the making gentlemen of themselves; that, under various pretences, they would take every half-bit they had, and then leave them to shift as they could; with other unjust and invidious reflections of the same nature: and whereas the said Alexander Miller, having been duly summoned to answer the said allegations, did this day appear, the Committee, after hearing the depositions of sundry witnesses before taken, and the testimonies of several witnesses now examined, do find the said Alexander Miller has been guilty of the several charges as above alleged:

Resolved, therefore, That it be recommended to all the good people of this County and Colony, to have no farther dealings, connection, or intercourse, with the said Miller, as he appears, from the whole tenour of his behaviour, to be a real enemy to the general struggle of all America, now defending themselves against the tyrannical oppressions of a corrupt British Parliament, until he, by his future behaviour, convinces his countrymen of his sincere repentance for his past folly.

Ordered, That the Clerk transmit a copy of the above proceedings to Mr. Alexander Purdie, to desire he will publish the same in his publick Gazette.

SILAS HART, Chairman.

DR. FRANKLIN TO DR. JOSEPH PRIESTLEY, LONDON.

Philadelphia, October 3, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I am to set out to-morrow for the camp, and having but just heard of this opportunity, can only write a line, to say that I am well and hearty. Tell our dear good friend Doctor Price, who sometimes has his doubts and despondencies about our firmness, that America is determined and unanimous, a very few Tories and Placemen excepted, who will probably soon export themselves. Britain, at the expense of three millions, has killed one hundred and fifty Yankees this campaign, which is twenty thousand Pounds a head; and at Bunker's Hill she gained a mile of ground, half of which she lost again by our taking post on Ploughed Hill. During the same time, sixty thousand children have been born in America. From these data, his mathematical head will easily calculate the time and expense necessary to kill us all, and conquer our whole territory. My sincere respects to . . . , and to the club of honest Whigs at . . . . Adieu.

I am ever yours, most affectionately,

B. FRANKLIN.

DR. FRANKLIN TO DAVID HARTLEY, LONDON.

Philadelphia, October 3, 1775.

SIR: I wish as ardently as you can do for peace, and should rejoice exceedingly in co-operating with you to that end. But every ship from Britain brings some intelligence of new measures, that tend more and more to exasperate; and it seems to me, that until you have found by dear experience the reducing us by force impracticable, you will think of nothing fair and reasonable. We have as yet resolved only on defensive measures. If you would recall your forces and stay at home, we should meditate nothing to injure you. A little time so given for cooling on both sides would have excellent effects. But you will goad and provoke us. You despise us too much; and you are insensible of the Italian adage, that "there is no little enemy." I am persuaded the body of the British people are our friends; but they are changeable, and by your lying gazettes may soon be made our enemies. Our respect for them will proportionably diminish; and I see clearly we are on the high road to mutual enmity, hatred, and detestation. A separation will of course be inevitable. It is a million of pities so fair a plan as we have hitherto been engaged in, for increasing strength and empire with publick felicity, should be destroyed by the mangling hands of a few blundering Ministers. It will not be destroyed. God will protect and prosper it; you will only exclude yourselves from any share in it. We hear that more ships and troops are coming out. We know you may do us a great deal of mischief, but we are determined to bear it patiently as long as we can. But if you flatter yourselves with beating us into submission, you know neither the people nor the Country.

The Congress is still sitting, and will wait the result of their last Petition.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Tuesday, October 3, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Deputy Chairman, and thirty-three Members.

On motion, Ordered, That the following persons be added to the Sub-Committee of Secrecy and Inspection, viz: Patrick Dennis, Samuel Johnson, and Abraham De Peyster, Esquires.

The Sub-Committee appointed by the General Committee, on the 21st ultimo, to hold an Election for the choice of twenty Members, in addition to their number, report, that they attended the Election at the City-Hall, on the 28th of the same month, for the above purpose, and that the following persons were unanimously chosen, viz:

JOHN SCHUYLER, Vestryman.
JOHN IMLAY, }
JOHN BROOME, } Sub-Committee.

The General Committee agreed that their stated meetings, in future, be on every Tuesday and Friday evenings, at six o'clock.

GREENWICH, FAIRFIELD COUNTY, (CONN.) COMMITTEE.

In Committee of Safety and Inspection for the Town of Greenwich, in the County of Fairfield, October 3, 1775:

Coles Townsend, of said Greenwich, having been duly notified to appear this day before the said Committee, to vindicate his conduct respecting a complaint brought against him for horse-racing, did not think proper to appear.

Wherefore, the Committee proceeded with care and impartiality to examine and consider the evidence laid before them in support of the charge; by which it appeared, that the said Coles Townsend had discovered a spirit of opposition to the measures adopted for the preservation of American liberty, both with respect to his being proved guilty of the fact alleged against him, as also for his contempt of the authority of this Committee in their public capacity.

Wherefore, the Committee find themselves under the necessity of making publick the conduct of the said Coles Townsend, as a violator of the Continental Association; and that, according to the tenor thereof, every true friend to the freedom of this Country ought immediately to break off all connections with him, and treat him as a foe to the rights of British America.

Tuesday, October 10, 1775.

Pursuant to a citation issued for that purpose, Amos Knapp, of said Greenwich, appeared this day before the above Committee, to answer to a complaint brought against him for cursing the honourable Continental Congress, with all the leading men of the Country, and threatening to join the enemy, in case the King's standard was erected; and he being confronted by three creditable witnesses, who have fully proved the facts with which he stood charged, the Committee have ordered to disarm the said Amos Knapp immediately; and he is hereby held up to publick view, as an avowed enemy to his Country, and as such it is recommended to treat him accordingly.

Ordered, That the Chairman do transmit copies of the foregoing judgments to the press.

NEHEMIAH MEAD, Chairman.

POWNBOROUGH (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

Pownalborough, October 3, 1775.

We, the subscribers, Committee of Correspondence and Committees of Inspection in the East and West Precincts in Pownalborough, hereby testify, that Mr. Abiel Wood, being an inhabitant amongst us, we are acquainted with his conduct in general, and some of us have had occasion particularly to inquire into it, and really believe him to be a friend to his Country and American liberty, notwithstanding a late publication to the contrary, by a part of a former Committee of Inspection for the East Precinct in said Town. We farther say, this appears to be the mind of the Town, in respect to Mr. Wood; for, at a meeting duly warned, they took the conduct of said former Committee, relative to Mr. Wood, into consideration, disapproved of it, and unanimously dismissed them.

EDICT BY THE KING OF DENMARK.

Copenhagen, October 4, 1775.

An edict has been published here, prohibiting the exportation of warlike stores, and other articles of commerce serving for military armaments, to the Danish Colonies, of which the following is a translation:

"We, Christian the Seventh, by the grace of God, King of Denmark and Norway, &c., &c., &c. Whereas His Majesty the King of Great Britain has desired us to forbid our subjects giving any manner of assistance to the inhabitants of North-America, who are engaged in open war against England, and we are disposed to comply with this friendly requisition: therefore we will and enjoin, by these presents, all our subjects, whether traders or others, not to presume, till our pleasure be farther made known, to send, for the purpose of traffick, either for their own account or that of others, unto our Islands and Colonies in America, on board ships carrying our flag, or provided with our sea passports, any Ammunition or other commodities whatever, serving for warlike armaments and considered as articles of trade, or to take part in any such contraband trade, which is disagreeable to us, and liable to many misfortunes to themselves; the whole on pain of arbitrary and severe punishment for those who shall presume to infringe this our gracious ordinance.

"To which all and singular our Custom-House officers in our Kingdoms of Denmark and Norway, and in our Principalities, as also our Governour-General, Regency, and Council, in our West-India Islands, are respectfully to conform themselves; and by so doing will be indemnified for all damages.

ADDRESS OF THE ROYAL BURGH OF DUMBARTON.

Address of the Magistrates, Town Council, and Incorporations of the Royal Burgh of Dumbarton, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Lord Frederick Campbell, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Magistrates, Town Council, and Incorporations of the Royal Burgh of DUMBARTON.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Magistrates, Town Council, and Incorporations of the Royal Burgh of Dumbarton, sensible of the many blessings enjoyed by us of this Country, in common with those of your Majesty's other Dominions, during a reign remarkable for its moderation, feel the greatest abhorrence of that unnatural rebellion which has been encouraged by some licentious and designing persons at home, and which now rages with savage cruelty in your Colonies in America.

It is with the deepest concern that we observe the necessity to which the Parent State is reduced, of correcting these ungrateful and undutiful children by vigorous measures; and we humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we are ready and will cheerfully do all in our power to vindicate and support the dignity of your Crown and person, and the rights of your people, against these deluded Rebels.

Signed at Dumbarton, the fourth day of October, 1775 years, in name and by appointment of the Magistrates, Town Council, and Incorporations of the Burgh, by JAMES COLQUHOUN.

LONDON ASSOCIATION.

Globe Tavern, Fleet Street, October 4, 1775.

As on the part of Administration some wanton exertions of despotick power have justly spread an alarm throughout the Kingdom, the People cannot with too much vigilance protect their few remaining rights from violation.

The liberty of the Press hath ever been esteemed as one of the choicest blessings a free People can enjoy; yet we have seen the destruction of that liberty but too successfully attempted by the instruments of despotism. Prosecutions have been commenced by the officers of the Crown, apparently for no other purpose than that of silencing the Press, by denouncing ruin to such Printers as shall discharge their duty to the publick with the becoming spirit of Englishmen. Nor is this all. In the very mode of prosecution an eye hath been had to Star Chamber tyranny. The Printers of our newspapers have not been presented on the oaths of jurors, but on the bare suggestion of an officer of the Crown, who, by filing information, ex-officio, against His Majesty's innocent subjects, (to whom no crime whatever hath been imputed by their peers,) thereby supersedes the utility of grand juries, in direct violation of Magna Charta, and to the total overthrow of the great bulwark of English liberties.

Conceiving an opposition to such oppressive measures to be a duty incumbent on the People at large; desirous as well of rescuing the Press from the shackles of Ministerial slavery, as of affording some protection to those Printers who may otherwise suffer in the cause of liberty, the members of the London Association have determined to support the freedom of the Press upon true constitutional grounds, and they have therefore agreed to the following Resolutions.

Resolved, That the freedom of the Press is essential to the existence of a free Government.

Resolved, That by a judicious exercise of the freedom of the Press the minds of men are enlightened; knowledge, both civil and religious, is diffused, and the People are taught to prize as inestimable those political rights secured by the Revolution.

Resolved, That any attempt totally to destroy, or partially to infringe the liberty of the Press, is to frustrate the blessings we, as Protestants, enjoy from the Reformation, and to violate the privileges we, as Englishmen, inherit from the laws and Constitution of our Country.

Resolved, That the ex-officio Informations filed by the Attorney-General are unconstitutional stretches of arbitrary power, tending as effectually to destroy the liberty of the Press, as the most arbitrary process that ever issued from the Star Chamber during the reigns of the detestable Stuarts.

Resolved, That as we are well convinced of the despotick intentions of Ministry, we will endeavour to defeat their attempts to exercise an improper jurisdiction over the Press. Should any effort be made to revive the office of a Licensor, we will oppose it as unwarrantable; and should any expounder of the laws (for judges are no more) sport with the sacred Charter of our liberties, and tamper with juries on questions relative to the freedom of the Press, we will never cease our struggles until a criminal of such magnitude is made amenable to Parliamentary justice.

Resolved, That at the same time as we wish to cherish the liberty, we would entirely discountenance the licentiousness of the Press. Publications, therefore, which have a tendency to depreciate the Revolution, whether they assume the title of "Memoirs," "Histories," or "State Compilations," are equally to be reprobated, as so many atrocious libels on that happy establishment secured to us by the accession of the illustrious House of Hanover.

Resolved, That if those Printers who have shown themselves favourable to the rights of British subjects shall be harassed by expensive prosecutions, (nominally at the suit of the Crown, but virtually and substantially at the instigation of the Ministry, and certainly at the expense of the People,) we will patronise such Printers, that freedom of the Press may not be wounded through their sides.

Resolved, That this Association will appropriate the sum of one hundred Pounds out of their fund, to be expended as occasion may require, in the defence of the Printers of such papers as shall appear to have the most just claim to publick protection.

Resolved, That it be earnestly recommended to every friend of civil and religious liberty throughout the Kingdom, to assist in an undertaking, the utility of which is self evident; for as to the revival of letters we owe our deliverance from Monkish superstition, so to the freedom of the Press alone shall we be indebted, if the liberties of our Country survive the wishes of Administration.

Signed by order of the Association:

THOMAS JOEL, Secretary.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 4, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We take the liberty to enclose a proposal made by a merchant of New-York, for obtaining gunpowder. As we are not competent to give permission for the voyage proposed, we submit the same to you, and request your direction as soon as possible.

We are, most respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

By order: NATHL. WOODHULL, President.

To the Hon. the Continental Congress.

New-York, September 27, 1775.

SIR: About the 1st of July last I sailed from this place, bound to Martinico and Guadaloupe, amongst the French Islands, provided with necessary letters and interest, with the sole intention of procuring a quantity of gunpowder and ammunition for the use of this Colony; but on my arrival at those places, found that the whole that could be procured had been bought up and shipped off in one or two vessels from this place and Philadelphiam. During my stay at Martinico, as I was particularly recommended to and connected with George Mitchell, Esq., the English agent, a principal merchant there, and interpreter to the Governour; he, in confidence, informed me that several of their merchantmen that had sailed for old France, and were expected to return about the last of October or the first of November, had carried out large orders for powder, and that he expected a large quantity, the most of which would fall under his management and disposal, and proposed to supply me with any quantity; and previous to my entering into a contract with him, he obtained permission of the Governour for my vessel to return there and trade without molestation. In consequence of which he engaged to deliver me five tons or upwards, on condition of my return with my vessel-load of flour, about five hundred barrels. I therefore request, as you are a member of the Provincial Congress, if you think proper to lay this matter before them, to submit the importance of it to their consideration; and should they think proper to encourage my completing this contract, and grant me a permission to load for that purpose, you are authorized to assure them an ample security shall be given for the faithful performance of it; that the same shall be put into execution with the greatest despatch, secrecy, and safety, being provided with the completest vessel for that purpose, and every other matter necessary to ensure success. I am, &c.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 7, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 4, 1775.

SIR: The enclosed state of information is of such a nature, that it is conceived highly proper to communicate it with all despatch to the Congress.

We are, Sir, respectfully, your very humble servants.

By order: NATHL. WOODHULL, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

New-York, October 3, 1775.

Captain John Hamilton sailed from Liverpool the 17th of August, and arrived here last night: says that it was reported and believed at Liverpool, and that he saw it in the London papers, that thirty Battalions and four Squadron of Dragoons, in all ten thousand men, were to embark at Embsden for Boston; that a part of their baggage was already at Embsden; that some transports were already arrived at Embsden; that by common report they were to sail the middle of August, and that they were to be commanded by a General Officer of their own country.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in FALMOUTH, to his friends in NEW-YORK, dated JULY 26, 1775.—It is confidently said that ten thousand Hanoverians, and some Regiments from Great Britain, are to be sent to Boston, as a re-enforcement to General Gage's Army; that General Gage is to be recalled, at his own request, and Sir Jefery Amherst is to succeed him.

CONNECTICUT COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Wednesday, October 4, 1775.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, at Lebanon, Present :

His Honour the Governour, Jabez Huntington, Samuel Huntington, Joshua West, Jedediah Elderkin, Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

Doctor Penuel Cheeney is appointed Physician and Surgeon to the Third Regiment of Forces raised for the defence of this Colony, with wages at seven Pounds ten Shillings per month. Gave orders to Doctor Cheeney to take Medicines for the use of said Regiment, to the value of ten Pounds, and to draw on the Committee of Pay Table for the payment thereof.

Monday, October 9, 1775.

At a meeting of the Governour and Committee of Safety, at Lebanon, Present :

His Honour the Governour, his Honour the Deputy-Governour, Jabez Huntington, Samuel Huntington, Jedediah Elderkin, Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

Captain Hall, of the Brig Minerva, at the request of the Continental Congress, is ordered on a cruise with said Brig, which this Committee hath given orders for, in pursuance of the directions of Congress, as per Mr. President Hancock's Letter, of October 5, 1775.

Captain Jeremiah Wadsworth is appointed and directed to supply said Brig with all the necessary Provisions and Warlike Stores for said cruise, as per his order appears.

Gave an order to Captain Wadsworth, on Mr. Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., for six hundred weight of Powder, for the use of the Minerva on her cruise ; and also gave Captain Wadsworth directions to furnish said Brig with Stores and Provisions for six months.

An Answer is given by his Honour the Governour to a Letter from the President of the Congress of New-York, of the 6th instant, requesting Powder, that we are not able at present to give any aid in that article.

Voted, That an order be drawn in favour of Captain Niles, on the Committee of the Pay Table, for one hundred and fifty Pounds, for the use of the Schooner Spy. (Order given 9th October, by Mr. Huntington.)

The Honourable M. Griswold, Esq., is appointed and commissioned, in behalf of his Honour the Governour, to meet a Committee of the Congress, and other gentlemen, appointed to confer and consult with General Washington, at Cambridge, on the 12th day of October instant, on matters of importance, &c., pursuant to appointment of Congress, &c.

Gave an order to Capt. Jeremiah Wadsworth, on Committee of Pay Table, for two thousand Pounds, in Continental Bills, to be lent to Captain Wadsworth, and be by him replaced.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR-GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp at Cambridge, October 4, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 20th ultimo came safely to hand, and I should have despatched the express much sooner, but Colonel Arnold's expedition is so connected with your operations, that I thought it most proper to detain him till I could give you the fullest account of his progress. This morning the express I sent him returned, and the enclosure No. 1 is a copy of his letter to me. No. 2 is a copy also of a paper sent me, being the report of a reconnoitring party sent out some time ago. You will certainly hear from him soon, as I have given him the strongest injunctions on this head. Enclosed, No. 3, I send you a copy of his instructions. No. 4 is a manifesto, of which I have sent a number with him, to disperse through Canada. He is supplied with one thousand Pounds, lawful money, in specie, to answer his contingent charges.

About eight days ago, a brig, from Quebeck to Boston, was taken and brought into Cape Ann. By some intercepted letters from Captain Gamble to General Gage and Major Shirreff, the account of the temper of the Canadians in the American cause is fully confirmed. The Captain says, that if Quebeck should be attacked before Carleton can throw himself into it, there will be a surrender without firing a shot. We most anxiously hope you will find sufficient employ for Carleton at St. John's and its neighbourhood.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III.

We at last have the echo of Bunker Hill from England. The number of killed and wounded, by General Gage's account, nearly corresponds with what we had, viz: one thousand one hundred. There does not seem the least probability of a change of measures or of Ministers. Gen. Gage is recalled from Boston, and sails to-morrow. He is succeeded by General Howe. We have had no material occurrences since I had the pleasure of writing you last. Our principal employ for the present is preparing for the winter, as there seems to be no probability of an accommodation, or any such decision as to make the present Army less necessary. I also send you a copy of a letter given Col. Arnold, to be communicated to the officers and soldiers.

The accounts we have of your health give us great concern, not only on your own account, but that of the public service, which must suffer in consequence. I shall most sincerely rejoice to hear of your perfect recovery ; and now most fervently wishing you all possible success, honour, and safety, I am, dear Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CAPTAIN DANIEL MORGAN.

Camp at Cambridge, October 4, 1775.

SIR: I write you in consequence of information I have received, that you and the Captains of the Rifle Companies on the detachment against Quebeck, claim an exemption from the command of all the field-officers, except Colonel Arnold. I understand that this claim is founded upon some expressions of mine ; but if you understood me in this way, you are much mistaken in my meaning. My intention is, and ever was, that every officer should command according to his rank. To do otherwise would subvert all military order and authority, which, I am sure, you would not wish or expect. Now the mistake is rectified, I trust you will exert yourself to support my intentions, ever remembering, that by the same rule that you claim an independent command, and break in upon military authority, others will do the same by you, and in consequence the expedition must terminate in shame and disgrace to yourselves, and the reproach and detriment of your Country. To a man of true spirit and military character, further argument is unnecessary. I shall therefore recommend you to preserve the utmost harmony among yourselves, to which a due subordination will much contribute ; and wishing you all health and success, I remain your very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Captain Daniel Morgan, of Rifle Corps.

INSTRUCTIONS TO COLONEL GLOVER AND MR. MOYLAN.

Camp at Cambridge, October 4, 1775.

His Excellency having resolved to equip two armed vessels, has empowered you to negotiate this business, in which the following directions are to be observed :

1st. That the vessels be approved sailers, and as well found as possible.

2d. That you have an appraisement made of them by indifferent people.

3d. That you agree, at as reasonable a rate as you can, for the hire of the vessels, and, if possible, procure the cannon and swivels on loan, and if not, purchase them at the cheapest rate per month.

4th. If you cannot equip them suitably at Salem or Marblehead, one of you proceed to Newburyport, where there are several vessels and sundry cannon provided, suitable for this purpose.

5th. You are, as soon as possible, to send down proper directions for the making of the cartridges and providing ammunition, and a list of what will be wanted.

6th. You are to nominate some suitable person at Cape Ann, Marblehead, and such other place, where any prizes may be sent, as an agent to take care of such prizes, instructing him to give as early information as possible of all captures, and the list of the cargoes, as far as he can do it from papers. These persons, when nominated by you, to receive instructions from Head-Quarters. You are also to settle with them the terms ; and let them be persons of approved good character and known substance. All agreements, &c., to be put in writing.

7th. All contracts entered into by you jointly, when together, or separately in case one should go to Newbury, the General will ratify and confirm.

8th. As soon as either of the vessels are in such forwardness as to be ready to sail in a few days, you are to send notice to Head-Quarters, that the officers and men may march down.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL BENEDICT ARNOLD.
Camp at Cambridge, October 4, 1775.

SIR: I have his Excellency's directions to acknowledge your favour of the 25th September, by Lieutenant Gray. He approves of your disposition, and the order of your march, and hopes you will keep ever in your mind the lateness of the season, and the necessity of making the utmost despatch.

By letters from General Schuyler, of the 20th September, he was at the Isle-aux-Noix, waiting for artillery and supplies of men and provisions. A detachment which he sent to take post between Montreal and St. John's did not behave so well as could be wished, upon which they were called in, and the whole Army is at the above island, where they expect to stay some time, but not probably to exceed a few days.

The accounts of the Canadians and Indians are extremely favourable, and we are every moment in expectation of hearing something decisive. The General begs that you would have as speedy a communication as possible, and that you will inform General Schuyler of all your motions. The General does not recollect exempting the Rifle Companies from the command of all superior officers, and is far from intending any such exemption, as it would naturally give disgust to those officers, and be extremely prejudicial to the service. He has, therefore, wrote himself to Captain Morgan, in such terms as will put an end to this claim. The harmony which prevails among the officers of this detachment is extremely agreeable, and it is hoped that this circumstance will not disturb it. As the honour and success of the enterprise depend on preserving a good agreement among yourselves, his Excellency desires you to cultivate it in every shape.

By a brig from Quebeck for Boston, (taken eight days ago, in three weeks from the former,) we understand that the whole force is drawn from Quebeck to St. John's, and that, in its present situation, it must fall into your hands without firing a shot; that there is a great magazine of powder and other warlike stores at Quebeck, and the French inhabitants and English merchants most favourably disposed to the American cause. We have also some intercepted letters from some officers at Quebeck, to Gen. Gage and others, confirming our former accounts of the Canadians.

We hope this delay by General Schuyler will be a happy circumstance for you, as it may keep Carleton engaged at St. John's; whereas, by his returning from thence, and throwing himself into Quebeck, your enterprise would most probably be defeated. At present there is not a single Regular at Quebeck; nor have they the least suspicion of any danger from any other quarter than Gen. Schuyler.

We have had no remarkable occurrences in our camp. Gen. Gage is ordered home, and sails to-morrow. Gen. Howe succeeds. We have the echo of Bunker's Hill from England, but it does not seem to have wrought any change of men or measures; nor does there appear any disposition of that kind. If any opportunity offers to give us an account of your motions, you will not fail to do it.

Wishing you all possible honour to yourself, and success to your Country, I remain, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

J. REED.

To Colonel Benedict Arnold.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO THE COMMITTEES OF SALEM AND GLOUCESTER.

Camp at Cambridge, October 4, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed by his Excellency General Washington, to inform you that he has referred the disposal of the cargo of the vessel lately taken within your District, to the General Court of this Colony, to whom he has also recommended the brave captors for a suitable compensation. He now proposes to equip the vessels as ships of war, and immediately to send them on a cruise; or, if these vessels are not fit for the service, to exchange them for others, for which purpose he has despatched Colonel Glover; and as it will not only be a protection for the coast, but probably greatly distress the enemy, his Excellency requests your kind assistance to Colonel Glover in managing this business.

I am, by his Excellency's orders, most respectfully,
Gentlemen, your obedient humble servant,
J. REED.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL JOHN GLOVER.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 4, 1775.

SIR: The vote of the General Court is at length received, but in such terms and in such a manner that his Excellency the General does not choose to meddle with either of the vessels. You will, therefore, on receipt of this, take two other vessels, the most suitable for our purpose, upon the best terms you can. Let them be prime sailers, put them into the best order, and lose no time. A great number of transports are hourly expected at Boston, from England and elsewhere. If you cannot equip them with guns suitable from Salem, by going to Newburyport you may find not only a suitable vessel, but have your choice of guns for the purpose. As you may have more men upon your hands than you will be able to manage, Mr. Moylan, the Muster-Master General, is associated with you in this business; and whatever engagements are entered into by you and Mr. Moylan, when you may happen to be together, or by either, in case one goes to Newbury, the General will fully ratify and confirm.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

J. REED.

To Colonel John Glover, Marblehead.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Winter Hill, October 4, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 28th ultimo is now before me. I am extremely sorry that you have had such unexpected trouble about the New-Hampshire Forces. I am well apprized of your original contract, and suppose there would not have been any difficulty, had it not arisen from the adoption of the Army by the Continent, and the general orders for the Colonies to pay their Troops up to the 4th of August; which the other Colonies complying with, and the New-Hampshire neglecting, caused the uneasiness among the soldiers. I suppose the orders were not seasonably made known to you, which may, perhaps, be in some measure my fault; but it being more peculiarly their province to acquaint you, I left it with them, especially as my hurry would scarcely permit me to write a line. I know General Washington thought of paying them off with Continental money; but that not coming to hand, he found a failure of his promise, and disorders would be inevitable, unless some of the Colonies could advance the money for their Troops. He applied to me. I told him I supposed our Colony could do it as well as not, as it would eventually be only exchanging your money for Continental money. He also required that the several Colonies should clear off with those men up to the 4th of August, and after that the Continent was to pay them and reimburse the Colonies. This occasioned the postscript in my letter, in favour of those who went with Colonel Arnold; and sure I am that no difficulty could arise, as the money carries no interest, and you are to receive Continental money for all you advance; therefore, I might well be excused in telling General Washington that New-Hampshire could and would as willingly do it as Connecticut and Rhode-Island. You ask me where the great defect has been. I never said it laid with you, but that there was a defect somewhere; and I think you have, without my assistance, been pleased to point it out.

You say that the general orders were not made known to you, which surely the Committee ought to have done; and had I suspected they would have been deficient in their duty, should, amidst the hurry and confusion I then was in, have done it myself.

You said you understood there were only a few blankets in arrear; which not being the case, the persons in whom you confided must have been deficient in giving you proper information.

You say that Mr. Rollins had orders, in July last, to provide a hundred coats; this was not done, nor has that attention been paid to your order which you might reasonably expect. I hope, therefore, you, gentlemen, will readily agree with me that there was a defect somewhere, and, without my assistance, find where to place it. I should be extremely sorry to have it thought I meant to censure or condemn so respectable a body as the Committee of Safety. I suppose it my duty to write facts as they are; I shall thereby do justice to you, and acquit myself of the charge of indolence and inattention.

I am sorry to find that you have so just a foundation for hinting that some of the officers raise difficulties themselves, and then instil them into the minds of the men. I believe that is too often the case; but from whatever source these difficulties spring, the trouble to me, and dishonour to the Troops, and consequently to the Province, is equally the same. I shall use my endeavours to make the terms you propose in your letter as agreeable as possible to the men, and spare no pains in endeavouring to keep the Troops from troubling you with complaints.

Gentlemen, I am, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

Honourable Committee of Safety.

ADDRESS OF THE JUSTICES OF THE PEACE FOR THE COUNTY OF DEVON.

Address of the Justices, assembled at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, held at the Castle of Exeter, in and for the County of Devon, on the 5th day of October, 1775; presented to His Majesty by Sir Richard Warwicke Bampfylde, Baronet, one of the Representatives of the said County in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of JAS. CARRINGTON, Clerk, Chairman; Sir RICHARD WARWICKE BAMPFYLDE, Baronet; Sir THOMAS D. ACLAND, Baronet; Sir JOHN DUNTZE, Baronet; THOMAS PUTT, PAUL ORCHARD, FRANCIS BASSETT, FRANCIS BULLER, RICHARD INGLET, THOMAS TAYLOR, JAMES PITTMAN, WILLIAM KITSON, JOHN WILLS, JOHN RUSSELL MOORE, Esq's; SAMUEL NEWTE, JOHN CRUWYS, RICHARD LEWIS, GEORGE COOKE, and RICHARD BAWDEN, Clerks, Justices assigned to keep the peace, and to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and misdemeanors, within the County of DEVON, assembled at their General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, held at the Castle of EXETER, in and for the said County, the fifth day of OCTOBER, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

We, your Majesty's very dutiful and loyal subjects, duly sensible of the many blessings which we enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious Government, beg leave to approach your throne, in this alarming crisis of publick affairs, with every testimony of our sincerest duty and affection for your Majesty's sacred person and Government, and to assure your Majesty that, although we cannot divest ourselves of those feelings of humanity which induce us to lament the miseries which our deluded fellow-subjects in America have brought upon themselves by that daring abuse which they have made of your parental tenderness and forbearance towards them, whereby your Majesty has been compelled, much against the benevolent sentiments of your own heart, to make the last appeal, in order to reduce them to their duty. And although we earnestly wish, agreeably to those feelings, to stop the farther effusion of human blood by every conciliating measure which can be devised, consistently with the dignity and safety of the supreme legislative authority of this Realm, yet, as good subjects, we cannot forbear testifying, at this important juncture, our unfeigned readiness to strengthen the hands of Government, by giving every assistance in our power towards accomplishing the most desirable event; that, by the wisdom and firmness of your Councils, you may be able to bring back the misguided inhabitants of your American Dominions to a just sense of their duty, and a peaceable submission to the laws of their Mother Country.

And we should be wanting to ourselves and to our duty, as the guardians of the publick peace, did we pass over in silence, and were we not openly to declare our disapprobation of those associations which have been endeavoured to be procured by circular letters and factious emissaries, dispersed throughout the Kingdom, in order to disturb the peace of your Majesty's Dominions, and in open defiance of your late royal Proclamation; for which daring insult, (big with every mischief,) offered to the powers with which your Majesty is invested for the security of the publick tranquillity, we beseech your Majesty that the propagators and abettors of such insidious measures may be brought to speedy and condign punishment.

And we earnestly supplicate the great Disposer of all things to give stability and success to every constitutional measure, which your Majesty's wisdom and care for your people shall deem necessary, for re-establishing the publick peace and tranquillity of your Colonies; and that you may long continue to reign in the hearts of a dutiful and united people, in the full enjoyment of every earthly blessing, is our most earnest and ardent prayer. By the Court:

JOHN HELLIAH, Clerk of the Peace.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, October 5, 1775.

SIR: The Congress having this day received certain intelligence of the sailing of two north country built brigs, of no force, from England, on the 11th of August last, loaded with six thousand stand of arms, and a very large quantity of powder and other stores, for Quebeck, without convoy; and as it is of great importance, if possible, to intercept them, I am ordered by the Congress to give you this information, and to desire you immediately to apply to the Council of Massachusetts-Bay for two armed vessels in their service, and despatch the same, with a sufficient number of people, stores, and particularly a number of oars, in order, if possible, to intercept said brigs and their cargoes, and secure the same for the use of the Continent. It is also their desire that you give orders to the commanders of the vessels you send on this service, to seize and take any other transports, laden with ammunition, clothing, or other stores, for the use of the Ministerial Army or Navy in America, which they may meet with, and secure them in the most convenient places for the purpose abovementioned.

That you give the commander or commanders such instructions as are necessary, and also proper encouragement to the marines and seamen that shall be sent on this enterprise; that the instructions you shall give be delivered to the commander or commanders, sealed up, with orders not to open the same until out of sight of land, on account of secrecy. If the vessels in the service of the Massachusetts-Bay can be readily obtained, you are to employ them, and others, if you should think more necessary, to effect the purposes aforesaid; if they cannot, you will employ such as can be soonest fitted out. At the same time I am directed to inform you that the Rhode-Island and Connecticut vessels of force, if possible, will be directly sent after, to the assistance of those you send out; for which purpose I write, by order of Congress, to those Governments, by this conveyance.

For the encouragement of the men employed in this service, I am to inform you that the Congress have determined that, on this occasion, the master, officers, and seamen, shall be entitled to one-half of the value of the prizes by them taken; the wages they receive from their respective Colonies notwithstanding. It is farther resolved, that the ships or vessels of war, employed in this service, are to be on the Continental risk and pay during their being thus employed.

For further intelligence I must refer you to the enclosed, which I have not time to copy, as I am ordered immediately to despatch the express.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington.

P. S. The enclosed please to order to be delivered to the Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Philadelphia, October 5, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: It having been represented to the Congress that you have in the employ of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay two armed vessels, and a particular service being recommended to General Washington, the prosecution of which will require those vessels, I am directed by the Congress to inform you that General Washington is instructed to make application to you for those vessels. And I am particularly authorized to desire you will put said vessels, for this service, under the General's command and direction, and that you furnish him instantly with every necessary in your power, at the expense of the Continent; and in case those armed vessels cannot be employed in this service, you are earnestly requested to afford your utmost assistance, in every matter that the General may have occasion to apply to you upon, in the prosecution of the public service.

I have the honour to be, with esteem, &amp;c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.*To the Honourable Members of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

SUSSEX COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, Sussex County, New-Jersey, October 5, 1775.

George McMurtrie, of Hardwick, being brought before this Committee, and charged with having spoke very contemptuously and disrespectfully of the Continental and Provincial Congresses; which being fully proved, it is resolved that the said George McMurtrie be advertised in the public prints as an enemy to his Country, and that no person or persons have any dealings or connection with him until he shall cause an acknowledgment of his fault to be published in one of the New-York or Philadelphia newspapers, on pain of being deemed inimical to the liberties of America. By order of the Committee:

JACOB MCCOLLOM, Chairman pro tem.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF THE CONGRESS.

[Road October 16, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, October 5, 1775.

SIR: Yesterday morning I received a letter from General Montgomery, enclosing sundry papers, copies of which (Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, together with a copy of another letter, No. 6, received this morning, and which was written before that marked No. 1) I now do myself the honour to transmit you.

I am very apprehensive of disagreeable consequences arising from Mr. Allen's imprudence. I always dreaded his impatience of subordination; and it was not until after a solemn promise, made me in the presence of several officers, that he would demean himself properly, that I would permit him to attend the Army; nor would I have consented then, had not his solicitations been backed by several officers.

By the enclosed return, No. 7, Congress will perceive what troops have joined the Army since I left it, and what provisions, &c., have been forwarded to it. The Canadians destroy a great quantity of provisions, and much waste is committed by our people, in despite of every order issued to prevent it. The expense of this article will amaze Congress. However, if the issuing Commissaries had done their duty, and obeyed the orders that were given them by the Commissary-General or me, I should have had it in my power to have detected every Quartermaster, or other, who has drawn a greater quantity of provision than what was due, and the Regiments might have been charged with it.

Such crowds of sick are daily returning from the Army, that although I had thoughts of leaving General Wooster's corps at Albany, I have found it necessary to order them up.

I wish I could comply with General Montgomery's re-

* A letter was at the same time written to Governour Cooke, of Rhode-Island, desiring him to send the armed vessels, belonging to that Colony, on the above enterprise, with the precautions mentioned in the letter to the General.

A like letter was also written to Governour Trumbull, of Connecticut, to employ, under the like precautions, the largest of the armed vessels, belonging to that Colony, on said enterprise.

quisition for ammunition; but I have not an ounce of powder that I can command, nor do I expect any, unless the New-York Congress can send me some, to whom I wrote on the 29th ultimo, by express, and begged they would send five tons, if they could, in row-boats, that no delay might be made.

The Paymaster-General is now here, and very much indisposed indeed. He proposed to resign the employment, as he is apprehensive that he will not be able again to cross the Lakes. I am fully convinced that it will be the case; but as a new appointment during this campaign will be introductory of confusion, I have requested him to return to Albany, and have taken the liberty to give him an order to appoint a Deputy. The Paymaster-General's appointment, I understand, will not afford of his paying a Deputy. I mention this, that Congress may signify their pleasure on the subject.

Should Congress approve of having the troops that are or have been employed in this department paid by rolls, drawn in the form of the enclosed, it will be necessary that I should be furnished with the accounts of what pay only has been advanced to them; for which purpose, an order should go to the Governour of Connecticut, Massachusetts-Bay Congress, that of New-York, and that of New-Hampshire, to furnish me with the accounts, specifying the persons' names to whom money has been advanced by their order.

On further consideration, I find this order will be necessary, even if Congress should not think proper to adopt my mode of payment; for I labour under difficulties in complying with applications for money, as I do not know but I may overrun the mark.

The first one hundred thousand Dollars issued to Mr. Trumbull are expended; and as I shall have large calls on me, from Canada and other quarters, I beg leave to mention the necessity there is of a fresh supply to the military chest in this department.

I am rather better than when I did myself the honour to write you last, having yesterday, for the first time, ventured to ride out two or three hundred yards.

Should I receive your orders to engage troops for the winter service, I propose to give the offers of commissions to the officers of the Army as they stand in rank, unless you direct otherwise, which I hope will be agreeable.

I am, Sir, most respectfully, your Honour's most obedient and most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

[No. 1.]

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp near St. John's, September 28, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Since mine of this morning, I have received a letter from Mr. Livingston, and another from Colonel Warner, who is at La Prairie, acquainting me that Colonel Allen has passed the river to Montreal, or below it, rather, with thirty of our men and fifty Canadians; that he had been attacked by a superior party from the garrison; that he was taken prisoner, two or three killed, and as many more wounded; and that the rest took to their heels. I have to lament Mr. Allen's imprudence and ambition, which urged him to this affair single handed, when he might have had a considerable re-enforcement. I send you all the letters I have had on this subject. The provisions came seasonably, and have given no small relief to my anxiety.

I find there were orders from you, for the removal of the hospital stores. This I knew nothing of when I wrote this morning.

I am exceedingly sorry to hear your recovery does not advance as I could wish it. I am much obliged to you for the sugar and beef, all which has come here safe.

Adieu, &amp;c., &amp;c.,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

To General Schuyler.

[No. 2.]

JAMES LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

Camp at Point Olivée, near Chambly, Sept. 27, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have sent you four men, who will engage to bring you two or three pieces of cannon down the rapids, in a batteau, at night. This is of great consequence; and while you are bombarding the fort at St. John's, we may do the like at Chambly. A small guard might be sent to Mr. Hazen's, in case they should be attacked by batteaus from St. John's.

Colonel Allen crossed over from Longueil the day before yesterday, to attack the Town, with a party of his men and Canadians. General Prescott, hearing of his coming, engaged a number of people from the suburbs, at a half joe per man, to go out against Allen. They met near a league from town, when a smart engagement ensued, which lasted upwards of two hours. They had two field-pieces, and our party, after a long engagement, were obliged to retire, though the enemy, by all accounts, came off second best. I have sent off Mr. O'Hara, express, to Longueil, to learn the true state of this battle. The Canadians that have returned to me, from the battle, agree, in general, that Mr. Allen is either dead or taken prisoner. This, if true, is a blow upon us. To-morrow we propose to have a consultation at Longueil. Our greatest misfortune is the want of ammunition. Mr. Allen should never have attempted to attack the Town without my knowledge, or acquainting me of his design, as I had it in my power to furnish him with a number of men. This retreat of our men may be a hurt to us, and weaken our party. I have just sent down the river for a re-enforcement, and will keep them ready against the arrival of your cannon. I could wish to make a bold push against the Town, though nothing can be done without cannon. I hope your batteries are ready to play against St. John's by this time.

If you write to the Congress soon, you will be kind enough to recommend me to them as your goodness may direct you. Whenever my Country calls upon me to its assistance, I shall be always ready to do my duty. I could wish this Province was already united to the others, and cannot expect much peace until that takes place.

I am, with the greatest esteem, yours, &c.,

JAMES LIVINGSTON.

To General Montgomery.

P. S. Since my writing this, my guards have taken several prisoners, and have examined them separately. They all agree that St. John's cannot hold out long. Your bombs and cannon do mighty execution. Above thirty of the Canadians have deserted from there, and the remainder wait a proper opportunity. I find they intend pushing their way through our intrenchment this side St. John's, with some pieces of cannon, to get to Chambly, and from thence to Quebeck. You will be kind enough to put Colonel Bedel upon his guard, to prevent their passing his intrenchment, and recall his force from La Prairie.

[No. 3.]

COLONEL SETH WARNER TO GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

La Prairie, September 27, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: I have the disagreeable news to write you, that Colonel Allen hath met with a defeat, by a stronger force, which sallied out from the Town of Montreal, after he had crossed the river, about a mile below the Town. I have no certain knowledge, as yet, whether he is killed, taken, or fled; but his defeat hath put the French people into great consternation. They are much concerned, for fear of a company coming over against us. Furthermore, the Indian chiefs were at Montreal at the time of Allen's battle, and there were a number of the Caughnawaga Indians in the battle against Allen, and the people are very fearful of the Indians. There were six in here last night, I suppose sent as spies. I asked the Indians concerning their appearing against us in every battle; their answer to me was, that Carleton made them drunk, and drove them to it; but they said they would do so no more.

I should think it proper to keep a party at Longueil, and my party is not big enough to divide. If I must tarry here, I should be glad of my Regiment, for my party is made up with different Companies in different Regiments, and my regulation is not so good as I could wish, for subordination to your orders is my pleasure.

I am, Sir, with submission, your humble servant,

SETH WARNER.

To General Montgomery.

[No. 4.]

MAJOR TIMOTHY BEDEL TO GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

Camp near St. John's, September 28, 1775.

SIR: I am this moment informed by some of our men, just arrived from La Prairie, of the defeat of Col. Allen and his party. I cannot understand that we have had any great loss; some few slightly wounded. Colonel Allen is either killed or taken prisoner. Some of the principal merchants who came out of Montreal are killed, and some wounded. We had not above thirty of our men there, and about sixty of the Canadians. I understand there were not above fifty men that had arms; and a considerable number of Canadians came out, with some Regulars. I am sorry things were not done more prudently, Sir.

I have just now received a letter from Esq. Livingston, who informs me that he has taken some prisoners; that the deserters from the fort amount to thirty men, and that a considerable number wait for an opportunity; and the prisoners inform him that their intentions are to force our breastworks with two or three pieces of cannon. You know our strength here; for God's sake, pray send me a party of Easton's Regiment, as I cannot, as affairs stand, draw the party from La Prairie. I shall leave it to your Honour what you think is best, but should be glad of a re-enforcement. We have a great many sick.

I am, Sir, your much esteemed friend and humble servant,

TIMOTHY BEDEL.

To General Montgomery.

P. S. A party must be kept at La Prairie and Longueil, for the security of those who have been our friends; otherwise, we may expect that trouble will come upon them, and then of course they will be our enemies. A little cash we must have; Warner wants money, and we cannot do without.

[No. 5.]

NOTE FROM SETH WARNER.

This moment arrived from Colonel Allen's defeat, Captain Duggan, with the following intelligence: Col. Allen is absolutely taken captive into Montreal, with a few more, and about two or three killed, and about as many wounded. The living are not all come in. Something of a slaughter made among the King's troops.

From yours to serve,

SETH WARNER.

[No. 6.]

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp near St. John's, September 28, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Since my last of the 24th, we have opened a battery, of two twelve-pounders, upon the ship-yards and schooner. She was obliged immediately to haul near the wharf, or rather as near the north end of the fort as she could go. This battery is screened from the guns of the fort by an epaulement, in a good measure. I fear I have neither men nor ammunition to carry on any attack with success, to which purpose it would be absolutely necessary to occupy a very advantageous piece of rising ground on the west side, and there erect my batteries, to reach their defences. The largest of the mortars is useless, and on the mortars I principally depended for distressing the garrison.

The weather has been and still is so exceeding bad, and the encampment so swampy, that I feel exceedingly for the Troops, and withal provision so scanty (flour as well as pork) that it will require not only good fortune, but despatch, to keep us from distress. I hope the thirteen-inch mortar and more powder are on the way. Allen, Warner, and Brown, are at La Prairie and Longueil, with a party of our troops, and some Canadians; how many I cannot tell. They speak well of the good disposition of the Canadians. They have a project of making an attempt on Montreal. I fear the troops are not fit for it. Mr. Carleton has certainly left that Town, and it is in a very defenceless situation.

As this garrison is shut up, I hope the Kennebeck expedition will meet with no obstruction in the attack upon Quebeck. Should things not go well, I tremble for the fate of the poor Canadians, who have ventured so much. What shall I do with them, should we be obliged to evacuate the country? though I hope this will not be the case. If possible, do not let us want ammunition, my dear General.

I have seen Mr. Livingston; he has a considerable body of Canadians in arms at Chambly; is very active, and they have great confidence in him, I believe. I wish to have him taken notice of by the Congress, in a manner suitable to his services and the risk he runs.

I am, my dear Sir, &c., &c.,

To General Schuyler.

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

P. S. I send ten boats, manned with the naked and lazy. The enemy have launched a row-galley.

[No. 7.]

Return of Men sent northward since the one hundred and forty of EASTON's, mentioned in my Letter of 19th inst.

Colonel McDougall's New-Yorkers, 123, officers included; Col. Warner's, 132; Col. Clinton's, 402; total, 657.

About 350 of the men took twenty days' provision, the others eight days'.

Provisions: 341 barrels of pork; 29 do. beef; 416 do. flour; 48 do. rum; 4 tierces rice; 7 firkins butter; 5 barrels of sugar; 1 do. vinegar; 2 boxes chocolate.

Ammunition: 3,650 pounds of powder; 4 boxes of musket ball; 200 ball, twelve-pounders; 200 ball, six-pounders; 90 shells, five inch diameter; 30 shells, seven inch diameter; 1 mortar and bed, thirteen inch diameter; 120 fuses; 43 bunches grape-shot; 4 bushels grape-shot; 4 oil cloths.

STAMFORD (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Inspection and Observation, held in Stamford, on Thursday, the 5th day of October, 1775:

Personally appeared Obadiah Seely, Jun., and Gideon Lounsberry; they having been cited to appear before said Committee, for speaking disrespectfully of the honourable Continental Congress, and in many other instances acting inimically to the liberties of America; and after hearing the evidence brought against them, the Committee aforesaid proceeded to pass sentence, and, agreeable to the directions of said Congress, resolved to hold up said Seely and Lounsberry to publick view, as enemies to the liberties of their Country; hereby recommending it to all, to break off all commerce, dealings, and connection with them.

Ordered, That the Clerk send a copy of the above Resolve, to be inserted in the New-York Journal.

A true copy from the Minutes:

JOHN HAIT, JUN., Com. Clerk.

I acknowledge I have at several times spoken in favour of the laws of taxation, and against the measures pursued by America to procure redress, and have thereby justly merited the displeasure of my Country, and for which I beg forgiveness, and do solemnly promise to submit to the rules of the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and that I never will speak or act in opposition to their order, but will conduct according to their directions, to the utmost of my power; and this I desire should be published in the publick prints.

LEMUEL BOWER.

GENERAL HOWE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Boston, October 5, 1775.

By the arrival of the Cerberus, on the 26th ultimo, I am honoured with your Lordship's despatch of the 2d day of August, enclosing a commission, whereby I am appointed, in the absence of Lieutenant-General Gage, to command in chief all His Majesty's Forces employed or to be employed within the Colonies lying on the Atlantick Ocean.

Your Lordship may rely upon my utmost endeavours to forward His Majesty's service in the important department with which I am honoured; and I enter upon it with greater cheerfulness, from the knowledge I have of the superior abilities of Major-Generals Clinton and Burgoyne, upon whose support and assistance I can place the best grounded confidence in every difficulty that may arise.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ROBERT C. NICHOLAS.

Camp at Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 8th ultimo came to my hands on the 2d instant, by Mr. Byrd. I return you sincere thanks for your kind congratulation on my appointment to the honourable and important post I now hold, by the suffrages of this great Continent. My heart will ever bear testimony of my gratitude for the distinguished mark of honour which has been conferred on me by this appointment, as it also will of my wishes that so important a trust had been placed in the hands of a person of greater experience and abilities than mine. I feel the weight of my charge too sensibly not to make this declaration; at the same time I must add, that I do not want to withdraw my services, within the compass of my power, from the cause we are nobly engaged in.

Mr. Byrd shall not want for his pay whilst he is in this camp; although, as I have no cash of my own here, and charge the publick with my expenses only, I shall be a little at a loss to know in what manner to advance it with propriety. Bills of exchange would answer no end here, as we have not the means of negotiating them; but if you would place the money in the hands of Messieurs Willing & Morris, of Philadelphia, (either in specie, Continental, Maryland, or Pennsylvania paper,) they could easily remit or draw for it. But, at any rate, make yourself easy, as Mr. Byrd shall not want to the amount of his pay.

By an intelligent person out of Boston, the day before yesterday, we are informed that a small fleet consisting of a sixty-four gun ship, a twenty gun, two sloops of eighteen guns, and two transports, with about six hundred men, were to sail on yesterday from that harbour. They took on board two mortars, four howitzers, and other artillery; from which we suspect they intend to bombard some Town on the coast. He also informs us that General Gage is recalled; that General Howe commands in his place; that the account of the action on Bunker's Hill, as transmitted by the former, is returned, and corresponds pretty much with ours, as to killed and wounded; and that the last accounts from England, by a ship just arrived, leave no room to believe there will be an accommodation soon.

The enemy in Boston and on the heights of Charlestown (two peninsulas, surrounded in a manner by ships of war and floating batteries) are so strongly fortified as to render it almost impossible to force their lines, which are thrown up at the head of each neck; without great slaughter on our side, or cowardice on theirs, it is absolutely so. We, therefore, can do no more than keep them besieged, which they are, to all intents and purposes, as close as any Troops upon earth can be, that have an opening to the sea. Our advanced works and theirs are within musket shot. We daily undergo a cannonade, which has done no injury to our works, and very little hurt to our men. Those insults we are obliged to submit to, for want of powder, being obliged (except now and then giving them a shot) to reserve what we have for closer work than cannon distance.

My respectful compliments to Mrs. Nicholas and the rest of your fireside, and to any inquiring friends. Conclude me, with grateful thanks for the prayers and good wishes you have been pleased to offer on my account,

Dear Sir, your most affectionate and obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Robert C. Nicholas, Virginia.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 13, 1775.]

Camp at Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

SIR: I was honoured with your favour of the 26th ult. late the night before last, and a meeting of the General Officers having been called, upon a business which will make a considerable part of this letter, I took the opportunity of laying before them those parts of yours which respect the continuance and new modelling the Army, the fuel, clothing, and other preparations for the ensuing winter. They have taken two or three days to consider, and as soon as I am possessed of their opinions I shall lose no time in transmitting the result, not only on the above subjects, but the number of Troops necessary to be kept up. I have also directed the Commissary-General and the Quartermaster-General to prepare estimates of the expense of their departments, for a certain given number of men, from which a judgment may be made, when the number of men to be kept in pay is determined. All which I shall do myself the honour to lay before the Congress, as soon as they are ready.

I have now a painful though a necessary duty to perform, respecting Dr. Church, Director-General of the Hospital. About a week ago, Mr. Secretary Ward, of Providence, sent up to me one Wainwood, an inhabitant of Newport, with a letter directed to Major Kane, in Boston, in characters, which he said had been left with Wainwood some time ago, by a woman who was kept by Dr. Church. She had before pressed Wainwood to take her to Captain Wallace, Mr. Dudley, (the Collector,) or George Rome, which he declined. She then gave him the letter, with a strict charge to deliver it to either of those gentlemen; he, suspecting some improper correspondence, kept the letter, and after some time opened it; but not being able to read it, laid it up, where it remained until he received an obscure letter from the woman, expressing an anxiety after the original letter. He then communicated the whole matter to Mr. Ward, who sent him up with the papers to me. I immediately secured the woman, but for a long time she was proof against every threat and persuasion to discover the author. However, at length she was brought to a confession, and warned Dr. Church. I then immediately secured him, and all his papers. Upon the first examination, he readily acknowledged the letter; said it was designed for his brother Fleming, and, when deciphered, would be found to contain nothing criminal; he acknowledged his never having communicated the correspondence to any person here, but the girl, and made many protestations of the purity of his intentions. Having found a person capable of deciphering the letter, I in the mean time had all his papers searched, but found nothing criminal among them. But it appeared, on inquiry, that a confidant had been among the papers before my messenger arrived; I then called the General Officers together, for their advice, the result of which you will find in the enclosure No. 1; the deciphered letter is the enclosure No. 2. The Army and Country are exceedingly irritated, and upon a free discussion of the nature, circumstances, and consequence of this matter, it has been unanimously agreed to lay it before the honourable Congress, for their special advice and direction; at the same time suggesting to their consideration, whether an alteration of the twenty-eighth article of war may not be necessary.

As I shall reserve all farther remarks upon the state of the Army till my next, I shall now beg leave to request the determination of Congress as to the property and disposal of such vessels and cargoes as are designed for the supply of the enemy, and may fall into our hands. There has been an event of this kind at Portsmouth, as by the enclosure No. 3, in which I have directed the cargo to be brought hither for the use of the Army, reserving the settlement of any claims of capture to the decision of Congress.

As there are many unfortunate individuals whose property has been confiscated by the enemy, I would humbly suggest to the consideration of Congress the humanity of applying, in part or in the whole, such captures to the relief of those sufferers, after compensating any expense of the captors, and for their activity and spirit. I am the more induced to request this determination may be speedy, as I have directed three vessels to be equipped, in order to cut off the supplies; and, from the number of vessels hourly arriving, it may become an object of some importance. In the disposal of these captures, for the encouragement of the officers and men, I have allowed them one-third of the cargoes, except military stores, which, with the vessels, are to be reserved for the publick use. I hope my plan, as well as the execution, will be favoured with the approbation of Congress.

One Mr. Fisk, an intelligent person, came out of Boston on the 3d instant, and gives us the following advices: that a fleet, consisting of a sixty-four and twenty gun ship, two sloops of eighteen guns, two transports, with six hundred men, were to sail from Boston on yesterday; that they took on board two mortars, four howitzers, and other artillery, calculated for the bombardment of a Town; their destination was kept a profound secret; that an express sloop-of-war, which left England the 8th of August, arrived four days ago; that General Gage is recalled, and last Sunday resigned his command to General Howe; that Lord Percy, Colonel Smith, and other officers who were at Lexington, are ordered home with Gage; that six ships of the line, and two cutters, were coming out under Sir Peter Dennis; that five Regiments and one thousand Marines are ordered out, and may be expected in three or four weeks. No prospect of accommodation, but the Ministry determined to push the war to the utmost.

I have an express from Colonel Arnold, and herewith send a copy of his letter and an enclosure, Nos. 4 and 5. I am happy in finding he meets with no discouragement; the claim of the Rifle officers to be independent of all the superior officers, except Colonel Arnold, is without any countenance or authority from me, as I have signified in my last despatch, both to Colonel Arnold and Captain Morgan. The Captain of the brig from Quebeck for Boston informs me that there is no suspicion of any such expedition; and that if Carleton is not drove from St. John's, so as to be obliged to throw himself into Quebeck, it must fall into our hands, as it is without a regular soldier, and many of the inhabitants most favourably disposed to the American cause. That there is the largest stock of ammunition ever collected in America. In the above vessels, some letters were also found, from an officer at Quebeck to General Gage and Major Shirreff, at Boston, containing such an account of the temper of the Canadians as cannot but afford the highest satisfaction. I have thought it best to forward them; they are the enclosures Nos. 6 and 7.

I am, with the greatest respect and regard, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

[No. 1.]

At a Council of War held at Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 3, 1775, present:

His Excellency General Washington; Major Generals Ward, Lee, and Putnam; Brigadier-Generals Spencer, Heath, Sullivan, Greene, and Thomas; Adjutant-General Gates.

The General communicated to this Board a discovery of a correspondence carried on with the enemy by Dr. Church, by Letter in characters, which was deciphered by the Rev. Mr. West, and laid the said Letter before the Members of the Council.

After considering and discussing the matter, it was determined to adjourn till to-morrow, and then that Dr. Church be examined.

October 4.—The Council of War met. Present as before.

Dr. Church being sent for, and shown the Letter in characters, was asked, whether the said Letter was written by him; to which he answered, he believed it was. He was shown the explanation of said Letter, as deciphered, and asked whether it was a true one; to which he answered in the affirmative. Dr. Church then explained his intention in writing said Letter, as calculated to impress the enemy with a strong idea of our strength and situation, in order to prevent an attack at a time when the Continental Army was in great want of ammunition, and in hopes of effecting some speedy accommodation of the present dispute, and made solemn asseverations of his innocence.

The General then asked the opinion of the Council, severally, whether it did not appear that Dr. Church had carried on a criminal correspondence with the enemy; to which they unanimously answered in the affirmative.

The question was then proposed, and discussed, what were the proper steps to be taken with respect to him; and, after examining the articles of the Continental Army, and particularly the articles twenty-eight and fifty-one, it was determined, from the enormity of the crime, and the very inadequate punishment pointed out, that it should be referred to the General Congress, for their special direction; and that in the mean time he be closely confined, and no person visit him but by special direction.

[No. 2.]

DOCTOR CHURCH'S INTERCEPTED LETTER.

I hope this will reach you. Three attempts have I made without success. In effecting the last, the man was discovered in attempting his escape; but fortunately my letter was sewed in the waistband of his breeches. He was confined a few days, during which time you may guess my feelings; but a little art and a little cash settled the matter.

'Tis a month since my return from Philadelphia; I went by the way of Providence, to visit mother. The Committee for warlike stores made me a formal tender of twelve pieces of cannon, eighteen and twenty-four pounders; they having taken a previous resolution to make the offer to Gen. Ward. To make a merit of my services, I sent them down; and when they received them, they sent them to Stoughton, to be out of danger, even though they had formed the resolution, as I before hinted, of fortifying Bunker's Hill, which, together with the cowardice of the clumsy Colonel Gerrish and Colonel Scammons, was the lucky occasion of their defeat. This affair happened before my return from Philadelphia. We lost one hundred and sixty-five killed then, and since dead of their wounds; one hundred and twenty now lie wounded; the chief will recover. They boast you have fourteen hundred killed and wounded in that action. You say the Rebels lost fifteen hundred, I suppose with equal truth. The people of Connecticut are raving in the cause of liberty. A number from this Colony, from the Town of Stamford, robbed the King's stores at New-York, with some small assistance the New-Yorkers lent them; these were growing turbulent. I counted two hundred and eighty pieces of cannon, from twenty-four to three-pounders, at Kingsbridge, which the Committee had secured for the use of the Colonies. The Jerseys are not a whit behind Connecticut in zeal. The Philadelphians exceed them both. I saw twenty-two hundred men in review there by General Lee, consisting of Quakers and other inhabitants, in uniform, with one thousand Riflemen and forty Horse, who, together, made a most warlike appearance. I mingled freely and frequently with the members of the Continental Congress; they were united, determined in opposition, and appeared assured of success. Now, to come home. The opposition is become formidable. Eighteen thousand men, brave and determined, with Washington and Lee at their head, are no contemptible enemy. Adjutant Gen. Gates is indefatigable in arranging the Army. Provisions are very plenty; clothes are manufacturing in almost every Town for the soldiers. Twenty tons of powder lately arrived at Philadelphia, Connecticut, and Providence; upwards of twenty tons are now in camp. Saltpetre is made in every Colony. Powder Mills are erected, and constantly employed, in Philadelphia and New-York. Volunteers, of the first fortunes, are daily flocking to the camp; one thousand Riflemen in two or three days. Recruits are now levying, to augment the Army to twenty-two thousand men. Ten thousand Militia are appointed in this Government, to appear on the first summons. The bills of all the Colonies circulate freely, and are readily exchanged for cash; add to this, that unless some plan of accommodation takes place immediately, these harbours will swarm with privateers; an army will be raised in the Middle Provinces, to take possession of Canada. For the sake of the miserable convulsed Empire, solicit peace, repeal the acts, or Britain is undone. This advice is the result of warm affection to my King and to the Realm. Remember I never deceived you; every article here sent you is sacredly true. The papers will announce to you that I am again a Member for Boston; you will there see our motley Council. A general arrangement of officers will take place, except the chief, which will be suspended but for a little while, to see what part Britain takes in consequence of the late Continental petition. A view to independence grows more and more general. Should Britain declare war against the Colonies, they are lost forever. Should Spain declare against England, the Colonies will declare a neutrality, which will doubtless produce an offensive and defensive league between them. For God's sake, prevent it by a speedy accommodation. Writing this has employed a day. I have been to Salem to reconnoitre, but could not escape the geese in the capitol; to-morrow I set out for Newport, on purpose to send you this. I write you fully, it being scarcely possible to escape discovery. I am out of place here, by choice, and therefore out of pay, and determined to be so unless something is offered in my way. I wish you could contrive to write me largely in cipher, by the way of Newport, addressed to Thomas Richards, merchant. Enclose it in a cover to me, intimating that I am a perfect stranger to you; but being recommended to you as a gentleman of honour, you took the liberty to enclose that letter, entreating me to deliver it as directed; the person, as you are informed, being at Cambridge. Sign some fictitious name. This you may send to some confidential friend at Newport, to be delivered to me at Watertown. Make use of every precaution, or I perish.

A true copy: compared by ELSHA PORTER.

[No. 3.]

Portsmouth, October 2, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: The Ship Prince George, Richard Emmes, master, which left Bristol the 19th of July last, loaded with eighteen hundred and eighty barrels and twenty-four half-barrels of flour, for the supply of General Gage's Army, was taken possession of by our people this day, as she entered the harbour, which the master says was through mistake. We think it our duty to acquaint your Excellency with this matter, and that we have ordered the ship to the wharf, having unbent her sails, and appointed a sufficient guard on board to prevent any embezzlement. The master, yesterday morning, spoke with the Raven, sloop-of-war, from England, bound to Boston, which had been out ten weeks. This Committee have examined all the letters and papers brought by Captain Emmes, and find they contain nothing material.

I am, with due respect, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant.

By order of the Committee of Safety:

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

His Excellency General Washington.

[No. 4.]

Fort Weston, September 25, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: My last, of the 19th instant, from Newburyport, advising of the embarkation of the Troops, I make no doubt your Excellency received. The same day we left Newbury, and arrived safe in the river the next morning, except a small vessel which run on the rocks, but is since off, without damage, and arrived safe. I found the batteaus completed, but many of them smaller than the directions given, and very badly built; of course, I have been obliged to order twenty more, to bring on the remainder of the provisions, which will be finished in three days. Many of the vessels were detained in the river, by running aground and head winds, which delayed us a day or two. The 23d inst., I despatched Lieutenant Steele, of Captain Smith's Company, with six men, in two birch canoes, to Chaudiere Pond, to reconnoitre and get all the intelligence he possibly could from the Indians, who, I find, are hunting there. The same day I despatched Lieutenant Church and seven men, with a surveyor and pilot, to take the exact courses and distance to the Dead River, so called, a branch of the Kennebeck; and yesterday the three Companies of Riflemen, under the command of Captain Morgan, embarked, with forty-five days' provisions, as an advanced party, to clear the roads over the carrying places. Colonel Green and Major Bigelow march to-day with the second division of three Companies. Major Meigs goes off to-morrow with the third division, and Colonel Enos the next day with the remainder. As soon as the whole are embarked, I propose taking a birch canoe and joining the advanced party. I have found it necessary to divide the detachment, for the convenience of passing the carrying places; at the first of which there are some carriages to be procured. I design Chaudiere Pond as a general rendezvous, and from thence to march in a body. Enclosed is a letter to Mr. Colburn, from the party sent to Quebeck, by which your Excellency will see all the intelligence I have received. I have conversed with the party, who saw only one Indian, (one Nattarius,) a native of Norridgewock, a noted villain, and very little credit, I am told, is to be given to his information.

The Indians, with Higgins, set out by land, and are not yet arrived. I have engaged a number of good pilots, and believe, by the best information I can procure, we shall be able to perform the march in twenty days; the distance is about one hundred and eighty miles. I intended Colonel Green should have gone on with the first division of one Company of Riflemen, and two Companies of Musketeers. This was objected to by the Captains of the Rifle Companies, who insist on being commanded by no other person than Captain Morgan and myself. This, Captain Morgan tells me, was your Excellency's intention; but as I was not made acquainted with it before I came away, I should be very glad of particular instructions on that head, that I may give satisfaction to the field-officers with me. There is at present the greatest harmony among the officers, and no accident happened, except the loss of one man, supposed to be wilfully shot by a private, who is now taking his trial by a Court-Martial.

Major Mifflin could not send money for the batteaus. The Commissary has been obliged to pay for them, with one hundred Pounds I have lent him, out of the pay received for the month of September, and has been obliged to draw an order in favour of the bearer, Mr. John Wood, who has engaged to deliver this to your Excellency. I have promised him his time and expenses paid. I should be glad the manifestoes might be forwarded on by him, if not sent, with the last intelligence from General Schuyler, to whom I intend sending one of the Indians as soon as they arrive.

I have the honour to be, very respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To his Excellency General Washington.

P. S. Since writing the foregoing, I have received a letter from Colonel Reed, with the manifestoes, and the Court-Martial have condemned the man, who shot the other, to be hanged; which sentence I have approved, but have respited him until your Excellency's pleasure in the matter is known, and design sending him back in one of the transports; enclosed are all the papers relative to the matter, with his confession at the gallows, before respited. The three first divisions of my detachment are gone forward; the last goes to-morrow, when I shall join Captain Morgan as soon as possible; and am, with much respect, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

[No. 5.]

Vassalborough, September 13, 1775.

SIR: In compliance with your orders, I proceeded with Mr. Berry on our intended journey to Quebeck, as follows: Friday, September 1st, we sat out, and got, on Saturday 2d, to Howard's, at Skowhegin Falls, twenty-four miles distance; rainy weather. Sunday, 3d, we arrived at Norridge-wock, twelve miles distance; rainy weather. Monday, 4th, we arrived at Carratuncas Falls, eighteen miles distance; swift water and shoal. Tuesday, 5th, we reached the great carrying place, water shoal and swift, distance eighteen miles. Wednesday, 6th, we got to the third pond, in the great carrying place, distance nine miles. Thursday, 7th, we arrived at an Indian camp, thirty miles up Dead River; good water. Here we got intelligence of an Indian, that he was stationed there by Gov. Carleton, as a spy, to watch the motions of an Army or spies that was daily expected from New-England; that there were spies on the head of Chaudiere River; and down the river, some distance, there was stationed a regular officer and six privates. He positively declared that, if we proceeded any farther, he would give information of his suspicions of our designs, as otherwise he should betray the trust reposed in him. But, notwithstanding his threats, we thought it of moment to get all possible intelligence, and went, the 8th, thirty miles up the river aforesaid; but finding the water pretty shoal, and meeting with nothing new, we returned to the camp. Upon our first arrival at the camp, our Indian pilot thought it dangerous to proceed any farther, and declined going with us. In the time of our absence he conferred with an Indian squaw, of whom we got intelligence that all the young Indians from that quarter had gone to Johnson, but the Indian had a commission from Carleton; that at Shettican, the uppermost settlement on Chaudiere River, there was a great number of Mohawks, that would have destroyed us if we had proceeded; and that the spy hourly expected the arrival of three canoes of Indians. We found the carrying places pretty passable; the water, in general, shoal, on account of the late dry season. The trees were well marked, as far as we went, and the way is so direct as may be easily found.

Thus far, Sir, agreeable to your orders, and to the utmost of our power, have we proceeded on our intended tour; and are, with esteem, Sir, your humble servants,

DENNIS GETCHELL,
SAMUEL BERRY.

Mr. REUBEN COLBURN:

SIR: The above is a copy of a letter I draughted for the above gentlemen, and, at the request of Mr. Getchell, I now send it by the bearer; and am, Sir, yours, &c.,

REMINGTON HOBBY.

Memorandum.—Reuben Colburn, by whose direction this party was sent out, acted under the orders of General Washington, in order to see what were the obstacles Col. Arnold would be likely to meet on his way to Quebeck.

J. REED.

[No. 6.]

Quebeck, September 6, 1775.

SIR: I have the honour to inform your Excellency that, by General Carleton's orders, I have taken up a vessel to transport a quantity of cattle, sheep, &c., as a present, from the Province of Quebeck, to the sick and wounded soldiers of His Majesty's Forces at Boston; bills of lading for which, together with the charter-party, I have enclosed to Major Shirreff. I still continue to send, by order of General Carleton, as many bullocks and sheep as the deck of each transport will contain, which I hope meets with your Excellency's approbation. I could wish the cattle were better, but in general they are very poor and small in this country. General Carleton has given me directions to contract for some forage, in order to be in readiness to load the transports he expects you will send to Quebeck this fall; and I am in hopes I shall be able to procure a quantity of oats and hay time enough to despatch the transports you may think proper to send.

I hope you will pardon me for reminding you of my situation, my length of service, and pretensions as an officer, I took the liberty to set forth in a memorial I transmitted to your Excellency by the last transport that sailed; and I shall only add that, when a proper opportunity offers, I hope you will take the prayer of it into consideration, and grant me either the purchase of a Company, or one in a new corps, whichever your Excellency shall think most proper. No prospect yet of the Militia being embodied here, nor do I think they will. General Carleton, I am apt to think, is afraid to give the order, lest they should refuse to obey; and I believe this year will pass over without the Canadians doing any thing in favour of Government. This day's post has brought an account that the Rebels have taken post at Point-au-Fer, with a body of troops; if so, they may have thoughts of advancing into this Province. Two small vessels of ours were launched at St. John's yesterday. We are told here that Mr. Schuyler is building four at Ticonderoga. In short, Sir, you must look for no diversion (in favour of the Army immediately under your Excellency's command) this year from Canada, the language here being only to defend the Province; and it is generally thought here, that if the Rebels were to push forward a body of four or five thousand men, the Canadians would lay down their arms and not fire a shot. I hope you will pardon my thus writing so freely, and not impute it to presumption, as it is merely intended to let your Excellency into a true state of facts, as from many other quarters you may have interested accounts.

I have the honour to be, with the utmost respect, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

THOMAS GAMBLE.

To His Excellency General Gage.

[No. 7.]

Quebeck, September 6, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I enclose you a charter-party for a vessel, taken up by order of Major-General Carleton, to transport some live stock, purchased by a contribution in this Province, for the use of the sick and wounded soldiers of His Majesty's Forces at Boston; also, bills of lading. The vessel belongs to Tom Dunn, your old friend, though chartered by Mr. Grant; and I am to beg you will do every good office in your power to the master, either by employing the vessel, should he return this fall to Quebeck, or by assisting him to get out of the port of Boston with a little pitch and tar, with wine, candles, and some other articles that are much wanted here. The freight Mr. Dunn begs you will pay at Boston, as per agreement with Mr. Grant, to enable the master to purchase a cargo at your port, as it was the hopes of making something, by the profits of her cargo back, that induced Dunn and Grant to let me have her; and it makes no difference to the Crown whether it is paid at Boston or by me here; in short, Dunn writes to you on the subject, and to his letter I refer you.

The Rebels have taken post at Point-au-Fer, and an invasion of the Province is expected. Should that take place, I am apt to think the Canadians will lay down their arms and not fire a shot. Their minds are all poisoned by emissaries from New-England, and the damned rascals of merchants here and at Montreal. General Carleton is, I believe, afraid to order out the Militia, lest they should refuse to obey. In short, the Quebeck Bill is of no use; on the contrary, the Canadians talk of that damned absurd word liberty.

Mr. Dunn desires me to mention to you a Captain Venture, who comes out with a ship from London. If you can be of any use to him, he will take it as a particular favour; he would be fit to command an armed vessel.

In one of my former letters I begged you would remember my brother. If you can serve him in the commissary way, I shall ever acknowledge it. He is from Albany. Mr. Porter knows where he is, at Burlington, New-Jersey. I am sure you will excuse this application. It will be hard if you and my friend Chamier cannot, between you, do something for him. I can venture to promise he is capable, and he has promised me not to be lazy.

Remember me to all with you, and believe me yours, very sincerely,

THOMAS GAMBLE.

To Major Shirreff, Deputy Quartermaster-General.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 1, 1775.

(Parole, Hampton.)

(Countersign, Ireland.)

The Colonels and Commanding Officers of Corps are, upon application from the Quartermaster-General, immediately to employ, under his direction, all the Carpenters in their several Regiments, to erect Barracks for the Regiments and Corps they respectively belong to.

Lieutenant Cummings, of Captain Dow's Company, in Colonel Prescott's Regiment, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Col. Hitchcock was President, for "misbehaviour in the action upon Bunker's Hill." The Court are unanimously of opinion the prisoner is not guilty of the charge, and the complaint appears to the Court to be groundless and malicious. The General approves the proceedings of the Court, and orders Lieutenant Cummings to be immediately released from his arrest.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 3, 1775.

(Parole, Malden.)

(Countersign, Norfolk.)

Any Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer, or Soldier, who shall hereafter be detected playing at toss up, pitch and hustle, or any other games of chance, in or near the camp and villages bordering on the encampments, shall, without delay, be confined and punished for disobedience of orders.

[The General does not mean, by the above order, to discourage sports of exercise and recreation; he only means to discountenance and punish gaming.]

Doctor Isaac Foster to take the direction and superintendency of the General Hospital until further orders, and is to be obeyed as Director during that time.

Ensign Proctor, of Captain Fletcher's Company, in Colonel Doolittle's Regiment, tried at a late General Court-Martial for "absenting himself from his Regiment, from the 9th of August to the 27th September following." The Court find the prisoner guilty of the crime, and order him to be mulcted one month's pay for his offence.

John Gallop, of Captain Williams's Company, in Colonel Patterson's Regiment, tried at the above Court-Martial for "absenting himself from his Regiment from the 27th of June to the 27th September following, and carrying off and disposing of a Colony gun." The Court find the prisoner guilty of the crimes wherewith he was accused, and sentence him to be whipped on the bare back fifteen lashes, and order the value of the gun to be stopped out of his pay.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 4, 1775.

(Parole, Orford.)

(Countersign, Pittsburgh.)

The General approves the sentence of the General Court-Martial inserted in yesterday's order, and directs that Ensign Proctor be mulcted one month's pay, and the prisoner, John Gallop, of Captain Williams's Company, in Colonel Patterson's Regiment, punished with fifteen lashes on the bare back, at the time and place the Colonel of the Regiment shall think proper, and the value of the gun stopped out of the prisoner's pay.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.

Camp at Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: By an intelligent person from Boston, the 3d instant, I am informed that a fleet, consisting of one sixty-four, one twenty gun ship, two sloops of eighteen guns, two transports, with six hundred men, were to sail from Boston on yesterday; their destination a profound secret. That they took on board two mortars and four howitzers, with other artillery, concluded for the bombardment of a Town. I have thought proper to apprise every considerable Town on the coast of this armament, that they may be upon their guard. Should I receive any further account of their destination, it shall be forwarded.

The same person also informs that an express sloop arrived four days before, from England, at Boston, which she left the 8th of August. General Gage, and most of the officers who were at Lexington, are recalled, and sail this day; General Howe succeeds to the command. Six ships of the line and two cutters, under Sir Peter Dennis, are coming out. Five Regiments and one thousand marines may be expected at Boston in three or four weeks. No prospect of accommodation, but, on the other hand, every appearance of the war being pushed with the utmost vigour.

I am, Gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Isaac Low, Esq., Chairman, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE, OF RHODE-ISLAND.

Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

SIR: By an intelligent person, &c., [as in the preceding letter.]

Your several favours of the 26th and 29th September were duly received. The care of the men, respecting whom you request direction in yours of the 29th, I will consider of, as there are some regulations in the Army of which I choose to see the result before I make any disposition; you will therefore be pleased to have them employed in this interval as you think most conducive to the publick interest. The mode of continuing the Army is now under the consideration of the General Officers, in order to report to the Congress, with which I shall make you acquainted in course. In the mean time, shall be glad of your sentiments by the next post.

I am, Sir, with great regard and esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Cooke, Rhode-Island.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

SIR: By a person from Boston the day before yesterday, we learn that a small fleet, consisting of a sixty-four gun ship, a twenty gun, two sloops of eighteen guns, two transports, and about six hundred men, sailed yesterday. They took on board two mortars, four howitzers, and other artillery, from which we suspect they intend to bombard some Town on the coast. General Gage is recalled. General Howe commands in his place. We have some late accounts from England, but see no prospect of an accommodation. General Gage's account of Bunker's Hill is returned, and corresponds pretty much with ours, as to killed and wounded. You will please to forward the enclosed for the Commissary-General, with all expedition; and believe me, Sir, your very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Camp at Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

SIR: By express the evening before last the General received despatches from the Congress, wherein, among other things, he is desired to lay before them an estimate of the expenses of the Army during the winter. As your department includes the most considerable branch of expense, he requests you would, with all expedition, give him your sentiments on this subject, for his government in answering this despatch. It is not supposed to be absolutely necessary to fix the number of men, as you can take any given number upon which the estimate may be made, which will increase or diminish according to the number actually employed.

I must refer you to the Governour for what little news since you went away. Poor Doctor Church is certainly ruined.

I am, in haste, and expecting your earliest answer, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOSEPH REED.

To Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Head-Quarters, October 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: On the 29th of August I did myself the honour of addressing you, on the complaint of the Quartermaster, respecting wood for the Army. The recess of the House of Representatives prevented any steps being taken upon it. I must now beg leave to recall your attention to my letter of that date, as the evil is increasing and more alarming as the winter approaches. Little or no wood is brought in, and it is apprehended the owners keep it back to impose an unreasonable price.

The communication at Winnisimit Ferry, which was opened for the relief of the unhappy sufferers at Boston, is now turned into a convenience for the enemy. A whole week has sometimes elapsed without a boat being permitted to come out, and there have been many irregularities there, which the distance and my other engagements have prevented my attending to. Before I gave any order upon the subject, I thought proper to communicate my intentions to you, that if there were any special reasons against the proposed alteration, you may have an opportunity of making me acquainted with them.

By an estimate laid before me by the Quartermaster-General, I find it will be impracticable to provide sufficient barracks for the Troops before the season is too far advanced, without appropriating many of the houses in and about Cambridge to this use. Many of the inhabitants who had deserted them are now returning, under the protection of the Army. I feel a great repugnance to exclude them from what is their own; but necessity in this case, I fear, will supersede all other considerations. I must beg the General Court to act upon it.

I am, most respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Hon. James Otis, Esq., President, &c. To be communicated to the Hon. House of Representatives.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF PORTSMOUTH, NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I am to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 2d instant, informing me that the Ship Prince George, Captain Emmes, from Bristol to Boston, with flour for the enemy, by a mistake of the Captain, and the spirited conduct of some of the inhabitants, was now in your possession.

I cannot but consider this as a most providential event; the state of this Army being alone defective in that article. It would therefore highly conduce to the publick interest, and to our relief, to forward it hither as soon as possible; which, I apprehend, may be done with safety and ease by water, as far as Salem or Marblehead. In the mean time, I will communicate the matter to the Continental Congress, for their direction, as to the compensation to be made the captors, and the determination of what property arises by the capture, and in whom vested.

Whatever expenses may accrue in complying with the above request, and whatever risk may be run by the carriage by water, I will engage; but, as I do not learn there are any of the enemy's ships on the coast, I hope the risk is very small.

I am, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To H. Wentworth, Esq., Chairman, &c.

P. S. One Mr. Fisk, from Salem, who left Boston the day before yesterday, informs that a sixty-four gun ship, a twenty, and two sloops, with two transports of soldiers, having taken on board two mortars, howitzers, &c., sailed on yesterday. As the design is probably to batter some Town on the coast, I thought it proper to give you the earliest notice, and it may be advisable to detain the flour a few days, till their destination can be known.

PORTSMOUTH (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) COMMITTEE TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Committee-Hall, October 7, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: On the 2d day of this month, the Ship Prince George, of which Richard Emmes is master, put into this harbour from Bristol, bound to Boston, loaded with one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two barrels of flour. Upon notice of her arrival, Lieutenant Thomas Pickering, with a boat and hands, by order of Captain Titus Salter, went on board, and finding the said provisions were intended for the use of Gage's Army, he took her into possession, and brought her up to this Town, and unbent the sails, and applied to this Committee, on the 3d day of this month. Messrs. T. Sherburne, P. Long, and G. Wentworth, all of this Committee, were appointed to unload her; and as the Town is in great want of flour, they were desired to make sale of fifty barrels for cash, and to supply the fort therewith; but before they had accomplished it, the vote was reconsidered, and ordered that no part of the cargo should be taken out till the advice of the Committee of Safety for the Province was taken thereupon. And we wrote, at the same time, to General Washington, advising him of the capture; to which we have received the enclosed answer, by which he requests the whole may be sent up to him, as the Army is in want of it, and he will be accountable for it. We also represent to you, that this Town is destitute of flour; that not a barrel is to be bought, at any rate, for the supply of the forts and inhabitants; and at least six hundred barrels should be reserved for their use, and to be sold for the cash only. Your advice is requested by us in respect to the disposal of this cargo, and we would wish it as speedily as possible, for our government. You will perceive, by General Washington's letter, that an armament is fitting out at Boston, upon some expedition, and, as he suspects, to bombard some Towns on the coast; we are not without great suspicion that the enemy have an intention upon this Town. With the advice of Captain Worthen, we have thought proper to order Captain Robert Parker to enlist forty-four men immediately, to be stationed at the fort on Seary's Island, for the present defence of that fort, for one month; which we hope will meet with your approbation, as we have been induced thereto wholly for the publick safety. We have appointed John Penhallen, John Wendal, and George King, Esqs., to wait upon you, and to confer fully with you on such matters as may regard the general safety.

I am, in behalf of the Committee, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Hampshire.

COL. JOSEPH REED TO THE COMMITTEE OF PORTSMOUTH.

Camp at Cambridge, October 7, 1775.

SIR: The General, fearing he shall give you and the other gentlemen of the Committee too much trouble, has directed me to inform you that he has despatched Mr. Moylan, Muster-Master General of the Army, to negotiate the transportation of the flour; he will give a receipt for it, so that any directions of the Congress, with regard to any compensation for capture, may be fully complied with, should any such claim be made. The vessel, &c., his Excellency thinks, should remain under your care, till the determination of Congress is had.

You will, therefore, Sir, oblige the General, and promote the service, by giving Mr. Moylan all the assistance you can. He has directed me to make his respectful compliments to yourself and the other gentlemen of the Committee.

We have yet no further intelligence of the sailing of the fleet mentioned in the General's letter of the 5th. If there had been an account at Boston of the capture of this vessel, we should have supposed an attack upon you was meditated; but by a deserter, who came out yesterday, we learn that this event had not then reached Boston.

I am, Sir, by order of his Excellency, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOSEPH REED.

To H. Wentworth, Esq., Chairman, &c.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Camp at Cambridge, October 7, 1775.

DEAR SIR: As the management of the flour at Portsmouth may be attended with some difficulty, unless some person goes there by appointment of the General, I have wrote to the Chairman of the Committee of Portsmouth, which is left open for your perusal. If you think that, without any inconvenience to the other matter, you can go to Portsmouth, it is thought best you should, and settle the matter on the best terms consistent with the letter, and direct the transportation in the manner most proper and safe. If you meet with any difficulty, you will inform us as soon as possible.

I am, in haste, yours, &amp;c.,

JOSEPH REED.

To Stephen Moylan, Esq., Salem or Marblehead.

PORTSMOUTH (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) COMMITTEE TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Committee-Hall, October 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In addition to what we wrote you the 7th instant, we beg leave to mention the expediency of having a number of men at the batteries, in case the fleet mentioned in General Washington's letter should be destined for this port, and have therefore given it in charge to the Committee appointed to wait on you, to request that a number of men, properly officered and equipped, (we think two hundred may be sufficient,) may forthwith be forwarded from the Towns not far distant from this, in order to attend at the said batteries, till the destination of the said fleet is known.

I am, by order of the Committee of Safety, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Hampshire, }
October 11, 1775. }

SIR: The Committee of Safety for the Town of Portsmouth have represented to us that the Ship Prince George, Captain Richard Emmes master, from Bristol, bound to Boston, with provisions for the Army there, is now in their port, and in custody; and that they had represented the matter to your Excellency, and that you had desired the whole cargo might be forwarded to the Army under your command.

This Colony have upwards of one hundred soldiers stationed at the batteries erecting in our port, and often two hundred men in a day, from the country, working on the batteries, and there is not, nor has there been for some weeks past, one single barrel of flour to be purchased within this Colony. We therefore, thinking it necessary for the promotion of the common cause, have ordered one hundred barrels of the flour to be taken for the use of the said soldiers, and doubt not it will meet with your Excellency's approbation; and, as the Town of Portsmouth is in great want of bread, if the circumstances of the Army will admit of it, we should be exceeding glad that about five hundred barrels of the flour might be sold to the inhabitants of said Portsmouth, and the money deposited in the hands of some faithful person, until the determination of the Continental Congress, relative to the said cargo, may be known.

We should also propose to your Excellency's consideration, whether the transporting the flour round Cape Ann will not be dangerous. We conceive it more prudent to convey it in small vessels to Ipswich, (though the land carriage from there is farther than from Marblehead,) than to risk it round the cape.

Your Excellency's sentiments on this matter will greatly oblige your most obedient servants.

P. S. The sailors appear to be pleased with the capture, but are uneasy about their wages; and we would request your opinion whether or not they should be paid by the sale of some part of the cargo.

PORTSMOUTH (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Committee-Hall, October 11, 1775.

Whereas a Letter has been received this day, from Joseph Reed, Esquire, Secretary to his Excellency General Washington, setting forth, that he has given directions to Mr. Moylan, Muster-Master General, to receive the cargo of Flour on board the Ship Prince George, Richard Emmes master, and transport the same to Head-Quarters, for the use of the Army; and whereas this Committee have applied to the Provincial Committee of Safety, who have represented to his Excellency the necessity of preserving a part of the said cargo for the use of the inhabitants of this Colony, in their present necessitous state, an answer to which is not yet received:

Therefore, Voted, That there be forthwith delivered to the said Mr. Moylan, twelve hundred and ninety-two barrels of Flour, part of the aforesaid cargo; and that Messrs. George King, Joshua Wentworth, Samuel Sherburne, Pearse Long, and George Wentworth, be a Committee to assist the said Moylan in shipping the same.

By order of the Committee of Safety:

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

Extract from the Minutes:

SUPPLY CLAP, Secretary.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GEORGE KING.

In Committee of Safety, October 11, 1775.

SIR: You are desired to take charge of the cargo of the Ship Prince George, Richard Emmes, late master, now lying in Piscataqua harbour, and deliver to Samuel Cutts, Esq., one hundred barrels of flour, at such times and quantities as he may need it, to supply the soldiers at the batteries in said harbour.

To George King, Esquire.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Portsmouth, October 13, 1775.

SIR: I arrived here the 11th instant, and delivered Colonel Reed's letter to the Chairman of the Committee; in consequence of which, he called a meeting of the members. The result was, that they would deliver to my care twelve hundred barrels of the flour, and let me know what would be done with the rest of the cargo, when they received an answer to a letter they had wrote to your Excellency, in which (they inform me) they express the great want of that article in this Province. As even half a loaf would be better than no bread, I told them I would take immediate charge thereof, and yesterday I engaged two sloops, to begin the transportation; one of them will take in this day.

I have engaged, in behalf of the Continent, to ensure (against the enemy only) the vessels—the Committee will appraise them—they are to receive one shilling, lawful money, per barrel; which, at this season of the year, is not extravagant. I find, by having had a few barrels weighed, they fall short three, four, and five pounds of the weight marked on them; and, as it will probably become a Continental charge, I have thought it best to have them all weighed, that the publick, or the Commissary into whose hands they fall, may not pay for more flour than they really have.

As there are people in this Town inimical to the cause, I think best (in part) to keep it secret where this flour is to be landed. The engagements I have made are, that they must proceed to Newbury, Ipswich, Cape Ann, Salem, or Marblehead, according to the orders I shall give them when going to sea. A copy of these orders I have the honour of enclosing to you.

I have appointed Trist. Dalton, Esquire, of Newbury, agent for the armed schooners, and any prizes they may carry into that port; and Colonel Joshua Wentworth, for this Province. They are to obey all orders they will receive from Head-Quarters.

I have the honour to be your Excellency's most humble and obedient servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

P. S. Your Excellency will be pleased to order two hundred and forty dollars to be sent me by the bearer, that I may pay the freight and other charges attending this business.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE CAPTAINS.

Portsmouth, October 13, 1775.

You are to proceed, with the first fair wind, to the port of Salem, and deliver your cargo, consisting of . . . . . barrels of flour, to the care of Mr. Hask. Darby, at his wharf, who will give you a receipt for the same. You are by no means to go farther out to sea than is absolutely necessary for the preservation of your vessel and cargo. Hug the shore all the voyage as much as possible; avoid every vessel you see, and make all the despatch you possibly can.

By complying with these instructions, you will render the risk of the enemy trifling; you will merit the confidence of your Country, and you will be entitled to receive one shilling, lawful money, per barrel, for your freight.

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

I, Stephen Moylan, Commissary-General of Musters to the Army of the United Colonies, being empowered by his Excellency George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief, to negotiate the transportation of a cargo of flour from this port to any other port or ports on this coast; and whereas Captain . . . . ., of the Sloop . . . . ., has engaged to proceed to the port of Salem, with a load of said flour, on the following conditions: that he is to receive one shilling, lawful money, for every barrel of flour he delivers to the care of Mr. Hask. Darby, of said port; that his vessel is to be ensured against the danger of being taken by the enemy, in the prosecution of this voyage.

By virtue of the power aforesaid, I do hereby ensure said vessel, in the sum of three hundred Pounds, lawful money, against the said risk.

Witness my hand:

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Portsmouth, October 13, 1775.

TIMOTHY WALKER, JUN., TO WILLIAM WHIPPLE.

Medford, October 15, 1775.

SIR: Yours of the 12th instant, by Mr. Perkins, came safe to hand. I waited upon General Washington yesterday morning, but found he had set out early for Roxbury, and was not expected back till three o'clock, P. M., at which time I called again, and found him at home. The General, after reading your letter, told me I must call next morning for an answer. I called accordingly, and received the enclosed. The General directed me to call on the Commissary-General for some cash to pay the freight of some flour, which, it seems, is coming this way. I called at the Commissary's office, but was informed that the money was not to be had at present, but that they would forward it as soon as it would arrive from Philadelphia.

Your letter to Colonel Bartlett will be forwarded to-morrow by the post.

I am your most obedient and very humble servant,
TIMOTHY WALKER, JUN.

To William Whipple, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety for New-Hampshire.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Camp at Cambridge, October 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I was yesterday favoured with yours of the 11th instant, wherein the necessities of the Town of Portsmouth and the garrison there, for some part of the late capture of flour, are represented. Had I known their situation, I should have made the application unnecessary, by directing Mr. Moylan on the subject. They have my cheerful consent to take what is necessary, but perhaps somewhat less than six hundred barrels may answer the present exigence. As our mutual wants are now known to each other, I shall leave it to you to reserve what quantity you think indispensably necessary.

I do not see any impropriety in paying the seamen their wages out of the sales of some part of the cargo, and make no doubt it will be approved in the settlement of this affair.

With respect to the transportation of it to Marblehead or Salem by water, I apprehend it must depend upon circumstances, such as the enemy being upon the coast, &c., of all which Mr. Moylan was directed to inform himself, and then act as should be best. The expense of land carriage would be very considerable, and I wish to use all possible economy, so as to be consistent with our safety. You will please to favour Mr. Moylan with your opinion on the subject, to which he will pay a suitable regard.

I am, with much respect and esteem, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Hon. William Whipple, Esq., Chairman, &c.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Cambridge, October 15, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 13th instant came safely to hand. The General is pleased with your proceedings, and has given his consent that the Committee should retain what flour is absolutely necessary.
